Grand Opening!

"THE RIGHT OF WAY"

Mr. Sanford Dodge has surrounded himself with a splendid company this season and will be seen in "The Right of Way". This great play is an adaption from Sir Gilbert Parker's famous story of the same name, the dramatization being made by America's greatest playwright, Eugene Presbrey.

"The Right of Way" was originally produced at Wallack's theatre, New York City by Klaw & Erlanger and it immediately became the sensation of the theatrical world. Not to have seen it is to miss seeing one of the most talked of dramatic productions of modern times. Mr. Sanford Dodge will present this splendid new play at the Auditorium, Sept. 29. He carries a car load of new scenery and properties and the production will be first class. Prices will be made to suit all. Dont miss this great dramatic event, even if you do not go to another show for a year.

H. H. Aaker Out for Governor.

The first candidate to make formal announcement of his gubernational aspirations for 1912 is H. H. Aaker of Fargo. He is a Progressive Republican and was a candidate at last year's primaries, receiving about 12,000 votes. He is at the head of a business college there and formerly lived in Moorhead, where he was mayor and head of Concordia college.

MAYOR DUMAS OF CASS LAKE INDICTED

Attempted Arson in Third Degree Is the Charge.

"Attempted arson in the third degree," reads the indictment of the Beltrami county grand jury returned against Dr. D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake.

Although the maximum penalty on this charge is but three and one-half years it is the most serious offense that can be charged as a result of Dr. Dumas' alleged conspiracy to rob and burn the postoffice and general store building at Puposky on the night of June 16 last, when Martin Behan and Mike Davis were fired upon and Behan was captured. Dr. Dumas was arrested the next day in Hibbing for complicity in the crime.

Dr. Dumas was arraigned in district court at Bemidji before Judge C. W. Stanton. Marshall A. Spooner, acting for the defendant, entered a plea of not guilty. After a short consultation with Assistant Attorney General Jones and E. E. McDonald of this city, who is assisting the state, it was agreed that the case should come up for trial next Wednesday morning.

TAWNEY WILL BE PROMOTED

May Be Made Chairman of Boundary Waterways Commission.

Former Representative J. A. Tawney probably will become chairman of the American section of the International boundary waterways commission, as a result of the death of Thomas H. Carter of Montana. Mr. Tawney, Mr. Carter and Frank H. Streeter of New Hampshire were appointed members of the commission by President Taft. Upon the organization of the commission Mr. Carter, on motion of Mr. Tawney, was named chairman. With the death of Senator Carter Mr. Tawney becomes the ranking member of the commission. The new chairman probably will be elected as soon as the vacancy on the commission caused by Senator Carter's death is filled.

ANSWERS BUT FEW QUERIES

Wheelock on Stand in Minnesota Training School Case.

Ralph W. Wheelock, private secretary to Governor Eberhart, like the governor himself, escaped a grilling examination in the Whittier hearing before the state board of control through technicalities of the law.

Mr. Wheelock was on the witness stand for nearly an hour and was bombarded with pertinent questions by Judge Frank Wilson, attorney for Superintendent Frank Whittier, but was allowed to answer only a few.

Such questions as were ruled material Mr. Wheelock answered fully and frankly, as when he admitted that he knew nothing of his own knowledge prior to the hearing of the abuses charged in the complaint.

REWARD ON SLAYER'S HEAD

Bullet Which Passed Through Body of Mrs. Bolton Found.

The state has made no headway in its search for "Jim," the farmhand wanted for the murder of Mrs. Walter Bolton and F. E. Rhodes on a lonely farm in Anoka county. Sheriff John Casey received reports that suspects had been captured at Elk River and Madison, Minn., but when an effort was made to confirm the news it was learned no arrests have been made at either place.

County Attorney Albert Pratt announced that $200 reward will be given by Anoka county for information leading to the arrest of the double murderer.

At the Bolton farm the bullet which killed Mrs. Bolton was found in the wall of the cellar. It had passed through the kitchen floor, indicating that the woman was killed in the kitchen with a rifle.

UPHELD BY LOWER COURT

Minnesota's "Seven-Senators" Amendment to Go on Ballot.

Judge W. E. Hale of the Hennepin county district court, sitting at Minneapolis, decided that the "seven-senators" amendment to the state constitution proposed by the last legislature should be placed on the general election ballot next year for approval or rejection by the people.

He denied the petition of Representatives Charles R. Fowler and W. D. Washburn, Jr., who sued as taxpayers for an injunction to restrain Julius A. Schmahl, secretary of state, from placing the amendment on the ballot.

The plaintiffs announced that they will appeal to the supreme court.

The bill proposes an amendment to the constitution limiting the number of state senators to seven from any one county.

Lawler Files for Senator.

Daniel W. Lawler, former mayor of St. Paul, was the first man to file for office under provisions of the Keefe bill passed at the last session of the legislature providing for election of United States senators by direct vote. He seeks the Democratic nomination, subject to the action of the primaries Sept. 17, 1912.

TAKES LIFE IN BATH.

W. H. Tucker Shoots Himself in Brain at St. Paul Hotel.

Lying in a bathroom just off his room in the Boardman hotel at St. Paul, a revolver in his hand and a bullet hole through his head, William H. Tucker, assistant treasurer of the Minneapolis General Electric company, was found dead by Detective William Springer of the St. Paul police department. A chambermaid had attempted to open the door of the room, but found it locked and as Tucker had not been seen since he retired to his room the previous night the proprietor called in the detective to force the door.

A. W. Leonard, general manager of the Minneapolis General Electric company, believes that a nervous breakdown, due to overwork and a possibility of a delinquency in getting up his balance, is the cause of Tucker's suicide.

Grand Opening.

The cast of "The Right of Way" to be presented at the Auditorium, Sept. 29 is large and contains many interesting characters:

Charley Steele, the criminal lawyer who loses his memory.

Judge Wantage, his wife's uncle.

Doctor Weldon, the family physician.

Joe Portugais, the murderer whom Charley Steele saves from the gallows.

Capt. Thos. Fairing, who is in love with Mrs. Steele.

Billy Wantage, Steele's young brother in-law.

Jack Brown, formerly a preacher, now a tramp.

Price, Steele's secretary.

Kathleen Steele, Charley's wife.

Suzon, the belle of the "Cote Darlon"

Jake Hough, an Englishman working as river driver.

Rogue Gosselin, a Canadian voyager.

Jougon, a half breed voyager.

Bovin, a Canadian voyager.

Gravel, a Canadian voyager.

Rieband, a Canadian voyager.

M. Rossignol the Siegneur

The Cure, of Cooling Spring Parish.

M. Marul, the Cure's brother, a great surgeon from Paris.

The Abbe, visiting the Cure.

Louis Truddel, the jealous fanatical tailor:

Paulette Dubois, Partugais' former wife the "Red Woman".

Rosalia Eventurel who has fallen in love with Charley Steele.

Constables, woodmen, rivermen, etc.

Features: a great play, a splendid company and special scenery. Tickets on sale at People's Drug Store, phone No. 211.

ROBINSON FOR RIVER FLIGHT

Will Make Trip From Minneapolis to New Orleans.

Hugh K Robinson, the well known aviator, has been nominated by the Transmississippi River Flights association to make the Minneapolis to New Orleans hydro-aeroplane flight of 1,917 miles, which, when accomplished, will set a new world's record for cross country flying.

Robinson will start from the surface of Lake Calhoun, Minneapolis, on Wednesday morning, Oct. 11. He will fly for a purse of $2,000 raised by the river cities in which he is to give hydro-aeroplane exhibitions.

SANDPIT CAVES, MAN BURIED

Driving Too Near the Edge Man and Team Are Smothered.

Thomas Rooney, fifty years old, was buried alive in a sandpit at St. Paul.

Rooney had been grading his lot and had just filled his wagon with sand. In driving away he went too near the edge of the bank and it caved in, taking the team and wagon down with it.

When assistance arrived Mr. Rooney was dead. He is survived by his widow and three children.

AN EGG LAYING CONTEST.

Beginning on the first day of next November and continuing for a year, there will be held at the Missouri state poultry farm at Mountain Grove, a national egg laying contest. The expenses will be met by state funds and the contest will be held under the direction of the secretary of the Missouri poultry board, T. E. Quisenberry, who will be assisted by poultry experts from the Kansas, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota state agricultural colleges. Those in charge expect the data gathered to be of great practical value to poultry raisers and the poultry business generally. The question of economy in housing and feeding, the food value of certain diets, methods of increasing egg yields and the differences in profit between egg yields and the differences in profit pens that make the highest records and those that make a poorer showing, will be carefully studied and determined. Prizes will be given monthly to the pen which makes the best showing in egg production, to the pen which lays the greatest weight of eggs, and to the individual hens that lay the greatest number of eggs each month and for the year. The hens will also be tested for fertility and hatchability of eggs and vigor and vitality of chicks hatched therefrom. More than 150 applications have been received from poultrymen in twenty-five states, and doubtless many more entries will be made before the contest starts. Practically all of the well known laying breeds will be represented in the contest, and the announcement of the best laying breed at the close of the test will be awaited with keen interest.

ABOUT BAKED BEANS.

Properly prepared, there is scarcely any dish the good housewife can cook that surpasses a pot of baked beans, this both from the standpoint of toothsomeness and nutritive quality. But for all this, scores of messes of beans are spoiled before being put into the oven. This comes through soaking the beans overnight and throwing away this water, boiling them up a couple of times more and doing the same. At this stage of the game the beans are just about ready to be dumped out into the back alley, as all the distinctive flavor and snap they possess have been soaked out and thrown away. If the family has been indifferent to baked beans in the past try the following: Soak the beans overnight if old and hard; if new, bring to a boil on top of the stove, add a pinch of soda, two level teaspoonfuls and a half of salt, sugar to suit, a teaspoonful of mustard—these amounts to a quart of dry beans—and bestow the pieces of pork so the rind will cook crisp. Put this combination on in the morning on baking day and serve in the evening with brown bread, boiled potatoes and sliced onions, and you have a dish fit for a king.

THE BOY AND THE STATE FAIR.

If the boy has shown evidence of a lack of interest in the farm operations and there is reason to believe that the farm work is sort of palling on him it would be a pretty good idea to take a couple of days off and go with him to the big state fair. After he has seen the blue ribbon horses, cattle, hogs and sheep, the poultry, the latest machinery, products of the field in the shape of flower and fruit and grain the chances are that the agricultural profession will advance several notches in his esteem. However, to be most effective such a visit should be followed up by an attempt on the part of this boy's father to put some of the better methods into practice on the home farm and possibly to undertake the raising of some kind of pure bred stock, giving the boy an interest in the enterprise. Such a course as the above we believe would make over literally hundreds of farm boys who find country life prosy and uninteresting and who are already beginning to gaze with longing eyes toward the cities with their brilliant lights, variety and attractiveness.

A CHIGGER CURE.

Dr. Crumbine, one time secretary of the Kansas board of health, got hold of a chigger remedy from a Texan a number of years ago and made it public. It is simple, as follows: Take a few ounces of hyposulphite of soda, which retails for about 10 cents a pound at any drug store, and make a saturated solution in a small quantity of water—that is, dissolve in the water all it will hold. Moisten or bathe spots where chiggers have burrowed. The solution apparently penetrates to them and kills them. The solution has no harmful effect aside from causing a slight smarting on parts which have been scratched or irritated. The solution will not only relieve chigger bites, but applied to the skin and allowed to dry will prevent them from working for a day or two.

THE NEW YORK LEGISLATURE.

In a resolution passed at its last session the New York legislature provided for an investigation into the sewage of cities. Those who have made a study of the matter estimate that in the cities of the Empire State alone there is a loss of $23,000,000 worth of plant food annually. This is chiefly in the form of nitrogen, and under sewage methods at present in vogue running into streams or burning is entirely lost. This certainly is a conservation problem of such proportion as to merit serious and effective attention.

TRIBUTE TO HINCKLEY DEAD

Governor and Other Officials at Seventeenth Anniversary.

People of Northern Minnesota paid their tribute to the pioneers of the Minnesota forests when they gathered around the granite shaft in the little cemetery near Hinckley where lie the remains of more than half of those that perished in the fire which devastated that village and much of the adjoining territory seventeen years ago.

The annual memorial exercises took added interest this year on account of the presence of the governor of the state and other high officials, who added their tribute to those who had given their lives while opening up a new country.

TAFT'S DATES IN MINNESOTA

Will Make Opening Speech at Mankato Oct. 24.

President William H. Taft will begin his Minnesota speechmaking on his "swing around the circle," at Mankato, the home of Governor A. O. Eberhart, arriving there at 10:30 in the morning of Tuesday, Oct. 24. Thence he will go to Minneapolis, arriving at 7:30 in the evening. He will spend the night in Minneapolis, and the next day he will be in the hands of the St. Paul reception committee, leaving St. Paul at 11:15 Wednesday evening.

This information was received by Governor Eberhart in a telegram from Charles D. Hilles, President Taft's private secretary.

CALLS TAFT DICTATORIAL

Clapp Says President Doesn't Know How to Handle People.

"The knowledge that he has no chance of re-election has made President Taft ill tempered, dictatorial and bullheaded."

This is the opinion of Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, expressed in an interview before his departure from Long Beach, Cal., for Fresno.

"Taft doesn't know how to handle the people," Clapp continued, "and nobody knows that better than Taft himself. This knowledge has made him sour, peevish and fretful."

Two thousand persons heard Clapp defend the initiative, referendum, recall and woman's suffrage.

TWO DIE IN DULUTH BAY

Sewer Workmen Try to Climb Out Over Each Other.

Two workingmen who accidentally slipped into the bay at the foot of a sewer at Duluth tried to climb out over each other in getting out of the place and in the struggle which followed both were drowned.

They were George Gurich, aged thirty years, and Steve Nevich, aged twenty-five. A small boy living in the neighborhood was the only eyewitness.

Neither man could swim. One stood on the other's shoulders and tried to get up the muddy bank. He failed and then the other tried. Finally both gave up the struggle and sank.

St. Paul Postal Bank Opens.

The deposits of the first day of the St. Paul postal savings bank were $5,443. From the time the bank opened until it closed there were dozens lined up constantly waiting for a chance to make a deposit. The accounts opened were 141 and 144 deposits were made, three making two deposits each.

A Political Genius.

Congressmen sometimes adopt queer expedients to gain the good will of their constituents. Years ago a member from a western state was afraid that his first term would be his last, as he had not managed to make himself a power in congress. While he was debating what he should do a friend said, "You live near the center of the United States, don't you?" "Yes." "Then why don't you introduce a bill to have the capital moved to the principal town in your district?" The congressman introduced the bill, and the people of his district at once concluded he was a great man and sent him back for another term. He reintroduced the bill in the next congress, and, although it was promptly pigeonholed in committee, his constituents gave him a third term as a reward for his genius.

The Blushing Octopus.

The octopus frequently changes in color like a marine chameleon. It would appear, from studies of this creature, that the colored pigment whereby this change in color is effected is contained in envelopes in its skin, in the tissue of which are muscular fibers actuated by nerves. Should these fibers become relaxed a dark pigment appears. The phenomenon is said to be analogous to blushing.—Harper's Weekly.

Corrected Him.

A reporter was once interviewing Thomas A. Edison.

"And you, sir," he said to the inventor, "made the first talking machine?"

"No," Mr. Edison replied, "the first one was made long before my time—out of a rib."

Three Not of a Kind.

Sir Henry Maine's famous political diagnosis is worth quoting. The king of England reigns, but does not govern. The president of the United States governs, but does not reign. The president of France neither reigns nor governs.—Boston Herald.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN
BY F. E. TRIGG
CENTRAL POINT
ROGUE RIVER VALLEY
OREGON
CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

A young hen will lay more eggs than an old one, but with a goose the reverse is true, her eggs being more numerous and larger as well.

The runt is usually an unprofitable proposition, whether calf, pig or chicken. On this account it pays to keep the young stuff in a thrifty, growing condition from the start.

As a rule the cheapest pork to produce is that which is made in the shortest time. This same thing is true of beef and explains why baby beef is the most profitable that can be grown.

The bacon and corn fed hogs are types that are doubtless more due to a definite practice of feeding than to any other set of influences, as either type begins to change if given the other conditions of feed.

The limit which several states name for cutting roadside weeds is such as to permit most weeds to mature a prolific crop of seeds before their heads are taken out, and the law referred to belongs to this class.

Cider may be kept sweet a long time by taking the juice as it comes from the press, gradually heating it to a temperature of about 180 degrees F., holding it there for ten minutes and bottling at once in clean, sterilized, air tight bottles.

The average American hen lays eighty eggs a year, when if given proper care she should produce 150 eggs. That this second estimate is modest is shown in the fact that individual hens of certain breeds have laid as high as 260 eggs in a year.

It is probably just as well all around that up to the present time a wise Providence has withheld from mankind the secret of influencing or regulating the matter of sex. Human beings have about all they can look after as things are without this responsibility.

Near Forest Grove, in the Willamette valley in western Oregon, the wild deer that make their haunts in nearby mountain cover are said to be acquiring the prune eating habit. The animals have grown so bold that they jump fences and pull the fruit from the trees.

There are nineteen mines in the United States that produce quicksilver. Fifteen of these are located in California, two in Nevada and two in Texas. The production of this metal for the year 1910 was 20,601 casks of seventy-five pounds each, having a value of $958,153, or $46.51 a flask.

A thought that comes involuntarily to mind as one passes through orchards these days where all kinds of fruit is rotting under the trees is the pity of it that thousands upon thousands of the poorer classes of our large cities could not be provided with some of this waste. Seldom do such folks have a bite of fresh fruit, yet there seems no feasible plan by which it can be got to them unless railroads or philanthropists should provide free transportation.

There is little wonder that the growing of alfalfa needs no encouragement in sections where it has been demonstrated it will do well. This remark is prompted by noting recently the case of a Kansas farmer who harvested 178 bushels of alfalfa seed from eleven acres, or an average of 15.59 bushels per acre. The owner refused $8 per bushel for it, which would mean even at this price a return of $129.60 per acre. Besides this, its owner will get one or two cuttings of hay.

It will be an excellent idea during the next few weeks to run over the young orchard set last spring, cut out all but from four to six of the lateral branches and trim these back to from twelve to fifteen inches in length. This work is important, as it is this that determines the shape and nature of the head or frame. Another advantage of pruning at this time lies in the fact that the portions of the limbs remaining will thicken up and become thoroughly mature before cold weather sets in.

A friend who has a twenty acre tract that was badly infested with quack grass for a number of years tells us that year before last, when it was in its glory the summer fallowed and killed it last year at a cost of about $240, he kept on it continuously through the summer season 200 head of sheep and that during this interval it furnished more feed than any grass or combination of grasses that he knows of. But in view of his experience in getting the land free from it he does not favor resorting to it as a pasture grass.

THE CEMENT PAINT.

A reader of these notes who is planning to do some outside painting wishes to know the recipe for making the government whitewash, or the White House paint. For the benefit of this reader and others who may be interested we give the recipe again, which is as follows: Slack one-half bushel of stone lime, using enough boiling water to keep it from burning, and keep well covered during the process. When the slacking process is finished add enough more hot water so that it will be possible to strain the solution through a fine strainer—brass or a couple thicknesses of gunny sacking. Next dissolve a peck of salt in warm water; also prepare three pounds of rice boiled to a thin paste. The rice and limewater should first be carefully stirred together while hot and the salt water then added and stirred in. To this add one-fourth pound of Spanish whiting and one pint of liquid glue. This recipe will give about seven gallons, and, if there should not be as much as this, hot water should be added to give the desired amount. Various tints can be given this paint by stirring in dry colors. The paint will give the best results if used hot and should be stirred at frequent intervals to keep the several ingredients thoroughly mixed.

HOGGING DOWN CORN.

The wisdom of hogging down corn seems to depend on whether the fencing needed to carry it out satisfactorily will come to more than the saving effected by having the hogs do the husking. Two years' experiments conducted by the Minnesota station showed that hogs in a cornfield required only two-thirds as much feed to make a given amount of gain as did those kept in a dry lot, while those in the field made as much gain in seventy-five days as did dry lot hogs in a hundred days. The field hogs seemed to be the more thrifty and to eat their rations with a good deal more relish. Pigs weighing a hundred pounds or more make the most rapid gains under field conditions. Before being turned into the corn they should be fed new corn in the dry lot in gradually increasing amounts, so that they won't have their system upset by contracting the scours. The field to be hogged down should be fenced off in such manner that there will be an average of from a dozen to twenty pigs per acre, depending somewhat upon their size.

SMUT IN WHEAT.

Smut, a disease which causes kernels of small grain to bloat and to become filled with black, ill smelling spores, can be held in check effectively by treating the seed just before sowing with a formalin solution made by diluting one pint of 40 per cent formalin in thirty gallons of water. The seed should be spread out on a clean floor in barn or granary and sprinkled with the solution, being shoveled over slowly, if possible, while the disinfectant is being applied. The aim should be to have each kernel moistened with the solution. When the grain has been thoroughly moistened it should be shoveled into a pile and covered with blankets or gunny sacking for three or four hours, during which time the fumes of the solution will the more thoroughly penetrate each kernel. The covering may then be removed and the grain shoveled over until it is dry, when it is ready for sowing. To make the job most effective sacks, measures and seeders in which the seed is handled after treating should also be disinfected.

SIMPLE LIFE INSURANCE.

The tragic details of the death of a young wife and mother as a result of her clothing catching fire from the exposed blaze of a gasoline stove, which have recently come to the writer's attention, prompt a suggestion which if carried out might serve to prevent many just such fatal burnings. This is having close at hand in the kitchen, as near the gasoline stove as possible, a good sized blanket or heavy full length overcoat, which could be wrapped around one in case the clothing caught fire. Almost invariably when such an accident occurs there seems to be a natural instinct to rush to another room or out of doors for help, which is the worst possible thing that could be done to spread and intensify the blaze. Having a garment ready in the manner suggested would render this rush unnecessary and make possible an immediate extinguishing of a blaze which would not only prevent terrible burns, but would save life as well.

THE BUFFALO BUR.

The botanical departments of many experiment stations have had specimens of the buffalo bur submitted to them this season for identification. The plant is of about the same size and habit of growth as the cocklebur, has a divided leaf much like the watermelon and a yellow blossom, while leaves, stems and fruit pods are covered with long, ugly looking spines or needles. The writer saw a specimen of this weed the other day and noticed another interesting thing about the plant—that it has an odor exactly like a string of freshly caught bullheads. The seeds of this plant are scattered in the wool of western sheep, in the litter falling from freight cars in which sheep are carried and chick feed bought at country stores. The plant is an annual and is easily held in check by cultivation.

INVOKES BIG GALLON LAW.

Unless the legal department of the state can offer some relief the dairy-men of Minnesota and all other vendors of milk will be compelled to use larger measures, according to the railway and warehouse commission. The commission has asked George T. Simpson, attorney general, to indicate how it should proceed to enforce that section of the statutes providing that the standard measure for milk and beer shall be a gallon of 282 cubic inches.

"The law is plain and all we want is the opinion of the attorney general as to the best method of procedure," said a new member of the board. "It will mean not only new measures for every milk dealer in the state, but will compel the dealers to raise the price of milk as their entire business today is based on a gallon of 231 cubic inches. Where the standard in use came from we do not know."

The commission also asked Mr. Simpson to reconcile sections 2724 and 2728 of the revised code relating to dry measures. The former provides that a legal bushel shall contain 2,150.4 cubic inches. The latter provides that a bushel of all commodities usually sold by the bushel shall weigh up to a schedule incorporated in the act. In this scale a bushel of potatoes, wheat, corn, beans, and peas must weigh sixty pounds. The commission wants to know whether the measurement or weights shall govern.

UP TO UNCLE SAM.

For rural mail delivery and star routes the Post Office Department uses about a million miles of public highways largely dirt roads, little improved. At the extra session of Congress Senator Swanson introduced a bill to spend twenty million dollars annually for five years in permanently improving roads used in the postal service, the states or other local authorities to defray one-half the cost of every improvement. Representative Linthicum introduced a bill appropriating twenty-five million dollars to be expended in three years on the same general plan. A third bill proposed an expenditure of only one million dollars.

This shows a wide difference of opinion as to how much Uncle Sam ought to contribute; but there should be no difference of opinion regarding the Federal Government's duty to lend a powerful hand in good-road making. All experience here and abroad shows that local authority cannot cope successfully with the road problem. It is hardly too much to say that every really important and permanent improvement of the highways has come about through state aid, and in this respect the Federal Government bears a good deal the same relation to the states that the latter bear to the counties and townships. It not only uses a million miles of highway for postal service, but main-traveled roads are more and more used for interstate travel. It is a rare automobile, for example, that does not pass a state boundary. Experience shows also that good roads are catching. One mile of fine highway breeds two or three other miles. The Federal Government should lead instead of lagging behind.—Saturday Evening Post.

STATE FIRE LOSS GROWS $2,006,558

A net increase of $2,006,558 in fire losses in Minnesota in 1910 over 1909 is shown in the annual report of State Insurance Commissioner J. A. O. Preus. This material increase formed the chief reason for the advocacy of a fire prevention day, which by recent proclamation of Governor A. O. Eberhart was set for October 9.

During 1910 the amount of gross risks written in the state also showed an unusual increase, amounting to $60,564,358, of which the American stock fire companies obtained $34,605,022. The American companies likewise suffered the greatest loss during the year, this item showing an increase of $1,115,975 over 1909 in their accounts.

Fire losses in Minnesota during 1910, including the payments made by the American stock fire companies, the foreign stock fire companies, the mutuals and Lloyds and the township mutuals, reached the aggregate of $4,214,-[illegible], as against $1,2[illegible]8,426 paid out in 1909. The grand total of risks written reached $700,700,102, where $640,135,744 was written in 1909. The gross premiums on these risks amount to $8,993,414 compared to $8,658,172 in 1909.

The marine business of the American and foreign stock companies in this state showed a considerable decrease in 1910, both in the amount of gross risks written and the net losses incurred. Last year these companies wrote $159,135,040 as against $196,376,413 in 1909, a decrease of $37,241,373. In net losses they paid out $337,120 in 1910, a decrease of $428,654 from 1909, when the losses amounted to $765,654

In an effort to retain for Minnesota first honors in the national contest to be held at Milwaukee Oct. 10 to 18, Mr. Winjer is sending to every butter maker in the state entry blanks and information relative to the event. Only twice in the past decade has first honor in butter making gone anywhere other than to this state. The walls of the dairy and food department bear many silk banners won in the national shows.

Mr. Winjer gives out the following information:

Exhibits must be shipped so as to arrive in Milwaukee not later than Oct. 5.

Each exhibitor shall be required to take out an exhibitor's ticket, costing $2, which ticket contains an admission coupon for each day during the show.

All butter and cheese will be sold at the highest price obtainable and the money received for each exhibit, together with score card and pro rata premium, will be remitted to exhibitors, less $2 for exhibitors' ticket and express charges.

Exhibit must be made in the name of the maker, giving his name and postoffice address of creamery or cheese factory.

The minimum size package for butter shall be a 20 pound tub. Express charges should not be prepaid.

School Notes.

The workmen are this week completing the construction of the fountain on the high school campus. It promises to be a decided ornament to the grounds and a creditable memorial of the class of 1911.

There are only 19 nonresident children enrolled in the grades in this city. More than half of these are children living just outside the boundaries of the school district and who walk one mile or more to school, so the grade pupils are practically all residents of district 18. There are 63 nonresident students in the high school, all of whom are entitled under state law to enroll therein for the ordinary high school studies. The following places are represented in this enrollment: Newfolden, 8 pupils; Plummer, 7; Middle River, 6; St. Hilaire, 4; Town of North, 4; Town of Rocksbury, 8; Highlanding, 2; Karlstad, 4; Holt, 2; Town of Smiley, 2; Steiner, 3; Lancaster, Badger, Viking, Harwood, Lambert, Centuria, Brooks, Adams, Kuehnel, Warren, Germantown.

The department of public instruction has notified all superintendents and teachers of agriculture in the Putnam schools to attend a conference at the College of Agriculture on Friday and Saturday of this week. The authorities desire to unify and systematize the work in the special schools.

The maximum enrollment of twenty permitted in the normal training department by the state high school board has been reached and still more wish to enter. This restriction works an injustice to this section of the state where the population is dense and far removed from state normals. The maximum would better have been set at 25 or 30, but what fits the southern and central portions of the state ought to suit the northern—in the estimation of those who are not familiar with northern conditions.

The unfortunate accident which befell Bernard Williams the first of the week is the cause of deep regret to his school friends. He is a member of the eighth grade in the Washington building.

Manual training is now taught in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades. Sewing is also taught the girls in the same grades with the exception of the last, where they have elementary cooking.

The reception to the teachers at the Antlers Club rooms last Friday evening was an enjoyable social occasion. A pleasing program was rendered and some light refreshments served.

Whether the conditions of the grade schools in the city, wherein every room except one in the Knox is filled to the limit and in several instances uncomfortably crowded, is a source of satisfaction or not to the citizens is hard to decide. Some persons see in it indications of prosperity and business activity and good times locally, even though it involves the construction of an addition to the Central or Washington in the near future. Possibly this crowded condition is to be preferred to vacant buildings and houses to rent.

Soo Report Shows Loss.

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Soo line held in Minneapolis Tuesday President Pennington reported a decrease of $2,271,271.60 in gross earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, compared with the previous year. He attributed the loss to crop failures last season in North Dakota and a portion of Minnesota.

Gross earnings totaled $21,972,577.78 and operating expenses $14,008,338.28, while the net earnings from all sources aggregated $7,938,322.

Wets Win by 20 Votes.

According to a message received yesterday the complete official returns from the special election last Monday, when Maine voted on the question of the repeal of the constitutional prohibition amendment, as canvassed by the governor and council, show a majority of twenty votes in favor of repeal.

For repeal, 60,481
Against repeal, 60,467
Majority for repeal, 20.

It is not altogether unlikely that the result of the election will be contested.

German American Trio.

With four numbers to follow, the German-American Trio and Hugo Lutgens will open the course from the Twin city Lyceum Bureau at the Auditorium on Friday, Sept. 22nd. Milch who has appeared in concert with Ole Bull on extensive European tours; Arma Senkash Milch who when only six years old made her first appearance on the concert platform in Berlin, Germany, rendering on her violin the Janas, "Concert Fantasie;" Adelaide Milch, America's greatest juvenile cellist; Margareta Milch whose voice blends in sweetest harmony with the violin and cello, and Hugo Lutgens, Swedish dialect comedian, character impersonator and original monologue entertainer. Prices: 25, 35, and 50 cents.

Hoags Locate In Minneapolis.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hoag will be pleased to know that they have decided not to locate in California, but have cast their lot in Minneapolis, where, it is learned from communications received by friends in this city, Mr. Hoag will engage in the real estate business.

It was the intention of the Hoags on departing from this city last week to proceed to California and make their home in that state.

WOMAN AND COUSIN SLAIN

Murder Mystery in Anoka County Disclosed by the Finding of the Two Bodies.

Neighbors who became suspicious of the long absence of Mrs. Walter Bolton from the Bolton farm home near Stacy broke into the cellar entrance and after ransacking the house found the body of the woman in the cellar. She evidently had been killed in the kitchen after a struggle and been dragged to the cellar. A bullet wound was the cause of death, although her body was covered with bruises, showing signs of maltreatment and blows.

Her husband, Walter Bolton, had left the farm Labor day to return to his job in Minneapolis and had left his wife with his cousin, Frank Rhodes, and a hired man to look after the farm, stock and cattle.

Neighbors, aroused by the finding of the body, began a search for the two missing men, and accidentally discovered in an adjacent field, about sixty feet from the house, the partially buried body of Frank Rhodes.

The hired man is missing and it is believed by the authorities that he is the man who bought a ticket for Chicago. He had been employed on the place but three weeks.

All that is missing from the house is a mandolin and $5, unless there were secret hiding places for money which the neighbors knew nothing about. Robbery is not believed to have been the cause of the tragedy. Officials favor the theory that Mrs. Bolton was assaulted and that Rhodes coming to her aid, was killed in his endeavor to protect his cousin.

CASE IN HANDS OF BOARD

Will Decide Charges Against Minnesota Official.

Charges against Frank A. Whittier, superintendent of the state training school for boys at Red Wing, are now up to the state board of control for settlement.

The long drawn out hearing on the charges preferred by Ralph Wheelock, secretary to Governor A. O. Eberhart, came to a close when E. P. Sanborn, attorney for Mr. Wheelock, made a brief closing talk in rebuttal to Judge Frank Wilson, attorney for Superintendent Whittier.

The board will now start in to study the testimony, covering 2,000 typewritten pages, and the 100 exhibits in the case. This may take a month or more. P. M. Ringdal, chairman, said that the board will take its time.

The legal questions in the case will be decided by C. Louis Weeks, assistant attorney general.

A Political Genius.

Congressmen sometimes adopt queer expedients to gain the good will of their constituents. Years ago a member from a western state was afraid that his first term would be his last, as he had not managed to make himself a power in congress. While he was debating what he should do a friend said, "You live near the center of the United States, don't you?" "Yes." "Then why don't you introduce a bill to have the capital moved to the principal town in your district?" The congressman introduced the bill, and the people of his district at once concluded he was a great man and sent him back for another term. He reintroduced the bill in the next congress, and, although it was promptly pigeonholed in committee, his constituents gave him a third term as a reward for his genius.

The Blushing Octopus.

The octopus frequently changes in color like a marine chameleon. It would appear, from studies of this creature, that the colored pigment whereby this change in color is effected is contained in envelopes in its skin, in the tissue of which are muscular fibers actuated by nerves. Should these fibers become relaxed a dark pigment appears. The phenomenon is said to be analogous to blushing.—Harper's Weekly.

BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Bernard Williams Receives Dangerous Wound From Gun Last Sunday.

Accident Happened While Driving Home From a Day's Hunt.

Bernard Williams, the 14 year old son of G. Williams, is in a critical condition as the result of the accidental discharge of a shot gun which occured last Sunday afternoon. The accident occured while he, in company with Godfred Carlson, were returning home from a little hunting trip and were five miles this side of St. Hilaire. In some manner the dash board of the buggy in which the two were riding came lose and fell off and while Carlson went back after the dash board Williams remained in the seat. In turning around to speak to Carlson, the gun slipped from William's hands and the trigger got caught in some manner in the front part of the buggy causing it to discharge.

The charge launched in the boy's right side just above the abdomen and severed two ribs, and taking with it parts of his clothing into the wound.

The two kept on their journey and on arriving home Williams informed his mother that he had been shot and was put to bed, and was not until the clothes from the wound had been removed and medical aid secured that the wound was found to be more serious than it had been expected in the first place.

While the wound is very painful he is getting along as well as could be expected and unless complications set in his absolute recovery is looked for.

Senator Hanson Operated Upon.

Senator A. L. Hanson, of Ada, while in attendance in St. Paul during fair week was taken ill and had to submit to an operation. The latest reports are to the effect that he is getting along nicely and his absolute recovery from the operation is looked for in a short time.

Co. "L" Muster Out.

Acting on instructions from General Wood, Capt. Ahlers of the Minnesota National Guard stationed at Fort Snelling, arrived in the city Tuesday morning to take charge of the militia equipment of Co. "L" which has been shipped to headquarters at Minneapolis. With this, Co. "L" ceases its existence after having been established here some three years ago.

There has been considerable talk as to reorganizing the company in this city, but as yet no active move has been taken in that direction and in all likelihood none will be made.

Makes Record Automobile Trip.

On Friday evening at 4 o'clock p. m., Messrs. C. M. Lumpkin and A. D. Stephens started in the Buick, with Ellingbo at the wheel, drove to Thief River Falls, transacted a little business there, attended the school ma'am's reception in the evening, took T. P. Hamre on board on the morning of Saturday, drove to Holt and sold a piece of land; stopped at Middle River and made a bargain for six lots, then started for Greenbush across country, looking at some land and hunting a little on the side, so that when they arrived at Greenbush they ate chickens of their own shooting, transacted some business at Greenbush, and arrived home Saturday evening, but a little late for supper, the machine registering 215 miles. They claim that it is a record auto trip out of Crookston. On the road they saw many interesting things in the way of improvements, but the most unique was their visit to two of the wire grass camps, where the horses walked with wooden shoes. These camps contain from sixty to one hundred men, the quarters for which are fine for accomodation and comfort.—Crookston Times.

City Council Meeting.

At the regular meeting of the city council last Tuesday evening bids for the construction of the new auxiliary lighting plant and fire hall was opened and came up for consideration. Quite a number of bids were received but none were allowed as the task of considering them will require some time. The meeting was adjourned until 7 o'clock last evening when the bids would be further considered.

The lowest one received was that of Fairbanks-Morse Co., who put in a bid for $23,922, and the power proposed by this company is that of oil instead of steam.

While the fly furnishes meat for the spider, it is an interesting fact that the latter in turn often becomes an easy victim of the wasp.

Crop statisticians estimate that for the country as a whole the extreme July drought reduced the yield of all cereals by from 700,000,000 to 900,000,000 bushels.

Sorghum which is to be used for forage should be cut just before the first killing frost and placed in piles of from 500 to 600 pounds, where it may be allowed to remain until it is wanted.

At Cleveland on Aug. 11 Uhlan, the great trotting gelding, driven by his owner, C. K. G. Billings, made a half mile in the record time of 56¼ seconds. This breaks the record of one minute flat, held by Major Delmar and made on a Cleveland track in 1906.

That housewife made a long step in the direction of a sensible conservation of her energies who decided it was easier to prepare her vegetables and wash her dishes sitting on a stool of convenient height than when standing up. A host of other housewives might follow her example with profit.

A good deal of fun has been poked at Mrs. Russell Sage on one account or another, but she is entitled to the warm appreciation of every tiller of the soil for her gift of $15,000 to the national Audubon societies to aid in the campaign which is being waged to protect the robin during its winter sojourn in the south.

A feature of the training given the young women who attend the state university at Madison, Wis., along with the languages, mathematics and sciences, that is sensible and commendable is a gymnasium course, in which they are taught how to swim and which corrects curvature of the spine and other physical defects.

Centuries of education and civilization have failed to give human beings a veneer of culture thick enough not to be broken through by the primitive animal instinct of self preservation in a rush for safety at the cry of "Fire!" in a crowded auditorium. In such a crisis man shows not one whit more sense than does the beast.

There are a whole lot of would be religious folks who somehow fail to trace the vital connection between profession and practice and to realize the fact that if their religion does not make them kind and thoughtful and considerate in their own homes it is not worth a continental, let alone qualifying them to be of spiritual assistance to their neighbors or the heathen.

Feeding tests which have been made by a number of experiment stations indicate that the ration of ensilage for a dairy cow should be about thirty pounds, for beef cattle fifteen pounds, for wintering calves twenty, dry cows forty pounds and sheep from two to five pounds. With these figures should also be kept in mind the fact that a silo of a common dimension—16 by 30 feet—holds 120 tons of silage when settled.

With the choice and beautiful colors which have been recently developed in the phlox it has become one of the most valuable of permanent bedding plants. Besides the deep red, pink and white, there are those of a rich cream color with a pink eye and those of a bright rose color with a red eye. These plants are rather slow growers, spreading by root stalks, but are perennials and very hardy, the roots living through the winter in the open ground without difficulty.

After four years of experimenting at the national plant introduction gardens at Chico, Cal., H. F. Blanchard, the western cereal expert of the department of agriculture, has succeeded in separating a pure white seed from a variety of wheat known as chule, introduced into the United States from Turkestan. In tests recently concluded the new variety yielded from fifteen to twenty bushels per acre more than the white Australian variety, which is the accepted standard of western wheat farmers.

A pasture and woodland of 150 odd acres that the writer visited the other day have been used this season as a range for sheep. It was interesting to notice how neatly the entire area had been trimmed, as if by many lawn mowers. The only weeds that were left were the mullein, nettle and smartweed out of dozens of different varieties that are native to this locality. Nevertheless the argument in favor of keeping [illegible] been [illegible] in the case of the farm referred to.

No valid reason can be put forward why the consumer should not have oleomargarine as a substitute for butter, if he wants it, but there is good ground for a kick when he is made to purchase it under the delusion that it is creamery butter and pays a butter price for it.

While the young man from the rural districts may be drawn to the state fair by the exhibition of flying machines, he will get the most practical help and inspiration from carefully inspecting the blue ribbon stock, the newest types of farm machinery and appliances and other things of like nature.

The writer has lately run across several instances where the owners of orchards were the victims of the propensity of the nurseryman to work off on his customers just as many different varieties of apple trees as could be squeezed into the order. This multiplication of varieties may be all right on a small scale for a family orchard, but it means all kinds of bother and loss if it is allowed in commercial orchards.

Molting and the putting forth of a new outfit of feathers come as more or less of a strain, and especially to the hen that has been laying up to within a short time of molting. It is well, therefore, while the new feathers are being put forth to give a generous ration and one in which meat scrap or other protein element is a considerable factor. The better condition the hens are kept in the quicker will they get their new feathers and be ready for laying.

A historic cherry tree was felled not long ago on the Koandah farms, near Burlington, N. J. The tree was of the Grayheart variety and had stood for more than 150 years. An idea of the size and age of the tree is gained from the fact that a short distance below the first branches it had a circumference of fourteen feet five inches. While some of the upper limbs were decayed, a fact which led to the felling of the tree, the giant trunk was solid to the center.

A near relative of the beautiful Easter lily, but one which flowers the latter part of July and August, is the Lilium auratum, or gold banded lily, which takes its name from the gold bands or stripes which run lengthwise through the center of each of the long petals. The blossom, which is larger and more spreading than the Easter variety, is further beautified by brick red anthers and numerous flecks of the same color scattered over the interior of the blossom. The most perfect blossoms of this variety are grown indoors.

A housewife living not far from Keokuk, Ia., lost an entire batch of fine wild grape jelly the other day in a rather strange way. Some bees making headquarters in the neighborhood that had been on mighty short fare for months, owing to the protracted drought, scented this jelly, which had been placed out of doors on a bench and covered with some mosquito netting. However, in spite of this protection, the bees settled down on the tops of the cups and stayed with it until they had sucked up every bit of the juicy treat.

It is time now to make preparations for beds of the bulbous plants. Daffodils and narcissuses should be planted by Sept. 25 and should be set six inches deep and about ten inches apart. Tulips and hyacinths should be planted at a depth of about five inches after the warmer weather is over in October. If a hot spell should come on after planting the bed should be given a covering of straw or leaves to prevent germination. Canna, gladiolus and dahlia bulbs should be left in the ground until after the tops are dead, when they should be taken up and stored in a cool, dry place.

A New Jersey reader of these notes calls the writer's attention to a misstatement which appeared in this department a short time ago to the effect that the present season was the first in a score or more of years when Irish potatoes in large quantities had been shipped to north central states. The statement made was based on an observation covering a period of more than twenty-five years, but should have been qualified by the phrase "to the small towns" of the section mentioned. Our correspondent states that of the more than 5,000 carloads of Irish potatoes shipped from southern New Jersey more than half went west, chiefly to Chicago, though Minneapolis, St. Paul and Detroit took large quantities.

W. J. Fraser, chief of the animal husbandry department of the University of Illinois, has recently published the results of some feeding tests which show the comparative value of timothy hay and alfalfa as a ration for dairy cows. Sixteen cows were divided into two lots of eight each. Aside from their hay ration they were fed exactly alike, each animal receiving ten pounds of corn stover and twelve pounds of grain. MAKING CIDER VINEGAR.

With the large amount of cull apples that are to be found in most every orchard this fall it will be well to utilize as much of this waste fruit as possible in the making of vinegar. The following recipe, which is a tested one, has been given in these notes before: Use clean fruit and that in which the sugar has developed. On squeezing the juice from the apples strain into clean barrels, filling them about two-thirds full and inserting a plug of absorbent cotton or cloth to keep out dirt and flies. When the juice has stopped working the clear portion should be poured or pumped out and strained if necessary and the barrels carefully rinsed with scalding water. The barrels should then be refilled, a couple of gallons of old vinegar and some mother being added. The change of the alcohol into vinegar will be hastened if several cakes of compressed yeast are put in each barrel, while if the apples were not ripe and sweet the quality of vinegar will be much improved if a few pounds of coffee A sugar are added. When the vinegar is made—a process that may require all the way from six months to a year and a half—the barrels should be filled up and provided with a tight wooden plug to keep out the air and prevent further chemical change. While vinegar will make in a cellar where the temperature ranges from 40 to 55 degrees, the cider will change to vinegar much more rapidly if the temperature is from 60 to 70 degrees F.

100,000 DOZEN BAD EGGS.

The other day Missouri pure food inspectors dumped 100,000 dozen spoiled eggs into the Mississippi river at St. Louis. These were the accumulation of "spots," "rots" and whatnots of countless small town merchants, who rather than offend their customers took the addled eggs without candling. At first thought one would say that the country merchant, not the owner of the hens, was the loser in this bad egg transaction, but in the last analysis is he? Doesn't it fall finally on all the producers of eggs who pay the fiddler in a price kept sufficiently low by commission men to cover loss off stuff? There is little question that this is so. It would therefore be decidedly to the advantage of all poultrymen to insist on such market conditions locally as will put a premium on eggs guaranteed good and fresh and make a price for eggs of uncertain pedigree which they are actually worth after they have been candled. This plan would not only be fair and honest, but just to all parties concerned.

THE CONSERVATION CONGRESS.

There is to be held at Kansas City this month, Sept. 25, 26 and 27, a gathering of more than usual interest to tillers of the soil, the annual congress of the National Conservation association. The idea which will be kept uppermost in the addresses and discussions will be the conservation problem as affecting the farmer in his handling of the soil. Some of the most noted authorities in the country in their respective lines are to be on hand and give those who attend the benefit of their research and experience. Among the speakers will be Professor Hopkins of Illinois, who will tell of "Soil Chemistry." Professor Mumford of Missouri will speak on "Stock Raising and Soil Fertility," ex-Governor Hoard of Wisconsin on "Dairying and Fertility" and Professor Ten Eyck of Kansas on "Soil Physics." These and other allied subjects will be thoroughly discussed. The place appointed for the meeting is central, and there are literally thousands of farmers who could well afford to go hundreds of miles to attend the sessions.

THE BOYS AND THE STATE FAIR.

The state of New York through its state fair commission has inaugurated a plan this year that other states might copy with great benefit. It is in brief the sending of several boys from each country to the state fair on the condition that they promise on their return home to tell the story of the fair to other boys in their neighborhood so that the interest of the latter will be aroused in the many helpful things for which it stands. The selection of the boys is determined in large measure by the replies they make to a list of questions which are submitted to them by the state fair management. The boys who show themselves most prompt, businesslike and alert are given the preference, because it is believed they will prove the best advertising investment. Under the plan the expenses of the boys are paid while at the fair.

KILLING CODLING MOTHS WITH ELECTRICITY.

A fruit grower at Opportunity, Wash., has hit upon a novel method of killing codling moths and other night flying orchard pests. His apparatus consists of a storage battery and wires connecting this with six candle power globes, which are netted with fine steel wires coated with copper and tin alternately. The insects are attracted to the lights, which are held in the trees at the end of poles of suitable lengths, and as they fly against the charged netting complete the circuit and are killed, falling into a receptacle placed below the globes. He estimates that one battery will be sufficient for each acre and is wiring his ten acre ranch. A number of his neighbors are following his example.

LESS MARRIAGES IN SWEDEN

Proportion of Single Persons Continues Increasing Yearly—Great Labor Conflict in Norway Brought to an End After Long Struggle—Reported Visit of Danish Crown Prince to United States Denied.

SWEDEN.

The Swedish bureau of statistics has just issued an exceedingly interesting report from which we glean the following: There are a great many grown unmarried persons in Sweden, 292,195 out of every 1,000,000 inhabitants, and as far as is known this proportion has never been reached in Sweden previously. It seems that there have been so many young men that have emigrated and those who are staying at home have not for financial reasons been able to marry and establish families. Using the average figures for a long series of years up to 1900, the report states that the number of persons between twenty and fifty years old is 121,801 below the normal. Of this deficit 41,260 persons are men and 80,541 are women. The birth rate in Sweden continues to be alarmingly low. This is due, of course, to the fact that so few people marry now. Marriages are most numerous during the Christmas month, which continues to hold the wedlock record.

What for Northern Europe has proved to be one of the most interesting events of the yachting season was the one recently held in Gothenburg, when eight motor boats of different nationalities were competing for the one-tonner cup. Sweden, Denmark, Germany, England, France, Holland, Finland and Norway were the countries represented and up to date there have been three races, of which the English boat won two and the German boat the third. The Norwegian boat has been No. 3 in all the races and as no one is declared the final winner before having won five times in all it is as yet any man's race. The summer has been an unusually favorable one for yacht races and they have been very frequent during the past few months.

The International Council of Women began its meeting in Stockholm Sept. 6, Lady Aberdeen and Mrs. Grey representing England; Dr. Gertrude Beaumer, Germany; Mme. St. Croix, France, and Dr. Anna von Schabanoff, Russia. The subjects to be discussed include education, finance, women's legal position, the right to vote, civil laws and moral equality. The following day the lady delegates were entertained at a garden party at the royal palace given by King Gustaf and Queen Victoria.

The celebrated Swedish landscape painter, Johan Tiren, died at his home in Stockholm a few days ago. A couple of days prior to his death he returned from an extensive journey in Lappland, where he procured some wonderfully fine motifs which he contemplated painting on his return to Stockholm. On his way home from the Far North he contracted a very severe cold, which suddenly developed into pneumonia, from which he died.

The mission board of the Church of Sweden has appointed Chaplain H. Nordblom to spend from six to eight weeks as missionary among the Swedish fishermen in Christiansand, Norway, this coming fall. The board has also decided to send a Swedish minister to Christiania and has called Rev. Oscar Krook, assistant pastor of the Johannes church in Stockholm. The object will be to start a Swedish church in the Norwegian capital.

At the Eighth International Jewish Missionary conference (meeting is held every fifth year) at Stockholm last month the discussions were conducted in English as well as German. Bishop Scheele "led the business of the conference with great adroitness and was ably assisted by Professor H. L. Strack of Berlin university, who is strictly a logical German professor, but as kind and impartial as the bishop," says an exchange writer.

The Swedish government railways are, according to latest reports, doing a very excellent business. During the first six months of the present year the receipts amounted to $10,229,000, which is $567,000 in excess of the receipts last year for the same period.

The C. A. Clase estate has been settled and it leaves about $250,000 to charitable institutions in Gothenburg. Mr. Clase made his fortune in the Western states, but returned to Sweden a number of years ago, making his home in Gothenburg.

From the Social Democratic statistical bureau it is learned that there are at present 1,391,000 laboring men in Sweden. Nearly all of them belong to some labor union.

A son of Charles Dickens, Mr. H. F. Dickens, was a visitor in Stockholm during the latter part of August and spent a few days of rest at the famous "Saltsjobaden."

NORWAY.

The greatest conflict between capital and labor which has ever taken place in Norway came to an end week before last when a committee consisting of representatives of both sides and two members of the storthing announced that terms acceptable to all interested had been agreed upon. The difficulty arose this last spring when the Miners' union went on a strike for higher wages and for other concessions, to which the mine owners could not agree and positively refused to listen. The result was a big lockout all over the country, not only in the mines but in all the large branches of industry, such as wood pulp mills, lumber works, mechanical shops, carbide works and several other big lines, locking out altogether some 35,000 men in a small country like Norway. To prevent this unfortunate conflict from dragging through weary months, while half of the country's business was tied up, the government empowered two members of the storthing, President Halvorsen and Rev. Alfred Erickson as commissioners of negotiation between the warring factions. For about one month the negotiations have been going on and the papers announce that terms have been reached which will undoubtedly prove to be acceptable to both sides. There only remains for the workingmen to vote on the question, but as the organization is well disciplined there is no fear of the men going back on their leaders. With this conflict settled there seems to be no reason why we should not look forward to a very prosperous year.

Says a Christiania correspondent: "The summer has not been of the best kind for the farmer, as there has not been enough rain. Still the agricultural results are not as bad as at one time feared and in many parts of the country there are very good crops. The fisheries have been very rich, especially has this been the case with the whaling establishments, of which there are now some twenty-five or thirty very large concerns, all making money at a rate never before dreamed of. Most of these are operating south of the equator, consequently in very distant waters from this country, but for several years the vessels belonging to the different companies have been coming home with full cargoes and as the prices of products of this industry have been steadily advancing the stockholders have been receiving from 40 to 75 per cent dividends on their shares."

The Salvation Army seems to be unusually active and successful in Norway. There are 268 corps and outposts, 438 officers and other functionaries and 768 subsidiaries. During the year they held 32,700 meetings, at which the attendance is claimed to have been 2,018,548 persons. The children's corps number eighty-four, having 10,000 children. There are seventeen slum stations, six children's cribs and four children's lodging places. Besides these there are rescuing homes in Christiania and a home for the feeble and aged. These institutions are supplied with eighty slum officers.

Professor Gisle Bethne of Minneapolis is in Christiania enjoying his vacation and looking well. He has been sent to Christiania by the University of Minnesota as its representative at the centennial celebration of the University of Christiania.

DENMARK.

It has been generally reported throughout the American press that Crown Prince Christian of Denmark is contemplating a visit to the United States and that he would go via the Danish West Indies. The Berlingske Tidende, one of the best informed newspapers in Copenhagen, says different, however, claiming that there is no truth in the report. It is plain that some overzealous Copenhagen correspondent sending dispatches to the American daily papers has been at work.

A census taken in Denmark of the labor conditions in the month of April resulted in showing that there were in all the country 76,800 laborers, of whom 7,300 were without employment. Of the latter there were 3,800 in Copenhagen and 3,500 scattered among the provinces. It seems the large cities always have the greatest number of unemployed in proportion to the number of inhabitants. Labor conditions in Denmark are said, however, to be improving.

It is reported that in some Danish schools the teachers have been in the habit of vivisecting frogs and insects to illustrate certain physiological principles. But as soon as the humane society got wind of the matter a great howl was raised and the minister of public worship notified the schoolteachers of the kingdom that the animals needed for instruction must not be killed before the eyes of the school children.

They drink lots of water in Copenhagen. The average consumption of water in the city is twenty-seven gallons daily. During the hot spell the consumption rose to forty-four gallons a day per inhabitant and the authorities issued a warning to the public to be more economical or rush the city into a calamity.

The work on Christiansborg palace is progressing slowly but thoroughly and at present it is estimated that it will be completed in about three years from now. About 250 men are engaged in the work.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

With moneys and credits assessed under a separate schedule for the first time, and not included in the figures, the returns on the entire state assessment of personal property in the state of Minnesota are $201,770,353. This is approximately $30,000,000 more than the entire return last year.

Minnesota will reap between $200,000 and $300,000, conservatively estimated, from two estates alone, as the result of the trip of Assistant Attorney General Weeks to the East, where he investigated estates in which the state has a claim under the inheritance tax law.

The traffic commission of the Duluth Commercial club is preparing a complaint to be filed with the interstate commerce commission in a few days, attacking the lake and rail rate of 18 cents per 100 pounds on flour from Duluth to New York.

Dr. J. J. Eklund of Duluth, member of the state board of visitors, has tendered his resignation to Governor Eberhart, declaring that his duties at home were such he was unable to attend the board meetings. The resignation will be accepted.

Andrew J. Fritz, state public examiner, has demanded that the Soo railway pay $20,992.50 back taxes on $536,846.26 gross earnings not reported by the company. The company concedes that about $13,000 of the amount demanded is due.

Plans are on foot at Biwabik for the development of power on the St. Louis river for the lighting of Biwabik, Aurora and Gilbert. It is estimated that 1,000 horsepower can be developed without a dam.

During the month of August state institutions earned $60,195.86, which has just been deposited with the treasurer. The hemp and twine plant at the state prison led with receipts aggregating $25,843.43.

The postal savings bank has closed the second week of its existence in St. Paul without any appreciable falling off in interest since it opened on Sept. 1. The bank now has about $39,000 in deposits.

Students of the state university for the first time in the history of the institution have a co-operative book and supply store.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Having worked for two years to accumulate sufficient funds to bring his wife and seven children to America this fall Frank Zaveck, forty years old, section hand on the St. Paul road near Hopkins, was instantly killed when he attempted to alight from a freight train at St. Louis Park. The man's family lives in Bohemia.

Ole H. Larson, a leading pioneer farmer of Traverse county, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. He placed a shotgun against a tree and then tied a string to the hammer and put the barrel against his breast, when he pulled the trigger.

Walter Kress, aged twenty-four, son of Gustave Kress of Stillwater, was drowned in the St. Croix river. He had gone fishing early in the morning. Standing on a raft of lumber he was seized with an epileptic fit and fell face downward into shallow water.

Enamored of a young woman who spurned his love Gilbert Slatten of Bemidji, thirty years old, a carpenter, stole a rowboat, paddled out into midlake with a piece of board, jumped overboard and was drowned.

One of the most disastrous fires in Duluth for a year raged for four hours when the Scott-Graff Lumber company's plant was almost entirely destroyed. The damage is estimated at $100,000.

Moses Novackovich, thirty years old, was killed instantly, falling down an old shaft of the Alpena mine near Virginia.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Mrs. Mary Archambault, one of the first white children born in St. Paul, is dead in that city. Mrs. Archambault was the daughter of Charles T. Rouleau, Sr., and was born Aug. 24, 1842. She was one of the first three children baptized in the chapel of St. Paul, the ceremony having been performed by Father Gaultier, a Catholic missionary.

Carl Hagen, a pioneer of McLeod county, veteran of the Civil war and a man widely known and universally esteemed, is dead at Hutchinson. He belonged to the Thirty-second Indiana infantry and was wounded in an engagement at Green River, Ky., in 1861.

Word has been received in St. Paul of the death of Francis H. Clarke of Marshfield, Ore., formerly of St. Paul. He was prominent at one time in the People's and Populist parties, having run for congress against Fred C. Stevens and former Mayor Keifer.

Former Senator R. M. Probstfield, the oldest settler in Clay county, died at his home in Oakport town, five miles north of Moorhead. Death was caused by paralysis, from which Mr Probstfield had been suffering for nearly a year.

Mrs. Julia B. Bigelow, wife of Major John Bigelow, is dead at Minneapolis, aged sixty-five. Mrs. Bigelow had been a resident of Minneapolis since 1856.

CRIMINAL NEWS.

Three hundred and fifteen thousand dollars was stolen from the branch of the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B. C. Five burglars entered the bank by the front door, broke through the thin metal coating of the vault, blew the safe with charges of nitroglycerin and got away with their booty without being seen except by a Chinese caretaker, who was left bound and gagged. The robbers left about $100,000 in silver and bills of small denomination.

S. A. Potter, also known as George W. Post, said by federal authorities to be one of the best known gold brick and green goods confidence men in the world, was arrested at Chicago by C. F. De Woody, division superintendent of the department of justice, on a charge of operating a confidence game. Potter and two companions for whom federal officials are searching are said to have netted $1,500,000 in the past few years by the operation of their schemes.

Eluding the vigilance of Canada's far famed mounted police and posses of more than 200 Southern Manitoba citizens and escaping across the international boundary into North Dakota, only to be captured by a party of six Langdon and Hannah residents, after having been led into a trap by farmers west of Hannah, was the fate of "Bill" Miner, alleged abductor and assailant of Eleanor Grace Price, the Pembina Valley (Man.) schoolteacher.

Dr. D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, Minn., has been indicted for arson in the third degree in connection with the attempted robbery and destruction by fire of the postoffice at Puposky, Minn. The prosecution alleges Dumas was the active head of a gang of safecrackers and incendiaries.

John Johnson, known as Dogskin Johnson, has confessed to the abduction and murder of little Annie Lemberger, the seven-year-old child whose body was found in Lake Monona, near Madison, Wis., and was immediately sentenced by Judge Anthony Donovan to life imprisonment.

An undated telegram from Melilla, Morocco, received at Madrid, reads: "The losses to the Spaniards in the recent action were eighteen dead and seventy-seven wounded. The losses to the tribesmen were about 600 or 700. A complete Spanish victory."

The Cokeville (Wyo.) National bank was entered by two masked men and eight men who were in the bank were lined up along the wall and searched. The robbers secured about $1,500 in money, locked the officers of the bank in the vault and escaped.

Mrs. Walter Bolton and her cousin, Frank Rhodes, were found murdered on the Bolton farm near Stacy, Minn. A farmhand, who is missing, is suspected of perpetrating the double crime.

Five men, armed with revolvers, held up the gambling house of "Bill" Lewis at Chicago and escaped with $2,500. About 100 men were in the place at the time.

A Political Genius.

Congressmen sometimes adopt queer expedients to gain the good will of their constituents. Years ago a member from a western state was afraid that his first term would be his last, as he had not managed to make himself a power in congress. While he was debating what he should do a friend said, "You live near the center of the United States, don't you?" "Yes." "Then why don't you introduce a bill to have the capital moved to the principal town in your district?" The congressman introduced the bill, and the people of his district at once concluded he was a great man and sent him back for another term. He reintroduced the bill in the next congress, and, although it was promptly pigeonholed in committee, his constituents gave him a third term as a reward for his genius.

The Blushing Octopus.

The octopus frequently changes in color like a marine chameleon. It would appear, from studies of this creature, that the colored pigment whereby this change in color is effected is contained in envelopes in its skin, in the tissue of which are muscular fibers actuated by nerves. Should these fibers become relaxed a dark pigment appears. The phenomenon is said to be analogous to blushing.—Harper's Weekly.

Corrected Him.

A reporter was once interviewing Thomas A. Edison.

"And you, sir," he said to the inventor, "made the first talking machine!"

"No," Mr. Edison replied, "the first one was made long before my time—out of a rib."

Three Not of a Kind.

Sir Henry Maine's famous political diagnosis is worth quoting. The king of England reigns, but does not govern. The president of the United States governs, but does not reign. The president of France neither reigns nor governs.—Boston Herald.

Some experiments which have been made recently at the Geneva (N. Y.) station by those in charge of the poultry department seem to prove conclusively that laying pullets do much better if the cockerels are kept entirely separated from them. It was found in the case of two pens of pullets of the same breed and age and kept under exactly the same conditions, so far as feed and quarters were concerned, that the pen from which the males were excluded produced 30 per cent more eggs in a given period than the one in which they were allowed to run. It was also found that the pen kept by themselves began to lay at from one to two months earlier than the others. There should be a suggestion in these findings not only for the poultry fancier, but for every farmer who keeps poultry in the usual fashion.

There are a good many sections this year in which the only farmers who will harvest a crop of corn worth speaking of will be those who persist in frequent cultivation even after the time when the field is usually laid by. If the drought persists the cultivation should be continued with single horse cultivators or, what gives just as satisfactory results, an old mower wheel hauled between the rows of corn just as it lies on the ground. This levels and pulverizes the soil and gives the desired dust mulch.

In years past the silo has been looked upon as a device for storing a succulent ration for use in winter, but last year and this its value has been demonstrated as a furnisher of a succulent ration for midsummer, when pastures were burned with drought and heat.

Some of the women of the fashionable upper set in New York city have not only discarded babies as a legitimate accompaniment of womanhood but have lately cast aside live dogs for dummies, whose legs are operated by means of a string attached to their noses (the dummies').

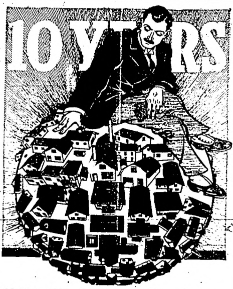
Smutty corn is nasty to look at, but experiments which have been made in the line of feeding it to dairy cows show that it has no harmful effect whatever. Analyses of smut show it contains a greater percentage of protein than corn, but only about a third as much carbohydrates and fat.

The writer has tasted a good many different kinds of delicious jelly, but believes the best he ever sampled was made recently from wild grapes and Transcendent crabs, the juice of the wild fruit forming from one-third to one-half of the whole. Besides a fine tartness and splendid flavor, it has a beautiful color that makes it an adornment for any table on which it is served.

The growing of clover is to be recommended if for no other reason than that it has deep roots, which penetrate the soil to a greater depth than most other grasses, loosen it and make available the fertilizing elements which it contains. But clover also takes nitrogen from the air and deposits it in the nodules found in its root system, and it is this that makes it a soil enricher.

One who has caught and helped eat many a salmon is authority for the statement that fresh salmon should be thoroughly cooked and eaten with plenty of salt, owing to a poison (really an amoeba or low form of animal life) which seems to develop and which is active if the fish is in raw or an underdone condition. He tells us that he has seen more than one puppy turn up its toes as a result of eating such salmon.

A question that naturally comes to the Ohio or Illinois farmer who goes to the southwest is whether listing as a method of planting corn is preferable to plowing and planting by the check row method. This matter has been given a pretty thorough test at several experiment stations in states where listing is practiced, and if there is any difference at all in the yield of corn secured by the two methods it is slightly in favor of the latter method.



If You Could Watch Ten Years

If you could watch a prepared roof for ten years—see the effect of snow and hail and ice and heat and frost and wind and fire, you'd certainly know whether that was the roof you wanted or not.

You can do it. In ten minutes time you can determine the effect of ten years of severe wear on any prepared roofing. We've embodied six tests—tests which correspond to ten years of the hardest kind of wear—in a book. It is yours for the asking at our dealer's. The information it contains will enable you to absolutely settle the question of which prepared roofing will last longest and require least repairs.

When you make the tests, include a sample of

Do We Sleep Too Much?

Perhaps, on account of popular opinion and personal habit, we waste much time in a jellyfish condition that could be more profitably spent in active pursuit of our ambitions. The answer, of course, depends upon the nature of our occupation. If there is much muscular effort involved, with a corresponding large amount of waste in the cells and blood, eight hours or more are probably necessary. But if our work is of a sedentary nature and mainly of the brain there is naturally a smaller quantity of accumulated waste, and less time is required for its removal. Many are the instances of great men, past and present, who have lived healthfully and worked unceasingly and strenuously on only four or five hours of sleep, or half the laborer's portion. Surely we are not to suppose that those men were or are physically different from others, but rather that by inclination or necessity they have developed a habit of sleeping intensely for a short period instead of lightly for a longer period, with resulting gain of time and efficiency.—Atlantic Monthly.

Kings Are Useful.

A king is a hand embroidered gentleman trimmed with metals, faced with whiskers and thatched with a metal roof that would never keep off the rain. Nominally he is the head of the nation; actually he is a figurehead, and that is figuratively speaking only, for he is generally too fat to claim a figure and seldom has much of a head—except on the morning after a celebration.

Once upon a time the king was the big tuba of the band. Now he is merely an oboe—until there is a revolution and then he becomes a real live hobo.

However, a king has his place, although he is yearly finding it more difficult to stay in it.

Kings are found to be very useful in poker games, and by society ladies who wish to be presented to somebody they can brag of having met when they get back home to their long left loved ones.—Detroit Free Press.

Light and Sound Waves.

With reference to our ability to tell the direction from which sound proceeds, attention may be called to an interesting difference between the eyes and the ears in relation to the size of the waves that strike them. The average wave length of light is about one ten-thousandth of the diameter of the pupil of the eye. On the other hand, according to Rayleigh, the waves of sound proceeding from a man's mouth are about eight feet long, whereas the diameter of the passage of the ear is quite small and could not well have been made a large multiple of eight feet. One consequence of the minuteness of light waves in comparison with the size of the eyes is that the lenses of the eyes are able to concentrate rays of light upon the retina with great efficiency.—Scientific American.

According to Orders.

In employing men to work at his Palo Alto farm in California the late Senator Stanford gave strict orders that they were never to strike, kick or whip a horse. On one occasion, while at dinner, one of the drivers insisted that he must see the senator. He was ushered in, with blood over his face, which was badly cut. "John knocked me down," explained the man, referring to one of the trainers. "What did you do?" asked the senator. "Nothing," replied the man. "But you must have done something. I want the truth," persisted the senator. "Well, I only kicked a horse," growled the man, "and John knocked me down." "Those were John's instructions," said the senator emphatically, "and he did just right."

Gallant.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt once told of a gallant to whom she had been introduced. "His compliments," she said, "were so glowing that at last I cried out:

"'But, monsieur, remember, I am sixty-four years old!'

"'Madam,' he replied, 'to me you are just thirty-two, for I, seared as I have been by scandal, am too charitable ever to believe more than half of what I hear.'"

Some Squeeze.

A judge was questioning an old Irishman.

"He took you by the throat and choked you, did he?" asked the judge.

"He did, sor," said Pat. "Sure, sor, he squazed me throat till I thought he would make cider out o' me Adam's apple."—London Telegraph.

Literary Cure For Snoring.

To the snorers who ask for the cure let the cause be announced. Snoring is the result of stomachic repletion and mental vacuity. A correspondent who has suffered from both prescribes the cure—a light supper or none, to avoid repletion, and the frequent repetition of some literary-phrase to provide occupation for the mind during sleeping hours. Go to bed and think of some short literary phrase to occupy your mind. The combination of the two prescriptions against snoring—the abstention from food and the meditation upon a literary phrase—may be found in Ecclesiasticus, the nineteenth verse of the thirty-first chapter, "How sufficient to a well mannered man is a very little, and he doth not breathe hard upon his bed."—London Spectator.

Dead Men's Teeth.

Before artificial teeth were created deficiencies had to be made good by the real article, so body snatchers ravaged the cemeteries at night, breaking up the jaws of the dead to extract their teeth to sell to dentists for insertion in live men's mouths. An army of these ghouls followed Wellington's army. They were licensed as sutlers, but once night fell out came their nippers and they prowled over the battlefield extracting the teeth of the dead or dying.

Asafetida.

Sheep have a fit of joy eating the young asafetida plant, and Persians and other oriental races relish it as much as sheep. The juice of the asafetida plant when fresh is so strong that a teaspoonful turns out more smell in a house than a hundredweight of drug store asafetida.

Stolen Painting Recovered.

A mysterious woman stole "Die Frau," a $1,000 painting, from its frame in the woman's parlor of the Radisson hotel at Minneapolis, only to abandon the painting later. A few hours after the theft a woman left a package at the drug store of C. A. Corey, which, when opened, proved to be the stolen art treasure.

A York state miser had no faith in banks and so put $47,000 which he had hoarded during many years in what he thought a safe nook in his house. But the structure caught fire the other day and the savings of many years went up in smoke. Notwithstanding the fact that instances like the above are of almost daily occurrence there are a whole lot of folks who still believe that an old trunk, a tin can or a stove is a better place of safety than a bank.

The latest arguments put forward in favor of the skunk is that he is one of the best of rat catchers and a voracious consumer of cutworms, army worms, tobacco worms, white grubs and May beetles, as well as grasshoppers and crickets. Investigation which have been made as to the economic value of the skunk class it as an animal entitled to man's protection.

It is estimated that a circular barn can be built at from 30 to 40 per cent less than the common rectangular barn of like capacity. More than this, the circular barn is stronger and can be more conveniently arranged on the interior. About the only drawback with the circular structure is that not one man in ten knows how to put one up nor relishes the job even if he does know how.

Resolution prevailed.

In the matter of the petition of R. J. McKercher and others for a county road the committee appointed to examine same submitted the following report:

To the honorable board of county commissioners of Pennington county:

Your committee appointed to look into the matter of the petition of R. J. McKercher and others for the establishment of a certain road, being in more than one township, and described as follows:

Begining at the northwest corner of the northeast quarter of section number thirteen (13) in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west, and running thence east on the section line between sections twelve (12) and thirteen (13) in township one hundred fifty two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west, and sections seven (7) and eighteen (18) in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range number forty-three west, a distance of one (1) mile, to the northeast corner of the northwest quarter (nw¼) of section number eighteen (18) in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range number forty-three [43] west, and to be connected with other roads as follows: the state road running north and south through said sections seven (7) and eighteen (18) in said township one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range number forty-three [43] and terminating at the northeast corner of the northwest quarter (nw¼) of section number eighteen (18) in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range number forty-three (43) west, beg leave to report that, having examined the proposed route of said road and having heard arguments for and against the proposition, recommend that said road be established as petitioned for, as we believe it will be of general public benefit.

Signed,

ED. A. AUBOL,
PETER C. WOLD,
DANIEL SHAW,
PETER HEDEEN.

After due consideration of the above report and hearing further arguments in favor of or against the granting of the petition, on a motion duly carried the following order was made:

State of Minnesota, }
Pennington County } ss

Whereas, A petition signed by twenty-four freeholders of said county, praying for the establishment of a certain highway in said county, running into more than one town, and not within the limits of any incorporated city, as hereinafter described, was presented to this board at its session on the 10th day of July, 1911, and this board having determined by the judgment of its members that said petition is reasonable on its face, and having by its order made at said session appointed Friday, the 1st day of September, 1911, at 1 o'clock p. m., at Thief River Falls in said county, as the time and place for a hearing upon said petition, and having by said order appointed a committee of its members to examine said proposed establishment of said road and designated Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1911, at 1 o'clock p. m., at the se¼ of sec. 12, twp. 152, range 44, in said county, as the time and place for said committee to meet on the route of said proposed road for the examination of the same, and having caused notices of said hearing and said meeting of said committee embodying a copy of said petition to be posted in three most public places of each town through which said proposed route of said road runs, or affected thereby, at least thirty days before the day of said hearing upon said petition, and being satisfied that said notices were posted and proof of said posting duly made, and the said committee having met at the time and place designated in said order and said notices, towit, se¼ of sec. 12, twp. 152, range 44, in said county on Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1911, at 1 o'clock p. m., and duly heard all that any one had to say in favor of or against the granting of the said petition, and considered said petition and the report of said committee thereon, and a majority of said board having agreed that said petition should be granted,

It is hereby ordered, That the prayer of said petition be and the same is hereby granted, and said highway is hereby established so as to run according to said committee's report by courses as follows towit:

Beginning at the northwest corner of the northeast quarter of section number thirteen (13) in township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west, and running thence east on the section line between sections twelve (12) and thirteen (13) in the township number one hundred fifty-two (152) north of range forty-four (44) west and sections seven (7) and eighteen [18] in township number one hundred fifty-two [152] north of range number forty-three [43] west, a distance of one [1] mile, to the northeast corner of the northwest quarter [nw¼] of section number eighteen [18] in township number one hundred fifty-two [152] north of range number forty-three [43] west, and to be connected with other roads as follows: The state road running north and south through sections seven [7] and eighteen [18] in said township number one hundred fifty-two [152] north of range number forty-three [43] and terminating at the northeast corner of the northwest quarter [nw¼] of section number eighteen [18] in township number one hundred fifty-two [152] north of range number forty three [43] west.

It is further ordered, That the county auditor notify the town supervisors of each town through which said road is to be established of the fact of such establishment, and that they shall cause to be opened so much of said highway as lies within their respective towns.

In witness whereof the chairman of this board has hereunto set his hand and affixed our seal at Thief River Falls in said county this 1st day of September A. D. 1911.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL XXVIII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28 1911 NUMBER 40

ALL BIDS REJECTED

Council Rejects All Bids at Meeting Last Wednesday Evening.

Matter is Now Being Considered and Call For New Bids Will Be Made.

At the adjourned meeting of the city council Wednesday evening of last week the bids for the construction of the proposed auxiliary plant came up for further consideration and after some discussion it was found necessary to reject the bids as being too high.

Four bids were submitted, three for steam and one for oil power. Inasmuch as the plans and specifications call for steam power it would be found necessary to alter the plans should any other power than steam be considered.

The bid of Fairbanks—Morse company based on oil as the power to be used, amounted to $29,992, which is in the neighborhood of about $10,000 less than the bids entered by the other companies for the construction of a steam plant.

In case an oil plant should be constructed it would not be necessary to build a spur as is proposed if a steam plant is erected, and will not call for a building of as large dimensions, which reduces the expenses of construction to a great extent.

The matter is now being investigated and it is expected that a call for new bids will be made in the near future.

Have You Seen It?

We have no recollection of so inviting a musical program as that of the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette which appears here on Oct. 3rd, under the auspices of the M. W. A. & R. N., having been offered our readers. Look over their program carefully and you will agree with us that it is too inviting to miss attending.

Bids Wanted.

Sealed bids wanted for 200 cords of good, body, green, split, poplar wood to be delivered Jan. 1912. 100 cords to be delivered at High School grounds, 50 each at Knox and Central. Bids will be opened Oct. 11, 1911.

2t. G. A. Penney, clerk.

Hans Angell was up to Middle River a couple of days the latter part of last week, helping to put the machinery together and instructing Harry Carr, who is about to start a show at Middle River, the mysteries of the moving picture machine. Mr. Carr will have a regular circuit among the smaller towns in Marshall county in which he will give shows once or twice a week.

NEW SCHOOL LAW

New School Regulation Effective This Year.

Chapter 350, an act relating to the attendance of pupils.

It repeals sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of Chapter 400, section laws of 1909, and the present act takes the place of these.

It retains the provision fixing the ages between which children MUST attend, at from 8 to 16 years. This is interpreted to mean that when a child reaches the age of 16 years he is no longer subject to compulsory school attendance.

It further amends the old law by leaving out the POVERTY clause as an excuse for non-attendance. The act gives three specific excuses for non-attendance:

1. Sickness or mental incapacity.
2. Completion of the Eighth grade.
3. Distance from school, or unfavorable conditions as to weather and travel.

It further provides that a child 14 years of age "whose help may be required in any permitted occupation in or about the home of his parent or guardian, may be excused from attendance between April 1 and Nov. 1 in any year." This proviso does not apply to cities of the 1st and 2d class. Permission is granted for children to be absent such days as their attendance is required "upon instruction according to the ordinances of some church," or what is commonly known as confirmation instruction. Attendance upon either public or private schools is recognized as meeting the requirements. Before a child can be legally absent he must have made application and must receive an excuse granted by the school board. The clerk or any authorized officer of the school board is directed to keep a record of all excuses granted.

Section 2 provides that each school board, through its clerk or other authorized agent or other employe, shall report to the principal teacher of the school the names of all children between 8 and 16 years of age, together with the names of children to whom excuses may have been granted during the first week of school. If there are more than one teacher in the school, the principal will report to each of the other teachers the name of pupils belonging to his or her room, and the names of those who may have been excused. The principal of a school of two or more departments, and each teacher of a one-room school, in common, semi-graded or consolidated districts, shall report to the county superintendent, within five days after receiving the report from the school clerk, the names of children not excused, who are not attending school, with the names and addresses of their parents. In state High and state Graded schools the grade or assistant teachers shall report absentees in the same way, to the principal or the city superintendent.

Section 3 requires the county superintendent or the principal of a graded, or the superintendent of a city school, forthwith to give notice to the parent or guardian of a child's absence. The county superintendent, city superintendent or the principal of a graded school, shall, upon request of the county attorney, make and file a criminal complaint against any person neglecting or refusing to comply with the provisions of the law relating to the attendance of children upon school.

Section 3 also directs that reports of attendance and absence, similar to those required of public schools, be made by the principal teacher in charge of any private school.

Section 6 authorizes the Commissioner of Labor and his assistants to act as truant officers; to examine and make investigation of excuses granted, and to cancel any excuses for absence of a child from school in case it is found to be issued without sufficient cause.

Any person who shall refuse or fail to send or keep in school any child or children of whom he has legal charge or control, and who is required by law to attend school, when notified so to do as herein before provided, and any person who induces or attempts to induce any child unlawfully to absent himself from school, or who knowingly harbors or employs, while school is in session, any child unlawfully absent from school, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction, shall be punished for each offense by a fine not to exceed ten (10) dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed ten (10) days.

RECIPROCITY ISSUE LOST

Surprising Majority of Thirty-nine Is Piled Up by the Conservative Party.

Eastern Canada Goes Strong Against the Reciprocity Pact.

Contrary to expectations, the Reciprocity issue which was voted on at the election in Canada last Thursday, was turned down by the Canadians by a handsome majority. With the defeat of the reciprocity issue, goes hand in hand the defeat of Sir Wilfred Laurier, the liberal leader, who for two decades has directed the destinies of the Dominion, and the election of Robert L. Borden, who will shortly be called upon to form a conservative ministry.

Canadian reciprocity, as outlined in the agreement that failed Thursday, was initiated at a conference between President Taft and Minister Fielding in Albany, in March, 1910. This meeting was the result of negotiations between the two governments based on the maximum and minimum provisions of the Payne tariff law. President Taft was anxious to accord Canada the benefit of minimum rates, and the negotiations brought out a spirit of good feeling that broadened into an agreement for reciprocity.

The agreement in due season was submitted to the sixty-first congress. It passed the house, but failed in the senate, owing to the opposition largely of regular and progressive republicans. Upon the adjournment of the sixty-first congress, March 4 last, the president called a special session, which met April 4 and which resulted in the passage of the reciprocity pact. Soon thereafter the liberal government of Canada called a special election to give the people of the dominion an opportunity to express their wishes as to the disposition of the pact and which was held last Thursday with the results as stated above.

Of Interest Locally.

(From Lancaster Herald)

Sheriff Anderson was here Tuesday in pursuit of a person wanted in the Bolton murder case at Stacy, Minn. A man who tallied exactly with the description of the suspect in the case had been seen in town the day previous but had left in the evening, buying a ticket for Thief River Falls.

Dr. C. R. Crandall, J. B. Myrland and W. H. Akre constituted a party of Thief River Falls hunters who came up Sunday in quest of the now elusive prairie chicken. However the rain that day compelled them to remain under roof, and like true philosophers they accepted the "handout" of Dame Fortune without a murmur.

John Effinger and family arrived Tuesday from Thief River Falls to take charge of the Soo Hotel. Mr. Effinger was for fifteen years in hotel business at Belgrade, Minn., and has for some time been running a meat market in Thief River Falls, which he recently sold. He intends to re-furnish the place and make it one of the best hostelries along the line.

A SMALL BLAZE

Fire Discovered in Basement of Co-Operative Store Monday Noon.

Many of our citizens were deprived of their usual after-dinner rest and were brought down town rather hurriedly last Monday noon when the clanging of the fire bell announced another blaze.

The fire, it was afterwards learned, was in the basement of the Co-Operative store, but it was extinguished before the arrival of the fire department a few minutes later.

The first signs of the fire were discovered when smoke was seen rising from the basement of the store, and on investigation it was found that a pile of paper in the engine room was a mass of flames, but a little quick work soon had the flames under control before any damage had been caused. Sparks from the furnace is attributed as the origin of the fire.

WARD QUITS RACE

St. Hilaire Boy Drops Out of Cross-Continental Race.

James Ward, the St. Hilaire boy, who was one of the three contestants in the ocean to ocean aeroplane flight which started last week, quit the race after a fall at Addison, N. Y.

Wilson, or Ward which is his assumed name, has his home at St. Hilaire where his parents reside. Mr. Wilson started out as an automobilist and has been seen on the race track in this county. It is asserted that thru reckless driving, or some such reason, on the race track, on which he proved such a success, he was at one time refused a license, and when he later took to aviation he assumed the name of Ward in order to secure his license as an aviator.

Many a Laugh.

Pleasing the people has been a trade with the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette, for many years, and their program contains lots of fun of a refined nature, as a wealth of fine music. Hear them at the Auditorium, Oct. 3rd.

WILSON -- DOCKEN

Miss Wilson and Otis Docken Bound in Wedlock.

Last Monday evening occurred the marriage of Miss Wilson to Mr. Otis Docken, both young people of this city, Rev. I. T. Aastad officiating.

After the marriage ceremony the young couple left on the Soo "Flyer" for the Twin Cities from where they go to Decorah, Iowa, the former home of the bridegroom, and other points in Iowa, on a honeymoon trip.

They will make this city their home.

The great popularity of the Schubert Lady Quartette is not only their grand voices, but also because they study to please the people. All their encores are either amusing, or artistic arrangement of those sweet old melodies so dear to all American hearts. Hear them at the Auditorium on Oct. 3rd.

AID FOR SCHOOLS

State Gives Aid in Sparsely Settled Districts as Provided in the Warner Law.

Gifts Are Made at Rate of 3 Cents for Every Acre of Counties' Holdings.

For the first time in Minnesota's history money from the general revenue fund is being sent out to aid common schools, as provided by the Warner bill, passed at the last session of of the Legislature. Fifty thousand dollars was appropriated to help those districts where there are great tracts of state land, untaxable, and where settlers have been unable to maintain adequate schools.

Complaint has been made that in the sparsley settled districts land owners contributed regularly to the state school and road funds, getting no return, in many cases having no schools. Representative Warner's measure provided that the sum awarded to each school district should not exceed 5 cents for each acre of state land, that not more than $250 should be paid to any one district, and that no part of the appropriation shall be used to purchase a site or erect school buildings.

When the money was apportioned it was learned that $50,000 was not enough to pay 5 cents an acre, so the districts will receive sums computed at the rate of 3 cents an acre, but in no case more than $150

The complete list follows:

Atkin $2,823 69; Becker, $182.91; Beltrami $1,571.64; Carlton, $100.30; Cass, $3,051.81; Clearwater, $248.02; Cook, $1,800.00; Crow Wing, $180 30; Hubbard, $809.49; Itasca, $8,715.75; Kittson, $791 01; Koochiching, $9,300.00; Kanabec $16.80; Lake, $2,470.80; Marshall, $969.42 Mahnomen, $16 20; Mille Lacs, $29.85; Morrison, $174 93; Otter Tail, $58.69; Pine, $91 80; Pennington $38.91; Polk.39.85 Roseau; $2,522.09; St. Louis, $11,085.17; Todd, $171.69; Wadena, $336 60.

The total is $189,47.35

Grand Opening.

The cast of "The Right of Way" to be presented at the Auditorium, Sept. 29 is large and contains many interesting characters:

Charley Steele, the criminal lawyer who loses his memory.

LOSES HIS WALLET

Iowa Man Robbed on Train Between This City and Crookston.

Charles F. Brooks, of Burlington, Ia. was relieved of $17 Thursday afternoon while enroute from this city to Crookston. The money was in a wallet which was rifled and left in the seat where the victim discovered but failed to locate its contents. He accused the news agent on the train of the theft and reported his loss and brought his accusation before Officer Nelson after the arrival of the train at Crookston. He was not sure enough of his case to make out a warrant, however, and as there was no evidence to hold the accused, he was allowed to go on his way rejoicing.

Increased School Enrollment.

The city schools have a decided increase in enrollment, this term over that of the fall term last year. For the first week of school this year seventy-four more pupils enrolled than for the corresponding week in 1910. All the rooms are crowded and just what the city will do a year hence or in the near future to care for the increasing crowd of school children may be a problem. The enrollment in the grades consists practically of children of residents of the city, but there is a large enrollment of non-residents in the high school.

In Business at Lancaster.

John Effinger, who was formerly in partnership with Ed Hilson in conducting a meat market in this city has just recently opened up a hotel at Lancaster. His family left last week for Lancaster where they go to join Mr. Effinger and to make their home.

GOOD ATTRACTION

German-American Trio at Auditorium Was First-Class Attraction.

The first of the four Lyceum attractions to appear in this city played at the Auditorium last Friday evening, and altho the company was not accorded the best of patronage the attraction is nevertheless strictly high-class in every way.

The three Milch sisters are accomplished and refined musicians and rendered many numbers, both vocal and instrumental, with extreme charm.

Hugo Lutgens, impersonator, was equally good in his line, and especially so was his impersonation of the Swedish minister's first sermon. His narrative of the three local hunters, Penney, Wilcox and Emerson, is especially worthy of comment and brought down the house with merit.

HON. VICTOR L. BERGER.
America's Most Prominent and Ablest Socialist.

In the coming to our city of the Hon. Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, our first and only Socialist member of Congress, and commonly regarded as the head and front of the Socialist party in this country, is exemplified the catholicity of the Lyceum movement. The Socialist movement is one we must deal with, whether we believe in it or not, and so the local lecture committee decided we should hear what Socialism really is from one who knows, the one who did most to organize the Socialist party in this country and is the American delegate to the International Body of Socialists.

Arthur Brisbane, the highest salaried editor in the world, once called Berger a modern Martin Luther. When Berger heard this he said: "No, no! I am only a scene shifter. All my life has been spent in preparing the stage for a great drama." Which shows his modesty. He has a powerful personality and all who hear and meet him will be impressed. He has made a remarkably good record thus far at Washington and is our most talked about Congressman.

Mr. Berger will be the first attraction of the Lyceum course arranged to be given here during the winter. The date has not yet been definitely settled, but will probably be about Oct. 15.

A NEW LAND CO.

George Lipscomb and Fay Kenyon Opens up Office.

George Lipscomb and Fay Kenyon have formed partnership for the purpose of locating prospective homesteaders on free lands in this territory. Their office is in the building recently vacated by Hillard & Ralston, the barbers, and is next south of Wold's jewelry store on LaBree avenue.

These gentlemen start out flourishingly in their business for the start and have already located a great number of settlers in the Grygla country. Mr. Lipscomb has accompanied a number of parties to that vicinity and a very few of them return disappointed. He is well acquainted throughout this country which enables him to be of considerable value to anyone desirous of being located upon a good claim.

Concert To-night.

The famous Williams Jubilee Singers will appear at the Auditorium tonight under the auspices of the city fire department. This large company of colored musicians need no introduction to the people of this country. The fire department has been fortunate in securing them for an evening on their trip across the continent.

School Notes.

A conference of the superintendents, teachers of agriculture and school officers of the Putnam and Lee-Benson schools was called by the state high school board at the college of agriculture, St. Anthony Park, last Friday and Saturday. Messrs. Hay and Haskin of the local school were present. Some schools near the city were represented by the superintendent, teacher and the whole board of education. The discussions disclosed the fact that much variance of opinion exists as to the best method of conducting the work in the schools and of extending it into the rural communities. Steps were taken to standardize the studies of the so called industrial subjects.

The associated schools in the country will have the benefit of frequent visits by the superintendent of the central schools prepared by the state and central school, of the introduction of the work fitted to the conditions surrounding the school, and of the elimination of the useless material from the studies. Many other features might be suggested which will be introduced into these schools which will mark them as practical and progressive. In some sections of the state so many rural schools have applied for association that a limit has been set on the number taking up the work.

New desks have arrived for Miss Swanson's room. A re-seating of three upper rooms in the Central will relieve the crowded conditions there.

All the normal students of the classes graduated from the local normal training department are engaged in teaching. Frequent calls for these teachers from adjoining counties convince the school people that a state normal located in Thief River Falls would fill a most pressing want. The local normal department was the largest in the state last year. The last call for a teacher, received last Monday, offered a position in a rural school at $60 per month for a first grade teacher.

36 students have enrolled for the agricultural course in the high school. They purpose following this practical outline of work thru the full four years. In this connection it might be stated that entrance to the college of agriculture is now as severe as to the college of engineering, and the latter is considered the heaviest in the university.

The report that students cannot enter the high school only at the first of the term has been given circulation. This is far from the truth. The schools are made and conducted for the pupils and are open to all comers at any time, but all admit that students entering a month after

Dogs From Greenland Will Serve Australian Antarctic Expedition

Photos by American Press Association.

AUSTRALIA has organized an antarctic expedition which sailed recently in the Aurora from London. The object of the expedition is to chart the 2,500 miles of unknown coast on the northern side of the land believed to surround the south pole and which is generally known as the antarctica. Though an effort may be made to reach the pole if conditions are found to be favorable, this is secondary to the geographic work that will be done. Numerous Eskimo dogs accompanied the expedition. They were selected in Greenland by a representative of the Danish government, who is an expert in choosing dogs for service in frigid zones. In the picture above the dogs are seen enjoying a meal of dried fish while they were in London awaiting the sailing of the expedition. The Aurora, the sturdy craft that is carrying the expedition, is also shown.

Rev. Joseph Lambert Defends His Action In Astor Marriage

Photos copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

REV. JOSEPH LAMBERT, pastor of the Elmwood Congregation temple in Providence, R. I., stoutly defends his action in performing the ceremony that united Colonel John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeleine Force. Many members of his congregation are said to be displeased, and there is a possibility that an effort will be made to punish the pastor. Mr. Lambert says he knew that he would be criticised if he performed the ceremony and that he decided to do so only after he had consulted other ministers belonging to his faith. Personally he says he thinks that remarriage of divorced persons is preferable to other relations that might arise if marriage were prohibited, and he knows of many ministers who have married men with records worse than Colonel Astor's. Mr. Lambert refused to say what fee he had received for going to Newport to read the marriage service. When asked point blank if he had received $1,000 he said it was nobody's business what he got, but that he was satisfied. Mr. Lambert and his church are shown in the picture above.

Private Coleridge.

In his young days the poet Coleridge had a little love affair which ended in disaster, for the lady refused him. In despair he enlisted in a cavalry regiment which he hoped would be ordered on foreign service. For family reasons he dropped his correct name, but from a feeling of sentiment retained the initials, so Samuel Taylor Coleridge became Private Silas Tompkins Camberbatch. The regiment did not leave the country, and it was not long before his soul wearied of barrack life and its utter absence of romance. His military life ended in a curious fashion. One day while Coleridge was doing a weary sentry go two officers strolled past. One of them made use of a Greek quotation which the other corrected. The first insisted on his correctness, while the other was just as positive he was wrong. While they disputed the sentry suddenly presented arms and respectfully informed them that they were both in error. He gave the exact quotation, name of the author and other circumstances. This incident led to an inquiry, and the poet was restored to the bosom of his family.—London Graphic.

In a Japanese Temple.

"Asakuse temple is dedicated to the goddess Kwannon, a tiny image of gold, about two and one-half inches high," writes a traveler in Japan. "At the entrance to the temple grounds on either side of the immense gate stand two large and fearful looking figures, guarding the sacred precincts. Hanging outside the wire grating are a number of sandals for their use if they wish to take a walk, and rice is sprinkled about. Each worshiper, before entering the temple, calls at a small building, and after contributing a small amount, washes his hands and rinses his mouth. In front of the main shrine is a large aperture in the floor, covered with latticework, into which the worshiper casts his gift. After clapping his hands to awaken or attract the attention of the god, he kneels, but his prayer is only brief. While there is one chief shrine there are many others under the same roof. One shrine especially attracted my attention; it was made of wood, and quite disfigured and worn through the constant rubbing of hands on the spot corresponding to the afflicted portions of the sufferers' bodies."—Chicago News.

Tower of Hercules.

Travelers may still see on the coast of the English channel at Dover the ruins of a Roman lighthouse that was built at the time of the Roman conquest of Britain. Another ancient lighthouse, built less than a century after the tower at Dover, is still serving its original purpose. It was partly rebuilt and some alterations were made in it, but in the main it is the same old structure that guided the Roman galleys as they skirted the coasts of the bay of Biscay, making their way to the Roman port of Brigantium. This is the modern harbor of La Coruna, and the lighthouse is the most ancient thing about it. The Romans called it the tower of Hercules, and the moderns have perpetuated the name. The exact date of its erection is not known, but inscriptions and other evidence show that it was built in the time of Trajan, between 98 and 117 A. D.—Exchange.

Force of Habit.

"It's curious how habits fasten themselves on people. You know Wappsley?"

"Yes."

"He's an enthusiastic fisherman and always has a story to tell about some gigantic monster of the deep that he almost caught."

"I've heard him tell a lot of lies of that kind."

"Well, it seems that burglars broke into his house the other night and he got up and captured one of them—a little fellow—but you ought to hear him tell about the size of the one that got away."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Dana's Ten Books.

Charles A. Dana once made a list of ten "indispensable books." They are the Bible, Shakespeare, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Bancroft's "History of the United States," Irving's "Life of Washington," Franklin's "Autobiography," Channing's "Essay on Napoleon Bonaparte," Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" and Tarbell's "Early Life of Lincoln."

Repudiated the Spelling.

Once while in Pittsburg Andrew Carnegie had a telegram sent and stood waiting until it reached the operator. He listened attentively to the clicking of the key, then immediately wrote a new telegram, as follows: "The other message mine; spelling the operator's."

Her Secret.

Bessie—Did you tell the girls at the tea that great secret I confided to you and Elsie? Eva—No; isn't it a shame? That horrid Elsie got there first and told them before I arrived!

Not the Cook's Fault.

Mistress—Really, Marie, whenever I come into the kitchen I see you doing nothing. Cook—You're right, mum; you never have any luck, do you?—Fliegende Blatter.

Setting Him Right.

He—My income is small, and perhaps it is cruel of me to take you from your father's roof. She—I don't live on the roof.

It's finer being a small bank of sunshine than a big bank of fog.—Henry F. Cope.

PROGRESS OF UNITED STATES.

Washington, Sept. 25.—"Statistical Record of the Progress of the United States, 1800-1911," is the title of a small document just issued by the bureau of statistics, department of commerce and labor. It pictures in statistical form conditions in the commercial, financial, industrial and transportation systems of the United States at brief intervals since the year 1800 down to, and in many instances including the year 1911. In those cases in which the subjects considered are measured by governmental fiscal year periods, the figures for the fiscal year 1911 are included; in those in which calendar year periods are used, of course, statements can only terminate with the calendar year 1910.

Among the interesting facts shown are that the area of continental United States was 843,255 square miles in 1800, advancing to 1,734,630 square miles in 1810; to 2,995,536 square miles in 1850; and 3,026,789 square miles in 1853, since which date no change in area is shown. The population, which was 5,330,000 in 1800, was 93,750,000 in 1911. Public debt, which was $83,000,000 in 1800, reached $2,975,000, less cash in treasury in 1865, the figures of 1911 being $1,015,000. The per capita debt, which was $15,63 in 1800, and in 1865, $76.98, is in 1911 $10.83. The interest charge per capita, which amounted to 64 cents in 1800, and $4 12 in 1866, was in 1911, 23 cents, and the total annual interest charge, which was in 1866. $146,000,000. was in 1911. $21,830,000. Money in circulation, stated as $26,500,000, in 1800, was in 1911, $3,228,627,002, and the per capita circulation, which was in 1800, $4.99, was in 1911, $34.35. Deposits in all banks in the country can not be shown earlier than in 1875, at which date they are set down as a little over $2,000,000,000, and in 1910, over $15,000,000,000. The number of depositors in savings banks in 1820, the earliest year for which the figures can be shown, was a little less than 9,000; and in 1910, over 9,000,000. Government receipts, which amounted to $2.04 per capita in 1800, were in 1866, $14.65, and in 1911, $7.45, or about one-half what they were in 1866. Exports of domestic merchandise which amounted to $32,000,000 in value in 1800, were over $2,000,000,000 in 1911; and imports, which amounted to $91,000,000 in 1800, were $1,500,000,000 in 1911.

Many other subjects of this character stated by the document in question include details of imports and exports by great groups and grand divisions, and principal ports through which shipped; the production of principal articles, such as wheat, corn, cotton, coal, sugar, copper, etc., from 1800 to 1910; the attendance in public schools, and sums expended for that work; postal receipts and expenditures; and a few pages devoted to monetary and commercial conditions in the principal countries of the world.

SECURING GOOD SHOWS

Promises of Best Attractions at Auditorium this Winter.

"The Right-of-Way" and "Madam Sherry" Are Among Head Liners.

That Manager Smith, of the Auditorium, is trying his level best to secure the very best of attractions for the theatre-goers of this city can be judged by the attractions he has booked for tomorrow night and the first of next week. These shows are but the forerunners of the very best of attractions available to appear at the Auditorium this season and local theatre-goers and others from nearby towns will have an opportunity of seeing attractions that do not show outside of the big cities.

On tomorrow night Sanford Dodge will appear with a large and able company in "The Right of Way", a beautiful play dramatized by Eugene W. Presbrey from the novel by Sir Gilbert Parker of that name. Those who witnessed Mr. Dodge, who is supported again this season by Miss Adelle Nickerson, are glad to welcome him and his company to our city.

On Monday evening "Madam Sherry" will be presented. It is hardly necessary to comment on this play as anyone at all acquainted with the plays of today have undoubtedly heard of the great success which this play has met with in the large cities. It has been with considerable effort that the management has been able to secure this company as it does not make its appearance in any but the larger cities and this is the first one night stand played by the company on their circuit. This company makes this city the only stop-over between Minneapolis and Winnipeg and a special train will transport the show troup from Minneapolis, and will arrive here that evening. Owing to the large amount of time consumed in transfering the arranging of the scenery, etc., the curtain will not rise before nine o'clock for the show.

In securing these large companies it necessarily means a great expenditure of money and it is hoped and believed that the public will respond liberally enough so as to merit the continuation of such performances in the future.

The Ladies Aid Society of the German Lutheran church meets with Mrs. Henry Koop, southwest of this city next Wednesday afternoon, Oct 3d. All are welcome.

The Ladies Aid of the United Lutheran church meets with Mrs. Rev. Roseland Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 4, at 2 o'clock. Everybody cordially invited.

For Sale—am leaving the city tomorrow. Will sell cheap, one kitchen stove, one two burner gasoline stove, one bed, couch, & dining room table. H. P. Riggs.

The publishers of the score of "Madame Sherry", the new musical production of Woods, Frazee and Lederer, now current at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York, report that already more than two million copies have been sold of the "Ev'ry Little Movement Has A Meaning All Its Own" song. Madame Sherry" will be played here by the New York, New Amsterdam Theatre Company on Monday evening, Oct. 2d, for one night only.

Mrs. Perl W. Mabey will give a farewell party for Mesdames Dobner and Riggs who leave this city this week to make their future homes in Lake City & Minneapolis.

Mrs. T. L. Melgaard very pleasantly entertained a company of ladies at her home last Tuesday evening in honor of Mrs. Harry Dobner who leaves for Lake City tomorrow night.

Strayed—onto the place of John Riedl, in town of Excel, an Angora goat. The goat has been at my place about a week. Owner can have same by calling at my place. It.

Americans like to laugh, and this fact is not overlooked by the Schubert Symphony Club. Several numbers on their program, as well as all their encores, are full of fun, and you will be highly entertained by their program at the Auditorium on Oct. 3, under auspices of M. W. A. and R. N.

A farewell party was given by Miss Charlotte Rinker, at the home of her parents last Sunday evening, in honor of Miss Isabelle Effinger who leaves this week for Lancaster to make her home with her parents.

Lovie Zendt-Purcell, the famous contralto of the Schubert Lady Quartette, has one of the deepest voices ever given to a woman, and is the only lady vocalist able to sing an octave below middle C in concert. Her voice is very powerful and yet so melodious that her strongest tone loses none of its sweetness. Hear her Oct. 3 at the Auditorium.

Mrs. C. O. Olson and daughter Lulu, and Mrs. W. E. Cook, of this city, were over to Bemidji last Thursday in attendance at the funeral of Mrs. Olson's sister, Mrs. P. J. Russell. The deceased leaves a husband and three children, one, a two and a half months old baby.

Local playgoers are fortunate not to be compelled to wait a year or longer before they are given a chance to enjoy "Madame Sherry". Usually it requires two seasons for a success of such proportions to reach here from New York, but in the case of this phenomenal Woods, Frazee and Lederer musical success, the local public will have an opportunity to see it just as it is now being presented to overflowing audiences at the New Amsterdam Theatre, New York. One of the two New York companies which have been interchanging performances in New York will appear in a few of the principal cities as one of the special treats of the year. "Madame Sherry" is without a doubt the most talked of musical comedy of a generation, and is sure to prove as great here as it was in Paris, Berlin, London, Chicago, and New York.

—Dr. G. W. Booren, dentist, Jackson McGinn block.

No musical comedy of recent years has won the praise of the New York critics in such unqualified measure as has "Madame Sherry", which Woods, Frazee and Lederer are now presenting in New York, at the New Amsterdam, and which will be seen here in all its beauty and completeness at the Auditorium, Monday evening, Oct. 2d. Adapted from a French original which has charmed Paris, Berlin, Vienna and London for the past three years, "Madame Sherry" has been revised for the American stage by Otto Hauerbach, and given a most enchanting musical setting by Karl Hoschna. "Madame Sherry" sparkles like champagne and its 22 musical numbers are positively infectious in their ingratiating quality. It is a distinct novelty in theme, idea and manner of construction, and its cast numbers musical comedy celebrites, and the wonderful chorus which has been the talk of Manhatten ever since the opening night. A special orchestra and massive scenic production further add to the attractiveness of "Madame Sherry".

AUTO SMASH-UPS

Two Joy-Wagons Smashed, the Record for Last Week.

Last week proved a sort of a "hoodoo" week for at least two of the local automobile owners.

The first one to haul in the remnants of a badly demolished car was Ole Peterson, who met with his ill streak Saturday afternoon, when in some manner the spring under the front wheels gave way and collapsed, and the auto itself did the rest. It was a sick-looking auto that was hauled into town that day, with Ole, himself, perched on the back seat as the chief mourner of the catastrophe, and it would have been a hard heart indeed that did not have a spark of sympathy for the owner of the sick auto, on witnessing the sad scene.

But any way, somehow the gloom was lifted when Ole exploded with one of his famous laughs.

The next victim of a car accident was A. N. Lundgren, who, while in company with a party of hunters, run unto a stump which damaged the car to quite an extent.

A Classy Automobile.

Local prospective buyers would do well to investigate the kind of automobile the editor of the Hancock Record says he has just ordered. Here is the kind:

It has a pair of wings in place of the usual fenders which automatically spread out on approaching a mud puddle, allowing the machine to sail over it; has a spring attachment that winds up the spring while running and by pulling the string the car will keep running five miles after the gasoline is all gone. An automatic pointer always guides the car to the nearest can of gasoline. We have so far a little bother with this arrangement as the machine under the direction of the pointer will jump ditches and go through any fences in the way, but we hope soon to so regulate it that it will follow the road. It carries a platform on which to keep a horse so that in case of accident you can always pull the car home. By a simple device the exhaust is conducted to the tires so that they are always pumped up. An automatic nozzle shoots a dose of soothing syrup at any horse that shows signs of being afraid and also quiets the nervous ladies who may be driving the horse. By simply pressing a spring, the car in case of any danger of collision, gracefully hops into air, turns around and starts the other way. An automatic arrangement also picks up any chickens that may get run over, trims off head and feet, conducts the body to a cylinder where it is picked clean by a powerful current of air furnished by a fan driven by the exhaust and deposits the body in a frying pan over the engine, from whence nicely browned they are presented to the occupants of the car ready for a lunch all nicely carved. A very delicate sensitized magnetic plate which is so placed that a man's breath will be sure to strike it when he starts the car automatically shuts off the gasoline and prevents starting when a man who has been drinking tries to crank the machine.

We are working out a few more unimportant details, but these will be among the most notable improvements over the present near classy cars.

Dobners Return.

Owing to ill health Mr. Harry Dobner has been compelled to abandon his duties as cashier of the First State Bank and Mr. and Mrs. Dobner left last week for Lake City, the home of Mr. Dobner's parents, where they will remain for some time, after which they will, for the benefit of Mr. Dobner's health, move to a warmer climate.

Simultaneously with the resignation of Mr. Dobner, and the departure of the Dobners, is the removal of the C.L. Dobner family to this city from Kalispell, Mont.

Mr. Dobner has taken over the duties at the First State Bank and will remain in this city permanently. Mrs. Dobner who has been in the city visiting for some time, left Monday afternoon for Kalispell, where she goes to arrange for the disposal of their residence and the removal of the family to this city.

An Artist.

Lovers of the violin should not fail to hear Mr. Thomas Valentine Purcell, who assists the Schubert's on Oct. 3 under auspices of the M. W. A. and R. N. Although he renders the highest class of concerts, he is far more modest than many other artists of less ability.

GARLAND STOVES AND RANGES The World's Best

STOVE BUYER WARNINGS

Facts No 3

Caution
Garland Stoves and Ranges always bear the above trade-mark. Sold only through reliable dealers. Never sold by Mail Order or Catalog Houses. Insist on seeing Garlands. In over 4,000,000 homes. Made for 40 years to give permanent satisfaction.

FACTS, plain facts, are often hard to tell without hurting somebody's feelings.

But, as agents for Garland Stoves and Ranges, we have no desire to do that—no quarrel with any Mail Order Stove Concern or Catalog House.

It is stove buyers for whom we have facts worth considering—practical, profitable facts whenever you are thinking of buying any kind of a stove or range.

Buy Where You Can See What You Get—At HOME

We do not say this selfishly. We only ask that you investigate Garlands before you buy. That's all. We are glad to rest the matter on your judgment then—when you see our full line of latest style Garlands for every purpose to suit your needs.

Quality
For over 40 years Garland stoves and ranges have had the greatest sale of any stoves and ranges in the world—in over 4,000,000 homes. Garland Quality costs you no more than stoves and ranges of inferior grade. So why not secure The World's Best?

Service
Permanent economy in buying any stove or range should be considered not only from its first cost, but also from the point of view of durability, materials and workmanship. Garlands are the world's best for baking, cooking or heating and do each with the least waste of fuel.

Sparks and the Odor.

Every boy who has struck flints together to make sparks knows the typical odor that arises from the clash. He also knows that the whiter the flints the more smell they emit. This phenomenon has been observed for centuries, but scientific men have been at a loss to account for it. Many explanations have been given, but experiment has proved all of these to be erroneous. Recently, however, two Italian scientists, the brothers Piccardi, demonstrated that the smell of spark emitting flints is due solely to the minute quantities of organic matter that are upon the stone and that are burned by the sparks. This organic matter need be in only the most minute quantity, such as may be left by water in which lichens, weeds or water plants have decomposed, for the olfactory nerves are so exquisitely sensitive that they can detect the burning of almost infinitesimal bits of matter. The delicacy of these nerves is proved by the fact that even after the pebbles have been washed in lye the smell of burning can still be detected. But if the pebbles be heated in fire and then struck together at points that the hands have not touched there is absolutely no odor at all.—New York World.

Insects That Imitate Ostriches.

The habit of the ostrich of burying its head and imagining that it has eluded discovery is copied after a fashion by certain insects, according to Dr. G. Rodman in his lectures on the subject of the stick insect, or bacillus rossi, which he has cultivated. These insects, which are so called because of their resemblance to dry sticks, have two fore legs which they fold completely over their eyes when disturbed and evidently think that in so doing they themselves are lost to view. The eggs of these insects, Dr. Rodman says, take something over six months to hatch. They are only one-tenth of an inch in their longest diameter, and by some miracle an insect which at hatching is three-quarters of an inch in length is packed into them. The stick insects destroy the weaklings of their number by eating their legs.—Westminster Gazette.

A Whack at Turtle Soup.

Turtle soup is called green just because turtle fat is "kinder that color." And believe it, whether you now do or not, turtle soup will make anybody sweat green who eats of it often and much. Hogarth has a picture showing how green turtle soup and its fellow foods and drinkables in the good old golden days put London aldermen under the tables. From the viewpoint of nourishment turtle soup is not worth a tenth it costs. Sun dried turtles are found in some of the markets of the world, and many chefs say they are about as good as the fresh reptile. As for the true secret of mock turtle soup, it is only the scalp of a sucking calf, a gelatinous fraud, masquerading as a chunk of green turtle shell fat, but even so, it is better than the best genuine sea turtle soup at that.—New York Press.

A Floor That Turns Over.

The floor in the Apollo theater in Paris is reversible, one side being made for dancing, the other being the usual inclined floor equipped with the folding seats of a theater auditorium. The floor is mounted on a horizontal axis on which it revolves. It is built on a framework of steel girders, has an area of 2,500 square feet and weighs 100 tons. The axis, which is parallel to the front of the stage, is not in the middle of the thickness of the floor, but nearer to the seating surface than to the dancing surface. The floor swings through an excavation over thirty feet in depth.—Cement Age.

Coffee and Fatigue.

The question is often asked, What will relieve fatigue more quickly than anything else? Clerks in stores and men generally, as well as woman shoppers, become at times very tired. Fortunately the British army has thrashed the question out and tried every kind of decoction that could be thought of, and we may profit by its experience. It awards the palm to coffee and declares it has neither superior nor equal for this purpose.—Indianapolis News.

Growing Pains.

Never ignore "growing pains." Many people seem to think they are perfectly natural and, in fact, that they are a necessary part of growth. As a matter of fact, they are sometimes an indication of a strong tendency to rheumatism, and a child who complains of them should wear wool next the skin always, though lighter, of course, in summer than in winter, and be properly treated by a doctor.

The Lathe.

Originally intended to be operated by the physical exertion of one man, the lathe has now reached such a state of development that in many cases forty to sixty horsepower, or the equivalent of 600 men, is necessary to operate it. It is one of the earliest forms of tool to be driven by machinery.

Novelty Excited Curiosity.

Owtlaight—I had an awful time thinking up an excuse to give my wife when I got home from the club last night. Lushman—Did she demand one? Owtlaight—Of course. I got home so early that it piqued her curiosity.—Exchange.

An Insult.

"Have you ever written on an empty stomach?" asked the mere man.

"Sir!" exclaimed the literary person. "I am a poet, not a tattoo artist!"

When the tree is fallen every one goeth to it with his hatchet.

A Missing Leaf.

That ordinary care which is taken by the Japanese in their very exact "flower arrangements" is illustrated by an incident related by Frederic S. Isham, the author. He was present at a demonstration in Kyoto of the art of placing flowers, leaves and branches together in an artistic manner. At one point a little maid apparently offended the "master" deeply. He spoke to her and ended by ordering her to retire. She did so, probably the most broken hearted girl in Kyoto, and the master proceeded to alter her work. The American, who had seen nothing wrong, ventured to ask what was the matter, whereupon he was informed that she had placed twelve leaves in a certain combination instead of thirteen. Twelve, it seems, was the right number 200 years ago, but thought, study, meditation and prayer had led to the discovery that not twelve, but thirteen, was the correct number for the artistic effect of that particular arrangement. This may seem a trifling alteration, but it suggests Michelangelo's retort, in which he pointed out the relation between trifles and perfection.

Test For Stutterers.

A new method of voice control was tried by the lifelong stutterer. In a few lessons the impediment in speech was overcome.

"That's fine," said a candid friend. "Now I wish you would take a bit of advice. You talk all right today, but just keep a watch on yourself and see how you talk this time next week."

"You're a wet blanket, all right," growled the ex-stutterer. "What's the matter with next week?"

"We'll be in the full moon, then," said his friend. "It's a fact that everybody who has ever stuttered stutters worse when the moon is full than at any other time. Until you get so you can talk smoothly then you can't count yourself really cured."

The man with halting speech took notice, as advised, and found that several full moons waned before he could control his speech at that time.—New York Times.

Verifying His Statement.

Old Mr. and Mrs. Smiley were giving their annual party, and Mr. Smiley was making his usual speech.

"For forty years have my good wife and I traveled hand in hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all those years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, mother?"

"Mother" had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly and said sharply:

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you— Oh, oh, I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep, Lily," hissed Samuel into her ear.—London Tit-Bits.

Some Welsh Words.

Welsh is a marvelously expressive language. In a souvenir guide to Carnarvon there is a list of Welsh railway stations with their English equivalents. Here are some of them: Abergwynfi, entrance to the place of bliss; Amlwch, a place of frequent expansion; Cefn Brynich, the back of the screaking hill; Dowlais, the voice of God, and Llanbister, the manure yard road." There is also one station the name of which runs to fifty-eight letters. Its meaning is merely, "The fair church at the pool of the white seagull near the alder grove where the fodder for the oxen is stored in the red barn." And surely teetotalism ought to flourish in a country where beer is known as "cwrw."—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Glimpse of Dr. Johnson.

From Boswell's "Life of Johnson:" "In one of Dr. Johnson's manuscript diaries there is the following entry, which marks his curious minute attention: 'July 26, 1768—I shaved my nail by accident in whetting the knife about an eighth of an inch from the bottom and about a fourth from the top. This I measure that I may know the growth of nails.' And 'Aug. 15, 1783, I cut from the vine forty-one leaves which weighed five ounces and a half and eight scruples. I lay them upon my bookcase, to see what weight they will lose by drying.'"

The Lion Didn't Roar.

It is related that Pinnow, the faithful servant and personal valet of Prince Bismarck, once trod on his master's gouty foot. Instead of swearing at him or even declaring he was a clumsy fool, Bismarck, noticing that Pinnow himself was frightened, said: Consider yourself honored. No other person, my dear Pinnow, not even the kaiser himself, would have been suffered to tread on my corns."

His Vulgarity.

Mrs. Finefeather—Are you taking your husband abroad this year? Mrs. Bonton—No. I decided last year when he insisted upon speaking of the Venetian gondolas as canalboats that the real charm of Europe is lost upon him.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Women's Tears.

Marks—So when you got home from the club last night your wife was weeping? Parks—I said nothing of the sort. I said she was crying. It's when a woman is sad she weeps; when she cries she's hopping mad.—Boston Transcript.

Even.

Borrow—Until now I have never had to ask you for a small loan. Money—And till now I have never been obliged to refuse you.

Men Who Cry on the Street!

"I was standing on the street corner waiting for a car," said a caller at the Deaconess home in Chicago, "and I saw a man walking along with bowed head, crying! No, he had not been drinking. He looked like a respectable workingman of middle age. I wanted to speak to him, but—I didn't. What do you suppose was the matter?"

The deaconess whom he was addressing said nothing, but she knew why some "respectable middle aged men" walk the city streets crying. Visions rose before her: A man who had just visited his boy, in jail for stealing—a man who has been hunting work for three weeks and "lost out" every time, till the dearly loved wife and baby at home were literally starving—a man who had just had a flashlight of his own degradation and was comparing it with the innocence of the clean hearted lad that used to cuddle into his mother's lap. The men go weeping along the streets sometimes, but oftener far they go too dead at heart to weep.—Christian Herald.

The Death Pain.

A reporter asked a well known surgeon whether his experience as a medical man had led him to believe that death is painless.

"Speaking generally," he said, "the death agony is very rarely attended by pain, because the system is always prepared for death by a weakening of the vital forces, by the circulation of impure blood through the brain and by the obtunding of the nerves. Of course some people have more pain than others, and this is very largely determined by temperament. A nervous man—all other things being equal—suffers more pain than a man who has enjoyed robust health, because the nervous man's sensibilities are stronger, but the pain of death is more in the anticipation of it than in the reality. Men of education face death with greater fortitude than men who are not educated. Women are almost always pluckier than men. They endure pain much better."—London Globe.

The Biter Bitten.

A Philadelphia man went to a dealer to purchase a dozen homing pigeons and was both surprised and delighted at the extremely low price asked for the birds. The bargain was finally concluded and the pigeons delivered. Two weeks later the gentleman happened to be passing, when the dealer stopped him and asked him how the birds were getting on.

"I don't know," replied the gentleman. "I have not heard from my friend."

"Your friend?"

"Yes; I bought them for a man in San Francisco."

The dealer's jaw fell in dismay, and then, with a rueful laugh, he admitted that he had sold the birds so cheaply because he knew that on being released they would immediately return to their old home. But from San Francisco! It was a clear case of the biter being bitten.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Life of a Gown.

"A lawsuit in which women's clothes are the center of litigation teaches even a woman many things she never before suspected about the clothes she wears," said a well dressed woman. "Last week I was present at a trial in which a woman was attempting to secure full insurance for gowns damaged by fire. In the expert testimony it was asserted no dress has a money value in law after it has been worn ten times. According to that theory, every gown owned by the plaintiff had outlived its usefulness before the fire came along to complete its destruction, and with the exception of a trifling sum representing the actual worth of old material the insurance company was absolved from its obligations."—New York Sun.

One View of Mountain Climbers.

Mountain climbing, now a popular part of an outing at home and abroad, was regarded in a far different light in its earlier days. "Murray's Guide to Switzerland," published in 1838, in the section devoted to Mont Blanc, soberly related that "it is a somewhat remarkable fact that a large proportion of those who have made this ascent have been of unsound mind." This quotation will console many timid souls.—Argonaut.

Chinese Business Houses.

Most of the Chinese business houses are owned by partnerships, and most partnerships are of a large number of persons. The Chinese who has saved $100 local currency will at once invest it in a mercantile business and become a partner.

Goldsmith's Poverty.

Goldsmith had to sell his "Vicar of Wakefield," that masterpiece of English fiction, for a comparatively small sum in order to pay his rent. Want often pinched him to the core.

Juries.

Formerly a jury in England who could not agree were sent to prison, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful litigant.

To die for one's great ideas is glorious—and easy. The heroism is to outlive them.—John Oliver Hobbes.

Birds and Fishes and Glass.

A correspondent recently reported what he described as the "curious freak" of a blackbird flying against a parlor window many times at the same spot continuously. Such an incident is not uncommon. Birds have been known to fight for hours at a time, day after day, with their own image reflected in a pane of glass, pecking and fluttering against the pane and quite exhausting themselves in their fury to demolish the supposed rival. It is another instance of how the arts of our civilization corrupt and confuse the birds. It is the same with fishes. Darwin tells a story of a pike in an aquarium separated by plate glass from fish which were its proper food. In trying to get at the fish the pike would often dash with such violence against the glass as to be completely stunned. It did this for more than three months before it learned caution. Then when the glass was removed the pike would not attack those particular fish, but would devour others freshly introduced. It did not at all understand the situation, but associated the punishment it had received not with the glass, but with a particular kind of fish.

Boiled Down.

When Samuel G. Blythe, the writer, was editing a newspaper in New York state a green reporter one night turned in a long and thrilling story regarding the rough treatment handed out to John Smith, a visitor to the town. The story related that Mr. Smith, wearing a high silk hat, had ventured down to the docks after nightfall and a silk hat being unusual and provocative of antagonisms in that section Mr. Smith had emerged from among the dock hands without the hat. Nevertheless he carried out of the melee so many wounds, cuts and bruises that he had to be sent to the hospital. The article in its original form was too long and not in keeping with the style of the paper. Accordingly Blythe started to rewrite it. This is the form in which it appeared in the paper the next morning: "John Smith, wearing a high silk hat, went down to the docks last night—Emergency hospital."—Popular Magazine.

Wagner's Last Words.

There have been so many and conflicting stories published as to the last hours of Richard Wagner that the chapter devoted to this point in Glasenapp's biography of the composer will be read with interest. The master was not really sick at the time, but tired out from the work and worry over the "Parsifal" rehearsals. On the morning of Feb. 13 he said to his valet, "I must be careful today." After breakfast he went to his study as usual and worked on an essay on "The Feminine In the Human." He asked to be excused at the noon meal, and the family and an intimate friend were enjoying it when a woman servant rushed in and said that the great man was ill. He was placed on a cot in his study, and while removing some of his clothes a watch which his wife had given to him fell to the floor. He gasped, "My watch!" And these were the last words he uttered.

A Race of Tenors.

Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Thus, in South America, among the Indians living on the plateaus between the ranges of the Andes, at an elevation of from 10,000 to 14,000 feet, the men have voices like women and the women like children, their singing being a shrill monotone. The Australian native has a weak voice, but a knack of sending it a long distance, and the lowest tribes of African bushmen would come into the same category; but, it is said, of all human beings the pygmies of Central Africa have, in point of volume and compass, the weakest of human voices.—Harper's Weekly.

Wellington an Simplicity.

When Sir Edwin Landseer was painting the duke's portrait, hoping to save him the trouble of much sitting, he wrote and asked if he could let him have the trousers belonging to the uniform. The duke wrote back in all solemnity:

"Field Marshal the Duke of Wellington presents his compliments to Sir Edwin Landseer and regrets that he cannot send him the trousers as he has but one pair."—London Nation.

Wanted an Even Start.

"Pa, you know you told me to count twenty before I punched another boy?"

"Yes."

"Well, in order to make it work out right you have got to go around the neighborhood and make the other boys promise to count twenty before they take a punch at me."—Houston Post.

WILD SCENES IN WHEAT PIT

Defeat of Canadian Reciprocity Results in Immediate Advance of Six Cents at Minneapolis.

Wild scenes were witnessed in the wheat pit in the Minneapolis chamber of commerce following the defeat of Canadian reciprocity, the price going up 5⅛ cents in five minutes. The total advance for the day was 6 cents.

The wires were choked with telegrams from the country, with orders to buy wheat, following the defeat of the reciprocity treaty in the Canadian elections. The orders came in so fast that brokers could not execute them at the prices stipulated.

In the pit the traders fought with one another in their efforts to buy and sell. Buying directions for a million bushels or more came from towns in Minnesota, the Dakotas and from Western Canadian points.

Meanwhile the local brokers who trade in "puts and calls" found themselves obligated on sales of a million or more calls, at prices from $1.06¼ to $1.07, and they started to cover. Chicago held back, after a moderate advance, but Minneapolis kept climbing.

$10,000 PACKAGE MISSING

Sent by Registered Mail From Minneapolis and Disappears.

Shipped in a registered package from the Northwestern National bank of Minneapolis to the Sioux Falls Savings bank, Sioux Falls, S. D., $10,000 in currency has disappeared. It has not been received at the Sioux Falls bank.

The money was shipped from the Minneapolis bank Monday. Postoffice records show it was properly registered, that it started the journey to Sioux Falls Monday night, that it should have arrived in Sioux Falls Tuesday morning. Officers of the Minneapolis bank said they had received word from the Sioux Falls bank that the money had arrived in Sioux Falls and had been turned over to the custody of the registry clerk of the Sioux Falls office. When the Sioux Falls bank called for it the money was gone.

Postal authorities have been notified of the loss, which is one of the most mysterious in the annals of postal service robberies. The authorities are convinced there has been a robbery. They have searched every employe of the Sioux Falls office, but no arrests have been made.

SANBORN CASE IN OCTOBER

Minnesota Rate Law Appeal to Come Up Shortly.

Many intricate questions of interstate and intrastate commerce promise to perplex the federal supreme court during the first month of its approaching session. More than twenty cases involving such problems have been advanced by the court for hearing as soon after the opening of the term as possible.

The question of the validity of the 2-cent passenger laws in Minnesota and West Virginia will be fought out shortly after the court convenes. The Minnesota case is an appeal from the widely discussed "Sanborn decision."

The constitutionality of the McChord act of Kentucky, empowering the railroad commission to fix intrastate rates, also will be contested early.

Confer on Rate Cases.

Attorneys general of Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Kansas met with former Attorney General E. T. Young of Minnesota and Thomas D. O'Brien, former justice of the supreme court, in St. Paul and discussed certain points in the briefs which are being prepared by these states preparatory to the appeal to be taken in the Minnesota railroad rate cases.

Shoots Wife In Insane Fit.

Joseph Doubrava shot his wife through the jaw and face with a shotgun, then ran to his brother's farm through the woods and told of his deed. Doubrava lives at Getty Grove, near Sauk Center, and is a well known farmer. Four years ago he and his son were in the asylum at Fergus Falls. Family troubles are said to have caused the shooting.

Homesteader Killed by Train.

Aleck Snutter, a homesteader, was run over by a Great Northern train just east of Brookston. He was taken to the Barclay hospital, Cloquet, where he died in a few minutes without regaining consciousness. Both legs were crushed and the skull was fractured. Snutter was identified by grocer slips in his pocket.

DEALS WITH LIQUOR QUESTION

"Pussyfoot" Johnson Engaged in Writing a Book.

W. E. Johnson, for some years chief special officer of the United States Indian service, who recently tendered his resignation, has entered the field of literature and is publishing a book on "The Federal Government and the Liquor Traffic."

Mr. Johnson, who is better known in Minnesota as "Pussyfoot," has been at work on his book for more than a year. Recently a prospectus of the volume was issued by the publishing house and it was not long before the resignation of Special Agent Johnson was filed and immediately accepted.

It is generally understood that the resignation was requested, although Johnson himself says that he intended to resign and devote his attention to his book, which he expects to have a large sale. No other publication of a like character has ever been issued.

"BAD" MAN SHOOTS MARSHAL

Willow River, Minn., Terrorized by Citizen With Gun.

Ernest Eden, who has terrorized the village of Willow River since his return there recently from Dakota, shot and probably fatally injured Marshal I. S. Mottle. He also shot Mail Carrier Vernon Pembleton through the left arm.

He then went home and in a struggle for the possession of the revolver shot his father through the arm. Eden then escaped into the woods.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Emerson Walker, eighty-two years old, is dead at St. Paul as the result of injuries received when he was hit by a bicycle as he was boarding a street car, and thrown to the ground. His skull was fractured and he had been conscious only for a short time since the injury.

John Stewart, who lives near Clitherall, was killed by a train on the Soo railway a short distance from his home. He was asleep on the track and the train, coming down grade, could not be stopped.

B. A. Butterfield, fifty-two years old, a farmer residing near Henning, committed suicide by blowing the top of his head off with a shotgun. Brooding over financial troubles is given as the cause.

The one-year-old son of Harry E. Nelson, a milkman of St. Paul, was found by the hired man, Gus Olson, drowned in a tub of water just outside of the kitchen door.

John Steuman of Virginia was instantly killed near there by a Duluth, Missabe and Northern northbound passenger train.

The Lathe.

Originally intended to be operated by the physical exertion of one man, the lathe has now reached such a state of development that in many cases forty to sixty horsepower, or the equivalent of 600 men, is necessary to operate it. It is one of the earliest forms of tool to be driven by machinery.

Novelty Excited Curiosity.

Owtlaight—I had an awful time thinking up an excuse to give my wife when I got home from the club last night. Lushman—Did she demand one? Owtlaight—Of course. I got home so early that it piqued her curiosity.—Exchange.

An Insult.

"Have you ever written on an empty stomach?" asked the mere man.

"Sir!" exclaimed the literary person. "I am a poet, not a tattoo artist!"

When the tree is fallen every one goeth to it with his hatchet.

It is a far cry from the Chinese wheatfield of two or three acres, hand planted and hand hoed, to the 1,000 acre grain ranch in the Dakotas and Montana, where thirty acres a day are plowed with a gas or steam tractor hooked on to eight or ten plows and where all subsequent operations, including disking, seeding, reaping and thrashing, are done by the same power and on a like scale.

In certain districts of England the guinea pig is being put to a very practical use as an exterminator of weeds on private lawns and golf grounds. The area to be cleared is surrounded with low wire fencing and the little fellows turned in. They attack the dandelion, plantain and daisy in the order named, and, while they keep the grass nibbled close, they do not kill it. Here would seem to be a cheap substitute for a lawn mower and elbow grease.

The secret of digging out from an indebtedness incurred in the purchase of a farm, if secret there be, consists in a complete concentration of both energy and funds on the one object in view. This means that the farmer who would quit paying interest at the earliest possible moment should not get loaded up with a steam thrashing outfit or attempt to handle an automobile agency. Either one is enough to dissipate the energies of the best man that ever lived.

Sparks and the Odor.

Every boy who has struck flints together to make sparks knows the typical odor that arises from the clash. He also knows that the whiter the flints the more smell they emit. This phenomenon has been observed for centuries, but scientific men have been at a loss to account for it. Many explanations have been given, but experiment has proved all of these to be erroneous. Recently, however, two Italian scientists, the brothers Piccardi, demonstrated that the smell of spark emitting flints is due solely to the minute quantities of organic matter that are upon the stone and that are burned by the sparks. This organic matter need be in only the most minute quantity, such as may be left by water in which lichens, weeds or water plants have decomposed, for the olfactory nerves are so exquisitely sensitive that they can detect the burning of almost infinitesimal bits of matter. The delicacy of these nerves is proved by the fact that even after the pebbles have been washed in lye the smell of burning can still be detected. But if the pebbles be heated in fire and then struck together at points that the hands have not touched there is absolutely no odor at all.—New York World.

Insects That Imitate Ostriches.

The habit of the ostrich of burying its head and imagining that it has eluded discovery is copied after a fashion by certain insects, according to Dr. G. Rodman in his lectures on the subject of the stick insect, or bacillus rossi, which he has cultivated. These insects, which are so called because of their resemblance to dry sticks, have two fore legs which they fold completely over their eyes when disturbed and evidently think that in so doing they themselves are lost to view. The eggs of these insects, Dr. Rodman says, take something over six months to hatch. They are only one-tenth of an inch in their longest diameter, and by some miracle an insect which at hatching is three-quarters of an inch in length is packed into them. The stick insects destroy the weaklings of their number by eating their legs.—Westminster Gazette.

A Whack at Turtle Soup.

Turtle soup is called green just because turtle fat is "kinder that color." And believe it, whether you now do or not, turtle soup will make anybody sweat green who eats of it often and much. Hogarth has a picture showing how green turtle soup and its fellow foods and drinkables in the good old golden days put London aldermen under the tables. From the viewpoint of nourishment turtle soup is not worth a tenth it costs. Sun dried turtles are found in some of the markets of the world, and many chefs say they are about as good as the fresh reptile. As for the true secret of mock turtle soup, it is only the scalp of a sucking calf, a gelatinous fraud, masquerading as a chunk of green turtle shell fat, but even so, it is better than the best genuine sea turtle soup at that.—New York Press.

A Floor That Turns Over.

The floor in the Apollo theater in Paris is reversible, one side being made for dancing, the other being the usual inclined floor equipped with the folding seats of a theater auditorium. The floor is mounted on a horizontal axis on which it revolves. It is built on a framework of steel girders, has an area of 2,500 square feet and weighs 100 tons. The axis, which is parallel to the front of the stage, is not in the middle of the thickness of the floor, but nearer to the seating surface than to the dancing surface. The floor swings through an excavation over thirty feet in depth.—Cement Age.

Coffee and Fatigue.

The question is often asked, What will relieve fatigue more quickly than anything else? Clerks in stores and men generally, as well as women shoppers, become at times very tired. Fortunately the British army has thrashed the question out and tried every kind of decoction that could be thought of, and we may profit by its experience. It awards the palm to coffee and declares it has neither superior nor equal for this purpose.—Indianapolis News.

Growing Pains.

Never ignore "growing pains." Many people seem to think they are perfectly natural and, in fact, that they are a necessary part of growth. As a matter of fact, they are sometimes an indication of a strong tendency to rheumatism, and a child who complains of them should wear wool next the skin always, though lighter, of course, in summer than in winter, and be properly treated by a doctor.

His Great Generosity.

"We are getting up a subscription," began the lady who was carrying around the paper. Her voice trembled as she spoke, for the person she was now bracing happened to be the richest fellow in the community. She hoped against hope that she would get something fat from him.

"You are getting up a subscription?" echoed the millionaire, with a sweet smile. "I'm sure you'll be very successful. And what can I do?"

"Would you—could you"—she nearly fainted at her assurance—"would you p-p-put your name down on this paper for a h-h-hundred dollars?"

There—it was done. He wouldn't have missed a thousand, but she was pretty courageous to ask for as much as she did. His gentle smile reassured her.

"Will I put my name down for a hundred dollars?" said he. "Why, my dear young lady, I don't charge that amount for the use of my name when charity is the cause. I will put my name down, of course, but not for a hundred dollars. I won't charge you a cent for it. It is a slight service."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Female Housefly.

A female house fly which has hibernated in a dwelling house, or elsewhere, may produce in the spring, at the lowest estimate, 120 eggs. Assuming that one-half of these hatch as females, and allowing that the breeding goes on without check for four months, we have as the descendants of a single hibernating individual 214,557,844,320,000,000,000,000 flies. Now, a house fly measures exactly one-fourth of an inch in length; the distance around the earth at the equator is said to be 24,800 miles. It would take, therefore, 3,088,312,000 flies placed end to end to go around the world once. Using this number as a denominator, and the number of flies produced in four months from one mother as a numerator, we find she will give rise, in the course of a summer, to enough flies to encircle the globe at the equator 5,000 times and have plenty of progeny to spare.—Professor F. L. Washburn in Popular Science Monthly.

Severe.

A story is going the rounds at a certain university regarding one of the sarcastic professors, who was recently conducting an oral examination in a very scientific study.

There was one student, handsome, easy and self possessed, who appeared to be utterly ignorant of the simplest phases of the subject.

Professor W. put question after question to him without receiving one intelligent reply. Finally the student said naively:

"I'm very unfortunate, professor; you never ask me anything I know."

The professor said nothing, but gravely tore off a tiny piece of paper from a convenient pad.

"Here, Mr. B.," he said, handing it to the student, "write all you know. Take plenty of time—there's no hurry."

What Rhymes With Babe?

A common English word for which there is only one rhyme is "babe," and it was Swinburne who used it with exquisite appropriateness in "A Rhyme:"

> Babe, if rhyme be none
> For that sweet small word
> Babe, the sweetest one
> Ever heard,
>
> Right it is and meet
> Rhyme should keep not true
> Time with such a sweet
> Thing as you.
>
> Love alone, with yearning
> Heart for astrolabe,
> Takes the sun's height, burning
> O'er the babe.

"Silence" is another word beloved of poets that has no rhyme. Mrs. Browning went to the very limits of her passion for assonance when she rhymed it with "islands!"

Oddities About Alphabets.

When the Portuguese first explored Brazil they made great fun of the natives of that country because they had in their alphabet no f, r or l—a people, the invaders declared, without fe, ley or rey—without faith, law or king. The Mohawks, again, have no labials and vowed it was absurd when the missionaries tried to teach them to pronounce p and b, "for who," said they, "can speak with his mouth shut?"—Blackwood's Magazine.

Something Was.

Rivers was smoking a cheap cigar.

"Seems to me," said Brooks, "I smell something like cloth burning."

But Rivers was game.

He touched the lighted end of his cigar to his shirt sleeve.

"No wonder," he said, exhibiting the burned spot.—Chicago Tribune.

The Trouble.

Gramercy—We can't afford to give a dinner in the house. Besides, we haven't the things. Mrs. Gramercy—Pshaw! We can borrow the silver. Gramercy—Yes, and have the guests carry most of it away as souvenirs.—Judge.

A Second Washing.

"I've just washed out a suit for my little boy, and now it seems too tight for him."

"He'll fit it all right if you'll wash the boy."—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Changed the Geography.

"This goulash was spoiled in cooking, sir. Shall I cross it off the bill?"

"No, you chump! Put it down as goulash a la Russe under the head of special dishes."—Jugend.

The grand essentials to happiness in this life are something to do, something to love and something to hope for.

A Missing Leaf.

That ordinary care which is taken by the Japanese in their very exact "flower arrangements" is illustrated by an incident related by Frederic S. Isham, the author. He was present at a demonstration in Kyoto of the art of placing flowers, leaves and branches together in an artistic manner. At one point a little maid apparently offended the "master" deeply. He spoke to her and ended by ordering her to retire. She did so, probably the most broken hearted girl in Kyoto, and the master proceeded to alter her work. The American, who had seen nothing wrong, ventured to ask what was the matter, whereupon he was informed that she had placed twelve leaves in a certain combination instead of thirteen. Twelve, it seems, was the right number 200 years ago, but thought, study, meditation and prayer had led to the discovery that not twelve, but thirteen, was the correct number for the artistic effect of that particular arrangement. This may seem a trifling alteration, but it suggests Michelangelo's retort, in which he pointed out the relation between trifles and perfection.

Test For Stutterers.

A new method of voice control was tried by the lifelong stutterer. In a few lessons the impediment in speech was overcome.

"That's fine," said a candid friend. "Now I wish you would take a bit of advice. You talk all right today, but just keep a watch on yourself and see how you talk this time next week."

"You're a wet blanket, all right," growled the ex-stutterer. "What's the matter with next week?"

"We'll be in the full moon, then," said his friend. "It's a fact that everybody who has ever stuttered stutters worse when the moon is full than at any other time. Until you get so you can talk smoothly then you can't count yourself really cured."

The man with halting speech took notice, as advised, and found that several full moons waned before he could control his speech at that time.—New York Times.

Verifying His Statement.

Old Mr. and Mrs. Smiley were giving their annual party, and Mr. Smiley was making his usual speech.

"For forty years have my good wife and I traveled hand in hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all those years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, mother?"

"Mother" had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly and said sharply:

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you— Oh, oh, I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep, Lily," hissed Samuel into her ear.—London Tit-Bits.

Some Welsh Words.

Welsh is a marvelously expressive language. In a souvenir guide to Carnarvon there is a list of Welsh railway stations with their English equivalents. Here are some of them: Abergwynfi, entrance to the place of bliss; Amlwch, a place of frequent expansion; Cefn Brynich, the back of the screaking hill; Dowlais, the voice of God, and Llanbister, the manure yard road." There is also one station the name of which runs to fifty-eight letters. Its meaning is merely, "The fair church at the pool of the white seagull near the alder grove where the fodder for the oxen is stored in the red barn." And surely teetotalism ought to flourish in a country where beer is known as "cwrw."—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Glimpse of Dr. Johnson.

From Boswell's "Life of Johnson:" "In one of Dr. Johnson's manuscript diaries there is the following entry, which marks his curious minute attention: 'July 26, 1768—I shaved my nail by accident in whetting the knife about an eighth of an inch from the bottom and about a fourth from the top. This I measure that I may know the growth of nails.' And 'Aug. 15, 1783, I cut from the vine forty-one leaves which weighed five ounces and a half and eight scruples. I lay them upon my bookcase, to see what weight they will lose by drying.'"

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL XXVIII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1911 NUMBER 41

COMMITS SUICIDE

O. O. Berge Dies From Self Inflicted Wounds at Crookston.

Was Employed by the Langseth Mercantile Co., for Two Years.

It comes as a great shock to the many friends in this city of the O. O. Berge family, who until recently were residents of this city, to learn that either thru a fit of despondency or temporary insanity Mr. Berge shot himself in a Crookston hardware store last Friday evening, dying from his wounds at 7 o'clock Saturday morning.

Mr. Berge was up to January 1st, this present year employed as clothing salesman in the Langseth Mercantile Co's. store, with which firm he had been connected for about two years. After his resignation at that store he was also employed at the C. O. D. clothing store here for about a month, but later went to Grand Forks.

Mr. Berge had just recently rented a residence at Crookston and had moved with his family to that place just two days before the rash act was committed.

About one o'clock last Friday Mr. Berge went into a hardware store at Crookston and purchased a 32-caliber revolver, went to the front part of the store and fired two shots at his head. One shot entered the right side of his head and skirting under the skin lodged on the opposite side of his head and the second entered his jaw.

Mr. Berge was taken to a hospital where an operation was performed to extract the bullet, but died from the wounds Saturday morning at 7 o'clock without regaining consciousness.

While no definite reason is attributed for the cause of his rash act it is generally believed that worrying over financial matters had led him to commit the deed.

It is asserted that he was much depressed over the fact that the home in which they were to live was not as good as the one in which they had been used to live, and also the fact that he was unable to give his daughter the proper musical education, it is claimed, seemed to be the source of much worry to him.

The deceased is about 45 years of age and leaves his wife and two children, Miss Dorothy, aged 18, and a young son, Oscar, aged 14, to survive him.

Raises 600 Bushels of Potatoes An Acre.

Six hundred bushels of high grade potatoes to an acre, is the record of Beltrami county and probably for the state and it is held by Frank Gagnon of this city.

This yield was made on Mr. Gagnon's farm north of Lake Bemidji in the town of Northern.

"It is an actual fact that these potatoes yield an average of 600 bushels to the acre," said Mr. Gagnon, "and it is my desire that a representative of the Commercial Club go out to the farm and investigate so that they may officially confirm my report."

At Blackduck Chas. Hayden reports the next largest yield of 510 bushels to an acre.—Bemidji Pioneer.

COUNTY SCHOOLS

Co. Supt. of Schools Presents a Well Arranged Report for the Public.

The fall of the year is with us. This brings us to think of the precautions to be taken for the seasons coming. Let me remind school officers to consider and provide for the necessities of their respective districts so as to insure in time a successful school year. These necessities may be few or many, small or great, but they should be considered in time so as to add to the efficiency of school when once begun.

Will the school clerks kindly report at your earliest convenience the name of teacher employed and the grade of certificate held by her. If the teacher is not employed will you likewise let this office know. The Supt. wishes to have everything arranged before school begins so as not to interfere with work of visitation. The Supt. will be found in his office on Saturdays after Oct. 1st.

I would like to hear from those school children who intend to enter the Industrial Co. Contest. State your success in raising corn and vegetables.

Will teachers also inform this office as to what progress is made in domestic science work in their school as this information is needed to determine if a contest is to be held.

Text books are loaned to pupils free of charge or sold at cost. It is difficult to arrive at the average cost per pupil. However, 20c per pupil will be a fair average. Dist. No. 18, Thief River Falls, has built the only brick schoolhouse during the year; its cost is $15,000. Of the rural districts, district No. 55 has built a frame structure costing $800, and district No. 37, at Reiner, a structure costing $1300. School district No. 56, at Erie, has had the misfortune of having the material of a house burned. This is a hard blow for this young and prosperous district. Not daunted by adverse circumstances the district is building a modern structure that will be ready for occupancy this fall.

Pennington county has 67 organized school districts. Of these, districts No. 70 and 219 are joint districts with Marshall County and districts No. 28, 33, 148, 133, 227, 108, 43, 124, and 17 are joint with Red Lake County.

The unorganized school territory is spread over parts of the townships of North, Clover Leaf, Goodridge, Kratka, Reiner, Star, Hickory, Deer Park and Mayfield. The County Board of Education is sustaining three schools in this sparsely settled territory namely in Hickory, Clover Leaf and Kratka.

There are 57 schoolhouses within the limits of the county. The estimated value of these with sites is $125,311.00. Of this sum $105,000 falls to the lot of Thief River Falls; $2500 to St. Hilaire and $17811 to the rural districts.

Twenty-two districts will qualify for state aid this year as against 14 for last year. 14 of these schools will have eight months school and 8 will have seven months.

Of the 200 volumes in the 28 school libraries in the county 727 volumes were bot last year.

We hope to see these libraries increase in number in the future as they form one of the strongest and useful adjuncts to the school work. Every school, if needs be, should have a library.

The aggregate indebtness of the district whose school houses are within the county is $70,400 00.

In Trouble Again.

Oscar Davis, a transient from Thief River Falls, was arrested by Marshall Nelson Monday evening charged with carrying concealed weapons. He was brought before Judge Daniels Tuesday and fined under the ordinance of the village. Being unable to pay the fine he was committed to the lockup until some one came to his assistance in the evening. It has been said that the young man, who is not of age, has been imbibing quite freely in liquor, and that on two different occasions of late he has threatened to shoot. He is being closely watched.—Argyle Banner.

ANSWERS SUMMONS

Charles H. Sallow, Prominent Railroadman Succumbs to Cancer of the Stomach.

End Comes Sunday Morning at About 8:30 O'Clock, After General Collapse.

Last Sunday morning at about 8:30 o'clock occured the death of Charles H. Sallow at his home in this city, after an extended illness from cancer of the stomach.

The end came while Mr. Sallow was dressing for breakfast, when, feeling considerably weakened, he betook himself to the bed again where he suffered a general collapse and passed away a few minutes later. He had been in poor health for some time but had been up and around all the time up to but a short time before the end came.

Mr. Sallow was in the employe of the Soo Line as freight conductor and has, with his family, made this city his home ever since moving here from Fargo about four years ago.

The deceased was born in Germany Sept. 14, 1880 and was at the time of his death 49 years and 16 days of age.

He was married August 29, 1889 to Mary J. Jordan, who, with her two daughters, Misses Bessie and Florence, are left to mourn his demise.

In addition to the above named he leaves two brothers, Otto and Wm., and one sister, Mrs. Paul Jolte, all of Cleveland, Ohio

The funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the Order of Railroad Conductors will have charge of the service. This order and the A. O. U. W. Lodge will march in a body to the Greenwood Cemetary, the last resting place of their deceased brother.

VIEWS DRAINAGE

M. O. Leighton Makes Very Satisfactory Report Regards Drainage.

M. O. Leighton, chief hydraulic engineer of the U. S. Geological Survey, was here from Washington, D. C., last Friday afternoon in company with George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, and visited the different dredges at the work along the Thief River. Mr. Leighton is recognized as a national authority on all hydraulic questions and his visit here was for the purpose of taking some views of the work being done by the dredges on the big drainage system.

To the Northern Light editor Mr. Leighton stated that the immense drainage system now under way in this vicinity was opening a lot of the finest land he had ever seen, and he added that the contractors were doing excellent work. This remark from such an eminent authority is some proof of the excellence of our territory and an unsolicited testimonial to the work of the engineers looking after the drainage.—Holt Northern Light.

Four Boys In Trouble.

Four boys, Fred Iverson, Robert Iverson, Leonard Morstad and Melvin Morstad were apprehended last week by Sheriff LaBree and Chief of Police Lang charged with several thefts in this city. The charge against these boys was that of breaking into the Arpin boat where they secured a number of articles left there, and also a few articles taken from the A. C. Hanson confectionery.

Sentence has not been passed on the boys as yet but it is expected that the two youngest boys, Melvin Morstad and Robert Iverson will have their hearing before Judge Grindeland in the near future, while the other two, Fred Iverson and Leonard Morstad have waived examination and were bound over to the grand jury.

Paasche—Kroken.

Ingebret Kroken perpetrated a surprise upon his many Fosston friends by joining the ranks of the "Benedicts" last Sunday, when he was united in marriage to Miss Alea Paasche, an estimable young lady of Crookston.

The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Kroken, parents of the groom, at 8 o'clock in the evening, Rev. K. O. Hildahl officiating, only a few intimate friends being present. A wedding supper followed the ceremony.

For the present, Mr. and Mrs. Kroken will remain here, Mr. Kroken expecting to leave in a short time to build a dwelling upon a homestead claim held by him, east of Thief River Falls, where they will reside.—Crookston Press.

An Editor's Easy Job.

"How would you like to be an editor of the home paper and sit at your desk six days out of the week, a month, and twelve months out of a year and have such copy as the following to edit: Mrs. Jones, of Cactus Creek, let a can-opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry. A mischevious lass of Pickettown threw a stone and struck Mr. Pike in alleyway Tuesday. Joe Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch. While Harold Green was escorting Miss Wise home from the church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green four times in the public square. Mr. Long while harnessing a broncho last Sunday was kicked just north of the corn crib.

Gives a Dinner Party.

Mrs. F. Weiland entertained at a dinner party in honor of Mrs. H. P. Riggs last Saturday evening at the Weiland home on the East Side. The event was in the nature of a farewell party for Mrs. Riggs who left that same evening for Minneapolis where she went to join Mr. Riggs, and to make her home.

YARD IS FINISHED

Extensive Additions to Thief River Falls Mfg. Co.'s Plant Completed.

Company Employes Large Crew of Men and is Doing Rushing Business.

The extensive additions being made to the Thief River Falls Manufacturing company's plant is with the exceptions of a few finishing touches to be made yet, practically completed. The lumber has been placed in the yard and the retail shed is ready to take care of the products from the factory. The company during the short time they have operated the plant in this city have done a surprisingly large business and it was found that owing to the large amount of work turned out more room was an absolute necessity, and consequently the company erected a retail shed and lumber yard that will enable the plant in turning out a very large amount of work without the slightest inconvenience from lack of room, and will prove a credit to the city.

Several experienced men have been added to the force of late and the company's weekly pay roll amounts to $230.50 per week, besides five salaried men.

New Leagues Being Organized.

As a result of the work of the Northwestern Development League, a seven state proposition, many sectional development leagues are being organized which are doing effective work in connection with the parent organization.

North Dakota has been the scene of the most effective activity in the last two weeks. The business men and representatives of Commercial Clubs in the Red River Valley met at Grand Forks and completed an organization for that valley. Just a few days later north central North Dakota counties called a meeting at Devils Lake and organized the Lake Region Development Association. Thus ten counties are bound together in this organization and one of the first things which the League will do is to make an exhibit at the Northwestern Land Products show to be held in St. Paul December 12th to 23rd.

This League has raised $7,000 for their work and invested $1,000 in space in the heart of the big Land Show. The Red River Valley is also contemplating an exhibit.

Improvements at Post Office.

The walls of the post office last week underwent repairs that add greatly to the appearance of the room.

SHOWS INCREASE

Preliminary Returns By Tax Commission Shows Large Increase.

An increase of about ten millions in the assessed valuation of personal property in the state, exclusive of moneys and credits, will be effected, according to a preliminary report issued last week by the state tax commission. The complete figures cannot be given, as the reassessment ordered by the commission on the personal property in South St. Paul has not been completed. With this single exception returns from every assessment district in the state have equalized by the commission.

The total valuation will be in the neighborhood of $200,000,000. The total for 1910, excluding moneys and credits, which henceforth will be assessed separately, was $196,117,473. Leaving South St. Paul out of the computation, it is found that the total valuation is $204,810 009, as compared with $195,081,061. This shows an increase of $9,729,948.

The counties of Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis produced $7,021,461, or approximately 70 per cent. Of the remaining eighty three counties twenty made returns lower than the valuation of a year ago. The equalization did not raise the totals above last year's figures, and these twenty counties show decreases in personal property assessments. The counties in this list are Chisago, Dodge, Houston, Hubbard, Kanabec, Marshall, Norman, Olmsted, Otter Tail, Pennington, Pine, Polk, Pope, Redwood, Scott, Traverse, Watonwan, Wilkin and Winona.

According to the report the valuation of personal property exclusive of moneys and credits in Pennington county for 1911 is $555,644 and $586,103 for 1910.

10 VALID REASONS

The Home Merchant Should Receive Your Patronage Because:

1. Your home merchants can duplicate the prices made by any responsible concern anywhere on goods of equal quality, in the same quantities and on the same basis of delivery and payment.
2. You can examine your purchases in the home store and be assured of satisfaction before investing your money.
3. Your home merchants are always ready and willing to make right any error or any defective article purchased.
4. Your home merchants help support through direct and indirect taxation, your schools, churches, libraries and other public institutions.
5. Your home merchants help make a good local market for everything you have to sell, and that market—more than any other factor—gives your land its present value.
6. Your home merchants are your good friends ever ready to extend a helping hand in time of need.
7. If this community is good enough for you to live in and make your money in, it's good enough to spend it in.
8. The best citizens in this community are those who believe in and practice home patronage. Be one of the best.
9. The merchants in the distant city give you nothing valuable that the home merchants cannot give you—and the former cannot and will not do for you many things the latter do gladly.
10. Every dollar kept in circulation in this community helps increase property values. Every dollar sent out of this community that could as well be kept here, hinders the wheels of progress and helps up some other community at your expense.

STAR WITNESS ON THE STAND

Robert E. Smyth Testifies in the Dr. Dumas Case.

Robert E. Smyth, the first witness for the state in the trial of Dr. Dumas, told how in April last he had gone to Cass Lake to obtain medical treatment from Dr. Dumas and had seen two men in the office. After they had gone out, he testified, the doctor told him they were "two of the smoothest crooks in the country." He said Dumas had shown him his safe, which contained two revolvers and a bottle of nitroglycerin.

"The guns and nitroglycerin belong to those two fellows," Smyth said Dr. Dumas told him. "They do a job and then come to Cass Lake and rest up for a few days."

Smyth said Dr. Dumas then broached the idea of burning the postoffice building and store at Puposky, of which Smyth was manager, and he had led Dumas along at different meetings. He told how it was agreed that Dumas was to furnish two good men; how he met Dumas in the Bemidji saloon, at which time Mike Davis and Martin Behan were present and how he gave Dumas $100 in marked bills supplied him by Sam Fullerton, who obtained the money from the First National bank in St. Paul.

Smyth was put through a grilling cross-examination by Freeman P. Lane of counsel for the defense. Lane was merciless in his questions relative to the ailment which took Smyth to Dr. Dumas, and the questions became so pointed that the judge cleared the courtroom of all women.

Mr. Lane also attempted to show that heavy insurance had been placed on the Puposky property and that a few days later, about May 5, a fire endangered the postoffice build...

A PASTOR UNIQUE

Pastor Russell Addresses Immense Audiences in London, Brooklyn and Elsewhere — Reaches Ten Million American Homes Through One Thousand Newspapers.

To hear Pastor Russell is the desire of many Catholics, Protestants and independent thinkers, who appreciate the published sermons of the celebrated editor, author and orator of the Brooklyn Tabernacle.

Pastor Russell usually speaks under the auspices of the unsectarian Bible classes of the large cities, in public places, where all may assemble on neutral ground, free from denominational prejudice, the pastor accepting only invitations where the seats are free and no collection to be taken, he in turn accepting no fee for his lectures.

Perhaps the most remarkable congregation on earth is that of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, over 20 nationalities being represented in its board of elders and deacons. Pastor Russell, when in America, orally serves his congregation on the first Sunday of each month. The Academy of Music, Brooklyn's largest auditorium, is now used on Pastor Russell's home days and is often insufficient to accommodate the ever-increasing crowd.

Pastor Russell, by his defense of the Bible as God's inspired revelation to man, has won the admiration of the vast majority of unprejudiced truth-seeking Bible students. He came into prominence in New England in 1877. Since then his field of activity has continually broadened, until now over 10,000,000 American families are served by the 1,000 newspapers now publishing his weekly sermons. He is the author of a work now in its fourth million.

Why He Became Independent.

He was reared under the strictest religious discipline as a Protestant. His instructors believed and taught the old style "Hell Fire" doctrine. To save his fellows from such a fate he went about his native city, inscribing upon walls and fences Bible texts calling sinners to repentance. During the next few years, while growing up into commercial life he devoted much time to the investigation of Buddhaism, Confucianism and other oriental religions, to the end that they were found unworthy of credence. The thought, "Which is the true gospel?" became a living question in his inquiring mind, which continually reverted to the mixed condition and contrary claims of Christendom. He questioned, "Should I try to find the truth? Why not lay aside such arduous study and win fame and fortune in a most promising commercial life now well started?" This he was about to do, but decided that he would first investigate the Scriptures and let the Bible speak for itself on fire and brimstone.

Amazed at the harmonious testimony proving an unexpected but satisfactory answer, he continued a "topical" Bible research and was brought to a complete confidence in the Bible as being inspired by an all-wise, all-powerful, all-just and loving Creator, worthy to be adored and worshiped. This was a beginning of a new ambition, and the question then was, What should he do and how he should do it. Determining, if possible, to reach every truth-seeker, whether Catholic, Protestant, Jew or Free-thinker, he found it necessary to stand free of all sectarian bonds and to inaugurate an independent work. His first effort was the preparation of a booklet entitled, "Food for Thinking Christians"—1,400,000 copies being delivered to the public free of cost.

Interested in Jewish Hopes.

Pastor Russell early discovered that hundreds of texts relating to the promises of Israel were as yet unfulfilled, and he became intensely interested in the history of the Jews, past, present and future—but especially in their future. An extensive tour of the Holy Land was accomplished in 1892. The bud of the coming Jewish nation had scarcely put forth at that time. However, great strides toward a Jewish polity have since been accomplished, and Pastor Russell predicts that the budding of a Jewish springtime will soon be recorded in history.

He revisited Palestine last spring and addressed the Jews in the largest hall in Jerusalem from Isaiah xl. 1. 2. Upon his arrival home, Pastor Russell announced that his next topic at the Academy of Music would be "Jerusalem." So unusual, so strange, to see a Christian minister dilating upon Jewish hopes that all Jewry waited in expectation of something—they knew not what. So great was the interest on this occasion that hundreds of Jews, as well as hundreds of Gentiles, were unable to obtain admittance to hear the speaker. This discourse was published in 15 New York Jewish newspapers and by the Jewish press of many cities in Great Britain, Russia and America.

Last October he addressed a Jewish mass meeting in the New York Hippodrome on "Zionism in Prophecy," and has since addressed Jewish mass meetings in the London Royal Albert Hall and in Manchester, Glasgow and the Chicago Armory. Since returning from Europe he has spoken in many cities. Invitations accepted for 1911 will take him to the Pacific coast and two separate trips to Great Britain. By continuous labors Pastor Russell has fully earned the appellation, "America's Ubiquitous Preacher."

A series of Pastor Russell's sermons will be run in the News in its forthcoming issues. Mr. Russell is an eminent authority on religious matters and, besides is an editor, author and orator and his sermons are recommended and published by some of America's most famous newspapers.

SHIPPERS FORM STEAMER LINE

Withdrawal of Low Flour Rate Followed by Independent Action of Mill City Men.

The Flour City line of steamers, backed by Minneapolis shipping interests, to operate from Duluth to Buffalo, became a transportation entity Saturday and the boats will be running as soon as tariffs sent from Minneapolis to the interstate commerce commission at Washington are approved. A thirty-day notice is necessary only when tariff changes are made and the commission is expected to give immediate recognition to the new line.

The withdrawal by the Western lines of the rate of 21½ cents on flour, Minneapolis to New York, brought immediate action on the threat of Minneapolis to operate its own lake line if it failed to get the all rail and lake and rail differential of 3½ cents asked for. A new transportation factor is introduced, the effect of which will be watched with interest by traffic men and shipers all over the United States.

FUGITIVE GIVES HIMSELF UP

Had Been Without Food or Shelter for Several Days.

The Willow River man-hunt is over. Ernest Eden, twenty-six years old, for whom armed posses have been searching the woods in that vicinity for two days and two nights, gave himself up.

Eden shot Constable S. L. Mottle and Vernon Pembleton, a mail carrier, in Edward Olson's saloon and later shot his own father through the arm while making his escape. He hid in the woods and all efforts to find him were fruitless.

Eden appeared at his home, having been without food or shelter for two days and two nights. The elder Eden and one of the fugitive's brothers at once informed the officers and William Weekly, deputy sheriff, made the arrest. A charge of assault with a deadly weapon will be made.

Constable Mottle, who was expected to die, has improved and may recover. Pembleton was shot through the arm.

Novelty Excited Curiosity.

Owtlaight—I had an awful time thinking up an excuse to give my wife when I got home from the club last night. Lushman—Did she demand one? Owtlaight—Of course. I got home so early that it piqued her curiosity.—Exchange.

An Insult.

"Have you ever written on an empty stomach?" asked the mere man.

"Sir!" exclaimed the literary person. "I am a poet, not a tattoo artist!"

When the tree is fallen every one goeth to it with his hatchet.

White Seal Beer
IS A FOOD
It contains about the same nourishment found in milk.
There is this, however, in favor of our product that makes it different from all other food beverages and of much greater value:
WHITE SEAL BEER
is predigested. It places no burdens upon the stomach. Instead of making work for the latter, it aids in the digestion of the solid foods.
Its clear color, its tendency to enrich the blood and improve the health, its splendid flavor and its thirst "cutting" quality, all combine to make this product one eagerly sought.

GREAT EVENT TO SWEDEN

Olympian Games the Topic of the Day in That Country—Many Difficulties Overcome in Constructing New Bergen Railway—Last Whaler Returns to Denmark Without Being Able to Reach Explorer Michelson.

SWEDEN.

The Olympian games are the topic of the day at present in Sweden and great preparations are under way, for it will be one of the greatest events on record in Sweden for many years. Several new features will be introduced. The start and the finish of the Marathon race will be from the Stadium, and this is something which is certain to please all competitors. Then the course will be arranged in a triangle, so that there can be no chance for the runners to get all into a heap at the finish. Another most interesting feature of the games will be the great male chorus, consisting of not less than 4,000 voices, which is to assist in the programs with singing. The singing will perhaps prove as great, if not a greater, drawing card than the games themselves. The Swedish singing societies from all parts of the country will gather at the nation's capital at this time and it will, judging from all indications, be the greatest gathering of singers that has ever been held in Sweden.

About thirty prominent French physicians paid Stockholm a visit during the first week of this month and during their stay in this city they were the guests of the Stockholm Medical association, and to say that they were accorded a hearty reception is putting it mildly. The leader of the visiting party was Dr. M. Etienne-Bazot, who is chairman of the International Medical association and regarded as one of the most learned men in the world. He expressed himself as being very well pleased with his visit to Stockholm and spoke very highly of the Swedish as well as the Norwegian physicians, stating that they were among the best in the world. The thoroughness of the medical courses in the Scandinavian universities was also touched upon in a flattering way by the learned French doctor. The French physicians also visited Copenhagen and Christiania, where they were given an equally hearty reception.

Abraham Lejonhufvud, formerly minister of the navy and recently chief of the Stockholm fortifications, died the other day, having attained an age of eighty-eight years. The career of this man is a long and distinguished one, and both his military and political record is one which places him in the foremost ranks of Sweden's great men of later years. He served for many years in both branches of the riksdag and proved himself a very able statesman. He was equally successful in the army. He was born in Orebro and was a son of Baron Carl Lejonhufvud and Baroness Sofia Lejonhufvud.

The national board of health received reports from ninety-nine new cases of infantile paralysis during the second half of July. It is feared that the number was really much larger, for the physicians are not required to report such cases. Of the ninety-nine cases, seventy-seven were in the country, and twenty-two in cities. The pest originated in Norrland, and there it is also most frequent. It must be contagious, but the manner in which it is carried from one person to another is still a mystery.

Former United States consul at Stockholm, Edward D. Winslow, whose home in the States is in Chicago, has been assigned to the consulship at Copenhagen. This is one of the best paying consulships in Europe, having a set salary of $3,000, besides some other valuable features. Mr. Winslow's wife is Swedish and is he is himself of Swedish extraction, his people hailing from Southern Sweden.

The mission society of the Church of Sweden (Fosterlands society) has 46 European missionaries, 83 native workers, 1,659 communicants, 54 schools, 1,220 pupils and four orphanages on its African field, principally in Abyssinia. In India there are 57 Swedish missionaries, 127 native workers, 1,447 communicants, 33 schools and 1,098 pupils.

There are a large number of Russian Jews emigrating from Russia to Sweden these days. In Stockholm alone there are at present more than 2,500 Russian Jews and there are a great many of them in Sundsvall, Gefle and Norrkoping. Their numbers are steadily increasing.

Pears and plums to the value of 100,000 crowns were shipped into Stockholm on Sept. 1. Most of this fruit comes from Germany and France.

Out of a population of over 5,000,000 there are in Sweden 1,4[illegible] persons who have a right to vote at the general elections.

The new [illegible] pieces are now in circulation all over the country.

NORWAY.

Says the Engineering magazine regarding the new Bergen railway: "Altogether there are no less than 184 tunnels on the line, representing a total length of about twenty-four miles. The line crosses fourteen bridges. The constructional work entailed the excavation of nearly 36,000,000 cubic feet of earth and 28,000,000 cubic feet of rock on the high mountain section, while the consumption of dynamite ran to 1,800,000 pounds. There are fifty-five stations between the two terminal points. Of the fourteen bridges three are in masonry, one having a span of 150 feet and another being 566 feet in length, with eight 70-foot spans. Owing to the exposed nature of the line in the upper sections above the timber line extensive fencing as a defense against drifting snow was necessary beside the track, these screens being almost continuous for sixty miles between Mjolfjeld and Gjeilo. The line passes through a wilder stretch of country than any other European railway. The winter lasts nine months and sometimes longer, the snowfall is heavy and the rain storms terrific, with a tremendous downpour. The line cost about $15,600,000 to build and the difficulties of construction are only equaled by those experienced in keeping it open for traffic."

Three Americans widely known in the Northwest were decorated recently with the order of St. Olav during the ceremonies commemorating the centennial of the Royal Fredrik's university, commonly known as the University of Christiania. The men honored are Dr. Edvard Boeckman of St. Paul and Dr. Christian Preus, president of Luther college, Decorah, Ia., who are created commanders of the second class, and Dr. Gisle Bothne, professor of Scandinavian languages and literature, University of Minnesota, first class. Professors Preus and Bothne attended the centennial exercises as representatives of the faculty of their respective schools. The ceremonies, which continued a week, attracted every former student able to be present.

There are a great many cases of infantile paralysis in Christiania at present. The way in which the disease is spreading throughout the Scandinavian peninsula is something remarkable and it is a puzzle to the physicians, who thus far have been able to do practically nothing to check it. Many persons have died from it, especially children.

Dr. Scharfenberg has severed his connection with the prohibition press, with which he has been actively connected for many years. He will reenter the regular newspaper field in Christiania in the near future. Dr. Scharfenberg is a prolific and forcible writer and his matter will soon find ready listeners whenever he feels ready to start in.

There has been much internal strife in the Norwegian army recently, judging from what the Norwegian newspapers have to say about it. The trouble and dissensions that have occurred have in nearly all cases been started by the so called Young Socialists, who have many followers in the army.

Two Swedish composers of note—Wilhelm Stenhammar and Tor Aulin—have been engaged to direct two of the Christiania Music society's concerts this fall. Music lovers in Christiania will doubtlessly accord them a most hearty reception.

DENMARK.

This year's last whaler, the Minerva, returned Sept. 15 from the east coast of Greenland. It reported having made every effort to reach Shannon Island, in order to find Captain Michelson and his companion, Iverson, but it was stopped by the ice six miles from the island. No trace of the explorers could be found anywhere and it is concluded that if they are alive they evidently have carried out their plan of passing around the north end of Greenland to Cape York. If such is the case Knud Rasmussen's motor schooner will bring the news the latter part of October.

The national government has decided to use only vegetable butter at the insane hospitals in Denmark, which means a saving of at least $25,000 a year. The minister of justice is handling this business in a manner which is bound to inspire confidence all around. For a month or so only vegetable butter has been on his table and for three months he is going to eat no other kind of butter.

The annual military field maneuvers, which are held in Bornholm every autumn, will not be held this year owing to the prevalence of so much infantile paralysis. This disease has been spreading with such alarming rapidity that the military authorities decided to abandon the maneuvers this year.

Professor Mittag-Leffler was honored recently by King Frederick, who awarded him a gold medal for scientific research. There are only three Scandinavians thus far who have been accorded the same distinction—Nansen, Amundsen and Sven Hedin.

All around Denmark in a barrel carrying the advertisement of an oatmeal concern is the record made by a Copenhagen gentleman named [illegible]. He started out March 26 and has existed on nothing but oatmeal during the entire trip.

AL OF CITY OFFICIALS ASKED

Officers Permit Sale of Liquor, Says Complaint.

Charges that Mayor H. P. Keller, Chief of Police John J. O'Connor and the members of the police commission of St. Paul permit disorderly houses in that city; that they permit liquor to be sold in them illegally; that they have refused to stop this illegal sale; that they permit owners and agents to rent buildings for these purposes; that proprietors of these places systematically pay $100 fine to the city, and that the Hamm Brewing company and other brewers sell liquors to these places, were sent to Governor A. O. Eberhart by James Manahan, attorney for the Methodist Laymen's Association of St. Paul.

The charges are the culmination of the fight against the liquor selling in disorderly houses begun by the laymen last spring. They were adopted finally at a meeting of the committee. In the complaint the governor is asked to fix a public hearing on the charges, and in the event of their proof, to direct the attorney general to take appropriate proceedings to remove Mayor Keller, Chief O'Connor and the members of the police commission.

Frank J. Clemans, Ernest W. Young and Miles E. Harben, in their own behalf and in behalf of the Laymen's association, are named as the complainants, and Herbert P. Keller, Mayor of St. Paul; John J. O'Connor, chief of police; Albert W. Lindeke, president; Fred M. Catlin, vice president, and W. A. Hardenbergh, L. L. May, and Percy Vittum, members of the police commission, as respondents.

Gave Fortune to College.

The last member of the original Harrison family, which reached Minneapolis in 1859 from Belleville, Ill., Mrs. Anna Goheen, widow of Dr. S. M. E. Goheen, who lost his life in the California gold rush of 1852; founder of Goheen hall, Hamline university, to which institution she gave more than $100,000, and to whose benefactions probably every Methodist church in the Mill City can bear testimony,—is dead. Mrs. Goheen was eighty-five years of age.

Minnesota Official Removed.

John Kinsella, county attorney of Lake county, must step out of office for malfeasance and nonfeasance. This is the decision of Governor Eberhart, to be enforced unless the attorney general holds that the charges filed against him are not sufficiently specific, or that the charges, most of which pertain to his private life, do not bear on his conduct as an official.

Farmer Killed by Hunter.

Frank Greegan, a farmer living at Newry, a few miles west of Austin, was shot and instantly killed by the accidental discharge of both barrels of a shotgun belonging to a hunter who happened to run upon Greegan and a neighbor, who, with their children, were picking walnuts. The hunting party, three in number, were also neighbors.

AMATEUR AVIATOR IS KILLED

Dr. Clarke Falls 260 Feet and is Crushed Under Machine.

Nassau Boulevard, L. I., Sept. 26.—The international aviation meet here was marred by the tragic fall of Dr. J. C. Clarke of New York, an amateur. He fell 260 feet in his Queen Bleriot monoplane, sustaining such injuries that he died in the Nassau hospital.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

Estimating the overcapitalization of the American Tobacco company on its good will at more than $148,000,000, pointing out the power of concentrated capital to control prices and boost profit and the possibility of those on the "inside" in the business taking the larger part of the profits to the loss of the less informed stockholders, the report of Herbert Knox Smith of the department of commerce and labor has been made public.

Foodstuffs which might have been affected by an influx of Canadian products had Laurier and his government not been defeated in Canada rose sharply in price in all American supply centers. Wheat led the advance and was followed by flour when millers ignored their previous price lists and adjusted their quotations to figures more commensurate with the advanced cost of the grain staple.

With the low prices touched in the New York stock market, and the low quotations made in the present downward movement, thirty leading railroads and twenty-five industrial stocks showed a shrinkage in market values of $1,290,653,312 compared with the high prices of 1911. Most of this depreciation has occurred in the last seven weeks, beginning with the downward tendency early in August.

There is evidence of a general movement among industrial combinations that are threatened with suits by the government to dissolve and reorganize under government approval, so that the new organizations will not contravene the Sherman anti-trust law.

Reports from the state university announce the admission of James Curran, Morlan Bishop and George Hicks to the university band. This musical honor is of more consequence than appears on the surface, as the competition for enrollment in this organization is exceedingly keen among the eligible members of the 5,000 students of the university. It is rare that a freshman makes the band, but Morlan turned the trick.

Miss. Larson, a new arrival in the city, has taken Mrs. Will Korstad's place as substitute in Miss Connelly's seventh grade room at the Washington. Miss Larson taught a similar grade in N. D. for several years just prior to coming to Thief River Falls.

Mr. Haskin has started classes in elementary agriculture in the grammer grades. The work will be largely on the labratory plan and will prove interesting, as it is instructive, to the students of these grades.

Children still continue entering the rooms, all of which are already filled and some uncomfortably crowded. Parents ought to visit the schools and discover how a young lady teacher can direct the energies of from 40 to 50 restless little bodies, any two or three of whom can overtax the patience of the ordinary parent.

The football boys may try their first game with Bemidji next Saturday. The team is light but of good material.

Exhibits from sewing, cooking and manual training departments will be prepared and forwarded to the meeting of state educational association at St. Paul about Oct. 26th. The high schools receiving special state aid for industrial work will enter the contest at this time.

The state high school board sent a pre-emptory notice to the normal training department last week that the maximum enrollment therein must not be over 20. This works a decided hardship on many students possessing the necessary qualifications to enter and who must postpone such action for one year at least. Two departments could be filled here to the maximum. It begins to look as though nothing short of a sixth state normal school at Thief River Falls would satisfy the demands of the upper part of the state for normal preparation.

¶ Nearly every higher educational institution in Minnesota and North Dakota has one or more graduates of the local high school enrolled in its ranks. To date, not one of these students has failed to perform the tasks assigned her or him, and in the face of the fact that our own university, not to mention other schools, has failed or conditioned scores of students last year and this fall. This uniform success is creditable to the students and brings not a little honor to Thief River Falls.

MARKET DAY

Gov. Eberhart Chief Speaker at Holt Market Day

The Commercial Club at Holt is making extensive preparations for a grand Market Day to be held at that place Saturday, October 14.

Gov. Eberhart has been secured as the chief speaker of the day, and several other speakers will be on hand to deliver addresses. The people of Holt led by the energetic Commercial Club of that town are doing everything possible to make this affair a one great event in the history of their town and extend their hospitality to anyone who desires to make the town a visit.

If weather permits quite a number from this city are expected to make the trip.

See the Market Day ad on page 2 of this issue.

MAKES 'U' BAND

Three Local Boys Admitted to University Band.

Of the Thief River "colony" at the state university this year, three local boys, George Hicks, Morlan Bishop and James Curran, were fortunate in being admitted to the cornet section of the university band. These boys may consider themselves more than usually fortunate in being so honored and it was through the effort of Mr. Maxwell of this city that this was brought about. Mr. Maxwell wrote to Mr. Rose, the director of the university band, recommending the local boys with the result that the recommendation was accepted and subsequently they were admitted to the band.

While Mr. Maxwell is not intimately acquainted with Mr. Rose, his established reputation while director of the California State University Orchestra of 40 members and leader of the band of that same institution had considerable bearing in with the matter and helped the boys into the band which otherwise might have proved very difficult owing to the large number of candidates for membership in that organization.

Mr. Maxwell was for a considerable length of time director of the university orchestra and band of California and the former organization especially, created quite a reputation throughout the country. Mr. Maxwell had up to the time of his coming to this part of the country been at the head of many famous bands and orchestras. Among them are the San Francisco Orchestra Society, an organization of 50 members playing classical repertoire; the 1st Artillery Band N. G. C., originally the Forresters band; the Lowville band in New York State, known as one of the fine bands of New York. He was teaching in New York City when engaged to come to Red Lake Falls to direct the band at that place during their engagement at the State Fair in St. Paul, shortly after which he came to this city who takes the leading role in "The Rivals" which appears at the Auditorium Monday evening Oct. 9. Local play-goers will remember Mr. Yule as playing the role of Sir Toby Belch in "Twelfth Night," the Shakesperian comedy which was presented at the Auditorium last spring. Mr. Yule's acting as the unique character made a pleasing impression on those who saw him and they will be glad to have the opportunity of seeing him on the local stage again.

SEASON OPENS

Local H. S. Football Team Plays Opening Game at Bemidji.

The Thief River Falls High School football aggregation will play their first game Saturday when they will clash with the Bemidji eleven on the gridiron at that place.

The local team is considerably lighter this year but this dificit will be offset by the quickness of the boys. Although the team has done regular practice for some time the season is rather premature yet, so the outcome of the first game is hard to tell.

The following are the members for the foot ball team of 1911:

Center, Carter.
Right Guard, Adolphs.
Right Tackle, Wold.
Left End, Lonson.
Right End, Brudie.
Quarterback, Iverson—Captain.
Right Half Back, Long.
Left Half Back, Stanton.
Fullback, Cerny.
Extras, Burns, Teal, Shea.
Coach, A. Roseland.

Made Settlement.

Last week Ole Smeby, who lives in North Dakota was brought before Judge Bishop on a serious charge. Mary Holm who is the complainant, came to this city about two months ago and consulted the county attorney as to the apprehension of Smeby, charging him with bastardy, but it was found that the county could not take the matter up as he (Smeby) was not a resident of the state.

Last week he came over from his home in North Dakota to make settlement with her.

She got out a warrant for his arrest after conferring with the county attorney and chairman of the county board, and the amount of the settlement was fixed at $[illegible] and costs which he willingly paid, both signing the necessary bond for the county.

GOES ON TRIP

Prof. H. G. Maxwell Leaves On Few Months Trip this Week.

Mr. H. G. Maxwell has just about completed his arrangements for leaving on a few months sojourn, and expects to depart the latter part of this week for Chicago and from there he may decide to go south. He hopes to be able to make his trip so as to admit of his returning to this city in about three months to reopen his music studio.

Published Next Week

Lack of space forbids the publishing of the remainder of the County Supt.'s School Report as stated on page 1. It will be published next week.

Real Estate Transfers.

Some important transfers in farm lands have been made just recently and the prices commanded shows an astonishingly advance in the prices of farm lands in this vicinity.

H. Brevik, who resides about two miles northeast of the city just recently disposed of his farm to H. N. Hager, of this city, receiving $30 per acre for his land. Another 160 acre farm in Marshall county, seven miles from this city, which was recently sold, brought $40 an acre.

John Jaranson disposed of his farm twenty miles east of this city to local parties for a consideration of $1,650.

Plummer Pioneer Cnanges Hands.

The Plummer Pioneer changed hands last week, and Alex F. Lattimore, of Erie, takes over the paper from E. L. Quist. Mr. Lattimore assumed editorial charge the first of this week. Bro. Lattimore is an able newspaper man and will give Plummer a paper that will be a credit to the town. Good luck to Bro. Lattimore in his venture.

"The Rivals"

In these days of musical comedy it is good occasionally to have the opportunity of seeing one of the classic comedies upon which the stage has risen to its present security. Of course, musical comedy is refreshing and charming in its way, but it lacks the inherent wit and humor which marks such comedies as "The Rivals", "She Stoops to Conquer", "The School for Scandal" and other similar plays.

"The Rivals" which stands preeminent among English comedy masterpieces, is to be presented at the Auditorium, Monday evening, Oct. 9, by Mr. William Yule and a very talented company of Metropolitan players, and students of the drama will have an excellent opportunity of seeing the best in laughing plays properly portrayed in every detail of character and staging.

Mr. Yule, with his peculiar talent for character comedy, will without doubt be most happily cast as the lumbering self-satisfied, yet withal cowardly country lumpkin, "Bob Acres", the role which the late Joseph Jefferson so loved to play and in which he shone more brilliantly than in "Rip Van Winkle."

But Mr. Yule does not propose to monopolize the center of the stage. He has engaged such a fine supporting company that all the famous characters of the piece, such as Lydia Languish, Mrs Malaprop, Captain Absolute, Sir Lucius O'Trigger and Sir Anthony Absolute, will have their due share of attention and applause.

"The Rivals" is a beautiful sample of brilliant dialogue and most amusing situations. Mr. Yule's engagement at the Auditorium is Monday, Oct. 9th and the seat sale is open now at the Peoples Drug Store, Phone 21.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the engagement of Barnum the Hypnotist who appears at the Auditorium Oct. 10-15. Dr. Barnum is claimed to be not only the greatest demonstrator on the American stage but is recognized as an authority on practical psychology and psychoterapy, having had considerable experience in sanitariums with mental and nervous disorders. He is also acquainted with the methods of suggestion as used by Dr. Worcester in the Emmanuel movement. An effort is being made to induce Dr. Barnum to give a few free lectures along scientific lines while in the city, as suggestion and pschology are considered of pronounced practical use to the laity and business man as well as to the clergy and medical profession. Although Dr. Barnum's performances are constructed of an abundance of good clean comedy, he introduces scientific tests each night that are new and interesting. As his performances are changed nightly he is expected to attract large crowds. Prices 10c, 25c, 35c, 50c.

Council Will Make Call For Bids For Oil Engines

At the meeting of the city council held Tuesday evening reports by the investigating committee regarding their visit to various oil power plants in this and adjoining states were submitted to the council for their approval. A committee of three were appointed to make investigation and secure data in regard to the light plants they visited on the trip that used oil power. The committee consisted of Dr. Grundy, who was appointed by the Commercial Club, Goodnow Torrison, who was selected by the council, and Martin Evenson who was appointed by Messrs. Grundy and Torrison. These gentlemen presented some very satisfactory reports as to the conditions of the plants they visited and comes back with the best of recommendations from the citizens of towns who have oil power plants and feel assured themselves that this is just the thing this city wants.

The Tuesday night meeting was adjourned until last night when the necessary changes will be made in the plans and new call for bids prepared.

GOES INSANE

Peoria, Ill., Woman Goes Insane While on Way to Canada.

Mrs. Robt. Burt is being held here by the local authorities on the ground of insanity. Mrs. Burt left Peoria, Ill., on Sept. 28 accompanied by her little son and had bought passage for herself and son to Elm Creek, Manitoba, Canada. She was turned back at Emerson by the Canadian authorities on the ground of being in a demented condition being brought back to this city by the Soo train men and turned over to the authorities here. Her husband, who is foreman in a paper mill at Peoria, was immediately telegraphed about the circumstances of his wife. In response to the telegram received here last Friday he stated that he was unable to leave Peoria before about a week, but asked to have the authorities here bring her back to her home. Just what will be done is not decided as yet but will be determined in a few days.

Mrs. Burt is not violently insane but is believed to be suffering from periodical insanity.

ANOTHER ONE

One More Good Attraction Booked By Auditorium Management.

Another show has been booked that will come up to the high standard of their precedents. This show will be presented next Monday night and is the famous comedy entitled "The Rivals." What makes it more certain of being everything that is spoken for it is the fact that William Yule, who appeared here last season in "The Twelfth Night" as Sir Toby Belch, will have the leading part in this play.

Everyone who saw Mr. Yule will not hesitate in pronouncing him one of the very best comedians that has ever appeared on the local stage.

Mr. Yule In a New Role.

Mr. William Yule, the eminent comedian, will this season be seen in a new role—that of "Bob Acres" in Richard Brinsley Sheridan's famous comedy, "The Rivals".

Mr. Yule has for several seasons past been a familiar figure to theatre goers of the west, having entertained them with many of his able and delightful comedy characterizations; and his appearance in a role entirely different from those he has heretofore portrayed will be awaited with keen pleasure by his many admirers.

In selecting such a noted comedy as "The Rivals" Mr. Yule has displayed judgement and liberality. Judgement, because it is a comedy sure to meet with the approval of his patrons, and liberality because the play is not built to display the ability of any one particular actor or actress, but abounds in what is known in the theatrical profession as "fat" parts—prominent and good roles. Too few stars have the courage or generosity to select a play which permits others in their company to share honors with them. Mr. Yule, however, with characteristic generosity has done this and has secured the best available players for the various difficult roles.

The charming heroine, "Lydia Languish", will be played by Miss Violet Eddy, the gifted and handsome young actress who has already won such success in such trying roles as "Rosaline" in "As You Like It," and "Viola" in Twelfth Night".

"Mrs. Malaprop" will be in the capable hands of Miss Clara LaMar.

"Sir Lucius O'Trigger" will be played by Randall McAlister, who has made an enviable reputation in just such subtle roles.

The dashing "Captain Absolute" will be portrayed by Walter Hutchins, a young actor of fine appearance and pronounced dramatic ability.

"Sir Anthony Absolute" will be played by Henly Edwards, who is eminently successful in parts of this type.

Special costuming and scenery will be features of the artistic presentation of "The Rivals."

The housewife can thank her lucky stars that the sugar trust did not get its jackscrew under prices when she was canning strawberries in June.

While the practice of getting manure from most any place is commendable, it is a good idea to see to it that fertilizer is not spread on the land which contains the seed of noxious, perennial weeds, such as quack grass.

It does not require a great stretch of imagination to foresee the time when moving pictures will be used as a regular adjunct in the teaching of geography, natural history and some other branches in which individual pictures are already a great aid.

A London physician recently drank a glass of Thames river water said to have contained 250,000,000 typhoid fever germs, but did not seem to suffer any ill effects from it. The layman will be pardoned for the inference that immunity from the disease may have been due to an overdose.

A point decidedly in favor of the silo is its capacity for holding large amounts of fodder in a limited area. A silo having a size of 14 by 30 feet will receive into its capacious maw all the way from fifteen to twenty acres of corn, depending, of course, on the size and stand. In this one point of economy in storage space the silo is worthy of consideration.

Some medical authorities still stoutly maintain that bovine tuberculosis is not transferable to human beings, but even more authorities contend that it is and point to numerous instances where the milk from tubercular cows has caused the disease in those drinking it. The individual has the choice of holding whichever view he pleases, but if he is sensible he will err on the safe side.

The several railroads running through the western counties of Kansas have offered to transport seed wheat to the farmers there free of charge in order to help them out of the straits into which they have been forced as a result of the protracted drought. As a further aid bankers and others are loaning on easy terms money with which the seed wheat may be purchased.

In some localities it has been found that Canada thistles multiply only by the root system and not by seed. This seems to be due in part at least to the fact that there are two types of plants, one bearing male or staminate blossoms and the other female or pistillate. Neither type will produce seed by itself, and the pistillate blossoms will do so only when there are staminate blossoms near by to fertilize them.

Were the facts known doubtless many a mysterious barn burning might be traced to spontaneous combustion of mows of clover hay stowed away without proper curing. In such cases the fire is the result of a fermentive chemical reaction similar to that which takes place in a manure pile. A close watch should be kept on all mows of clover hay where there is a possibility that such a condition might exist.

While it is somehow contrary to the idea that most of us are used to—that cows should be in pasture during the growing season—a good many tests that have been made show that they will do just as well or better and will keep healthy if kept housed during the entire year, so far as their supply of feed is concerned. Of course this is not the case where the quarters in which the cows are kept are poorly lighted and improperly ventilated.

The answer of the average agricultural paper to the frequent query, "What is the best dairy breed?" is just about as evasive and elastic as the answer to that other famous poser, "How old is Ann?" However, most of the papers are correct in at least one point, and that is that the individual will do best to pick out the breed he likes best, as after all success depends more upon the man and the care than upon having this or that breed of cows.

The law has much good sense to commend it which has recently been enacted in some states, whereby the tuition of country pupils attending nearby town schools is met by the school district in which they live and not by the individual parent or guardian, as heretofore. This arrangement makes possible a fuller utilization of the advantages of good town schools and relieves the country taxpayer of the double tax which he has heretofore paid in the support of the country school and tuition in the town school for those of his children who attended.

In an egg laying contest held in Australia last year the Black Langshans made the best showing. In contests held thus far this season the White Leghorns seem to be in the lead. However, the rivalry is keen, and the honors may go to any of three breeds.

The fellow who carried a package along the street the other day about the size of two bars of soap had just bought a quarter's worth of sugar. If the trust keeps on boosting the price of the commodity inside of a couple of weeks a quarter's worth of sugar will look like one bar of soap.

The etiquette of the poultry yard ordains that newly hatched individuals of the hen species are chickens until they are six months old. From this time until a year old they are pullets or cockerels, depending upon their sex, while upon reaching a year old they are roosters and hens for all time.

The increase in the amount of corn which is being cut for fodder this fall is reflected in the sale of corn binders in different parts of the corn belt. In one instance which the writer noted recently a distributing firm in a town of 10,000, whose sales of corn binders average 200, has this season sold 1,200 of these machines.

The country revival might well have been, if it was not in fact, devised for the spiritual regeneration of the fellows who have bought shoddy gasoline engines and who try to save a little money by operating rickety and played out machinery of one kind or another. An annual revival would be needed to keep such fellows even in fair shape morally.

What a tribute it is to the wisdom of a discerning Providence that the finest as well as the sweetest blessings that life holds are within reach of all the people, rich and poor and high and low—namely, sunshine and fresh air, pure water, the splendid beauties of the outdoor world and the love, contentment and happiness in the individual and family life.

The drought of the season closing should not only be credited with having forced many a farmer into buying a silo, but it has caused thousands of others to realize in a serious way, for the first time, the necessity of saving the tons upon tons of excellent roughage in the cornfields. If the lesson enforced this season along this one line is remembered the drought will seem in a large degree to have been justified.

The practice of indiscriminate "piecing" between meals is to be frowned upon in the case of both children and adults, but the eating of a light lunch at stated intervals in the middle of the forenoon and afternoon has a good deal in its favor when practiced by those engaged in severe physical toil or by those who are in a depleted physical condition or invalids. It prevents an exhaustion that can only be harmful.

As the rural resident welcomes the mail carrier each morning it is hard for him to realize how great the industry is of which the latter is a part. However, there are 40,000 other men who are making just such trips every day. The aggregate distance that they travel daily is 1,000,000 miles, and in a year it reaches the enormous total of 300,000,000 miles. The service over these 40,000 routes costs the government $37,000,000 a year.

A majority of folks who plant potatoes select good looking seed from the bin in the spring. This method of selection insures type and size, perhaps, but it overlooks one of the most important factors in connection with potato raising—namely, yield. The only way to get around this is to go into the field from which one wishes to secure seed and dig enough hills with a fork to give the desired amount of seed. By this plan it is possible to select potatoes that are of good size and proper type and also those from hills in which the yield has been best.

Co-operation is in essence a sort of generous and unselfish endeavor, and quite naturally it follows that the instances where it most frequently fails is where a spirit of greed and selfishness creeps in on the part of those who are unwilling to pay a fair price for management or who do not think they are realizing from the enterprise as much as they should. Often failure is directly traceable to those who prove false to a given enterprise and withdraw patronage because of a little more tempting bait held out temporarily by the real foes of the co-operative principle, but who for the time being appear in the guise of the special friend of the fellow who is looking for a large return.

A sensible mother we know is being well paid for the care she is taking in the matter of the diet of her boy, not yet two years old. From the start she has aimed to feed him those foods that are nutritious and wholesome, particularly those strong in bone and muscle forming elements. The result is a degree of health in the child that is superb. The little fellow is free from stomach trouble, has pink cheeks, a clear skin and is remarkably strong and muscular. The mother has used in his diet milk, oatmeal, bread and butter, eggs, a limited amount of fruit, has reduced sweets to a minimum and gives the child no pastry. She adheres to this bill of fare at home and elsewhere and does not let neighbors or relatives stuff him with knickknacks or fill him with coffee that would give an adult nervous prostration.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Government authorities have no right to withhold from Indians of the White Earth reservation any lands in the reservation that they may select, under a decision filed by the United States circuit court of appeals in St. Paul. The decision reverses Judge Page Morris, who had upheld the action of the interior department in refusing to allot a tract of valuable pine timber to Jane Leecy.

Miss Margaret Palmer of Hibbing was elected president of the Minnesota Librarians' association, which held its annual meeting at St. Albans Beach, Lake Minnetonka. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Miss Francis Earhart of Duluth; secretary-treasurer, Miss Arabel Martin of Minneapolis; trustees, Miss Miriam Carey, St. Paul, and Mrs. Alice Lamb, Litchfield.

Edward Sampson Thurston of the law college of the University of Illinois, former editor-in-chief of the Harvard Law Review and former member of the legal firm of Strong & Cadwalader of New York, of which Attorney General George W. Wickersham was a member, has been appointed by the board of regents as professor in the law college of the University of Minnesota.

Charging that the Minneapolis and St. Paul Suburban Railway company has omitted reporting more than $770,000 of its gross earnings for taxation, Attorney General Simpson has instituted suit against it for $32,426.82, which represents the 4 per cent alleged to be due the state. The case will come up for hearing in the Ramsey county district court.

The farmers of one county in Minnesota, Freeborn, received $1,339,682 for milk and cream in 1910, according to figures compiled by the state dairy and food department for Commissioner J. G. Winkjer's annual report. The total amount paid the farmers of the state last year for milk and cream was $25,000,000, according to Mr. Winkjer's report.

Letters urging co-operation in the work of the Minnesota Anti-Tuberculosis society are being mailed to all parts of the state by Christopher Easton, its secretary. In the letter attention is drawn to the result of the society's endeavors in the past. Seven counties now employ visiting nurses in consequence of its labors.

Carl L. Rahn of the University of Pittsburg has been retained as instructor in the department of psychology at the state university. Professor Rahn is a graduate of Chicago university and has done graduate work in the Harvard university and the University of Bonn in Germany.

State Treasurer Walter J. Smith has sent out a call to all banks in the state in which deposits of state funds are made to forward the full amount of the deposit not later than Oct. 25. The call for funds is made to meet the heavy disbursements to be made from the treasury in October.

More than 4,000 acres of state land were sold at the sales in Beltrami, Aitkin, Itasca and St. Louis counties last week. Sales will be held in October and again in November in each of the northern counties under the law enacted by the last legislature.

St. Peter, the early home of John A. Johnson, put on mourning Thursday last, the second anniversary of the death of Minnesota's former governor. Flags flew at half mast and scores visited the grave at Green Hill cemetery.

The gross profits of the sugar trust for the coming year, following the advance in the price of sugar from $3.75 per hundred to $7.25 since Jan. 1, will reach $40,000,000, according to sugar brokers of New York city.

The Tradesmen's Trust company of Philadelphia, with a capital of $500,000 and deposits of $1,328,000, has closed its doors.

THE TAILENDERS.

Irrigation systems, like clouds, sometimes go back on the folks who are dependent on them for moisture. From one who has recently visited Grand Junction, Colo., we learn that many ranch owners who are dependent for their water supply on private irrigation enterprises have the past season been left badly in the lurch and compelled to pay $40 per acre for water which they had contracted at $2, this growing out of the fact that there was not enough water to go around. Naturally the matter has got into the courts, and the supreme court of the state has ruled that in a case where there is not enough water to supply all patrons of a system those who first bought and were furnished with water have the prior right and can compel service up to the limit of the amount which their contracts called for. This is mighty tough on those who have paid their good, hard cash for land at inflated prices on the supposition that they were to get water and who in seasons of a short supply might as well be in the midst of the Sahara desert. In view of this situation simple justice would seem to require that those who promoted such irrigation schemes and willfully took on more patrons than the system could supply should be held responsible for getting money under false pretenses. The prospective buyer of western ranch propositions should beware of buying land on the tail end of overloaded private irrigation enterprises. This warning has been given in these notes before, but it is worth repeating.

It is a far cry from the Chinese wheatfield of two or three acres, hand planted and hand hoed, to the 1,000 acre grain ranch in the Dakotas and Montana, where thirty acres a day are plowed with a gas or steam tractor hooked on to eight or ten plows and where all subsequent operations, including disking, seeding, reaping and thrashing, are done by the same power and on a like scale.

In certain districts of England the guinea pig is being put to a very practical use as an exterminator of weeds on private lawns and golf grounds. The area to be cleared is surrounded with low wire fencing and the little fellows turned in. They attack the dandelion, plantain and daisy in the order named, and, while they keep the grass nibbled close, they do not kill it. Here would seem to be a cheap substitute for a lawn mower and elbow grease.

The secret of digging out from an indebtedness incurred in the purchase of a farm, if secret there be, consists in a complete concentration of both energy and funds on the one object in view. This means that the farmer who would quit paying interest at the earliest possible moment should not get balled up with a steam thrashing outfit or attempt to handle an automobile agency. Either one is enough to dissipate the energies of the best man that ever lived.

WHO PAYS THE FIDDLER?

There is little question that $60,000,000 would hardly cover the loss which egg producers the country over sustain yearly through the careless marketing of rotten, stale, cracked or dirty eggs. Doubtless those who market this kind of trash have the idea that they "come one" on the retail dealer when they load him up with eggs of questionable reputation, but the fact of the matter is that, while the first buyer seems to bear the burden on the face of the transaction, the loss is really borne by egg producers as a class who are compelled to take enough less for their really good fresh eggs to cover the loss which the middlemen sustain on rots and spots. And, as in a good many similar instances, the innocent suffer with the guilty unless they are so situated that they can find a special market for their guaranteed eggs, as many do. As showing what the loss in these stale and addled eggs amounts to may be cited a record that was kept of 258,096 cases of eggs that were shipped to New York city from several states last year. It was found that of this enormous amount 35 per cent, or 90,648 cases, were either rotten, cracked, stale or dirty. There should be something in these figures to make hen men think.

A SAFE INVESTMENT.

References have been made in these notes on several occasions to the opportunity those with a land hunger have of getting good land at a very reasonable price in the cut over pine districts of northern Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. It is true that a good deal of this land is thin and poor for agricultural and horticultural purposes, yet there is a very large area in which the soil is good and where the clovers and vetches, small grain and vegetables will grow luxuriantly and where prosperity will come to those who will till the soil intelligently and persistently. A friend who is a good deal of a rustler recently bought 1,500 acres of this land for $15 an acre, and he is now engaged in having the stumps pulled preparatory to putting in crops. The proposition seems to be absolutely safe, as this land when cleared is just as sure to advance in price to $75 and $100 per acre in a few years as the sun shines.

KEEPING APPLES.

Many a reader of these notes will have an abundance of fall apples and would like to keep some of them as long as possible. In brief, there are two ways in which this may be done. One is to barrel carefully and place in cold storage, taking apples out as they are needed. Under such conditions we have seen Wealthy apples taken out April 1 crisp and sweet and in fine condition. Another way is to pick the fruit to be kept carefully, so as not to bruise, and wrap each apple nicely and pack in a box or barrel and place in the coolest part of the cellar. After the cold weather comes on the fruit may be moved to an upstairs bedroom, where the temperature will be lower than in the cellar. In the case of apples to be kept in either cold storage or cellar it has been found that the fruit that is full ripe and has a maximum amount of sugar developed will keep the longest.

A GOOD WORD FOR SWEET CLOVER.

A Kansas farmer who has had six years' experience in growing sweet clover speaks in high praise of it as a splendid renovator of rundown soils. In addition to this, he finds its roots penetrating to a great depth, do much to loosen hardpan subsoils. As a pasture he says it will give best results when kept closely cropped, the stock disliking it when it gets tough and woody. He believes that it does not pay to grow sweet clover on soils where alfalfa will do well, but believes it will improve a rundown soil so that alfalfa would do well on it.

MUCH DAMAGE AT STOCKHOLM

City Visited by a Terrific Rain and Electrical Storm—Norwegian Commission Working Out a Plan for Ecclesiastical Reform—Danish Aviator Will Attempt Flight From Copenhagen to New York.

SWEDEN.

On the morning of Sept. 9, when Stockholmians were just rubbing their eyes and preparing to have their breakfasts, a furious storm struck the city, accompanied by terrific rain and lightning. The bad weather held sway all day and not until late in the evening did the storm abate. In the meantime it had played havoc in many sections of the city. Small frame buildings were upset, signs were blown down and much injury was done to the telegraph and telephone service, which was practically crippled. A number of chimneys were blown down and the fire department was called out several times during the day. All traffic between the suburbs and the city was suspended and repair crews were busy for several days setting things right. It was the fiercest gale that has struck the city for years and many people were terror stricken.

The celebrated Swedish actor, August Lindberg, celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday recently in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. According to Stockholm papers Mr. Lindberg contemplates making a trip to the United States and England this fall, where he will appear in a number of Swedish plays. In London Mr. Lindberg will read the "Stormen" for a select company of actors and literary men. He will appear in Chicago at the Svenska Teatern in a series of Shakespearian and Ibsen plays.

On Sept. 10 the crown prince of Siam, Shakrabongs, arrived at Stockholm from St. Petersburg on the steamer Von Dubeln. The purport of the prince's visit was to invite a representative of the Swedish royal house to attend his brother's, the king of Siam's, coronation, which will take place this year in Bangkok. In the evening King Gustaf tendered a reception in honor of the distinguished guest. One of the Swedish princes will attend the coronation ceremonies.

Riksdag Representative Wavrinsky, the celebrated prohibition leader in Stockholm, refuses to be a candidate again for the riksdag, stating that he must devote the remainder of his years in rebuilding his fortune. Wavrinsky, it will be remembered, made a trip to the United States a couple of years ago, when he appeared as a temperance lecturer in many cities and communities in the United States where the Swedish element predominates.

Comparing the length of life with other countries it is proven by statistics that people live longer in Sweden than elsewhere. The average length of life in Sweden is sixty-four years. In Denmark it is sixty-three and in Norway it is sixty-two. In Belgium it is fifty-seven years and four months, and in Ireland it is fifty-six years and nine months. In The Netherlands it is fifty-two and in Germany it is forty, while in France it is only thirty-six.

The king and queen, accompanied by the Duchess of Sodermanland, visited Karlskrona Sept. 9. At the station they were received by Count Wachtmeister, Admiral Sidner and other notables. The city was decorated in honor of the distinguished visitors and in the evening a public reception was given for the king and queen, the duchess and their friends who accompanied them from Karlskrona to Stockholm.

Apples are much cheaper than potatoes in Stockholm at present. Owing to the usually dry season the price of potatoes is very high. The potato crop throughout the country may be said to have been a failure this year and many potatoes are already being imported from Denmark and Germany. The United States will undoubtedly furnish potatoes for Sweden and Norway before many months have passed.

The English Scout leader, General Baden-Powell, recently paid a visit to Stockholm, where he was the guest of Dr. Sven Hedin, the celebrated Asiatic explorer and traveler. He was very much impressed with the beauties of the city and the hospitality of his friends in Stockholm and expressed a keen desire to make the Swedish capital his home.

Professor Svante Arrhenius has been chosen an honorary member of the Imperial Academy of Science at Vienna. Arrhenius, with the exception of Dr. Sven Hedin, holds more decorations from foreign scientific societies than any other living Swede.

When the recent 100th anniversary of the founding of the Christiania university was celebrated in that city there were a number of decorations and honors distributed among the learned men of the world. Sweden also came in for her share.

NORWAY.

A commission of nine members has been at work for some time in Norway working out a plan for the reorganization of ecclesiastical matters throughout the country. On many of the essential points, such as the right of suffrage, manner of elections, meetings of congregations, church councils and the like, the commission is agreed. But on one important point it differs. The majority maintain that that part of the present church constitution which makes the Evangelical Lutheran religion the state religion should remain. The minority, however, consisting of three members, propose that that part of the old constitution be repealed and in its place be substituted a provision that all religions may be freely and openly exercised within the limitations of law and honor. They maintain that this would not establish a new church, but simply organize the old one on a new basis, in that it would separate its existing connection with the state. Professor Taranger, who seems to be the leading spirit of the minority, has been visiting various parts of the country and strongly advocating his side of the question. He urges a more active Christian life and the fulfillment of Christian duty and responsibility by the individual members of the church.

The steamer Fram has returned to Buenos Ayres after its expedition on the African coast. All is well on board. The material gathered on this expedition will be sent to Christiania at once, where it will be arranged by Nansen and Helland Hansen. Within a week or two the Fram will continue its journey through the ice and bring back Roald Amundsen and his crew. About New Year's the journey will continue northward and in February the expedition will reach New Zealand, arriving at San Francisco about the middle of April. Then comes the question of raising enough money to proceed to the Alaskan coast.

Gunnar Heiberg has written a play entitled "The Comedy of 1905," in which the motif has been taken from the events of 1905. The piece will be rendered at the Christiania National theater in the near future.

Owing to the prolonged drought the potato crop is almost a failure in the Northern section of the country and those who want potatoes on their table this fall and winter will have to pay a steep price for them.

Mario Rordam's "Reminiscences" are selling very fast and a third edition of the book has recently been published. It is one of the most popular books in Norway for many years.

Consul Carlo Thomsen of Hamburg has donated 15,000 crowns to the coast hospital in Hagevik, Bergen.

DENMARK.

The conquest of the Atlantic, the most ambitious exploit yet undertaken by an aviator, is contemplated by a Danish airman, who describes his plans in a letter to be published soon in the Nordlyset, a Danish newspaper in Brooklyn, N. Y. This aviator writes that he has enlisted the necessary financial aid and made arrangements to fly next spring from Copenhagen to New York, resting only at London and Queenstown and upon ships stationed at intervals across the North sea and the Atlantic ocean. At the aviator's request his name is withheld from publication at this time. He says he will use a biplane of American manufacture and expects to fly at the rate of about fifty-six miles an hour. The steamers stationed at intervals across the ocean will be equipped with landing stages and apparatus for generating a wireless current, which will supplement gasoline as motive power for his engines. By the same means he expects to communicate with his auxiliary ships by wireless telegraphy.

The Danish sealing vessel 7 Juli, which went in search of Einar Mikkelsen's Greenland expedition, which left Copenhagen July 20, 1909, has arrived at Aalesund, Norway. No trace of Mikkelsen or his companion, Iversen, had been found. There is little hope of their returning alive. One more ship is expected from Greenland this fall and the explorers may return with that.

The ten best known men in Copenhagen are, according to Politiken, the following: King Fredrik, Dr. Jacobsen, brewer; Fredrik Jensen, director; Martinus Nielsen, actor; Carl Gottschalk, director; Nervo, the airman; Rev. H. M. Fenger; Thomas S. Lorenzen, actor; Johannes Poulsen and Jessie Bestle.

For attempting to boycott the Fredriksberg street car lines the Social Demokraten has had not less than 150 injunctions served against it. The street railway company wants $[illegible] damages. The case will come up next month and some interesting developments are looked for.

According to the last census taken in the Danish West Indies the population of the islands is only 27,[illegible]. About ten years ago the population was [illegible], showing a most decided decrease in population in recent years.

The board of directors of the Finsen Institute in Copenhagen has asked for the resignation of the head physician, Dr. Holger Forchhammer. His resignation will take effect Jan. 1, 1912.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Dillon P. Tierney, assistant state forester, who returned to St. Paul after a month's trip in the northwestern section of the state reports that there is no danger of forest fires in districts where heavy clay soil predominates, but that in districts where the soil is rocky and in northwestern sections, fire will run rapidly. He reports present conditions satisfactory.

Approximately 35,000,000 feet of timber in St. Louis, Lake, Itasca, Koochiching and Beltrami counties will be offered at public sale at the state capitol Oct. 31, according to a decision reached by the state timber board. Of this about 20,000,000 feet is pine and the balance spruce, tamarack, cedar and other hardwood.

Approximately $1,360,000 more money must be raised by taxation for conducting affairs of the state during the present fiscal year than was raised for 1910, according to instructions sent out by State Auditor Iverson. The tax levy in 1910 was 2.70 mills. The tax levy for 1911 will be 3.88 mills.

Northern Minnesota is harvesting a second crop of wild strawberries. The first crop ripened nearly two months ago. Settlers near Duluth report a bountiful yield. The second crop is looked upon as something of a "freak," and no reason is given for it unless it is the exceptionally wet weather.

Elaborate preparations to make the inauguration of Dr. George Edgar Vincent as president of the University of Minnesota, Oct. 17, 18 and 19, an occasion for alumni of the university to gather on the campus in expression of their loyalty to their alma mater are under way.

J. A. O. Preus, state insurance commissioner, has asked Charles E. Keller, state fire marshal, to investigate numerous complaints of rebating and discriminating by fire insurance agents. Mr. Preus says he will prosecute any agent found guilty of the practice.

The General Congregational association of the state, in session at Alexandria, pledged $50,000 toward the $600,000 which Carleton college is attempting to raise for increased endowment.

Mrs. E. W. Loyhed of Faribault has been elected president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

In a battle fought with air guns and four twenty-two caliber rifles, between two bands of boys at Rochester, Arnold Nelson, twelve years old, was perhaps fatally wounded. The parties first fired on each other accidentally and then kept it up, each thinking the other meant bodily injury.

George Gordon, a contractor, forty-five years old, shot and killed himself at his home in Northfield. Gordon had been married only a year and his wife says they had always been happy. He left nothing explaining his act, only a note leaving his watch and money to his brother-in-law.

Albert Montaine of Minneapolis, sixteen years old, was electrocuted and fell from the top of a telegraph pole in view of a crowd of schoolmates. The boy was killed instantly. Witnesses told the police that the boy ascended the pole when dared by his companions.

While trying to catch a ride on a freight train near Woodman, Frank J. Bassett fell beneath the wheels and received injuries from which he died. For twenty-four hours after the accident he was without medical treatment.

While unfastening a chain securing a carload of logs at the Virginia and Rainy Lake Lumber company's mill at Virginia, Tuure H. Ruhela, single, was struck by a falling log on the head and instantly killed.

Robert Schultz, a farmer living between Wayzata and Hamel, near Lake Minnetonka, was severely beaten by two bandits and robbed of $7.

Oscar Moberg, engineer of a traction engine, was fatally injured when his engine went through a bridge near Warren.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Ludwig C. Dyregrove, is dead at his home in Minneapolis. Coroner Seashore says that leprosy was the cause of death and that Dyregrove had been suffering with the disease for twelve years. During all the years that the man suffered with the disease he never consulted a physician so far as is known.

Samuel C. Staples, father of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioner C. F. Staples, died at St. Paul following an operation. He was eighty years old and a pioneer resident of the state.

Henry Elgar Smith, aged seventy-three, for many years a banker in Stillwater and of late an insurance agent, is dead after a lingering illness. He was a prominent Mason.

Judge H. W. Bailey, one of the pioneers of Bemidji, is dead after an illness of over one year. Judge Bailey was commander of the Carr post, G. A. R.

Dr. S. S. Kilvington, former health commissioner of Minneapolis, is dead at his home in Minnetonka Mills.

H. Knox Taylor, eighty-one years old, a St. Paul pioneer, is dead following a stroke of apoplexy.

FEUD ENDS FATALLY TO TWO

Kellihar (Minn.) Woodsmen in Desperate Battle.

One man dead, another mortally wounded and a third shot through the arm is the result of a fight at Kellihar, north of Bemidji. All participants were woodsmen.

For sixteen hours Jack Oski, the dead man, and his half-brother, Joseph Ketzer, lay helpless in the chill autumn air, the latter suffering intensely from a bullet wound which pierced his stomach.

Stanley Kobak, who was shot through the bicep of his left arm, walked into Kellihar after the battle, said nothing about having been shot, and went to bed without seeking medical attention. He later was arrested.

Ketzer, who was shot through the stomach, crawled through the woods toward Kellihar to a pile of ties, where his feeble cries for help were heard by Engineer Hoffman of a switching crew working in the yards. Ketzer, who is not expected to survive, said his brother was dead in the woods, also having been shot through the stomach, and that the fight was the result of ill feeling of long standing. He expressed regret and refused to blame Stanley Kobak.

BENNER STAR IN DUMAS TRIAL

Says the Doctor Hired Him to Get Rid of Behan.

The trial of Dr. Delbert F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, who is charged with arson in the third degree, is progressing rapidly at Bemidji. The state has completed the examination of the twenty-third witness. Assistant Attorney General Alexander Janes says the state will have eight more witnesses.

Martin Behan, the alleged pal of Mike Davis in the Puposky affair, will be the state's last witness, according to Mr. Janes' statement.

Witnesses were put on by the state in an effort to prove that Dr. Dumas planned to get rid of Martin Behan, who was captured at Puposky and released on bonds, as a witness at the present trial.

John Benner was brought out as the man who had been delegated to spirit Behan away. Benner said he had a conference with Dr. Dumas on the lake shore at Bemidji and that he also met him in Cass Lake.

He said Dr. Dumas wanted him to go to Oshkosh, and alleged Dumas said to him: "I want you to go to Oshkosh and if you see Behan get him out of the country."

MOONSHINE OPIUM IN ST. PAUL

Federal Officers Say Drug Is Made in Minnesota City.

That the manufacture of smoking opium has been going on in St. Paul and all other large cities of the country since the winter of 1909, practically without restraint of any kind except in a few isolated local cases and without federal regulation, is the statement made by a St. Paul internal revenue officer.

Since the confessions of R. C. Cochbourne and W. C. Harris recently in which they admitted the illegal handling of opium, Special Officer Foulkes of the customs service has been working on the situation in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. He found that the manufacture of the drug was going on on a wholesale basis without any restraint, and became more firmly convinced that only a small percentage of the amount smoked was smuggled.

Two Chinamen, Chon Hon of Minneapolis and Samuel Lowe of St. Paul, have been placed under arrest charged with having the drug in their possession and more raids are expected in the near future.

CHARLES G. GATES MARRIES

Weds Miss Hopwood of Minneapolis at Uniontown, Pa.

Miss Florence E. Hopwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parshing Hopwood of Minneapolis, and Charles G. Gates, son of the late financier, John W. Gates, were married at the residence of Robert F. Hopwood, uncle of the bride, at Uniontown, Pa. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. W. Lagrore, pastor of the Methodist church at Port Arthur, Tex. Miss Catherine Clemens of Charles City, Ia., a classmate of the bride, was maid of honor, while Wayne Dogue of Detroit, Mich., was best man. The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony in his private car for a [illegible] which will take in

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

President Taft, in a speech at Waterloo, Ia., defining "the relation of the government to business," announced that the trust prosecutions begun by the department of justice at Washington would continue despite the recent criticism that business was being made to suffer. He served notice that the "big business interests" of the country must be brought within the law just as the railroads have been, and declined to admit there exists any discretion which would enable the attorney general to stay the hand of the government in dealing with combinations in restraint of trade.

A statement, authorized by the unanimous vote of the directors of the United States Steel corporation, has been given out at New York denying emphatically that any negotiations whatever have taken place between the steel corporation and the department of justice looking to the dissolution or disintegration of the corporation.

Reiterating the determination of the house investigating committee, of which he is the head, to proceed with its inquiry regarding the United States Steel corporation, Representative Stanley of Kentucky said that it is the intention of the committee to extend its inquiry regarding violations of the interstate commerce law.

An order restraining the Missouri state board of railway commissioners from putting into effect on Oct. 1 the new and reduced schedules of rates on iron and steel was granted to the Missouri railways by Judge Hook in the federal court at Kansas City.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley fell dead on the street at New York city. He had been a sufferer from heart disease for several years. Admiral Schley was born near Frederick, Md., Oct. 9, 1839. He was appointed a midshipman in the navy in 1856, graduated from the naval academy in 1860 and took part in several engagements in the Civil war. He became famous as the commander of the flying squadron which destroyed Admiral Cervera's fleet, off Santiago, Cuba, July 3, 1898, after a running battle following the Spanish admiral's attempt to escape from that port.

News was received at the offices of the White Star line at New York of the death at sea of former United States Senator Charles F. Manderson of Omaha, Neb., on board the steamer Cedric. General Manderson went abroad early in the summer for his health.

William H. Lewis, bodyguard to President Lincoln during the Civil war, and for forty-five years mail clerk at the White House, where he was well known to twelve presidents, is dead at Washington of apoplexy.

Judge Henry P. Hedges, Yale 1838, who for several years held the distinction of being Yale's oldest graduate, is dead at Bridgehampton, N. Y., after a brief illness.

LABOR NEWS.

Locomotive engineers of the thirty-seven Southeastern roads met in secret session at Atlanta, Ga., with Grand Chief Warren S. Stone of Cleveland in an effort to gain higher wages. They expect to put an ultimatum up to the officials. It may mean a great strike.

KILLED BY ELECTRIC WIRE

Stillwater Man Grabs Pole Support With Fatal Result.

Malcolm D. McKinnon of Stillwater, seventeen years of age, received injuries from a guy wire leading from an electric light pole which resulted in his death an hour later.

McKinnon, who is an employe of the Connoly shoe factory, was on his way home, when he caught hold of the pole support. The wires had been crossed. The young man was thrown twenty feet by the shock. When picked up he was unconscious. He died after being taken to the hospital.

Trains in Collision.

A head-on collision occurred west of Farmington between an Iowa and Minnesota division engine and caboose westbound, and a Rock Island freight train. The two engines and about a dozen cars of merchandise were ditched. It is reported that a brakeman on the Iowa and Minnesota train was severely injured.

Which Roofing Shall I Use?

Answer that question for good and all. When you buy prepared roofing you expect years of wear and satisfaction. Here is the way to insure getting it. A simple way—an easy way and a quick way to find out just exactly how any prepared roofing will stand up under ten years of the hardest kind of wear on a building.

First, get our book from the dealer. It's called "Ten Years Wear in Ten Minute Tests." Then—get samples of any prepared roofings you are considering and subject them all to the six tests contained in the book. These tests correspond to ten years of extreme weather and emergency conditions. Choose the roofing that stands them best. It will last longest on your building.

If you really want to know which roofing is best, don't fail to include in your tests. We furnish the way of knowing. We furnish the samples. You do the rest. Decide for yourself which roofing you want to use. Base your decision on the way the roofing is going to wear. Don't let any one's talk influence you. Just choose the roof that makes good best.

You won't be sure of money's worth in roofing until you try these tests.—Ask or write the dealer whose name appears below. He'll furnish the book and samples.

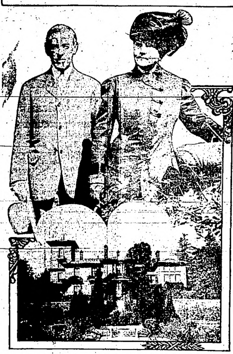
Governor Wilson and His Wife Have Fine Home In Princeton



Photos copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

GOVERNOR WOODROW WILSON of New Jersey continues to live in the handsome home that he occupied while he was president of Princeton university, going to Trenton only when he is needed there, at which times he can be found in the executive offices in the state capital. During the summer he occupied the summer home owned by New Jersey at Sea Girt, where he and Mrs. Wilson entertained lavishly. The Wilson home at Princeton is shown in the above picture, which also includes a recent photograph of the governor and Mrs. Wilson.

New York Police Believe They Have Chief of the Black Hand

Photos by American Press Association.

NEW YORK police are congratulating themselves and the public on the fact that they have Giuseppe Costabile in custody, held without bail for trial on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon. The weapon in this case was a bomb filled with enough explosive to shatter a building. Costabile's attorney made a strong fight for his client at the preliminary hearing, arguing that the bomb was not a "weapon" within the meaning of the law. Costabile declares that he is the victim of a conspiracy and that the police placed the bomb under his coat after his arrest. The real cause for the jubilation over Costabile's arrest, however, is found in the fact that the police say he is the head of the Black Hand organization that has been a terror to Italian residents of New York for years. Thousands of dollars have been extorted from them by threats and several score buildings have been blown up when the demands for money were refused. So great is the terror inspired by the Black Hand that victims refuse to testify against its members and agents and stories told to the police are "forgotten" when the witness stand is reached. Costabile, who is a mild looking chap, and the bomb he carried when he was arrested are shown in the picture.

A Missing Leaf.

That ordinary care which is taken by the Japanese in their very exact "flower arrangements" is illustrated by an incident related by Frederic S. Isham, the author. He was present at a demonstration in Kyoto of the art of placing flowers, leaves and branches together in an artistic manner. At one point a little maid apparently offended the "master" deeply He spoke to her and ended by ordering her to retire. She did so, probably the most broken hearted girl in Kyoto, and the master proceeded to alter her work. The American, who had seen nothing wrong, ventured to ask what was the matter, whereupon he was informed that she had placed twelve leaves in a certain combination instead of thirteen. Twelve, it seems, was the right number 200 years ago, but thought, study, meditation and prayer had led to the discovery that not twelve, but thirteen, was the correct number for the artistic effect of that particular arrangement. This may seem a trifling alteration, but it suggests Michelangelo's retort, in which he pointed out the relation between trifles and perfection.

Test For Stutterers.

A new method of voice control was tried by the lifelong stutterer. In a few lessons the impediment in speech was overcome.

"That's fine," said a candid friend. "Now I wish you would take a bit of advice. You talk all right today, but just keep a watch on yourself and see how you talk this time next week."

"You're a wet blanket, all right," growled the ex-stutterer. "What's the matter with next week?"

"We'll be in the full moon, then," said his friend. "It's a fact that everybody who has ever stuttered stutters worse when the moon is full than at any other time. Until you get so you can talk smoothly then you can't count yourself really cured."

The man with halting speech took notice, as advised, and found that several full moons waned before he could control his speech at that time. —New York Times.

Verifying His Statement.

Old Mr. and Mrs. Smiley were giving their annual party, and Mr. Smiley was making his usual speech.

"For forty years have my good wife and I traveled hand in hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all those years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, mother?"

"Mother" had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly and said sharply:

"Get up yourself and light the fire, Sam. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you— 'Oh, oh, I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep, Lily," hissed Samuel into her ear.—London Tit-Bits.

Some Welsh Words.

Welsh is a marvelously expressive language. In a souvenir guide to Carnarvon there is a list of Welsh railway stations with their English equivalents. Here are some of them: Abergwynfi, entrance to the place of bliss; Amlwch, a place of frequent expansion; Cefn Brynich, the back of the screaking hill; Dowlais, the voice of God, and Llanbister, the manure yard road." There is also one station the name of which runs to fifty-eight letters. Its meaning is merely, "The fair church at the pool of the white seagull near the alder grove where the fodder for the oxen is stored in the red barn." And surely teetotalism ought to flourish in a country where beer is known as "cwrw."—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Glimpse of Dr. Johnson.

From Boswell's "Life of Johnson:" "In one of Dr. Johnson's manuscript diaries there is the following entry, which marks his curious minute attention: 'July 26, 1768—I shaved my nail by accident in whetting the knife about an eighth of an inch from the bottom and about a fourth from the top. This I measure that I may know the growth of nails.' And 'Aug. 15, 1783, I cut from the vine forty-one leaves which weighed five ounces and a half and eight scruples. I lay them upon my bookcase, to see what weight they will lose by drying.'"

VOL XXVIII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1911 NUMBER 4

FLAX FIBER FACTORY

Philadelphia Linen Co., Presents Plan for Co-operative Building Here.

Proposition Is Being Investigated By the Local Commercial Club.

The Commercial Club has under consideration a proposition for the establishment of a flax fiber enterprise in this city. Several meetings have been held to consider the proposition of A. H. Beard, representing the Forth American Linen Fiber company of Philadelphia. The promoter suggests that $25,000 be invested by local capitalists and says thrice this amount will be invested by the eastern company. This will install ten fiber machines and will utilize about twenty-five tons of the flax straw a day.

The purpose of the local men is to bring the machines and the shops to the vicinity of the flax fields. Many samples of thread, twine, cloth, and various kinds of marketable goods made from ordinary flax straw are on exhibition at the club rooms.

It is expected this enterprise will work out to a satisfactory solution and that this city will become the site of a large linen manufacturing factory. Tributary to Thief River Falls, are probably the greatest areas of flax fields in the northwest and if the farmers know they could find ready sale for their flax straw at prices running from $2 to $10 a ton, according to the length of the straw, there would be still greater quantities sown.

The railway service also is of such a nature at this point that all the flax territory in the northwest can be easily and quickly reached. At present farmers apply a match to their flax straw piles and thousands of tons of fine fiber go up in smoke.

BUILD RESERVOIR

Branch of Geological Survey has Plan to Dam up Water for Dry Seasons.

Advisability of using Red Lake as a reservoir will be urged in the report which will be made soon by the St. Paul office of the United States geological survey as a result of investigations which soon will be completed.

By constructing a dam it is thought the water will be held in the lake during wet seasons so that it can be let out gradually in dry seasons. This will save Thief River Falls and other cities along the Red Lake river, which depend on water power derived from the river to furnish light and electric power, from finding themselves without light as they have many times in the last year.

It also will prevent overflowing of the Red River to a great extent. The Red Lake River flows into the Red river and as it drains more than 1,500 square miles in the spring, the water which is emptied into the Red river during wet periods causes it to overflow.—Warren Sheaf.

Horses vs. Automobiles.

From returns shown by the state tax commission there are more horses in Minnesota this year than last year despite the encroachment of automobiles. The report shows over 542,000 horses listed for taxation or an increase of about 12,000 over last year. In addition it is expected that fully 10,000 will be added when the complete and final report is made. It is estimated that about 14,000 motor vehicles are in the state, valued at approximately $14,000,000. Compare this valuation to $19,000,000 as the estimated value for horses.—Northwest Farmstead.

COLUMBIA CO.

Residents Petition for New County In Eastern Polk.

The petition of residents of eastern Polk county will be voted on at the general election next year.

The petition was circulated for the purpose of creating a new county out of the eastern part of Polk county, to be named Columbia, and designating McIntosh as the county seat, was filed with the secretary of state a year ago.

The official proclamation of the Governor has just been issued. The proclamation describes the borders of the proposed county, designates the first board of county commissioners and gives official notice to the voters of the county that this proposition will be voted upon at the next general election.

OPENED MONDAY

Crookston School of Agriculture Opens Under favorable Conditions.

With an attendance of seventy five and an advance registration of 150, ten more than last year, the state agricultural school at Crookston opened on Monday Oct. 4, under the most favorable of circumstances.

Students came from 13 counties in Northwestern Minnesota including Polk Marshall, Norman, Red Lake, Pennington, Kittson, Roseau, Clearwater, Beltrami, Clay, Becker, Mahnomen and adjoining counties.

The school opens its doors with improved facilities in the way of buildings equipment, stock, and a highly efficient body of trained experts.

SHOULD MAKE A MOVE

Action Must be Taken at Once if Comprehensive Exhibit at St. Paul.

Red River Valley Counties Should Call Meeting at Once and Cooperate.

The Northwestern Land Products Show to be held at St. Paul Dec. 12 to 23 is an event that will soon be history and a very important question for the people of the Minn. Red River Valley counties at the present time is "Can we afford to be off the map?"

As a result of the work of the Northwestern Development League, a seven state proposition, many sectional development leagues are being organized which are doing effective work in connection with the parent organization.

North Dakota has been the scene of the most effective activity in the last two weeks. The business men and representatives of commercial clubs located on the Dakota side of the Red River Valley, met at Grand Forks and completed an organization for that valley.

Just a few days later north central North Dakota counties called a meeting at Devils Lake and organized the Lake Region Development Ass'n. Thus ten counties are bound together in this organization and one of the first things which the League will do is to make an exhibit at the Northwestern Land Products Show to be held in St. Paul Dec. 12th to 23rd.

This league has raised $7,000 for their work and invested $1,000 in space in the heart of the big land show. The Red River Valley organization for the Dakota side is also contemplating an exhibit.

Some two weeks ago a meeting was advocated of representatives from Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kittson and any adjoining counties which would co-operate, for the purpose of assembling an exhibit which should do this section justice. A grand opportunity is presented for most effective advertising of this section. The railroads will run excursions to St. Paul from all directions and thousands of prospective farm buyers will witness the exhibit, and the Red River Valley would make a sorry and costly mistake not to have an exhibit which will do the Minnesota side of the valley justice.

The cost of a decent exhibit is more than one firm can stand, but if all the counties interested would co-operate, the cost would be so little to each that it would not be at all burdensome.

The county commissioners at Fargo a few days ago met and appropriated $1,000 for the exhibit from that county alone. The people of the various counties should get busy at once. A meeting should be called while there is yet time, and it will take every minute of the two months remaining to assemble a good exhibit and have it properly placed.

Let no further time be wasted, but action taken at once in this important matter.—Crookston Times.

Builds Crossings.

The city council has ordered a high and dry crossing at the northeast corner of the high school campus. This will earn the city authorities the sincere thanks of 500 students and 17 teachers who wade through seas of mud at this corner every time it rains. It has been suggested that two walks be built two blocks apart, connecting Markely Ave. and St. Paul Ave. Half the enrollment at the Knox building has for years waded through the mud of the cross streets connecting these avenues, and scores of children sit all day in school with wet feet when the weather is inclement. At best these streets are very low and rarely become dry.

SOCIALIST LECTURER

Victor L. Berger First Number on Lyceum Entertainment Course.

Will Be At the Auditorium Next Monday Evening, Oct. 16.

Hon. Victor L. Berger, of Milwaukee, the first Socialist member of congress, has been secured as the first number on the Lyceum entertainment course and will be heard at the Auditorium on Monday evening, Oct. 16. The subject of Mr. Berger's lecture will be "The Socialist View of the Trust Question."

Mr. Berger is a powerful speaker of national reputation and it is believed that his lecture here will attract a great number of people from out of town as well as a big percentage of the local population. This is Mr. Berger's only lecture in this state on the present tour, and he will arrive in this city from Devils Lake, N. D., where he fills an engagement on the lecture platform.

The committee, under whose auspices this and the following Lyceum numbers are presented, are working hard to secure the recognition deserving of this, their feature number, and are advertising this event broadcast with the hopes of making it a record breaker in point of attendance.

The four other numbers that go to make up the Lyceum course are the following and will appear in this city on the following dates:

The Tyrolean Alpine Singers and Yodlers, Oct. 23.

The Cambrian National Glee Singers, Dec. 5.

Ralph Parlette, orator, press humorist and platform philosophers, Feb. 9.

Castle Square Entertainers, April 4.

ARE U FROM INDIANA?

Secretary Of the Commercial Club Wants to Locate All Former Hoosiers

Now Residents of Pennington and Marshall Counties.

The Secretary of the Thief River Falls Commercial Club, working in conjunction with the Colonization Department of the Great Northern Ry. Co. wants to get the names of all former Indiana people who are now residents of Pennington and Marshall Counties.

The Great Northern will pay all expenses for a mammouth advertising campaign in the Hoosier State, and requests the aid of the local club only in so far as concerns the gathering of advertising material. The plan is to get in touch with the people from that State who have succeeded here, and get their stories for publication in the over-populated districts of Indiana.

If you are a Hoosier, you will do the Commercial Club, as well as the country at large, a favor by sending your name and address to the Secretary of the Thief River Falls Commercial Club at your first convenience. He will then send you a blank with questions to answer which will be used in compiling advertising for this section.

BADLY BRUISED

Horse Belonging to Jenson & Sons, Hurt In a Runaway.

A team of horses belonging to Jenson & Sons, of this city, indulged in a lively runaway Saturday, and as a result one of the horses sustained some bad bruises and cuts. The team was taken out for the day by three local hunters and in some manner the horses became frightened and ran away, making their way back to the city. Enroute, one of the horses received some bad cuts in a barb wire fence and other bruises about his body.

Rural School Notes.

To the boys and girls partaking in the corn contest: You are waiting to hear something about the holding of the Co. contest. The reports received are very meager and show conclusively that the conditions have been against us as to raising corn this year. But even though a contest cannot be held, the interest shown and the work done by you will have their merits. You are amateur farmers now and a farmer must know his trade; must so in hope not knowing what the harvest will be must learn to labor and to write. This lesson learned we will re-double our efforts for next year. Altho, there are excellent samples of garden vegetables raised, and although some of our teachers have started fine classes in handi work. we feel that a contest without the display of corn would not be the thing anticipated. The Supt. appreciates the interest and work manifested by scholars and their teachers.

We have the consolation that our work in this respect is in the right line The work will grow, we trust to such an extent that we ultimately will have a well defined course in Elementary Agriculture, manual training and domestic science in our schools. We will do better next year.

Your Supt. expects to devote the greater part of his time visting schools during the fall months.

Next week is the time set for the inauguration of Geo. Edgar Vincent as president of the State University. I have an invitation to attend and will be absent from office during the week returning Friday evening.

This office has not received its supply of report blanks, attendance certificates etc. These supplies will be sent out as received.

All school clerks have been supplied with blanks for taking school census, blanks for excuse of scholars not attending school, blanks for teachers to report Non Attendance of school children. Quite a number of clerks have not complied with the requirement as to taking school census. This office will appreciate greatly if this law is complied with in this respect. Parents and school boards will do both their teacher and this office a great help, if they will inform themselves as to the Compulsory Education law as to attendance at school of their children. The school is yours, the opportunity for education given is for you to embrace and your children should reap the benefits thereof in the largest degree possible.

Respectively Submitted,

BUILD STATE HIGHWAY

C. H. Martz Preparing Plans for Construction of State Highway.

Road Will Run Directly East to the County Boundary.

County Surveyor O. H. Martz, of St. Hilaire, has about completed a plan and specifications for the construction of a state rural highway, running directly east from this city to the eastern boundary of this county.

These plans will be forwarded in a short time to the state highway commission and it is expected that they will be approved. Mr. Martz was named by the highway commission to do this work.

The road will be constructed under what is known as the Elwell bill, passed at the last session of the legislature, which provides that the state shall pay one half the cost of construction, the county one-fourth and the property benefitted one-fourth. It is also understood that a sum will be provided for its maintainance after it has been constructed.

The work of building the road it is hoped will begin as soon as conditions will permit the operations in the early spring.

While the highway of course will be of general benefit the excellent drainage provided also will be of considerable value.

The number of school visits since assumption of active school work of the office, Jan. 1st, 1911 is forty.

This concludes the first report for the Pennington county schools. The hope is entertained that our schools will advance materially both in number, financial betterment and efficiency of educational attainments in the coming years. We need the co-operation of school officers, the enthusiasm and energetic work of the teacher and the good will and united action of our school patrons to effect this progress. May the good work progress to the best interest of all but especially to our dear school public.

Respectfully,
E. A. MOSTUE,

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The establishment by the state of several stone crushing plants in different sections of Minnesota to furnish material with which to build roads, and the operation of them by convict labor from the Stillwater prison, was advocated by several speakers at the good roads conference held at Cambridge under the auspices of the good roads committee of the Northern Minnesota Development league.

Dr. Haldor Sneve of St. Paul was elected president of the Minnesota State Medical association at its meeting in St. Paul. Other officers follow: First vice president, Dr. O. T. Sherping, Fergus Falls; second vice president, Dr. W. F. Wilson, Lake City; secretary, Dr. Thomas McDavitt, St. Paul; treasurer, Dr. R. J. Hill, Minneapolis.

Approximately $1,500,000 must be borrowed by the state this winter to meet its expenses, as against $1,000,000 borrowed last year, and the temporary loans of this nature will cover nearly four months and a half this winter instead of the usual three, according to the state treasurer's office.

The railway and warehouse committee has fixed the fees of the testing of scales as follows: Up to 15 pounds, 35 cents; 10 to 400 pounds, 50 cents; 400 to 4,000 pounds, $1; 4,000 to 20,000 pounds, $3; 20,000 pounds and over, not including railroad track scales, $5.

Congressmen C. A. Lindbergh, A. J. Volstead and Sidney A. Anderson have sent regrets in response to invitations from the Young Men's Republican club of Minneapolis, enclosing reserve seats on the stage of the Auditorium for the Taft meeting, Oct. 24.

Sheriff B. J. Moritz of Stearns county has promised Governor Eberhart to give closer attention to his official duties and to abstain from the use of liquor and the charges against him by the county commissioners of Stearns county will not be pressed.

The highest score of the butter entries in the fifth contest of the state dairy and food commission was obtained by T. P. Hofdahl of St. Peter, with 98. There were twelve prize winners, all of the scores being between 94 and 98.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Edward Labo, nineteen years old, was bound over to the grand jury in municipal court at Minneapolis on the charge of perjury in obtaining a marriage license. The license was issued July 2 for Labo and Miss Vernona Riggs, fifteen years old. In his affidavit Labo, it is charged, swore that he was twenty-one and the girl eighteen years old.

Joseph Schilde of Hopkins, a laborer employed by the Minneapolis Street Railway company, was run down by a Milwaukee passenger train at Hopkins. He sustained injuries from which he died while being taken to Minneapolis on a baggage car.

Fred Leuer, a farmer, twenty-eight years old, was killed in a runaway accident on the road three miles from Loretto, Hennepin county. The body was found under his overturned farm wagon, from which the horses had torn themselves free.

Martin Johnson of Lakefield shot Ole Sandager, a well known resident of that place, five times with a revolver and instantly killed him. In attempting to arrest Johnson, Marshal Miller was obliged to wound him.

A spectacular fire destroyed the old Espy block at St. Paul, entailing a loss of between $5,000 and $8,000 to the structure and between $30,000 and $35,000 to the stock of four firms that occupied it.

Fred Boettner, who drank acid thinking it was medicine, died at Albert Lea hospital. He was fifty years old.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Harry Patterson, an old and prominent resident of Deerwood, is dead. He was for twelve years a county commissioner of Crow Wing county and at the time of his death was village assessor and the president of the Deerwood Commercial club.

W. D. Snyder, one of Owatonna's prominent men, is dead from injuries received in a railroad wreck near Aberdeen, S. D. Mr. Snyder was at one time proprietor of the Merchants hotel at Owatonna.

George Stewart, who has been a prominent resident of Otter Tail county for the last thirty years, is dead. Mr. Stewart was born in Scotland and studied marine engineering in his younger days.

Patrick Sullivan, sixty-seven years old, member of the G. A. R., and former member of Company C, Forty-fourth Wisconsin volunteers, died of heart disease at the Minnesota Soldiers' Home.

Albert J. Hill, sixty-one years of age, for many years prominently identified with the lumber industry and with Minneapolis banking, is dead in the Mill City.

C. E. Claywell, sixty years old, a well to do stockman and horse trader of Austin, Minn., dropped dead of heart failure in the Hub cafe at South St. Paul.

HURLED OVER BRIDGE RAIL

Minneapolis Auto Driver Thrown One Hundred Feet to His Death.

Hurled over the Washington avenue bridge at Minneapolis to the flats nearly 100 feet below, when the steering wheel of the automobile refused to answer to its turn, Mart McDonald, twenty-one years old, a driver for the Twin City Taxicab company, was killed.

He was picked up a few moments later, and died as the ambulance reached the door of the city hospital. His body was horribly crushed.

No one saw the accident, although several were there a few moments later. McDonald was driving west across the bridge, and is believed to have been on the left side. The tracks indicate that he tried to turn to the right side, and turned too quickly, striking the railing of the bridge. The railing was bent a foot and a half outward, and the concussion threw young McDonald over the dashboard and hood of the machine to the river bed. Physicians at the city hospital do not understand why he was not instantly killed.

BOY SHOT BY COMPANION

Was Looking at Gun He Supposed Was Not Loaded.

Clarence Anderson, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Anderson of Minneapolis, was shot and instantly killed because Clarence Rhinow, a playmate, did not know the gun he was playing with was loaded.

The lads were playing in the front yard of the home of Henry Dryer with Willie Johnson, a grandson of the Dryers.

Young Rhinow had obtained a revolver from a roomer at his parents' home. He thought he unloaded the gun when he showed it to his playmates, but a cartridge remained in the cylinder. The boys cannot account for the discharge of the revolver. The bullet penetrated the heart of the Anderson lad.

BISHOP HEFFRON VERY ILL

Operated on for Appendicitis at the Rochester Hospital.

Rushed to Rochester on the first train from Winona, after a serious and sudden attack of appendicitis, Bishop Patrick Heffron of the Winona diocese of the Catholic church was operated on by Doctors Mayo and is in fairly good condition.

Bishop Heffron was stricken at his home in Winona at 3 o'clock in the morning and was rushed to Rochester on the first train. Five surgeons consulted at St. Mary's hospital before the operation was performed.

Later it was said at the hospital that the bishop was resting easily and had a good chance to recover.

SHOOTS SELF TWICE IN HEAD

Attempts to Blow Out Brains Because Daughter Don't Obey.

Charles Tunberg of St. Paul, fifty-eight years old, shot himself twice in the right temple with a 22-caliber revolver in an attempt to commit suicide because, it is said, his daughter had failed to obey him when he had told her to remain at home.

When the child left the home the father went to his room, and there taking the pistol from his dressing table attempted to blow out his brains. He was removed to the city hospital where it was said he was in a serious condition, and that the outcome is doubtful.

Tunberg is a carpenter.

BOTTOM LANDS ARE FLOODED

Mississippi and All Tributary Streams at High Stage.

The Mississippi river at Winona is still rising rapidly and the sloughs across the river have been swollen until the water is inundating the bottom lands.

The Trempealeau river, across the Mississippi river from Winona, is reported to be rising rapidly and the water is backing up into the low country.

The Burlington roadbed is serving as a dam. All the country to the north of it is flooded. It is not believed the tracks will be washed out, as they are substantial.

Evidence Held Insufficient.

Governod Eberhart has quashed the charges brought against the Hennepin county commissioners by Alfred Stringer. He holds that the allegations and complaints are not supported by evidence sufficient "to constitute either such malfeasance or nonfeasance in office as would warrant my removal of said county commissioners, or either of them." He then directs that the charges be dismissed.

QUITS GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

Dr. C. Willard Hayes to Enter Business in Mexico.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Dr. C. Willard Hayes, chief geologist of the geological survey, and one of the most prominent scientists in the country, has resigned from the government service to enter business in Mexico.

Dr. Hayes, who had been in the survey since 1887, had much to do with the perfection of the system adopted for classifying the public lands according to their mineral worth, and has made a number of important compilations on scientific matters.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

DR. DUMAS IS FOUND GUILTY

Jury Brings in Verdict of Conviction in Arson Case Against the Mayor of Cass Lake.

After being out an hour and a half the jury in the Dumas arson case at Bemidji brought in a verdict of guilty.

After a strenuous trial and more strenuous argument, nothing but a successful appeal to the supreme court will save Dr. Delbert F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, from serving a term in the state penitentiary at Stillwater, on the charge of having attempted with Mike Davis and Martin Behan to burn the Puposky postoffice building early on the morning of June 17.

When the jury announced that it had reached a verdict but few persons were in the court room, none having expected that an agreement would be reached so early.

After the verdict had been read Attorney Lane stated that counsel for Dumas would announce later what steps they intended to take.

Dr. Dumas was allowed his liberty on his original bond.

MARTIN BEHAN ON STAND

Bandit Who Turned State's Evidence Witness in Dumas Case.

The state placed its last witness on the stand in the case of attempted arson against Dr D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, on trial at Bemidji.

After some preliminary testimony had been given by minor witnesses, Martin Behan, the bandit who turned state's evidence, took the stand and gave a detailed account of the attempted robbery in which he took part with Mike Davis, the noted yegg, at Puposky, June 17.

Behan, who is dying from consumption, had to be assisted to the witness chair and a physician attended him. The examination of the witness was slow, owing to his condition.

Behan told of having taken part at the meeting of Mike Davis, Dumas and Burt Smyth in John Larson's saloon in Bemidji, where the plan to rob the Puposky store was outlined by Dr. Dumas.

Behan said he had never attempted a robbery before the Puposky affair and consented to aid Davis at the request of Dr. Dumas, who told him that there would be no danger.

MAIL CARRIER ADMITS DEED

Confesses Murder of Which He had Accused Others.

Coming as a climax to a mass of conflicting charges, a number of arrests on circumstantial evidence and releases, Tom Fisher, the Indian United States mail carrier, has cleared up the murder of William A. Brown, government forest ranger on the Nett Lake reservation, Aug. 8, by a complete confession of the killing.

Pleading self-defense, Fisher has given the authorities the true version of the affair, admitting that he killed the ranger with a blow from his rifle, and admitting that with a knife he slashed the body of the dead man.

Fisher previously had declared seven Austrians had killed Brown for stealing their jug of liquor.

FOUR KILLED IN RAIL WRECK

Brakeman and Three Construction Men Lose Lives in Collision.

Peter J. Dunn, a brakeman of Superior, Wis., and three construction gang men were killed and thirty-six others injured at Tudor, this state, when a Great Northern ore train collided with a handcar.

Nine "outfit" cars, in which the construction gang slept, were being shifted to the siding by the ore train when the handcar, with a half dozen men upon it and running north at twelve miles an hour, shot into the cars.

The engine was knocked into a ditch and the nine cars burned. The crew of the handcar escaped serious injury.

IRON MINE OWNERS APPEAR

Conference at Capitol on Proposed Increase of Assessments.

Prominent iron mining men from Northern Minnesota met with the tax commission to confer over the proposed increase of about $10,000,000 in the mineral valuations. The commissioners have not prepared a formal tabulation of the mine valuations, but propose to raise the figures of the taxing officials of St. Louis, Itasca and Lake counties by about $10,000,000 unless it can be shown that their proposition is unjust.

The mineral valuation for 1910 was $221,173,775.

Given Forty-Year Sentence.

George B. Findling, convicted at Minneapolis of murder in the third degree in connection with the death on May 29 of eight-year-old Leo Donahue, was sentenced to forty years in the state prison. He was taken to Stillwater.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Charles J. Fogg, a former Minneapolis man and a noted navigator, is dead at Los Angeles, Cal., at the age of eighty-seven years. Since he was a boy in charge of a New England coasting vessel he has been known as Captain Fogg. After fifteen years' residence in the Mill City Captain Fogg left Minneapolis in 1890 and has since lived in Los Angeles. During the California gold fever in 1852 Captain Fogg headed an expedition trip from Boston around Cape Horn to San Francisco, reaching that city after a four months' voyage.

FOREIGN NEWS.

American Methodist missionaries at Chengtu, the recently besieged capital of Szecheun province, telegraphed to Peking that they estimated that 10,000 persons were killed during the fighting. Of the dead 2,000 were soldiers and the others rebels. Ten thousand rebels are in possession of several cities southwest of Chengtu.

LABOR NEWS.

With the enforced departure of the last of the strikebreakers taken to McComb City, Miss., by the Illinois Central railroad came the first real assurance of the restoration of peace after twenty-four hours of excitement and spasmodic rioting. The people of the city demanded that the strikebreakers be removed from the community and the men were placed aboard a heavily guarded special train and hurried to New Orleans.

With 500 glistening bayonets in the hands of as many national guardsmen around the Illinois Central railroad property at McComb City, Miss., a ten-foot board fence topped by barbed wire strands inclosing all the work shops and two automatic cannon atop a two-story office building railroad officials express the opinion that they will be able to work as many strikebreakers as necessary in their shops there.

One man was shot and probably fatally wounded at New Orleans when a party of Illinois Central strikebreakers were fired upon while on their way from the company's fruit sheds to their quarters for the night. A United States deputy marshal who was escorting the men also was slightly wounded.

Dissatisfaction with conditions about the Memphis shops, Illinois Central strikebreakers struck and railroad officials asserted 100 were sent to Chicago. At strike headquarters it is declared more than 400 men walked out; practically the entire force. The walk out was without disorder.

END OF THE WORLD IS A FALSE THEORY

"The Earth Abideth Forever," Say Scriptures.

Symbolic, Not Literal, Fire Is Imminent.

Pastor Russell Says Our Lord Said Nothing About the End of the Earth, Simply the End of the World—London Tabernacle Crowded.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Oct. 15.—London Tabernacle, Lancaster Gate W., was crowded today to hear Pastor Russell. He spoke of mistaken notions re the end of the world. He assured his audience that "the earth abideth forever," and claimed that errors were built upon misinterpretations of Scripture. His text was Revelation x, 6, 7. "And the angel sware * * * that the time should be no longer (delayed)."

Pastor Russell declared that his text has no reference to the end of time—that time could never end, must always endure. The word delayed should have been added by the translators to catch the proper thought. The time mentioned would no longer be delayed. The fulfilment of delayed promises would be accomplished.

These views in recent years have been most pronouncedly voiced by Christian brethren styled Adventists, but really are to be found in nearly all the creeds of Christendom. The erroneous theory has been further bolstered up by the misinterpretations of our Lord's words translated the end of the world. Our Lord said nothing about the end of the earth, ge; what He did mention was the end of the aion or Age in which we live. Various aions or ages have followed one another, each ending in turn and giving place to another. So the present aion or age, we believe, will soon give place to a better aion or Age—the aion or age in which sin and death have reigned will give place to an aion or Age in which Christ and His Church will reign triumphant.

Heavens and Earth on Fire

Those who have not learned that the Bible frequently uses language in a symbolical manner may be excused for taking literally some of St. Peter's statements respecting the burning of the heavens and the earth. A critical study shows that the Apostle could not have referred to the literal earth and the literal heavens as being consumed. He used the term earth symbolically, as representing society, of which the mountains or kingdoms are the backbone, just as he used the word heavens to represent the ecclesiastical powers which are even now rolling together as a scroll from the two ends—the one Protestant, the other Catholic. The social conflagration is being generally feared.

Although many expect the social conflagration, not many yet fear the religious blaze predicted by the Apostle. It surely will come; not a jot or tittle will fail. The religious "heavens" and the social "earth" will catch fire together. After the great conflagration, upon the ashes of human institutions, Messiah will establish the Kingdom of glory and blessing in the interests of our poor, dying race. The "new heavens" will be the new ecclesiastical power—the Church in glory. The "new earth" will be the new social arrangement which Messiah will inaugurate.

Some of the Difficulty

The early Church hoped, in harmony with the Apostolic teachings, for Messiah's Kingdom to be established and for the resulting "times of restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all the holy Prophets since the world began."—Acts iii, 19-21.

After the Apostles fell asleep and the Kingdom still delayed, false doctrines crept into the Church, amongst others the theory that Christ's Kingdom was not to be waited for—that it came at Pentecost and the Apostles did not know of it; that it must conquer its way to the Throne of earth—that converts must be made even though the assistance of inquisitionary torments were necessary to effect this.

False Kingdoms of God

When the Protestant Reformation renounced Catholicism and denounced it as Anti-Christ it proceeded, nevertheless, along the same lines. Various Protestant Churches did their best to fill the place which Papacy claimed and to get earthly kingdoms to support their claims to spiritual domination. Thus the Czar of Russia is the Head of the Greek Church, Emperor William is the Head of the Lutheran system, King George is Head of the Church of England, theoretically. We may be sure, however, that none of these talented men believe for a moment that they are reigning as and for and instead of Messiah.

None of these are Kingdoms of Christ, nor could all of them together, called "Christendom," hope ever to bring to pass the glorious things promised of Messiah's Empire—that "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God." Indeed, it is becoming more widely known daily that heathendom, as well as Christendom, is doubling in population each century.

The sooner a fish is got into the frying pan after its tail has quit wiggling the sweeter and more toothsome it will be. But the reverse is true of the other staple meats, which are much improved by ripening.

The milking machine is as yet in the experimental stage, no make having been put on the market possessing all points of excellence that could be desired. There is reason to believe that one of the chief reasons why the machine milker does not take more readily is the time and pains it takes to keep it sweet and clean.

Not the least of the serious effects of the drought which has prevailed for the past year or more is the reduction of flowing streams to a point where they no longer furnish sufficient power to operate mills situated along their course. In sections along the Atlantic seaboard hundreds of factories have had to close down for this reason alone.

Intemperate is not a word whose dictionary meaning is limited to the use of beverages containing more or less alcohol. It is just as intemperate and often just as injurious to health to rush the coffee or tea pot as it is to "rush the growler." The only difference is that it may be viewed as a little more refined or respectable type of intemperance.

The making of peanut butter is a simple matter. After roasting the nuts to the right brown color they should be shucked, the brown skin removed and the beans then run through the grinder enough times to convert them into a fine paste. The butter should then be packed in glasses and kept covered until used. If the butter seems to be too dry it may be moistened with a little peanut or olive oil.

In watching swallows on the wing this season the writer has noticed that while their flight during May and June seemed to be at a height of from sixty to a hundred feet from the earth their range during the latter part of July and August was from 100 to 250 feet. We have never seen the fact explained. It is doubtless due to the height at which insects fly during the periods mentioned.

Many folks kill snakes on sight, whether harmless or not, when the truth is that those that are not a menace to human life should be protected as voracious consumers of rats, mice and gophers. The blacksnake is one of these rodent enemies. Another is the indigo snake, which is found in many southern states and sometimes reaches a length of eight feet. This reptile is a foe of rats, mice and gophers, is highly prized by plantation owners and is often petted and fondled by children.

Now and then a case is tried in a justice's court involving loss of manure by fire after being spread in the field, and the question raised of what its worth may be is an interesting one. Tests show that barnyard manure may have a value in crop production ranging from $1.75 to $2.25 per ton, but damages might have to be reckoned on what it costs a fellow to get and spread it in case it was got elsewhere than from his own place. It's a hopeful sign—this starting damage suits on account of barnyard fertilizers gone up in smoke.

Notwithstanding the fact that the apple crop was shorter last year than for many years and other fruits were even scarcer through all of the territory east of the Rockies, the fact remains that western growers, who had fine fruit, realized a paltry sum on their holdings. There is little question that this situation was the direct result of a coalition on the part of commission men, who aimed thereby to reimburse themselves for losses sustained in the past in seasons when considerable apple speculation was indulged in. It is doubtful if commission men would ever again dare to perpetrate such a holdup on the producer.

If the south is prosperous during the coming twelvemonth the reason will not be far to seek, for it has just marketed the most valuable cotton crop in its history. Some facts in connection therewith are full of interest. The value of the crop, including the seeds is placed at $1,050,000,000, which is $224,000,000 more than was realized from the bumper crop of 1908-09, notwithstanding the fact that the latter crop was the larger by 1,500,000 bales. Another interesting feature is that all of the crop has found its way to the mill at uniformly high prices in spite of the fact that the season's output is 1,500,000 bales larger than last year. For the crop just harvested the grower has received an average of 14.00 cents per pound, or $73.00 per bale.

At one state fair that we know of prizes were offered for the most perfect little human being, along with prizes for the best animals of the different kinds. This is a move in the right direction and should be followed up.

The total area of California devoted to the growing of oranges is 103,400 acres, being divided among the southern counties as follows: San Bernardino, 40,000 acres; Los Angeles, 30,000; Riverside, 17,000; Orange, 12,000; Ventura, 3,000; San Diego county, 1,200 acres.

The postoffice department is hot on the trail of a lot of Florida real estate swindlers on the ground that they have been using the mails to defraud. Pity they did not get after the sharks in this and some other states six or eight years ago, but investors should feel gratitude that the department has got action even at the eleventh hour.

Cornstalks add considerably to the soil in way of humus, which tends to improve its physical condition, but their value in this regard is far less than their value as a ration for dairy cows and steers when cut at the proper time, properly cured and fed. More than this, all the fertilizing value the stalks had is preserved in the manure which accumulates when they are fed.

The growers of timothy are in "clover" this year, due to the fact that they are receiving all the way from $10 to $13 per hundred for their seed. The shortage, due to the past summer's drought, is responsible for the high prices. In several instances we have noted lately that a crop of timothy seed alone is netting owners from $20 to $40 per acre.

On most farms perhaps the lighter fowls, such as Leghorns, are kept, there being plenty of range for them and opportunity to pick up much food by foraging. However, others keep heavy breeds, like the Brahmas, and are equally satisfied with them. They contend that they are better winter layers, while the cockerels marketed at five months old fetch 50 instead of 30 cents apiece.

What is said to be the most massive tree (not the tallest) in the world stands in the churchyard at Mitla, Mexico. It is a tule tree and has a circumference of 140 feet. A strange thing about the tree is that its circumference has not increased perceptibly in the past 300 years. Its age is placed at several thousand years. The tree shows signs of decline and decay, but special care is being taken to perpetuate it if possible.

The exhibits of beef breeds made at state fairs within the past few weeks simply emphasize the need of such changes in the rules of judging beef cattle as will make it possible for their owners to show them in normal and breeding condition rather than in that demanded for "fat steers." It is high time that the fellows most interested—those who have valuable animals virtually ruined by getting them overfat for exhibition—registered a kick so loud that it would be heard distinctly by those having cattle exhibitions in charge.

Perhaps there is no single phase of buttermaking, aside from the utmost cleanliness of all utensils used in the handling of milk, cream and butter, that is so important as the simple matter of cooling all cream before it is added to the cream supply already on hand. The reason for this is that if warm cream is added to the cold there is set up at once a rapid souring and ripening process that is very detrimental to butter quality if it occurs any considerable time before churning. Every buttermaker knows this as a first principle, the A or B of his business. Every farmer should remember it.

Sugar is now $8 per hundredweight in New York city and on the climb. While it is the contention of the trust that this high price is due to a big shortage in the world's crop, it is contended by others who claim to know that there has never been a larger amount of sugar afloat in the channels of trade than now. The layman has the sneaking opinion that the trust has us all on the hip and is making hay while the sun shines—for fines exacted from it in recent government suits and for a nest egg against the rainy day of prospective tariff revision. But, whatever the causes, the holdup is making political gunpowder and dynamite faster than any mill ever put in operation.

The close of the present summer season has served to emphasize more clearly than ever the damage to apples—trees and fruit—as a result of infection with spores of the cedar rust. Unfortunately one of the most highly prized of all our fall apples, the Wealthy, seems for some reason or another to be peculiarly susceptible to damage by the rust. Some trees we have noticed during the past few weeks have been well nigh defoliated through infection of the leaves with numerous rust spots, while as a result of this unhealthy condition of the leaves or lungs of the tree the fruit is not more than one-third of its usual size, and scrawny and diseased at that. It begins to look as though, if the owners of Wealthy orchards don't "do" the cedars in the vicinity or spray very carefully, the cedar rust will "do" their orchards. If the rust infestation is as much worse next year than this, as this year's was than last year's, thousands of trees will perish. The problem is one that every orchard owner should look into carefully.

AN INDEFENSIBLE INJUSTICE.

Another big government land drawing has just been pulled off in Dakota, and again has there been brought to the mind of the thinking person the rank injustice which is perpetrated as a result of the manner in which the drawings are managed. The point we have in mind, has nothing to do with whether or not the parcels of land apportioned are worth what the lucky folks pay for them in the end. The most glaring injustice lies in compelling all citizens but old soldiers and soldiers' widows who wish to make application for land to pay car fare to and from and hotel bills at the point where the drawing is to take place. It goes without saying that many who register in this manner for such drawings can ill afford to do so, while it is even more clear that thousands of the most needy who are justly entitled to government bounty are prohibited from ever registering for such drawings because they feel they cannot afford to play the stake for the slim chance of success. Just why the present plan is continued is not clear unless it be that the public lands are apportioned primarily as sort of baits to induce railroad traffic and only secondarily to benefit those who are ultimately to come into possession of them. Just why those qualified to register could not properly do so before any reputable justice of the peace in their home town instead of being compelled to travel hundreds or thousands of miles to do so is a poser that is being borne home on the minds of a good many people, involving an injustice that is at once unbusinesslike and unfair. Many contend that the lottery as a method of disposing of land is a gambler's stunt pure and simple, one that is frowned down upon by the postal department at every turn, but this would not be so bad in practical operation if the cost of taking a whirl at the game were but a dollar or two.

WHAT TO EXPECT OF THEM.

Thousands of boys and girls have left home within the past two or three weeks to begin their first year in some special school or college. They are looking forward to their school course with high hopes, and those at home who in most cases are making the higher training possible justly feel much pride in the progress and growth which the son or daughter will make. The "folks at home" have done and, so far as is possible, will continue to do their part. It is therefore up to the individual student to do his or hers. This may include doing some outside work to help pay one's way, a thing likely to be less pleasant at the time than in later years when one looks back upon it. Going away to college does not mean that those who have the privilege are under a new dispensation morally, as many students seem to infer. The same laws hold that do at home, and their violation brings misery and their observance satisfaction and peace. Hundreds of boys and girls have gone adrift in life through ignoring this simple truth. Then it is well to keep in mind that advanced education should mean increased responsibility and gratitude, not breed contempt and disdain for the plain folks at home. Sympathy rather and a desire to serve are the earmarks of all true culture and education, and the boy or girl who does not purposely try to develop these and kindred traits not only misses the chief and high purpose of college training, but in a large measure the very goal of all worthy living.

HOW MUCH WILL IT HOLD?

Many a farmer who has a silo, as well as many farmers who are going to build silos, would like to know how to get at the volume and weight of the fodder which a silo of given size will hold. For instance, how many tons of fodder will a silo having a size of 16 by 32 hold? The first step is getting the area of the base, which is obtained by multiplying the diameter by itself and that by .7854. Using this formula with the dimensions mentioned, we have 16 by 16 by .7854, which gives 201.0624 square feet. The cubic contents are then got by multiplying this by the height, thirty-two feet, which gives 6433.99 cubic feet. It has been found that a cubic foot of settled silage weighs forty-three pounds on the average in silos less than thirty-six feet in height; hence multiplying the cubic contents by the weight per foot, forty-three pounds, gives the total weight of the contents, or 277,661 pounds, and dividing this by 2,000 gives the number of tons, in this case 133.8. With these figures at hand it is easy to figure out how many feeds of thirty pounds per day a silo of a given size will furnish a herd of dairy cows.

A CLIPPING BUREAU.

An arrangement that would cost practically nothing and yet would be a real aid to the husbandman would be an envelope clipping system, which would consist merely in cutting out timely and helpful paragraphs and articles from news and agricultural papers and classifying them by means of an envelope system, one envelope being devoted to all the clippings referring to a given subject. The several envelopes could then be plainly labeled on the outside, which would make it an easy job to look up in a short time all the matter having to do with a given topic. Many a farmer already has such a system in operation, and many others would find the plan practical and helpful.

To judge by the stories published in a few of the newspapers in this vicinity regarding the "log jam" at the head of the Red Lakes, it would lead a person not at all acquainted with the conditions to believe that the lumber company here, backed by the people of this city, are wontonly and maliciously daming the outlet of the lake for some reason or other, and a few of our worthy exchanges are seeing a possible graft somewhere as a result of the conditions now existing. If there is anything absurd and foolish we will venture to state that this is the worst. We would like to know who has suffered more by the low stage of water in the Red Lake river than the lumber company here and the people of Thief River Falls. In the first place, the large lumber mill here has been compelled to close down—the first time in the history of that company—because of their inability to move the logs, owing to a lack of flowage. Does our exchanges realize what a loss this is to the company as compared with a little expenditure of money necessary if it was at all possible to drive these logs from the outlet? and then again, this city is just about to expend a vast sum of money for the construction of an auxiliary power plant, because the efficient water power we have had in the past has given out and rendered the plant useless. Would this city stand for the company's negligence in this matter if these conditions could be altered? It is hardly necessary to state that under these circumstances this matter has been thoroughly investigated and that the lumber company here as well as the city have sent men, and committees of men, who have, through long experience on or near the lakes, acquired a thorough knowledge of that body of water, to investigate and report on conditions as they found them. They are all unanimous in stating that never to their knowledge have the waters in the lake fallen so low as this year, and that the fault is not in the jam of logs as has been asserted.

GET A RECEIPT.

"When you pay three cents per mile on Minnesota railroads, get a receipt. If you don't get a receipt keep account of the transaction. Should Minnesota win in its fight in the supreme court to enforce the 2 cent rate, every passenger who pays three cents a mile while the cases were pending can recover the extra one cent."

This is the opinion of former Attorney General Young and of former Justice O'Brien, who are handling the railway litigation for the state, and of the members of the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission it was stated last week. In 1905 the state passed a law which was framed by Mr. Young, providing that while the commodity rates were in litigation the railroads should make a monthly report of the difference involved in the rates in effect while the litigation was pending. These reports have been made and the differences as reported now amounts to approximately $1,000,000 which the railroads will have to return to shippers if the state wins. These are the commodity freight rates applying to coal, grain, timber, live stock and by products.

This law does not apply to passenger rates, but the state's attorneys maintain that the principal is the same, and the members of the railroad and warehouse commission are of the same opinion.—Atkin Independent.

The National Election in Sweden.

The National election in Sweden, during the month of September, has resulted in a great gain for the Social Democratic party; even greater than that party expected. A telegram from Stockholm of September 30th announces the fact that the Social Democrats have elected 56 members to the new Rigsdag, and several districts had not been heard from at that time.

The combined strength of the opposing parties at that date were: Rightiee 87, Lefties 81. It was also stated that the cabinet had sent in their resignation to the King. A radical cabinet is about to be formed. The well known Carl Staav, who took such prominent part in the settlement of the troubles between Sweden and Norway a few years ago, will be called to form a new cabinet. The Social Democrats have refused to take any seats in the cabinet.

The young Rev. H. Halleen of Torsby, Vestergot land, well known for his anti-militarian sentiments, who also refused a few years ago to read the church's prayer for the Navy and Army, has also been elected to the Rigsdag, the first minister of the gospel elected by the Social Democratic party.

At a later date the news comes that the Social Democrats have elected 60 members to the Rigsdag.

If you ADVERTISE in THIS PAPER. It will LOOK GOOD to you. Try it out NOW.

LITTLE CHANCE OF REVISION

Lindbergh Thinks Congress Cannot Pass Tariff Bills.

There is little probability of any tariff revision by the next session of congress, according to Representative C. A. Lindbergh of Little Falls, who was in St. Paul to attend the reception to Gifford Pinchot. There will be a great deal of other work to do, including all the annual routine work and the appropriation bills to pass, he said. He looks for a report from the tariff board, however, and efforts undoubtedly will be made to pass some revision bills.

When asked regarding the report that he might be a candidate for United States senator next summer Mr. Lindbergh evaded a direct answer by saying that he had not thought about the matter. "I am trying not to think about politics yet for a few months," he said. "Next March will be time enough to think of politics."

MINNESOTA PIONEER DEAD

Sylvester Stateler, Aged Ninety-four, Who Came to State In 1842.

Sylvester Stateler, aged ninety-four years, is dead at his farm home near Faribault.

Mr. Stateler was one of the pioneers of Minnesota. He was born in Ohio, March 14, 1817. In 1842 he reached Stillwater and remained there until 1846, later removing to Lake Superior. In 1847 he was appointed government blacksmith for the Chippewa Indians, holding this position until 1862, when he removed to Rice county and purchased a farm which has since been his home.

He was identified with the Territorial association of 1849, organized in 1857. Up to the time of his death he had a vivid recollection of the early days, with their privations.

WOULD LABEL CANNED MILK

Duluth Pure Food Convention Discusses Question.

Condensed, canned and evaporated milk was discussed by the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments, meeting at Duluth. Commissioner G. B. Taylor of Louisiana declared that this product, when improperly labeled, had caused the death of almost countless infants in the South. Mention of embalmed milk precipitated a discussion that lasted throughout nearly the entire afternoon session and resulted in the introduction of a resolution demanding the passage of a law which would require manufacturers of evaporated milk to state on the cans just the amount of water necessary to bring the evaporated milk up to the exact point of whole milk.

ADJOURNED UNTIL SEPT. 12

Expected Whittier Case Will Be Concluded at That Time.

The hearing on the charges against Superintendent Whittier of the Red Wing training school for boys has adjourned until Tuesday, Sept. 12. Efforts will be made at that time to close the case and attorneys for both sides were instructed to prepare for the board written arguments containing deductions of facts from the evidence.

These will be submitted at the hearing in September. Both Attorney Frank B. Wilson, for Superintendent Whittier, and E. P. Sanborn, for Ralph W. Wheelock, will be given opportunity to make oral arguments besides submitting the briefs.

TAX MEN AFTER MRS. SAGE

Minnesota Seeks Payment of $600,000 on Inheritance.

Mrs. Russell Sage of New York is to be requested by Attorney General Simpson and Assistant Attorney General Weeks, who have left for New York, to pay an inheritance tax on all her Minnesota lands held under contracts of sale. It is believed the tax will amount to nearly $600,000.

Mr. Simpson and Mr. Weeks will confer with Mrs. Sage and her business representatives to procure a settlement of the disputed tax.

Will Reopen the Cobden Bank.

The stockholders of the State Bank of Cobden have assessed themselves 100 per cent to pay off the shortage of R. M. West cashier. The bank was closed recently by State Bank Examiner Chase. The capital of the bank is $10,000. The defalcation was $8,784. It is expected the bank will reopen soon.

Pledge $100,000 to Archbishop.

Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul at the close of the annual four-day retreat of the Catholic priests of the diocese at the St. Paul seminary, was the recipient of $100,000 pledged by the 260 priests of the archdiocese. Rev. Thomas J. Gibbons of St. Luke's church made the presentation speech to the archbishop.

Boy Killed In Collision.

Stealing a ride on an auto truck resulted fatally to Edward Stiepan, ten-year-old son of Joseph Stiepan of St. Paul, when the truck was struck by a street car, which crushed the boy between the two. The lad's abdomen was crushed and his left hip fractured.

Survives Fifty-five-Foot Fall.

Ophelia, the ten-year-old daughter of Mrs. A. J. Docahue, fell fifty-five feet in the elevator shaft at the Spalding hotel at Duluth and is in a hospital, dangerously hurt, but hope is entertained for her recovery.

Deer In America and Camel In England Hitched to Vehicles

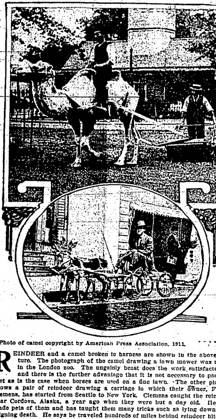

Photo of camel copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

REINDEER and a camel broken to harness are shown in the above picture. The photograph of the camel drawing a lawn mower was made in the London zoo. The ungainly beast does the work satisfactorily, and there is the further advantage that it is not necessary to pad his feet as is the case when horses are used on a fine lawn. The other picture shows a pair of reindeer drawing a carriage in which their owner, Frank Clemens, has started from Seattle to New York. Clemens caught the reindeer near Cordova, Alaska, a year ago when they were but a day old. He has made pets of them and has taught them many tricks such as lying down and feigning death. He says he traveled hundreds of miles behind reindeer hitched to sledges in Alaska, and he has no doubt that his team will be able to draw the light carriage across the continent. The animals are known as Buster and Babe. They are handsomely matched, and their owner has refused to set a price on them.

President Taft Begins Journey That Will Take Him 13,000 Miles

PRESIDENT TAFT has broken all travel records of American presidents, and he is still going. His present swing through the country from coast to coast will take him into twenty-four states. He will live in a car for forty-seven days, and when he gets back to Washington he will have covered 13,000 miles. This flight, added to trips he has made since he first went to the Philippines as governor in 1900, makes his total mileage for the ten years 275,000, enough to take him from the earth to the moon and leave about 36,000 miles over to be used in exploring that satellite. Mr. Taft's journey, as usual, will be marked by many speeches and by numerous banquets. He will be photographed thousands of times, and yet it is doubtful if a better snapshot will be made than that above, which shows him in action and in one of his best known poses.

ARE MEETING WITH SUCCESS

Despite Rigorous Protests Mormon Missionaries Continue Proselyting in Sweden—Tuberculosis is Increasing Rapidly in Scandinavian Countries. Whaling Vessels Report Successful Season Off Greenland.

SWEDEN.

In spite of the most rigorous protests on the part of scores of individuals and decrees by the government the Mormon missionaries energetically continue their proselyting in various parts of the country and they are meeting with much success. At Hornsberg, near Ostersund, they have been so active that they have aroused a good deal of opposition. At one of their meetings in that part of the country not long ago one woman raised her fist at the two missionaries, who were delivering addresses, and exclaimed, "You had better pack up and get out of here." But they did not seem to mind what she said, but stood their ground and are doing their level best to offset the criticisms coming in their direction. They make a good many friends, too, who stick up for them and that is just where the trouble comes in.

"Pennskaften" is the name of a new sensational novel from the pen of Algot Sandborg, which has recently been published in Stockholm. The author treats the conditions existing in modern Sweden today between the sexes and draws deductions which are sure to cause a stir in the social world. He takes one fling after another at the modern woman who refuses to be the mother of children and pictures the brazenness of the modern Swedish woman in a way which will certainly call forth some mighty strong protest from Swedish women leaders.

There is a very small percentage of people in Sweden who are not able to read and write. The following item may prove of interest to those who desire to compare Sweden with other civilized countries in this regard: "Investigations at the various recruiting stations during this past summer show that of 24,583 recruits 15,221 were able to read and write well, 9,301 fairly well and 61 were not able to read at all.

Dr. Sven Hedin recently received a letter from General Baden-Powell in which the latter expresses much satisfaction regarding the boy scout movement in Sweden. He says that the Swedish boy scouts evince fine discipline and ability and that they place duty ahead of their own personal interests, which is certainly paying them a fine compliment.

"Mona Lisa" is sought in Sweden. In the last number of Polisunderrattelser appears a cut of the famous painting, stating below at what time and the date on which the painting disappeared from the Louvre museum in Paris. It also states that the painter's name, Lionardo da Vincis, is painted on wood, attached to the lower end of the painting.

Arthur Donaldson, the Swedish-American actor, who played the leading roll in "Prince of Pilsen" for a couple of seasons, has arrived in Stockholm, where he has an engagement at the Oscar's theater, where he will succeed the well known Albert Barcklind. Just what play he will first appear in has not been officially announced.

Stockholm's oldest resident is Johanna Berns, who celebrated her 103d birthday the other day. She can still read the daily papers and follows events, particularly political events, with a great deal of interest. She is a strong Adventist and attends meetings of that church regularly.

A globe trotter and magazine writer, V. Thomas Green, whose articles have appeared recently in Hampton's Magazine of New York, recently visited places in Gothenburg where liquor is sold for the purpose of studying the far famed Gothenburg system of control of the liquor traffic.

Owing to the recent crippling of the building industry more than 7,000 men will be out of employment in Stockholm this fall and winter. The trouble started with the carpenter's strike and since then it has been impossible to adjust building conditions in Stockholm.

The Gothenburg high school celebrated its twentieth anniversary Sept. 19. In this connection it may be of interest to state that a high school in Sweden is equivalent in courses to an American college or the regular college course of an American university.

All institutions, such as labor unions, all societies and the like, are now compelled by law to pay taxes on income from money and property. These societies have entered vigorous protests, but thus far they have not been of any avail.

The potato crop in Sweden this year is an unusually poor one. Reports from 162 districts shows that there will only be half a crop and in some districts hardly that. The dry weather is to blame for it.

NORWAY.

It is amazing how tuberculosis has been increasing in the Scandinavian countries of late years. Norway has her share of it, if we are to believe latest reports from that country. Tuberculosis claims no less than 7,000 victims each year and the society for the prevention of the disease is redoubling its efforts to check its ravages. At the recent meeting of the annual convention of this society, held in Christiania, President Klaus Hansen made a fervent appeal to the people to fight the plague. It was announced at the meeting that 200,000 pamphlets have been distributed by the society, which now has 117 branch organizations throughout the country, with an aggregate membership of 15,800. It seems strange that a country with a healthy climate such as Norway has should be so grievously afflicted by the white plague, and it ought to be possible to stamp it out, if the people take the necessary precautions in regulating their mode of living.

Professor Gisle Bothne of the University of Minnesota has just returned from Norway, where he has spent the summer. On his return trip he stopped at Chicago, where he criticized the Norwegians for not organizing more generally than they have done. He stated that it was a pity that over 75,000 Norwegians in a world center like Chicago were not more closely united and urged singing societies and churches to get together for the purpose of furthering the best interests of the Norwegian nationality in that city. He pointed to the Swedes of Chicago, whom, he stated, were well organized and were commencing to be a force musically and politically.

An English football team played a game with the so called "Mercantiles" of Christiania the other day and the result was 6 to 1 in favor of the "Mercantiles." Another football game between the Englishmen and the Norwegians took place a couple of days later, resulting also in a victory for the Norwegians. The interest in football has just been aroused in Christiania and other Norwegian towns and this fall there will undoubtedly be a number of games played. English rules are used entirely.

At the recent 100th anniversary of the Christiania university a sum of 50,000 crowns was turned over to the rector of the institution and Dr. Valborg Sogn, a prominent woman physician from Chicago, delivered an address, speaking particularly of the charity work which was being conducted by Norwegian-Americans in this country.

"Madame Butterfly," at the National theater, has proven a great drawing card recently and the theater has been crowded every night. Madame Cally Monard plays the role of "Madame Butterfly." She will soon appear in "Marie Stuart," Ingolf Schanke appearing as "Lord Stuart."

DENMARK.

The steamer Hans Egede arrived at Copenhagen from the Greenland coast on the evening of Sept. 6. There were on board two delegates from Greenland, who had been summoned to Copenhagen relative to affairs in Greenland. The vessel carried a cargo of 4,000 barrels of whale oil. A number of American whaling vessels have been operating on the Greenland coast during the past summer and are reported to have done a great business. One of the crews from the whaling vessels had reported that they had seen Knud Rasmussen's motor boat on its way north.

A result of Johan Skioldborg's lecture in America will be that a Danish-American bureau will be established in Copenhagen for the purpose of lending aid and advice to home returning Danes from America. The latter always find great difficulty in securing proper employment or business openings on their return to the mother land, having become entirely foreign to all Danish business methods and institutions. Much good is expected to result from this organization.

The Social Democrats have been up in arms against the way they allege the street car employes were treated during the recent street car strike in Copenhagen and held a mass meeting the other evening which was attended by not less than 30,000 people. It was an enthusiastic meeting and a number of leading Socialist leaders delivered impassioned addresses. A committee was appointed for the purpose of soliciting aid, from the Copenhagen press in behalf of the laboring classes.

The first airman in Scandinavia to carry mail through the air is Aviator Svendsen, a daring young Dane who has been making several successful air trips. His first trip was made across the sound of Little Belt, and he carried some postal cards and newspapers, which were properly delivered at their destination.

Scoutmaster Baden-Powell held his first review of the Copenhagen Boy Scouts at Klampenborg Sept. 4. There was an immense crowd of people present to see the review and from the enthusiasm expressed on every hand it is evident that the Boy Scout movement in Copenhagen is going to be a decided success.

A week ago last Friday the street car strike in Copenhagen came to an end. The street car men lost, but the company has decided to give the old employes a chance to get back their old places if they so wish.

There is nothing that gets second hand and out of style faster than an automobile unless it is a woman's hat of the current mode.

Corn and alfalfa are the keystones of success, not only in the production of beef and pork, but in the production of butter fat. Wherever the two crops will grow there prosperity is sure to be found.

Some one who has tried it recommends putting a cupful or more of salt into the cistern to purify and sweeten the water. This causes impurities to separate and settle, when the clear water on top may be dipped or pumped off.

The fall thus far has been ideal for the securing of a supply of seed corn under the most favorable conditions. If there is any man whose seed corn fails to germinate next spring it will be his own fault—because he is lazy or careless or both.

Anthracnose, a plant disease that does much damage to both apple and pear trees, can be kept largely in check by spraying the trees as soon as the leaves have fallen with the bordeaux mixture. A thorough treatment at this time has been found to give excellent results.

Not a few boys and girls who go wrong in life and fail of anything worth while got their start when their parents sided with them wrongly as against the teacher at school. This is not a theory, but a condition that can be verified from the experience of teachers everywhere.

The good Lord apparently knew what he was about when he ordained that men and women should unite their efforts in the making of a home. Either sex makes a pretty bad mess of it when they attempt to go it alone. Of the two the man seems to be entitled to even more sympathy than the woman.

Some one fond of statistics in the large has found that the Russian uses on an average two pounds of soap per year and the Englishman twenty-one pounds, but since he uses cold water he is not any cleaner than the American, who uses seventeen pounds a year with warm water. The Frenchman uses fifteen pounds of cleanser and the German ten pounds.

The chief advantage of the cement floor for the poultry lies in the fact that it is rat and skunk proof. The tendency of the floor to gather dampness at certain seasons of the year can be overcome by a thin covering of earth or a generous scattering of litter. For the superstructure—walls—of the henhouse no material excels clay hollow blocks, which insure both dryness and warmth.

A lady friend who is a reader of these notes reduced her jelly operations to a minimum during the hot weather by bringing her fruit juices to a boil and canning them. She will make her jelly as she wants it during the coming months, thereby saving herself a lot of discomfort from the heat and incidentally saving quite a bit of fuel. More than this, she claims that the jelly has a better flavor if made but a short time before being used, and we shouldn't wonder if she were right.

While next May is the time to make the rose bed, it is a good idea to be getting the material ready for it now. Among the best recommended is a mixture consisting of one part of broken blue grass sods and one part of well rotted barnyard manure. As much of this as will be needed should be composted this fall and allowed to decay until the time for making the bed in the spring, when to the mixture should be added and thoroughly mixed one-half as much rather stiff clay soil. Rotted leaves may be used in part in place of the manure and will give excellent results.

The way some folks hang on to the almighty dollar or almighty penny would lead one to believe that they not only thought shrouds had pockets but that caskets and sepulchers were provided with telescopes and gunny sacks for the reception of coin earned in life. This, however, is a mistake. The coin that miserly people hoard is all left for heirs to squabble over, and in some cases no more is wasted on funeral equipment for the deceased than the law allows. In view of this somewhat untoward situation it is a pretty sensible idea to curb this miserly tendency, to loosen one's purse strings and get some enjoyment out of life for oneself, but if possible to make life brighter and more worth the living for others.

There is no economy whatever in scrimping the rations of animals that work, are intended for the block or give milk. Neither is there profit in any man or woman who works keeping himself or herself in the same half fed condition.

There was something a bit awry in the arrangement of things when a longer interval was not provided between the exactions of the iceman and coal man. Instead of there being a gap those two fellows often overlap in their services.

A good many hens have that queer streak which makes them prefer to lay their eggs in the barn or wood house of a neighbor than of their owner. Perhaps it is the same tendency that makes so many youngsters prefer to play at the neighbor's than at home.

The fact is not generally known, but the tubers of the single blossomed dahlias are now being grown for consumption, as are sweet potatoes. Another curiosity along the same line is the use of milkweed as a vegetable, it being cut when tender and used as one does asparagus.

Even in the country the proper place for the pigs is in pens and yards provided especially for them and not the dooryard, lawn and flower beds. Many folks who are well fixed financially and have plenty of room on the farm seem to have some odd notions on this matter of where the pigs rightly belong.

The bacterial life which is responsible for scab in potatoes will live over in the ground from one year to another, but the spores which cause smut in wheat and oats do not; hence treating the seed means clean grain the following season, even on ground that produced a smutty crop the previous season.

The cause of scientific agriculture lost one of its most able and devoted advocates in the death of Professor F. H. King, who died at Madison, Wis., a short time ago. Besides writing a number of books on drainage, irrigation and soil physics, he devised the system of ventilation for barns which bears his name and has been so generally used by progressive farmers everywhere.

"Our hens are fat and in fine condition, but don't lay," is a summary of the complaint of hundreds of poultry keepers—in fine condition perhaps for the roasting pan or kettle, but not for producing eggs. It's their fatness and fine condition that are the cause of the trouble. Switch them from a diet consisting chiefly of corn to one of wheat, bran, skimmilk, green stuff, meat scraps and the like, and the hens will sing a different tune and fill the egg basket.

No finer co-operation is exemplified anywhere than that which is being put into practice by many country pastors in connection with the varied practical problems which confront their parishioners and by these same hardworking parishioners in relation to the moral and spiritual problems which the dominie has on his hands. This co-operation carried out to the fullest extent possible has more in it of contentment and happiness for the American than any other agency that can be named.

Kerosene is sometimes used as a means of accelerating a lazy fire, but in the case of an Illinoisan the other day there was so much acceleration that the unfortunate members of the family could not adjust themselves to it. The stove blew up, setting fire to the house, and five members of the family were burned to death before they could make their escape from the house. When kerosene is put on a smoldering fire a gas is at once generated that is as dangerous as gasoline. It is the ignition of this gas that raises havoc in such cases.

One living in central or eastern states and who has not been in the Golden State is sometimes at a loss to understand how orange ranches can have a value of from $1,500 to $3,500 per acre. But such prices are intelligible when one takes into account the value of single crops which are got from such orange groves. One lady, a Mrs. Sears, who owns a fifteen acre ranch in the southern part of California, recently sold her crop of Valencias on the trees for $10,500 and had nothing to do in the transaction but indorse a draft for the amount. Of course this orange ranch did not come by chance, but was given painstaking care and spraying for a multitude of enemies to bring it to a profitable bearing condition.

One level headed farmer's wife we know who keeps many laying hens resents the idea of having her nice fresh eggs serve as a cork to float the prices of the great quantities of eggs of uncertain reputation that are marketed in violation of pure food laws. She has made a deal with a hotel in a large market center 350 miles from where she lives and every three or four days crates her eggs and ships them to her customer by express. Each egg is stamped with the date on which it is laid. For eggs marketed under these conditions she receives 50 per cent more than if they were sold locally and marketed in a miscellaneous shipment. She has assumed that relation to the egg market which gives her a higher price in just the proportion that other folks market stale eggs, thus increasing the demand for those strictly fresh. She takes pains and is well paid for her trouble.

If the field beans were retarded in growth during the drought and are inclined to be late in drying out one can hasten the process by pulling the crop at once. This will tend to reduce loss by mildew or rotting after the beans are stacked.

The remarkable productivity of the present season is shown in no more interesting way than in the unusual number of little bright red apples which the wild rose bushes are carrying. Never do we remember having seen so many of them.

Some one has well said that the great need of rural communities all over the land is more homes and fewer farms, and he might have added that the greatest need of the myriad towns and cities of the country is also more homes and fewer houses—just places to feed and roost.

It is well worth while for busy folks, whether in town or on the farm, to take a day or a part of day off for a picnic in the woods before the colder and disagreeable weather sets in. The enjoyment to be got during such an outing would be sufficient reward for the effort, but this is not all—it will furnish many a recollection of the hours thus wholesomely spent. Folks would be better, be happier and live longer if they had more of such outings. They relieve the vexation and tension of our busy lives and do us much good.

Mrs. Belmont's widely advertised experiment of trying to teach a limited number of young women the science of housekeeping and farming so that later they might be able to develop homesteads of their own without the aid of the masculine gender has not been a great success. If the views of one of these precious farmerettes can be taken as indicative of the reason for the failure of the experiment it seems to be due to the fact that the girls missed the companionship of young men, had to do too much dirty work and had no butter, but only gravy, on the table for dinner.

Here is a problem in addition for every boy between the ages of ten and fourteen years; given—any individual boy as he is now. What he is a dozen years hence will be what he is now plus what he puts into his life—heart, head and hand—in this short interval. His habits of life will then be well formed and his ambitions and ideals have a pretty definite bent. Whether he amounts to anything at the end of the next dozen years—is a man in the best sense of the word or just a human scrub—is the problem that every boy has on his hands for solution. His parents and teachers can help some, but in the main it is up to him. What will his answer be?

In a recent issue of this department there was a paragraph replying to a reader who thought he had seen a statement in these notes as to the possibility of making butter from skimmilk. In characterizing it the phrase was used, "It is as impossible as it is to make a whistle out of a pig's tail." Within a few days a reader of the department who lives at Puyallup, Wash., states that this phrase no longer has force, as a fellow who lives in Michigan has made splendid whistles out of pigs' tails. He first carefully removed the bone, then stretched the skin over a stick and when cured varnished it. He later removed the stick, inserted a short plug in its place and cut a hole in the dry skin just back of the plug. Our correspondent says this made an excellent whistle. Next!

Following a pretty droughty season, a good many who have built houses the past summer will want to get a catch of grass this fall on their grounds. While a good step may be made in this direction if conditions are favorable by giving the area a top dressing of rich mellow earth and seeding with the prepared lawn grass mixture, the writer has found from his own experience and that of others that a much surer way is to supplement this seeding by planting chunks of blue grass sod six or eight inches square at intervals of three or four feet each way. One of the finest and quickest lawns we ever saw—a small one—was established at once by covering the entire area with a good thick sod and watering liberally. However, where the smaller pieces of sod are used at intervals a sod is soon obtained, and much sooner than is possible with the seeding alone.

Some time ago the writer suggested through a paragraph in these notes to a young man in Illinois who was anxious to get a start in an agricultural way the wisdom of looking into the opportunities available in connection with some of the government's western irrigation enterprises. These tracts cost the homestead value of the land—about $1.50 per acre plus the actual cost of the water right, which varies in different enterprises from $25 to $50 per acre. The great advantages in buying such government tracts are, first, that when a fellow buys a water right he gets so much water, not blue sky or hot air, and, secondly, he is given ten years in which to make payment, and that without interest on deferred payments. Tracts in the Huntley project in Idaho have this season cleared their owners $50 per acre in the growing of sugar beets, enough to cover the entire purchase price of the land. Many a young fellow who has saved up a nest egg and wants to get away from the bad air and cramped conditions of shop or factory and get a home on the land would do well to look into some of these government projects.

THE SERUM TREATMENT FOR HOG CHOLERA.

Hog cholera is getting in its deadly ravages in a good many sections, and a word about the serum treatment may be welcome to some who live in sections where the disease is spreading. A number of state legislatures have set aside a fund to cover the cost of the manufacture of the serum, the state veterinary department making the serum and selling it to farmers of the state at cost. The Nebraska Agricultural college at Lincoln has recently issued a timely little bulletin on the subject, and the following data, while taken from this publication, is of general interest and would apply to any section. To secure a serum of uniform quality it is necessary to mix the four bleedings from each hog, then mix those from a number of hogs and test carefully before sending out. It has been found that the serum costs 2 cents per cubic centimeter to make, while the dose recommended is twenty cubic centimeters per 100 pounds of hog and for pigs weighing less than 100 pounds. On this basis the treatment for a hog weighing 300 pounds would cost $1.20, which is an expense surely justifiable on a hog selling at $5 per hundredweight and particularly so in the case of valuable pure bred animals. The pamphlet in question suggests calling a qualified veterinarian at once on the appearance of sickness resembling cholera in the herd, the killing of a sick pig and ascertaining the real character of the disease at once by a postmortem examination. Unless the disease is indicated the serum should not be given, as it would render the hogs immune but three or four weeks. It is of no use to give a sick hog the treatment. Only well hogs that have been exposed to cholera should receive the injection of serum. Otherwise a lasting immunity will not result. Some hogs that have had the germs in their systems several days will likely die in spite of the treatment. Where one cannot secure the aid of a veterinary surgeon the farmer can treat the hogs himself provided he exercises the necessary precautions.

The hogs should be in a dry, clean place at least twenty-four hours before receiving the treatment. In addition to the serum, which should have been got direct from the state veterinary department, and one should have a ten cubic centimeter syringe, the hog to be treated should have the inside of the thighs washed thoroughly with a 5 per cent solution of some good coal tar dip, and the serum should be injected deeply into the muscles, not over twenty cubic centimeters being put in one place. The serum may be injected just under the skin of the abdomen, but it is not so readily absorbed. The bulletin above referred to does not make reference to it, but a point that should be emphasized is the wisdom of steering clear of serums advertised at a bargain price by irresponsible firms. No serum should be used except that furnished by the state veterinary department or a firm recommended by it.

THAT DAY IN OCTOBER.

The poet Lowell has said of June, "Then, if ever, come perfect days." True, but what of that day in October after the first frost? It began in a "rosy fingered dawn" dispelling a night chill and developed into the molten, golden glow of a perfect autumn day. The poplars, birches, maples, sumacs and Virginia creepers added their tribute of color to the carnival of beauty. The crow, the jay, the belated nuthatch or chattering squirrel gave the one touch of life and sound to the pensive stillness of the splendid woods. Grapes in fragrant clusters and nuts and apples dropping of their own ripe weight were mute witnesses of the season's wealth and prodigality. Rod in hand, the nearby placid pool, bearing a fleet of fallen leaves, was sought and the gamy bass lured to the surface with the tempting fly or minnow. A swirl and the nerves were a-tingle and the reel musical with the efforts of the fish to gain its freedom. A bit later a snapping fire was blazing, and a picnic lunch was spread and the keen appetite of the human animal satisfied; at sunset, still of molten gold, the return home through the peaceful woods, their brilliant leaves shedding that mystic afterglow and adding moments to the day. Perfect days in June? Yes, and in October.

TO TELL POISON IVY.

A great many attractive things have danger for those who come in contact with them. Among those in the natural world is poison ivy, which in the fall in most sections is one of the most brilliantly colored vines to be found. Many boys and girls and not a few older people do not know the vine, and a word about it is in place. The most important distinctive feature about it is that it has three leaves in a cluster instead of five, as in the case of the well known Virginia creeper, which, though to be found in wood lots all over the country, is frequently used as a porch climber. Another mark of the poison ivy is the cluster of numerous small whitish berries which it bears, not at all like the purple berries of the Virginia creeper. In spite of its name the poison ivy does very little climbing, but rather sprawls and, as a rule, is a short vine, making comparatively slight growth in a single season. It cannot stand cultivation and hence is most often found along river courses, in pastures lots and in fence rows and corners.

White Seal Beer

IS A FOOD

It contains about the same nourishment found in milk.

There is this, however, in favor of our product that makes it different from all other food beverages and of much greater value:—

WHITE SEAL BEER

is predigested. It places no burdens upon the stomach. Instead of making work for the latter, it aids in the digestion of the solid foods.

Its clear color, its tendency to enrich the blood and improve the health, its splendid flavor and its thirst "cutting" quality, all combine to make this product one eagerly sought.

The sooner a fish is got into the frying pan after its tail has quit wiggling the sweeter and more toothsome it will be. But the reverse is true of the other staple meats, which are much improved by ripening.

The milking machine is as yet in the experimental stage, no make having been put on the market possessing all points of excellence that could be desired. There is reason to believe that one of the chief reasons why the machine milker does not take more readily is the time and pains it takes to keep it sweet and clean.

Not the least of the serious effects of the drought which has prevailed for the past year or more is the reduction of flowing streams to a point where they no longer furnish sufficient power to operate mills situated along their course. In sections along the Atlantic seaboard hundreds of factories have had to close down for this reason alone.

Intemperate is not a word whose dictionary meaning is limited to the use of beverages containing more or less alcohol. It is just as intemperate and often just as injurious to health to rush the coffee or tea pot as it is to "rush the growler." The only difference is that it may be viewed as a little more refined or respectable type of intemperance.

The making of peanut butter is a simple matter. After roasting the nuts to the right brown color they should be shucked, the brown skin removed and the beans then run through the grinder enough times to convert them into a fine paste. The butter should then be packed in glasses and kept covered until used. If the butter seems to be too dry it may be moistened with a little peanut or olive oil.

In watching swallows on the wing this season the writer has noticed that while their flight during May and June seemed to be at a height of from sixty to a hundred feet from the earth their range during the latter part of July and August was from 100 to 2? feet. We have never seen the fact explained. It is doubtless due to the height at which insects fly during the periods mentioned.

Many folks kill snakes on sight, whether harmless or not, when the truth is that those that are not a menace to human life should be protected as voracious consumers of rats, mice and gophers. The blacksnake is one of these rodent enemies. Another is the indigo snake, which is found in many southern states and sometimes reaches a length of eight feet. This reptile is a foe of rats, mice and gophers, is highly prized by plantation owners and is often petted and fondled by children.

Now and then a case is tried in a justice's court involving loss of manure by fire after being spread in the field, and the question raised of what its worth may be is an interesting one. Tests show that barnyard manure may have a value in crop production ranging from $1.75 to $2.25 per ton, but damages might have to be reckoned on what it costs a fellow to get and spread it in case it was got elsewhere than from his own place. It's a hopeful sign—this starting damage suits on account of barnyard fertilizers gone up in smoke.

Notwithstanding the fact that the apple crop was shorter last year than for many years and other fruits were even scarcer through all of the territory east of the Rockies, the fact remains that western growers, who had fine fruit, realized a paltry sum on their holdings. There is little question that this situation was the direct result of a coalition on the part of commission men, who aimed thereby to reimburse themselves for losses sustained in the past in seasons when considerable apple speculation was indulged in. It is doubtful if commission men would ever again dare to perpetrate such a holdup on the producer.

If the south is prosperous during the coming twelvemonth the reason will not be far to seek, for it has just marketed the most valuable cotton crop in its history. Some facts in connection therewith are full of interest. The value of the crop, including the seeds, is placed at $1,000,000,000, which is $254,000,000 more than was realized from the bumper crop of 1908-09, notwithstanding the fact that the latter crop was the larger by 1,700,000 bales. Another interesting feature is that all of the crop has found its way to the mill at uniformly high prices in spite of the fact that the season's output is 1,500,000 bales larger than last year. For the crop just harvested the grower has received an average of 14.00 cents per pound, or $73.00 per bale.

THE CEMENT PAINT.

A reader of these notes who is planning to do some outside painting wishes to know the recipe for making the government whitewash, or the White House paint. For the benefit of this reader and others who may be interested we give the recipe again, which is as follows: Slack one-half bushel of stone lime, using enough boiling water to keep it from burning, and keep well covered during the process. When the slacking process is finished add enough more hot water so that it will be possible to strain the solution through a fine strainer—brass or a couple thicknesses of gunny sacking. Next dissolve a peck of salt in warm water; also prepare three pounds of rice boiled to a thin paste. The rice and lime-water should first be carefully stirred together while hot and the salt water then added and stirred in. To this add one-fourth pound of Spanish whiting and one pint of liquid glue. This recipe will give about seven gallons, and, if there should not be as much as this, hot water should be added to give the desired amount. Various tints can be given this paint by stirring in dry colors. The paint will give the best results if used hot and should be stirred at frequent intervals to keep the several ingredients thoroughly mixed.

HOGGING DOWN CORN.

The wisdom of hogging down corn seems to depend on whether the fencing needed to carry it out satisfactorily will come to more than the saving effected by having the hogs do the husking. Two years' experiments conducted by the Minnesota station showed that hogs in a cornfield required only two-thirds as much feed to make a given amount of gain as did those kept in a dry lot, while those in the field made as much gain in seventy-five days as did dry lot hogs in a hundred days. The field hogs seemed to be the more thrifty and to eat their rations with a good deal more relish. Pigs weighing a hundred pounds or more make the most rapid gains under field conditions. Before being turned into the corn they should be fed new corn in the dry lot in gradually increasing amounts, so that they won't have their system upset by contracting the scours. The field to be hogged down should be fenced off in such manner that there will be an average of from a dozen to twenty pigs per acre, depending somewhat upon their size.

SMUT IN WHEAT.

Smut, a disease which causes kernels of small grain to bloat and to become filled with black, ill smelling spores, can be held in check effectively by treating the seed just before sowing with a formalin solution made by diluting one pint of 40 per cent formalin in thirty gallons of water. The seed should be spread out on a clean floor in barn or granary and sprinkled with the solution, being shoveled over slowly, if possible, while the disinfectant is being applied. The aim should be to have each kernel moistened with the solution. When the grain has been thoroughly moistened it should be shoveled into a pile and covered with blankets or gunny sacking for three or four hours, during which time the fumes of the solution will the more thoroughly penetrate each kernel. The covering may then be removed and the grain shoveled over until it is dry, when it is ready for sowing. To make the job most effective sacks, measures and seeders in which the seed is handled after treating should also be disinfected.

SIMPLE LIFE INSURANCE.

The tragic details of the death of a young wife and mother as a result of her clothing catching fire from the exposed blaze of a gasoline stove, which have recently come to the writer's attention, prompt a suggestion which if carried out might serve to prevent many just such fatal burnings. This is having close at hand in the kitchen, as near the gasoline stove as possible, a good sized blanket or heavy full length overcoat, which could be wrapped around one in case the clothing caught fire. Almost invariably when such an accident occurs there seems to be a natural instinct to rush to another room or out of doors for help, which is the worst possible thing that could be done to spread and intensify the blaze. Having a garment ready in the manner suggested would render this rush unnecessary and make possible an immediate extinguishing of a blaze which would not only prevent terrible burns, but would save life as well.

THE BUFFALO BUR.

The botanical departments of many experiment stations have had specimens of the buffalo bur submitted to them this season for identification. The plant is of about the same size and habit of growth as the cocklebur, has a divided leaf much like the watermelon and a yellow blossom, while leaves, stems and fruit pods are covered with long, ugly looking spines or needles. The writer saw a specimen of this weed the other day and noticed another interesting thing about the plant—that it has an odor exactly like a string of freshly caught bullheads. The seeds of this plant are scattered in the wool of western sheep, in the little falling from freight cars in which sheep are carried and chick feed bought at country stores. The plant is an annual and is easily held in check by cultivation.

Estate of Aaron E. Abraham.
State of Minnesota, County of Pennington Probate Court.
In the Matter of the Estate of Aaron E. Abraham, Decedent.

The State of Minnesota To Carl Winfield Abraham, Melvin John August Abraham, Gertrude Marie Rose Abraham and all persons interested in the granting of administration of the estate of said decedent: The petition of Mary C. Abraham having been filed in this court, representing that Aaron E. Abraham, then a resident of the County of Red Lake, which is now Pennington County, State of Minnesota, died intestate in the month of April 1909, and praying that letters of administration of his estate be granted to Mary C. Abraham and the court having fixed the time and place for hearing said Petition; Therefore, You, And Each Of You, are hereby cited and required to show cause, if any you have, before this court at the Probate Court Rooms in the City of Thief River Falls in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, on the 25th, day of September 1911, at Ten (10) o'clock A. M., why said petition should not be granted.

Witness the Judge of said Court, and the Seal of said Court, this 25th day of August, 1911.

Sheriff's Sale on Execution.

Notice is Hereby Given That by virtue of an execution directed and delivered to me and now in my hands, issued out of the District Court, 14th. Judicial District State of Minnesota, in and for the County of Red Lake upon a judgment rendered and docketed in said Court in an action therein pending wherein F. A. Grady is plaintiff and Frank H. Kratka is defendant in favor of said F. A. Grady and against said Frank H. Kratka on the 9th. day December, 1905, for the sum of $234.54, which said judgment was duly assigned by said F. A. Grady to John A. Duffy and by said John A. Duffy to Frederick A. Gobler, and which said judgment was duly transcribed and docketed in Pennington County, Minnesota, by virtue of the organization of Pennington County out of a part of Red Lake County, all of which more fully appears by the files, records and dockets of the Clerks of the District Courts in and for the said Counties of Red Lake and Pennington, I have levied upon all the rights, title and interest of said defendant Frank H. Kratka in and to the following described real property lying and being in the County of Pennington and State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lots One and Two in block Eight; lots Seven, Eight, Nine, Ten, Eleven and Twelve in block Nine; lots One, Two, Three, Four, Five & Six in block Twenty-four and lots Seven, Eight, Nine, Ten, Eleven and Twelve in block Twenty-five, all in the original townsite of Thief River Falls in the County of Pennington (formerly in Red Lake County) State of Minnesota, according to the plat thereof now on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the said County of Pennington and State of Minnesota.

And that I shall on the 30th. day of September, 1911, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day at the front door of the Auditorium Building in the City of Thief River Falls in said County and State proceed to sell all the rights, title and interest of said defendant, Frank H. Kratka in and to the above described property to satisfy the said judgment and costs amounting to $234.50 together with all accruing costs of sale and interest on the same from the 9th. day of December, 1905 at the rate of six per cent per annum at public auction to the highest bidder for cash.

Dated at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, this 15th. day of August, 1911.

HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED

Crookston Pigskin Punchers Prove Victors in Saturdays Game by 35 to 0 Score.

Liberty Band Accompany Boys and Furnish Music for the Occasion.

The high school football team of this city, accompanied by the Liberty Band, went down to Crookston Friday evening, where on Saturday afternoon the local "eleven" clashed with the team of that city, and sad to say were defeated by a score of 35 to 0.

The boys, nevertheless, are not depressed over their defeat and returned to this city in good humor owing to the royal treatment they received at the hands of the boys of that place, and rest assured that they will do better next time.

The grounds are reported as having been in very bad shape. The recent rains had left a number of mud puddles on the gridiron and after a few scrimmages the boys had an aspect of playing tag with a mud turtle rather than chasing the pigskin. While these conditions proved a handicap the same disadvantages were afforded to both sides, so it is doubtful if the result would have been altered had the grounds been in better shape.

The following is the line up of both teams:

T. R. F.—	Crookston—
Johnson-l. g.	Busterud, Sylvester-c.

Was He Drunk?

On a pleasant afternoon an old German and his youngest son were seated in the village inn. The father had partaken liberally of the home brewed beer, and was warning his son against the evils of intemperance. "Never drink too much, my son. A gentleman stops when he has enough. To be drunk is a disgrace."

"Yes, father, but how can I tell when I have enough or am drunk?"

The old man pointed his finger.

"Do you see those two men sitting in the corner? If you should see four men there, you would be drunk."

The boy looked long and earnestly. "Yes, father but—but—there is only one man in that corner.—Ex.

Found Old Relic.

Hans O. Hanson, who lives 3 miles west of Ulen, found an old sword in the ground while plowing one day last spring. The blade was broken off at the end, about 18 inches of it remaining. The grip or handle on it is made of copper. No one here is able to tell how old it is nor by by what people it has been used but it is pretty old.—Norman County Index.

WAS NOT INSANE

Mrs. Robert Burt, Examined By Board Friday.

Mrs. Robert Burt, of Peoria, Ill., who has been held here for some time by the local authorities pending an investigation as to her sanity was brought before the board of examiners last Friday but no trace of insanity was found by the board at the examination. She left in company with her young son for her home at Peoria last Friday evening on the flyer.

Mrs. Burt, who was on her way to Canada, was turned back at the border on the grounds of showing signs of insanity and was brought to this city. It is believed, however, that through brooding over some domestic troubles and the weariness of her long trip had caused a slight mental disarrangement but that it was only temporary.

Select Seed Wheat Now.

The careful selection of seed wheat now, before marketing the crop, would seem to be made imperative by conditions which have revealed themselves in the Red River country and elsewhere. A large portion of the grain is rusted and shrunken; and unless the selection is made before marketing the bulk of the crop, the farmer is likely to find himself without a sufficiency of seed fit for next spring's planting.

Mr. J. D. Bilsborrow, of the Crookston Experiment Station, reports an analysis of a sample which he thinks representative of much of the wheat in the Red River Valley, with the following results:

Clean and plump seed,	27 per cent.
Shrunken seed,	61 per cent.
Weeds and dirt,	8 per cent.

The sample was No. 3 Northern, and weighed fifty pounds per bushel. At the rate shown by the analysis, it would be necessary to save about four bushels of wheat for every bushel of seed needed. A vast deal of trouble will be avoided, therefore, by bringing the fanning-mill into use for the purpose of selecting seed, before marketing any grain. And if anyone is fortunate enough to find himself in possession of an over-supply of clean, plump and heavy seed, he can be sure of a high price for it in the spring.

An additional encouragement for taking up at once the work of selection is found in the fact that plump and well-developed seeds, coming from a rusted fields, indicate that plants which bore them had rust-enduring qualities a continuance of which may be looked for in their progeny.

In the presence of an inferior crop, a careful selection of seed, first for size and then for weight, is practically the same as taking out a policy insuring a good crop in 1912.—C. R. Barns, Extension Div., Minn. Agr. College.

How Would You Like It?

An editor of an exchange is in receipt of the following letter: "Please send me a few sample copies of your paper which had an obituary and verses about the death of my child a week or so ago. Also publish the enclosed clipping about my neices marriage. And I wish you would mention that I have two bull calves to sell. Send me a couple of extra copies of the paper this week. As my subscription is out, please stop my paper. Time is too hard to waste money on newspapers."

PETE BLAGEN KILLED

Sustains Broken Neck in Fall From Wagon Saturday Night.

Accident Happened in Torn-Up Culvert Two Miles South of Germantown.

Peter Blagen, a resident near Carmel post-office, Marshall county, is dead from injuries which he received in a fall from the wagon in which he was riding, Saturday evening.

The accident happened at a point about two miles this side of Germantown. Mr. Blagen in company with Carl G. Olson and Ole Warner were returning from a trip to this city, and owing to the darkness, as it was late in the evening, were unable to see the defective culvert which was the cause of the accident. When the wagon plunged into the torn out culvert Mr. Blagen was thrown out of the wagon and sustained a broken neck, dying from his wounds almost immediately.

The other two men, Messrs. Olson and Warner were also thrown out of the wagon but were not injured to any serious extent.

Mr. Blagen was hauling store goods for one of the up-country stores and was at the time of the accident seated on top of a number of grocery boxes, and was thrown from a considerable height.

The deceased was at the time of his death about 60 years of age and leaves besides his wife, three sons to survive him.

WAS A SUCCESS

Large Crowds Gather at Holt Celebration Saturday.

Saturday was market day at Holt. Despite the weather conditions, which were not altogether of the most desirable sort, a large crowd is reported as having been present and the event proved quite a success in every way.

Quite an amount of disappointment was manifested owing to the absence of Governor Eberhart, who was secured to deliver an address on that day by the Holt Commercial Club but was unable to keep his appoinment owing to business elsewhere. Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, and members of the drainage commission delivered addresses to the satisfaction of their hearers.

A number of local people went up on the Great Northern, returning on the afternoon train.

BADLY WANTED

Not for Jail Breaking, But to Perform Important Public Duty.

Yesterday the Gazette received the following telegram from Des Moines, Iowa, News:

"G. S. Gibertson, Des Moines, who is in your town, is wanted here to act as arbitrator to settle street car strike which will be called unless he accepts the place. A strike means business calamity for Des Moines. 600 men will walk out unless he is heard from and accepts. Will you have one of your men find him and get a rush reply to the News as to whether he will serve or not."

During the afternoon several messages were received from prominent Iowa citizens, one from Gov. Carrol, one from Senator A. B. Cummins, and several others, all urging Mr. Gilbertson to accept the important trust. These messages were addressed to Mr. Gilbertson in care of V. M. Higinbotham. A strenuous effort was made to find Mr. Gilbertson. He was finally located at Thief River. He had gone to Thief River over the Soo Line, intending to come to Red Lake Falls later.

Mr. Gilbertson has returned to Iowa. Everybody who reads this will hope that he may be able to straighten out the tangle and prevent what seemed like an impending business calamity in the Iowa city.

Mr. Gilbertson is former state treasurer of Iowa and is evidently a man whose fair mindedness has won him much public confidence. Mr. Gilbertson has intended coming to Red Lake Falls for a visit with V. M. Higinbotham, they having been old friends in Iowa.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

MINNESOTA WINS

$500 Dairy Cup For Best Butter at at International Show.

Minnesota has scored again in the dairy line and has won first honors at the International Dairy Show held at Milwaukee.

F. W. McIntosh, Secretary of the state dairy and food commission returned last week from Milwaukee and brought with him the $500 silver cup awarded as the trophy for the best exhibit of butter at the meeting of the International Dairy Show Ass'n.

The cup was won in competition with Oregon, North Dakota, South Dakota, Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, New York, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Wisconsin.

REFORM RULES

Regulations Suggested By Federal Official Approved By State Commissioner.

Requirements of an ideal dairy, from the standpoint of E. H. Bothell of the federal dairy and food department, have been listed on a card which will be circulated among Minnesota dairymen as a part of the state dairy and food department campaign for pure milk. The card contains the list of requirements in the order of their relative value. Joel J. Winjer, state commissioner said recently that the price of milk had much to do with the improvements which could be adopted by dairymen, but that many of the improvements recommended by the federal expert were simple and inexpensive. Mr. Bothell has left for Washington.

"The state department will take up the work of instituting the reforms proposed by Mr. Bothell," said Mr. Winjer. "Clean pails, clean barns and proper care of cows are not beyond the reach of the poorest dairyman. These things will be made compulsory, although the department is now handicapped with a small working force."

INTERESTING LECTURE

Victor L. Berger Delivered Humorous and Interesting Lecture Monday Evening.

Despite Strenuous Efforts Crowd Failed to Come Up to Expectation.

The lecture of Victor L. Berger, the first entertaining feature on the Lyceum course, took place last Monday evening at the Auditorium, and while the attendance was not what it could have been expected at an event of this kind, the lecture was very well received.

Mr. Berger chose an academic topic as a subject of his lecture, and touched only lightly on the fundemental principals of Socialism. His ideas were expressed in a plain and straightforward way and all through was seething with good humor.

Mr. Berger departed on the 10:20 Soo Flyer that evening for Minneapolis enroute to Milwaukee which made it necessary for him to make his lecture as brief as possible, but not in the least less interesting.

Despite the efforts of the committee in charge of the Lyceum bureau in advertising Mr. Berger's lecture here extensively the attendance even though ordinarily large failed to come up to expectations.

Communities of West Exhibit at Land Show.

Announcement is made from St. Paul that the following sections and communities of the American Northwest will have special exhibits at the land show to be given in St. Paul in December under the auspices of the Northwest Development League:

Yellowstone Valley, Bitter Root Valley, Lakes Region of North Dakota, Galletin Valley, Northern Minnesota, Helena, Mont., Great Falls, Mont., Southern Idaho, Spokane Valley, Northern Idaho, Central Oregon, Flat Head District, Red River Valley, Judith Basin, Wenatchee District, James River Valley, The Musselshell District, Western Montana, Sun River District, The DesChutes and Crooked River Valleys, The Black Hills District of South Dakota.

In addition to these the northwest will be represented by extensive exhibits to be made by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific, the Northwestern Lines and the Duluth & Iron Range Railroads.

Preparation of these exhibits has been under way for months while it has required almost a year for the commissioners to collect the Alaska exhibit.

These special exhibits will supplement the displays to be made officially by each of the seven states and will greatly assist in the realization of the managers to "bring the American Northwest to the prospective home seekers and settlers of the middle west."

While there have been half a dozen so called land show enterprises in the field, all claiming for their object the exploitation of the west and northwest, the communities of the northwest have stood almost solidly behind the show to be held in St. Paul because it is really their own show. Different from any other land show the exhibition of western products to be given in St. Paul is one which the commercial clubs and transportation companies or the northwest have planned and on which no private interest stands any chance of making a cent. The large amount of space in the show has been sold at such a small expense that the management is in a position to spend $10,000 advertising the enterprise to get people to attend and see the exhibits.

COMPLETE WORK

Drainage Commission Finish Work of Inspecting Ditches.

Members of the State Drainage Commission who have been inspecting the large ditches in Marshall and Roseau counties finished the work last week and passed through this city in their special car enroute to Crookston Saturday evening.

Among the party was Prof. Frazer, soil expert, of the state agricultural college, who has been gathering soil samples for exhibition at the St. Paul land show, which will be held in December.

Gov. Eberhart who was also with the party on the tour of inspection returned last Friday.

The commission seem highly elated over the work done and the report will be forthcoming in a short time.

WELL ATTENDED

Barnum, the Hypnotist, Played to Large House Last Week.

Barnum, the hypnotist, closed his weeks engagement at the Auditorium last Sunday evening. The performances throughout the week were well attended and the crowds seemingly were pleased.

The feature of Mr. Barnum's work was humorous sketches by his subjects, but his scientific tests, also, are considered very good.

His first scientific test put on here was the sleep of 50 hours by one of his subjects in the show window of Langseth's Mercantile Co's. store; Mr. Barnum having put his subject to sleep over the telephone while in Staples. Other two tests of a similar nature were put on, one a three hour endurance bicycle ride and one of three hours of continuous piano playing by two of his subjects.

On Saturday night Mr. Barnum delivered an address on the gossip club, and to Mr. Barnum's credit it can be truthfully said that he had summed up a whole lot of logic in treating his audience to his ideas of that particular institution.

Mr. Barnum left with his company for Grand Forks Monday where he has an engagement this week.

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

CONFESSES DOUBLE MURDER

James Dygart, Under Arrest for Anoka County Crime, Coolly Recites Details of Affair.

In a full confession to Sheriff John Casey of Anoka county, James Dygart told of the manner in which he murdered Mrs. Amelia Bolton and Frank Edward Rhodes on the Bolton farm near Stacy, Anoka county, on Sept. 12, according to the Anoka county officer. Dygart told the officer that he did not want his parents to go to the expense of fighting the case for him and then told in detail of the crime of which he is accused.

But little of the confession was made public by the officials. They explained that Dygart told them that on the morning of Sept. 12 he had been out hunting with Bolton's rifle, he having been in the field where Rhodes was working and reaching the house about noon. At this time he was not working for Bolton, having left on the previous Thursday.

Dygart said he entered the front door of the Bolton farmhouse, went through the rear and left the gun standing behind a kitchen door. Then he went out again. Later he entered by way of the kitchen door, where Mrs. Bolton was churning butter. She was standing with her back toward him, and he picked up the rifle and, he said, without any motive whatever, shot her from behind, the bullet penetrating her heart.

The Killing of Rhodes.

After killing the woman he said he took the rifle and went around the side of the house, where he waited for the return of Rhodes from the field. When Rhodes came along he fired, but only wounded him in the leg. Then he fired again and Rhodes dropped. Once more he shot and then went up to the body. Then the body was dragged to the potato patch and buried.

Going back to the house he shoved the body of Mrs. Bolton to the cellar, which he opened, and threw the body downstairs. He went downstairs and straightened out the clothing. All this, he says, was done during the noon hour.

Dygart was asked as to the motive for the Anoka county crime.

"I don't know why I did it," he answered, "I just did it because I felt like it. I really don't know why."

Sheriff Casey said that Dygart told him later that two hours before the crime Dygart had asked Mrs. Bolton to live with him and that she had refused.

Confesses a Third Murder.

Scarcely finished with the shocking details of the Anoka county tragedy Dygart confessed to a third murder.

According to the Minneapolis police, in whose custody Dygart is, "Jim" said he killed John Hofstedt, a farmer, at Poplar, Wis., June 27 last, because he had been repulsed by Mrs. Hofstedt.

"Jim" said, according to the police, that he had also planned to kill Mrs. Hofstedt and her twenty-year-old son, but did not because he could not find them alone at an opportune time. After shooting the farmer in the back Dygart threw Hofstedt in a well.

Sheriff Edward McKinnon of Douglas county, Wis., and Archibald McKay, county attorney, who went to Minneapolis as soon as they heard of Dygart's arrest, were present when the confession was made.

STAPLES HEADS ASSOCIATION

Convention of State Railroad Commissioners Elects Officers.

Charles F. Staples of Minnesota, a member of the state railroad and warehouse commission, was elected president of the National Association of Railroad Commissioners at Washington. The honor came to Commissioner Staples unsolicited. He was elected by a unanimous vote. For the past year Mr. Staples has been the vice president of the national association. He was succeeded in this position by O. P. Gothlin of Ohio. H. Warner Hill of Georgia was named second vice president. William H. Connelly of North Dakota was re-elected secretary and William Kilpatrick of Illinois was named to succeed himself as assistant secretary.

IRELAND LAUDS PRESIDENT

Speaks at Gibbons' Celebration at Baltimore.

Archbishop John Ireland of St. Paul was one of the principal speakers at the celebration held in the Baltimore cathedral in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the ordination of Cardinal Gibbons to the priesthood. Archbishop Ireland responded to the toast, "The President."

He said President Taft had not discriminated against Catholics and that, while he had given them no more than their due, they were grateful to him.

Archbishop Ireland spoke in glowing terms of President Taft, whom he characterized as a man who was always willing to do right when a thing appeared right to him.

HAS RIGHT TO USE THE LASH

Legal Points Ruled on in Red Wing Training School Case.

C. Louis Weeks, assistant attorney general, has given his decision to the state board of control on a number of legal questions set before him by the board in connection with the investigation into the conduct of Superintendent F. A. Whittier of the Red Wing training school.

The assistant attorney general holds that Superintendent Whittier has the authority to punish the school inmates as he sees fit. However, he cites a rigid rule which says the punishment must be administered in a moderate and reasonable manner. Then he says a punishment may be considered moderate and reasonable if there is no malice in the punishment and if permanent injury does not result from it. He says that no specific number of blows can be designated as cruel or immoderate punishment. He also says that discrimination must be made between sexes in the administration of punishment.

"If," said Mr. Weeks, after defining lawful punishment as moderate and reasonable, "Mr. Whittier went beyond that limit, he violated the law and is guilty of such misconduct as warrants his ouster."

FOUND DEAD NEAR DULUTH

Man Who Paid Unwelcome Attentions to Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

The dead body of Dr. John Jackola, the prominent Duluth physician who has been missing since June 21, was found in the woods a short distance east of that city by Andrew Johnson and Peter Nelson. The find was accidental, but clears up a mystery which has confronted Duluth for some months.

Many searches had been made before, but without success. Dr. Jackola was a Finnish doctor who had established a large practice in Duluth. He was one of the leading physicians of that city but was known to be quite eccentric. During late years he has been a friend of woman's suffrage and this spring delivered several lectures to clubs in New York and Brooklyn.

While in the East he sprang into notoriety, because of his connection with Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. Because of his persistence in paying uninvited attention to this society leader and the sending of sentimental poetry she caused his arrest. Upon his promise to desist he was released.

SCORE SAVED BY FIREMEN

Carried Down Ladders From Burning St. Paul Hotel.

Twenty lodgers at the Park hotel at St. Paul, a three-story frame building, were taken down ladders and through a skylight during a fire that endangered their lives.

A number of those rescued by firemen were partly overcome by smoke, but all were resuscitated, suffering no permanent injury.

The fire broke out on the ground floor, presumably from matches in a storeroom. The two upper floors were quickly cut off by dense smoke.

Men, scantily clad, were calling from windows for help when the fire apparatus arrived. Ladders were raised to nearly every window, firemen carrying the frightened people to the street.

Several firemen got on the roof and opening the skylight assisted half a dozen men to safety.

The building was damaged to the extent of $5,000.

RATE CASES SET BY COURT

Suits of Minnesota and Other States Come Up on Jan. 8.

By its own initiative the supreme court of the United States reassigned all the state railroad cases, involving conflicts between state and interstate rates, for hearing as one case on Jan. 8 next. This affects cases from Minnesota, Kentucky, West Virginia, Missouri and Oregon.

The so called "hard coal case," another governmental "trust busting" suit, was at the head of the list for consideration.

The "hard coal cases" originated in a dissolution suit begun in the United States circuit court for Eastern Pennsylvania against the principal railroads carrying anthracite coal and coal owning companies. A general conspiracy to reduce competition in the transportation and sale of coal was charged and in addition a number of special conspiracies by various groups of defendants were charged.

MINNESOTA AWARDED PRIZE

State Takes First on Butter Exhibit at Milwaukee.

The National Buttermakers' association, in session at Milwaukee, officially declared Minnesota butter to be the best made in the United States and awarded this state the silver cup, valued at $500.

The decision of the judges, who are federal inspectors and who have no interest in any state, places Minnesota buttermakers in a class by themselves, although they have won banners and prizes for eleven years with the exception of two years, when the championship went to New York and Illinois respectively.

Because Wife Sought Divorce.

August Ilabet, a pioneer resident of Traverse county, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head. No cause can be assigned for the deed except the pendency of his wife's divorce suit.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

No state of the Union surpasses Minnesota in the number of high schools which give instruction in agricultural subjects. Under the help given by the legislature eighty-eight high schools have trained agriculturalists teaching the boys and girls more about farm work. In addition to regular courses these schools will offer a short course of four weeks to the farmer boys who cannot go to school all the time.

An inquiry has just been set in motion by Attorney General Simpson of Minnesota that may restore to the state a tract of land in the Mesabi region that is believed to be of great value. The land in question is embraced in what is known as the Mountain Iron mine. It has been mined by the United States Steel corporation. Large quantities of ore have been taken from this mine.

More than 10,000,000 tons less iron ore will be mined in Minnesota this year than last, according to statements made by members of the Minnesota tax commission, who have returned to St. Paul from an inspection trip on the Mesaba range. Instead of taking 28,000,000 tons from the mines not more than 18,000,000 will be removed.

County Attorney Richard D. O'Brien of Ramsey county is now included in the charges recently filed with Governor Eberhart against Mayor H. P. Keller, Chief of Police John J. O'Connor and the members of the St. Paul board of police commissioners by James Manahan, attorney for the Methodist Laymen's association.

Contrary to the wishes and advice of James J. Hill, the Minneapolis Union depot committee of one hundred, appointed a year ago, has decided "to procure a Union station for the city of Minneapolis, employing such method as in the judgment of a sub-committee of fifteen the situation might require.

The farmers of Clay county, with Barnesville as the principal shipping point, will get over $900,000 for their potatoes this year. Farmers in one month sent out sixty-five carloads at 67 cents a bushel. Farmers say it is one of the best paying crops they have.

The colleges of Minnesota will have to begin to teach practical subjects or they will be able no longer to furnish instructors for the high schools and other secondary schools in this state, according to George B. Aiton, state high school inspector.

Governor Eberhart has signed an order removing County Attorney John Kinsella of Lake county. The order was sent to Kinsella, who has been under suspension pending a hearing on charges of misconduct.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Alleged use of the "third degree" in the form of hypnotic influence by Minneapolis police authorities on Albert G. Smith, alleged pyromaniac, to force a confession, is the reason given by a jury for its verdict of "not guilty" in the charge of arson against Smith. Smith was charged with starting about twenty fires in Minneapolis.

Mabel Bowers, eleven years old, and Keith Bowers, fourteen years old, are dead at Minneapolis from mushroom poisoning. Mrs. Tillie Bowers, the mother, is seriously ill from eating the fungi, but physicians hope to save her.

Twelve freight cars were smashed into bits of kindling when a freight train on the Rock Island crashed into a line of box cars at Clarks Grove, a suburb of Owatonna. The fireman and engineer escaped injury by jumping.

Fire in the heart of the business district of Caledonia wrecked a business block and for a time threatened the entire town. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Special Municipal Judge W. R. Geddes of Mankato is dead at the Rochester hospital. He was operated on recently for cancer of the stomach and Brights disease. He was sheriff of Blue Earth county some years ago and edited the Mankato Register until it was sold to the Free Press. He then studied law.

Dr. Harry W. Clark died suddenly at his home in Minneapolis of heart failure. He went home from his office complaining of feeling ill and a few minutes later died. Dr. Clark was born in Bedford, Mass., about fifty years ago. He had been a resident of Minneapolis for twenty-five years.

Attorney George W. Stewart, member of the firm of Stewart & Brower of St. Cloud and one of the prominent attorneys of Central Minnesota, dropped dead at Pleasant lake, where he went in company with his son Donald to hunt. Death was caused by heart trouble.

Frank Moore of Minneapolis died at an Owatonna hotel from an overdose of morphine. Moore, who was about twenty-five years old, went to Owatonna a short time ago to work for a nursery.

Orrin D. Kinney, banker, mine owner and well known former resident of Duluth, is dead at his home at Athens, Pa., where he had lived for the last five years.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The Chinese rebels have been unable to maintain order at Hankow and business has been suspended completely there and at Hanyang and Wuchang. The working classes are without employment and are attempting to plunder. It is reported that rebels are proceeding northward to meet the imperial troops and that 1,000 troops in the province of Honan, adjoining the disaffected province of Hupeh, also are prepared to resist the imperials.

The Duke of Connaught was formally welcomed to Canadian shores at Quebec and shortly after he was sworn in as governor general. As he landed at the King's dock twenty-one guns at the citadel boomed out across the St. Lawrence, while thousands of loyal citizens took up the echo of the cannon and cheer after cheer passed along the crowded line of procession to the parliament building.

The revolutionary movement in China is gaining momentum with every hour. It has swept the little city of Wuchang, and the native headquarters of Hankow. Great numbers of Chinese are joining the movement voluntarily. The losses in the fighting thus far aggregate several hundred, but practically all the dead are Manchus.

Fighting for the possession of the little town of Chiapilla, Mex., held by insurrectos whose strength was estimated at 900, a force of volunteers numbering but 190 killed 130 rebels and captured 106, eighteen of whom were wounded. The loss to the government forces is given as less than a dozen killed.

China today faces an unprecedented crisis. With the spread of revolutionary activity the opinion is gaining ground that the fate of the dynasty hangs in the balance. The revolution no longer is confined to the central provinces, a thousand miles away from the capital. Peking itself is threatened.

The attempted counter revolution in Portugal has failed. The royalists, disappointed in their hopes that the people would rise and join them, have been driven back to the frontier, leaving several hundred prisoners in the hands of the government forces.

News has reached Peking that the Chinese revolutionaries have captured Wuchang, the capital of the province of Hupor. The commander of the troops defending the city was killed by a bomb and the viceroy escaped only by hasty flight.

Pursued by an enraged posse bent on lynching him, Charles W. Luke sought hiding in a vacant house at Forget, Sask., and ended his life with a revolver shot. A few hours previously he had sent a bullet into his wife's heart.

The official report of the progress of the revolution in Northern Mexico states that thirty revolutionists were killed and seventy were injured in a battle at Chalpas.

Delayed advices have been received that eighteen persons were killed by the storm which swept the western coast of Sonora, Mex. Many more are missing.

Ten men were killed and many others injured by a cavein at a Canadian Northwestern construction camp near Colwood, B. C.

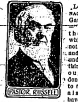
SANER VIEWS OF BAPTISM NOW HELD

Baptism Not a Fire Insurance, Says Pastor Russell.

Pastor Russell Repudiates the Theories of the Dark Ages and Advises God's People to Return to the Teachings of the Lord and the Apostles.



PASTOR RUSSELL

LONDON TABERNACLE, Lancaster Gate W., Nov. 5.—"We have done those things which we ought not to have done, and we have left undone those things which we ought to have done." All agree to this and agree also that "we have believed many things which we ought not to have believed and have left unbelieved many things which we ought to have believed," said Pastor Russell.

Saner Views Now Held

Christian-Disciples still theoretically say that everybody not immersed in water is still in sin and bound for eternal torture, although this is not the logic of their teachings. Our Baptist friends no longer believe that only those who have been immersed in water constitute the one "Church of the living God whose names are written in heaven," and that these alone will be saved. Nevertheless, this is still the Baptist theory, and for this reason our Baptist friends still invite only the immersed to the Lord's Supper. Evidently the Apostolic teaching of Baptism got lost. Human speculation and theories buried it in rubbish. In Tertullian's day the Disciple view prevailed, that water baptism cleansed from sin. At that time it was customary to postpone baptism until death was supposed to be near—that all sins up to date might be washed away. Thus it was in Constantine's day. Later came St. Augustine with a different proposition, which swept everything before it. His claim was more nearly that of the Baptists, that only the Church would be saved from eternal torture and that baptism is the door into the Church. Thereafter infant immersion became popular.

Later our Roman Catholic friends declared immersion unnecessary—that a few drops of water would be equally efficacious as protection against the fires of eternal torture. Sentiment ran so strong that it became the custom to perform a sprinkling of an unborn child—in utero—if there were any fear that it would not be born alive.

"John's Baptism" Not For Us

Repudiating all the theories of the Dark Ages, God's people should return to the instructions given by the Lord and the Apostles. A careful examination shows not a single reference to infant baptism in the New Testament. On the contrary, only believers were instructed to be baptized.

Two baptisms are noted, "John's Baptism" and Christ's. The first was for the remission of sins and was applicable to all Jews. By it such Jews as had been living in open sin renounced the sin, and returned to harmony with God, under the Law Covenant. Such as thus sincerely returned to Moses were ready to accept Christ as the antitype and by faith were transferred from Moses to Christ—from the house of servants to the house of sons. (Heb. iii, 5, 6.) These at Pentecost became really, officially recognized as the Church of Christ.

Subsequently Gentiles were invited to be baptized into membership in the Body of Christ, the Church. "John's Baptism" was not preached to them because they did not belong to the holy nation which originally was "baptized into Moses in the sea and cloud." The Gentiles, on the contrary, were aliens, strangers, to the commonwealth of Israel. They were not to come into Christ, through Moses, but to be baptized directly into Christ.

Gentiles Baptized Into Christ

The true theory of Baptism does not exclude saintly Methodists, Presbyterians, Congregationalists, Lutherans, Catholics, from the one, true Church which is the Body of Christ; neither does it admit to membership in the true Church all who have been immersed into water. Water immersion is merely the symbol or picture of the real immersion. In order to be members of Christ, members of the Church which is the Body of Christ, we must be immersed into Him, but not by water immersion. Hearken to the Apostle's statement: "So many of you as were baptized into Jesus Christ (into membership in His Body, the Church) were immersed into His death." (Romans vi, 3.)

Our immersion into Christ's death begins with the consecration of our wills, our hearts, our all. Then and there God through Christ accepts the consecration and we are reckoned dead according to the flesh and begotten of the Holy Spirit to newness of life as New Creatures in Christ. When the last member of this consecrated "little flock" shall have passed into death the baptism of the Church into Christ's death will be completed and all the faithful ones will then share in "His resurrection" to glory, honor and immortality—"the first (or chief) resurrection."

"His death" was different from the death of others in that He did not die as a "sinner, but as a Sacrifice." Our being baptized into His death signifies that the Church also dies, not as sinners, but as sacrifices.

Notwithstanding the fact that so much is written and spoken about this "back to the land" movement, over 45,000,000 of the more than 90,000,000 people who live in this country reside in towns of 2,500 or over, and the proportion of town dwellers seems to be on the increase rather than decrease.

A lot of farmers, who have all the way from $1,000 to $3,000 of stock and farm machinery to dispose of at an auction sale, often make the serious mistake of underadvertising the affair, forgetting that if a dollar or two put into an extra 200 or 300 bills brings even one live bidder to the sale the additional amount spent for publicity comes back with compound interest. Going short on advertising is like skimping the seed for fertile soil.

A rather remarkable instance of rapid tree growth has been noted in the case of some soft maple trees to be found in northern Fremont county, just east of the Missouri river, in southern Iowa. From seeds that were planted in 1854 trees have grown to an exceptional size. One measures seventeen feet six inches in circumference, another sixteen feet six inches, while a number measure from ten to sixteen feet in circumference. Such growth can only be explained on most favorable soil and climatic conditions.

While the fact is seldom mentioned, the object of the reclamation service is not only to put water on land barren and unproductive through lack of rainfall, but to remove the surplus moisture by drainage from soils almost equally unproductive. It has been estimated by experts in charge of the government reclamation service that whereas there are 40,000,000 acres of arid land still to be watered there are 80,000,000 acres of swamp and overflow land which can be drained and made productive by putting the reverse principle into operation.

Some idea of the magnitude of the irrigation work which has been undertaken by the national government is gained from recent reports, which show that from the passage in 1902 of the law authorizing these irrigation enterprises up to the present there has been expended $70,000,000, while $48,000,000 will be available for use during the next four years. As soon as the tracts on which this money is to be expended are put under ditch and sold the money received will be returned to the fund, to be used in similar manner for the development of other enterprises.

The writer makes no claim to being a crop forecaster and particularly of the long distance kind, but is inclined to think that with all kinds of fruits in such prodigal abundance this season it is more than likely that a good many vines, bushes and trees will take more or less of a layoff next year. For this reason it would not be a bad idea for the provident housewife to lay by this season a generous store of such fruits as are still available, including grapes, peaches, pears, etc. It is not likely that in another decade will fruits of all kinds be as plentiful and cheap as they have been this season.

As showing how the big state fairs bear definite fruit along the line of better agricultural methods may be cited the organization of the alfalfa order during the Wisconsin state fair. A meeting was called of all fair visitors interested in the growing of alfalfa, and officers were elected to hold office for a year. This new association will work in connection with the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment association. Any person who has taken a course in agriculture or is interested in the growing of alfalfa may become a member by paying 25 cents. Notwithstanding the modest membership fee, much good is bound to come from the organization.

If the south is prosperous during the coming twelvemonth the reason will not be far to seek, for it has just marketed the most valuable cotton crop in its history. Some facts in connection therewith are full of interest. The value of the crop, including the seeds is placed at $1,030,000,000, which is $254,000,000 more than was realized from the bumper crop of 1908-09, notwithstanding the fact that the latter crop was the larger by 1,700,000 bales. Another interesting feature is that all of the crop has found its way to the mill at uniformly high prices in spite of the fact that the season's output is 1,500,000 bales larger than last year. For the crop just harvested the grower has received an average of 14.00 cents per pound, or $73.00 per bale.

If the field beans were retarded in growth during the drought and are inclined to be late in drying out one can hasten the process by pulling the crop at once. This will tend to reduce loss by mildew or rotting after the beans are stacked.

The remarkable productivity of the present season is shown in no more interesting way than in the unusual number of little bright red apples which the wild rose bushes are carrying. Never do we remember having seen so many of them.

Some one has well said that the great need of rural communities all over the land is more homes and fewer farms, and he might have added that the greatest need of the myriad towns and cities of the country is also more homes and fewer houses—just places to feed and roost.

It is well worth while for busy folks, whether in town or on the farm, to take a day or a part of day off for a picnic in the woods before the colder and disagreeable weather sets in. The enjoyment to be got during such an outing would be sufficient reward for the effort, but this is not all—it will furnish many a recollection of the hours thus wholesomely spent. Folks would be better, be happier and live longer if they had more of such outings. They relieve the vexation and tension of our busy lives and do us much good.

Mrs. Belmont's widely advertised experiment of trying to teach a limited number of young women the science of housekeeping and farming so that later they might be able to develop homesteads of their own without the aid of the masculine gender has not been a great success. If the views of one of these precious farmerettes can be taken as indicative of the reason for the failure of the experiment it seems to be due to the fact that the girls missed the companionship of young men, had to do too much dirty work and had no butter, but only gravy, on the table for dinner.

Here is a problem in addition for every boy between the ages of ten and fourteen years; given—any individual boy as he is now. What he is a dozen years hence will be what he is now plus what he puts into his life—heart, head and hand—in this short interval. His habits of life will then be well formed and his ambitions and ideals have a pretty definite bent. Whether he amounts to anything at the end of the next dozen years—is a man in the best sense of the word or just a human scrub—is the problem that every boy has on his hands for solution. His parents and teachers can help some, but in the main it is up to him. What will his answer be?

In a recent issue of this department there was a paragraph replying to a reader who thought he had seen a statement in these notes as to the possibility of making butter from skimmilk. In characterizing it the phrase was used, "It is as impossible as it is to make a whistle out of a pig's tail." Within a few days a reader of the department who lives at Puyallup, Wash., states that this phrase no longer has force, as a fellow who lives in Michigan has made splendid whistles out of pigs' tails. He first carefully removed the bone, then stretched the skin over a stick and when cured varnished it. He later removed the stick, inserted a short plug in its place and cut a hole in the dry skin just back of the plug. Our correspondent says this made an excellent whistle. Next!

Following a pretty droughty season, a good many who have built houses the past summer will want to get a catch of grass this fall on their grounds. While a good step may be made in this direction if conditions are favorable by giving the area a top dressing of rich mellow earth and seeding with the prepared lawn grass mixture, the writer has found from his own experience and that of others that a much surer way is to supplement this seeding by planting chunks of blue grass sod six or eight inches square at intervals of three or four feet each way. One of the finest and quickest lawns we ever saw—a small one—was established at once by covering the entire area with a good thick sod and watering liberally. However, where the smaller pieces of sod are used at intervals a sod is soon obtained, and much sooner than is possible with the seeding alone.

Some time ago the writer suggested through a paragraph in these notes to a young man in Illinois who was anxious to get a start in an agricultural way the wisdom of looking into the opportunities available in connection with some of the government's western irrigation enterprises. These tracts cost the homestead value of the land—about $1.50 per acre plus the actual cost of the water right, which varies in different enterprises from $35 to $50 per acre. The great advantages in buying such government tracts are, first, that when a fellow buys a water right he gets so much water, not blue sky or hot air, and, secondly, he is given ten years in which to make payment, and that without interest on deferred payments. Tracts in the Huntley project in Idaho have this season cleared their owners $50 per acre in the growing of sugar beets, enough to cover the entire purchase price of the land. Many a young fellow who has saved up a nest egg and wants to get away from the bad air and cramped conditions of shop or factory and get a home on the land would do well to look into some of these government projects.

BOND ISSUES FOR BETTER ROADS

The practice of issuing bonds by counties and states to provide at once large funds for use in the building of permanent roads is coming more and more into favor among those who have made any serious study of effective methods of highway improvement. There are many sections in which the details of the bonding plan is not understood and where its advantages over the slipshod, piecemeal, hand to mouth methods at present in vogue are not rightly appreciated. To make the chief points of the new plan clear we give herewith some details of the issue of bonds which have just been voted on in Jackson county, in southern Oregon, roughly the territory comprised by the celebrated Rogue river valley. For a generation past the usual slovenly and wasteful methods of carrying on road work have been followed. This expenditure has increased until in 1910 it was $900,742, on an assessed property valuation of $5,000,000. Under this system at the present rate of building but three miles of permanent macadamized roads could be built annually, the bulk of the money raised each year being used in the continual repair of dirt roads, which during the rainy season from November to March are beyond the power of words to describe. The plan just voted on authorizes the issuance at once of $1,500,000 in bonds, all of which is available immediately in the building of permanent good roads. On the basis of macadamized roads already completed this means that, instead of sixty miles of macadamized roads at the end of twenty years, the county will have between 300 and 350 miles, and that just as soon as men and teams can build them. So much as to the mileage of good roads available under the old and the new plans.

These good roads bonds run for twenty years and bear 4 per cent interest, payable semiannually. To pay these bonds when due it will be only necessary to raise $100,000 annually for twenty years. This will constitute a sinking fund, and out of it the interest on the bonds will be met annually. The balance loaned out on 6 per cent farm mortgages and interest compounded will amount at the time when the bonds are due to the million and a half required to pay the face of the bonds. A slight additional levy will be made to cover cost of upkeep of the present, but this will be but a fraction of the amount spent each year in the futile effort to keep dirt roads in repair. The bond method gives permanent roads, gives all that are needed and the great advantage of the use of them at once, while it is fair to assume that the rise in the value of property adjacent to such highways would represent a value far exceeding the total issue of bonds required to build them. Many sections have the "good roads" problem on their hands more than others, but where any serious thought is given to the building of permanent roads the bond issue method is far and away the most sensible and economical plan possible. It has already been adopted by New York and Texas as a settled road policy, the counties and townships co-operating with the state in the good road work.

SOME POSSIBILITIES OF ALFALFA.

The other day the writer ran across the report of the returns which a farmer living in Fremont, the southwest county of Iowa, had realized this season from a fourteen and a half acre patch of alfalfa. The conditions to be found in the county referred to are such as prevail in Missouri and in eastern Kansas and Nebraska, which we mention to show that soil and climatic conditions were not unique or exceptional. The man in question, a Mr. Thiessen, got two cuttings of a ton and a half each per acre. The third growth of the legume he allowed to go to seed and from this secured a yield of six bushels per acre. Figuring his alfalfa hay worth $10 per ton and three-quarters of a ton of alfalfa straw worth $7 and the alfalfa seed worth $11 per bushel, the present price, the gross return from this land is seen to be $103 per acre, or $1,493.50. There is little question that these figures can be beaten by scores of farmers living farther west and south, yet they are quoted to show the possibilities of this wonderful legume when it is given a fair tryout. It would be an interesting question to decide the value of land that will give a gross return of $103 per acre. In view of such returns it is no wonder land prices are mounting up toward the $250 mark.

ABOUT FRESH AIR.

The dumpy condition of a whole lot of folks during the winter months in northern latitudes is not so much due to inherited weakness or lack of constitutional vigor as to the simple fact of not taking enough fresh air into the lungs during the twenty-four hours of every day to properly oxidize the blood. This morbid condition of blood affects every organ in the body, hinders the work of the stomach, liver and kidneys and plays smash all around. Folks whose blood is in the condition mentioned are in just the same pickle as the lamp with the stale wick and smoky chimney. The way to correct the trouble with the human being is to sleep with windows open at night and to give the living rooms of the house a thorough airing at least once a day unless it is provided with a scientific ventilating system. Fresh air is cheaper than doctor bills, but it is mighty hard to make some folks believe it.

The large number of candidates in the field, and possibly more to follow, makes the city campaign take on a bright aspect, and it is safe to say there will be "doings" galore in the political potpourri at the fall election. With three candidates coming out for the mayorship, a like number for municipal judge and from two to three aldermanic candidates for the different wards and at large no one is justified in getting lonesome while making his political race. Only a few of the many candidates have as yet filed their petitions with the city clerk as the last day for filing will be Saturday, Oct. 28; and then the contest begins in earnest and will wage warmer as the political melodrama progresses, and lastly the curtain goes down for refreshments and a stroll in the lobby.

A SHORT COURSE

Five Months "Short Course" at Lincoln H. S. For 1911-12.

A term of five months, to be known as the "Short Course", will begin at the Lincoln High School building in Thief River Falls on Monday, October 30th.

The course will be open to all young people over sixteen years of age in this and adjoining counties, who for various reasons cannot attend school but part of the school year. No qualifications except that as to age are necessary to enroll. There are no charges of any kind for this course and all books, supplies and other school material are furnished free.

Students will be permitted to begin the daily recitations at any hour that suits their convenience, though it is suggested that they start at nine o'clock. Those from the country having chores to perform may be dismissed at an early hour in the afternoon.

The studies will consist of lessons in ordinary English, including a study of composition and the commonest forms of the language; practical arithmetic and its application to the affairs of every day life; the keeping of accounts and a study of ordinary business forms; spelling, writing and typewriting if desired; cooking and sewing for girls; iron and wood work for the boys, and this includes the making of articles for service in the home and on the farm; agriculture. The last named subject will be particularly emphasized for the benefit of the students who are interested in agricultural pursuits.

All the departments in the school are well equipped with books, material and machinery for the presentation of the proposed work. A special teacher has been hired to assist the regular teachers with the special course studies. The wood working shop is large and complete and the equal of anything in the northwestern part of the state. A new blacksmith shop has been recently built and is at the service of all students desiring to take this work. The agriculture department now occupies three rooms and is ready to do most efficient work. All other departments are prepared in similar manner for service.

The students enrolling for the short course will receive credit on the regular school records for what they accomplish, and they will not be prohibited from entering any grammar grade or high school classes for which they have the necessary preparation. All literary, class and athletic organizations are open to the short course students.

Many girls can secure places to work their board in good homes in this city and thus reduce the expense of attending the school to a minimum. Board and room at reduced rates for students can always be obtained.

The board of education cordially invites all young people in city or country who cannot attend school all the year to enroll in the short course for the whole term or at least for a portion of the work. Everything connected with the school is absolutely free. No other town in Northern Minnesota makes this generous offer.

Further information may be obtained by writing J. H. Hay, superintendent of the city schools.

School Notes.

The average annual gain in enrollment in the local schools since the year 1905 has been 72 pupils. This required the addition of two teachers each year. If this increase obtains in the future—and there is no reason to believe it will not—the next four years will demand the erection of a building to accommodate eight rooms, all filled with pupils. Today many rooms are badly crowded and the average number of children per teacher is greater in this city than in any other town in the northwestern part of the state.

Correspondence with the state high school board reveals the information that only one normal training department can be maintained in the local high school. Two such departments could have been filled last month. The local department enrolled more normal training students last year than any of the other 55 normals in the state. The course of events is compelling the conclusion that nothing less than a sixth state normal school at this point will care for the professional needs of education in northwestern Minnesota. The time has long since passed when this great northern empire can wear the educational clothes of central and southern Minnesota. This section needs something new and big enough to fit.

Rev. C. E. Boyden delivered an interesting address last week to the high school students. He discussed the need of out of door exercise and also explained the meaning of the boy scout movement. Other lectures by local people will be delivered during the school year.

The high school students have a ten minute period of strenuous exercise every forenoon. A systematic course of athletic work along similar lines is carried out in the grades.

The Aga children, who live a couple of miles southeast of town, drive to school every morning. On arriving at the Washington, they turn their horse around, tie the reins to the buggy seat and this obedient equine finds his way home alone. SCHOOL NOTES did not inquire whether this intelligent animal returned of his own accord at four for his little friends, but is certain that his morning performance is of sufficient interest to have it recorded in school history.

Modified spelling as exemplified in the last appearance of SCHOOL NOTES surely failed to recognize the suggestions of wise, old Noah Webster. It is said that the evil one has something to do with the activities of life, but in this instance several local "devils" must have become unusually busy.

The requirements of the high schools are now of such a character that "making up" work is almost an impossibility. Parents and students must learn that regular attendance is absolutely necessary if the child expects to secure satisfactory standings in the school. No guarantee can be given anyone that he will "pass" if he starts the year late or if he does not attend regularly.

There are more students now enrolled in the high school than attended all of last year.

Tyrolean Singers and Yodlers

THE TYROLEAN APLINE SINGERS AND YODLERS.

Seven Singers and Yodlers Direct From the Tyrol Alps to Appear Here.

The Lyceum has grown to such proportions that it can command the best music from any land. On the list of one Lyceum Bureau this season appear singers from Wales, England, Tyrol Alps and South Africa. And only the best are welcomed. A great novelty this season is the singers, instrumentalists and yodlers called the Tyroleans. They come direct from the Zillerthal, from the village known as Innsbruck, one of the most picturesque places in the Swiss Tyrol, the summer haunt of the Austrian royalty.

This company was one of the great surprises of the past Lyceum season and with a view to giving greater variety, instrumental music has been added to the programs. The Tyroleans appear in the picturesque national costume of their people, the most attractive in all Europe. The concert is made up of varied folk and yodel songs, sung in their native language, also songs in English in which they have become proficient through their long tours in this country and England.

Otto Fiechtl is the director, and his family has for generations been known as leading folk-singers and yodlers. Only a few years back Mr. Fiechtl, in a six days' yodel and song contest in Innsbruck, won first prize from representative yolders of the entire Tyrol land.

A member of the party is Fraulein Gross, a niece of Mr. Fiechtl, who has a soprano voice, which, in the words of the critic, Lester B. Colby, "climbs as high as the Matterhorn in a single run, and then jumps round on the crags just to show how easy it is to sing when you have the voice."

Miss Cora Genevieve Ramsden, an American reader, will manage the company, as last season, and her readings will be an added and attractive feature to the programs.

A. W. Clark, of Rollis, "father of the big ditches" was in the city last Monday and Tuesday shaking hands with his many warm friends here. Mr. Clark reports everything as progressing nicely up his way and that that county is at present enjoying the largest influx of settlers in its history. He is highly elated over the ditching operations and what they will do in laying open the finest farming lands in Minnesota. Mr. Clark always has a few new wrinkles on the political situation and the following incident he told is too good to keep: While enroute to this city Mr. Clark got into an argument with a drummer, regarding the possibilities at the coming presidental election. Mr. Clark, being a staunch republican, is a strong Taft follower, and made a wager with the drummer that the sentiment among the passengers on the train was in favor of the re-election of Taft for our next president. In order to prove his assertion correct Mr. Clark proceeded to take a straw vote of the car and bade everyone favoring Taft to raise their right hand, but as yet he has not found the solution to the problem as when the car was thoroughly canvassed Mr. Clark was the only Taft apostle there.

FILED PETITIONS

Candidates for City Offices File Petitions With City Clerk.

While a large number of petitions are in the field for city offices only a comparatively few have as yet filed their petition with the city clerk.

Up to yesterday the filings made were: For Mayor—A. M. Arpin and Lars Backe; Aldermen-at-large—J. C. Berg. 1st ward, J. H. Jacobson; second ward, Ed Krohn, 3rd ward, Joseph Johnson; 4th ward, D. K. Bryant; municipal judge, Nick Terrant and Milton Forder.

While the big majority of the outstanding petitions are complete it is thought they will not be filed until the latter part of next week, when the time for filing expires.

TO BE ENFORCED

Ordinance Regulating Payment of Water and Electric Light Dues Strictly Enforced.

At the regular meeting of the city council last Tuesday evening Supt Peterson of the water and light department was instructed to enforce the ordinance regulating the payment of due accounts.

Section 5, of city ordinance relative to water and light provides that all accounts for electric light and electric power shall become due on the first day of each month, and shall be payable not later than the 10th of each month. If not paid on or before the 10th a penalty of 10 per cent will be affixed. It also provides for a penalty of two dollars to have power installed again after an account has become delinquent.

This ordinance will be enforced to the letter hereafter.

LET BIDS FRIDAY

City Council Will Act on Bids For Power Plant Friday Evening

Bids for the erection of the auxiliary power plant and fire hall, together with separate bids for the installation of the oil power plant will be acted on by the city council at a special meeting to be held for that purpose tomorrow (Friday) evening.

The plans and specifications for the building have been drawn up by F. Doege, the local contractor, and the plans for the machinery to be installed have been prepared by Leonard Peterson. These plans have been forwarded to a number of companies who contemplate putting in bids for this work.

As soon as the bids are let the work of erecting the building will commence immediately.

The fire hall which was moved to the rear of the lots on which the building will be erected will be used for storage purposes for the street and electric light department.

Wanted--Boys to be Managers

Boys, why should you be plugging along on $5 or $6 a week when an investment of $100 or $150 in a Business College Education will double your present earning power and Put You On The Road to the Manager's desk? An increase of $5 a week in your pay means $260 a year, interest at 5 per cent on $5,200. By taking a comparatively inexpensive Business College course you add over $5,000 to your personal capital value—did you ever think of that?

Salesmanship and Advertising.

But if you go in for a business education you ought to get your eye on the Big Propositions that pay salaries of $3,000 to $5,000 a year.

Those big salaries are paid to men who can Tell Goods, who can Write Advertisements That Will Pull. You may have a talent for that sort of thing, as did one boy who at the age of 19 wrote letters which pulled $100,000 in one year, on which he got a commission of 25 per cent.

We teach you the underlying principles of Handling Human Nature so as to Get Results and Using Words so as to Make People Do Things from the day you come into our school. The very first day you touch the typewriter you are given a text entitled How to Do Business by Letter, written by the best known expert on letter salesmanship in the world, and as you practice copying exercises on the writing machine you are unconsciously absorbing the virile selling force of those successful letters. Then for a few weeks at the end of your course we give you the most vital work on salesmanship and advertising ever offered in any Business College.

Come and talk it over with me personally—I will tell you the honest facts about yourself and about our work.

While the fly furnishes meat for the spider, it is an interesting fact that the latter in turn often becomes an easy victim of the wasp.

Crop statisticians estimate that for the country as a whole the extreme July drought reduced the yield of all cereals by from 700,000,000 to 900,000,000 bushels.

Sorghum which is to be used for forage should be cut just before the first killing frost and placed in piles of from 500 to 600 pounds, where it may be allowed to remain until it is wanted.

At Cleveland on Aug. 11 Uhlan, the great trotting gelding, driven by his owner, C. K. G. Billings, made a half mile in the record time of 56¼ seconds. This breaks the record of one minute flat, held by Major Delmar and made on a Cleveland track in 1906.

That housewife made a long step in the direction of a sensible conservation of her energies who decided it was easier to prepare her vegetables and wash her dishes sitting on a stool of convenient height than when standing up. A host of other housewives might follow her example with profit.

A good deal of fun has been poked at Mrs. Russell Sage on one account or another, but she is entitled to the warm appreciation of every tiller of the soil for her gift of $15,000 to the national Audubon societies to aid in the campaign which is being waged to protect the robin during its winter sojourn in the south.

A feature of the training given the young women who attend the state university at Madison, Wis., along with the languages, mathematics and sciences, that is sensible and commendable is a gymnasium course, in which they are taught how to swim and which corrects curvature of the spine and other physical defects.

Centuries of education and civilization have failed to give human beings a veneer of culture thick enough not to be broken through by the primitive animal instinct of self preservation in a rush for safety at the cry of "Fire!" in a crowded auditorium. In such a crisis man shows not one whit more sense than does the beast.

There are a whole lot of would be religious folks who somehow fail to trace the vital connection between profession and practice and to realize the fact that if their religion does not make them kind and thoughtful and considerate in their own homes it is not worth a continental, let alone qualifying them to be of spiritual assistance to their neighbors or the heathen.

Feeding tests which have been made by a number of experiment stations indicate that the ration of ensilage for a dairy cow should be about thirty pounds, for beef cattle fifteen pounds, for wintering calves twenty, dry cows forty pounds and sheep from two to five pounds. With these figures should also be kept in mind the fact that a silo of a common dimension—16 by 30 feet—holds 120 tons of silage when settled.

With the choice and beautiful colors which have been recently developed in the phlox it has become one of the most valuable of permanent bedding plants. Besides the deep red, pink and white, there are those of a rich cream color with a pink eye and those of a bright rose color with a red eye. These plants are rather slow growers, spreading by root stalks, but are perennials and very hardy, the roots living through the winter in the open ground without difficulty.

After four years of experimenting at the national plant introduction gardens at Chico, Cal., H. E. Blanchard, the western cereal expert of the department of agriculture, has succeeded in separating a pure white seed from a variety of wheat known as chule, introduced into the United States from Turkestan. In tests recently concluded the new variety yielded from fifteen to twenty bushels per acre more than the white Australian variety, which is the accepted standard of western wheat farmers.

A pasture and woodland of 150 odd acres that the writer visited the other day have been used this season as a range for sheep. It was interesting to notice how neatly the entire area had been trimmed, as if by many lawn mowers. The only weeds that were left were the mullein, nettle and smartweed out of dozens of different varieties that are native to the locality. Never has the argument in favor of keeping sheep on the average farm been more nearly demonstrated than in the case of the farm referred to.

At one state fair that we know of prizes were offered for the most perfect little human being, along with prizes for the best animals of the different kinds. This is a move in the right direction and should be followed up.

The total area of California devoted to the growing of oranges is 103,400 acres, being divided among the southern counties as follows: San Bernardino, 40,000 acres; Los Angeles, 30,000; Riverside, 17,000; Orange, 12,000; Ventura, 8,000; San Diego county, 1,200 acres.

The postoffice department is hot on the trail of a lot of Florida real estate swindlers on the ground that they have been using the mails to defraud. Pity they did not get after the sharks in this and some other states six or eight years ago, but investors should feel gratitude that the department has got action even at the eleventh hour.

Cornstalks add considerably to the soil in way of humus, which tends to improve its physical condition, but their value in this regard is far less than their value as a ration for dairy cows and steers when cut at the proper time, properly cured and fed. More than this, all the fertilizing value the stalks had is preserved in the manure which accumulates when they are fed.

The growers of timothy are in "clover" this year, due to the fact that they are receiving all the way from $10 to $13 per hundred for their seed. The shortage, due to the past summer's drought, is responsible for the high prices. In several instances we have noted lately that a crop of timothy seed alone is netting owners from $20 to $40 per acre.

On most farms perhaps the lighter fowls, such as Leghorns, are kept, there being plenty of range for them and opportunity to pick up much food by foraging. However, others keep heavy breeds, like the Brahmas, and are equally satisfied with them. They contend that they are better winter layers, while the cockerels marketed at five months old fetch 60 instead of 30 cents apiece.

What is said to be the most massive tree (not the tallest) in the world stands in the churchyard at Mitla, Mexico. It is a tule tree and has a circumference of 146 feet. A strange thing about the tree is that its circumference has not increased perceptibly in the past 300 years. Its age is placed at several thousand years. The tree shows signs of decline and decay, but special care is being taken to perpetuate it if possible.

The exhibits of beef breeds made at state fairs within the past few weeks simply emphasize the need of such changes in the rules of judging beef cattle as will make it possible for their owners to show them in normal and breeding condition rather than in that demanded for "fat steers." It is high time that the fellows most interested—those who have valuable animals virtually ruined by getting them overfat for exhibition—registered a kick so loud that it would be heard distinctly by those having cattle exhibitions in charge.

Perhaps there is no single phase of buttermaking, aside from the utmost cleanliness of all utensils used in the handling of milk, cream and butter, that is so important as the simple matter of cooling all cream before it is added to the cream supply already on hand. The reason for this is that if warm cream is added to the cold there is set up at once a rapid souring and ripening process that is very detrimental to butter quality if it occurs any considerable time before churning. Every buttermaker knows this as a first principle, the A or B of his business. Every farmer should remember it.

Sugar is now $8 per hundredweight in New York city and on the climb. While it is the contention of the trust that this high price is due to a big shortage in the world's crop, it is contended by others who claim to know that there has never been a larger amount of sugar afloat in the channels of trade than now. The layman has the sneaking opinion that the trust has us all on the hip and is making hay while the sun shines—for fines exacted from it in recent government suits and for a nest egg against the rainy day of prospective tariff revision. But, whatever the causes, the holdup is making political gunpowder and dynamite faster than any mill ever put in operation.

The close of the present summer season has served to emphasize more clearly than ever the damage to apples—trees and fruit—as a result of infection with spores of the cedar rust. Unfortunately one of the most highly prized of all our fall apples, the Wealthy, seems for some reason or another to be peculiarly susceptible to damage by the rust. Some trees we have noticed during the past few weeks have been well nigh defoliated through infection of the leaves with numerous rust spots, while as a result of this unhealthy condition of the leaves or lungs of the tree the fruit is not more than one-third of its usual size, and scrawny and diseased at that. It begins to look as though, if the owners of Wealthy orchards don't "do" the cedars in the vicinity or spray very carefully, the cedar rust will "do" their orchards. If the rust infestation is as much worse next year than this, as this year's was than last year's, thousands of trees will perish. The problem is one that every orchard owner should look into carefully.

AN INDEFENSIBLE INJUSTICE.

Another big government land drawing has just been pulled off in Dakota, and again has there been brought to the mind of the thinking person the rank injustice which is perpetrated as a result of the manner in which the drawings are managed. The point we have in mind has nothing to do with whether or not the parcels of land apportioned are worth what the lucky folks pay for them in the end. The most glaring injustice lies in compelling all citizens but old soldiers and soldiers' widows who wish to make application for land to pay car fare to and from and hotel bills at the point where the drawing is to take place. It goes without saying that many who register in this manner for such drawings can ill afford to do so, while it is even more clear that thousands of the most needy who are justly entitled to government bounty are prohibited from ever registering for such drawings because they feel they cannot afford to play the stake for the slim chance of success. Just why the present plan is continued is not clear unless it be that the public lands are apportioned primarily as sort of baits to induce railroad traffic and only secondarily to benefit those who are ultimately to come into possession of them. Just why those qualified to register could not properly do so before any reputable justice of the peace in their home town instead of being compelled to travel hundreds or thousands of miles to do so is a poser that is being borne home on the minds of a good many people, involving an injustice that is at once unbusinesslike and unfair. Many contend that the lottery as a method of disposing of land is a gambler's stunt pure and simple, one that is frowned down upon by the postal department at every turn, but this would not be so bad in practical operation if the cost of taking a whirl at the game were but a dollar or two.

WHAT TO EXPECT OF THEM.

Thousands of boys and girls have left home within the past two or three weeks to begin their first year in some special school or college. They are looking forward to their school course with high hopes, and those at home who in most cases are making the higher training possible justly feel much pride in the progress and growth which the son or daughter will make. The "folks at home" have done and, so far as is possible, will continue to do their part. It is therefore up to the individual student to do his or hers. This may include doing some outside work to help pay one's way, a thing likely to be less pleasant at the time than in later years when one looks back upon it. Going away to college does not mean that those who have the privilege are under a new dispensation morally, as many students seem to infer. The same laws hold that do at home, and their violation brings misery and their observance satisfaction and peace. Hundreds of boys and girls have gone adrift in life through ignoring this simple truth. Then it is well to keep in mind that advanced education should mean increased responsibility and gratitude, not breed contempt and disdain for the plain folks at home. Sympathy rather and a desire to serve are the earmarks of all true culture and education, and the boy or girl who does not purposely try to develop these and kindred traits not only misses the chief and high purpose of college training, but in a large measure the very goal of all worthy living.

HOW MUCH WILL IT HOLD?

Many a farmer who has a silo, as well as many farmers who are going to build silos, would like to know how to get at the volume and weight of the fodder which a silo of given size will hold. For instance, how many tons of fodder will a silo having a size of 16 by 32 hold? The first step is getting the area of the base, which is obtained by multiplying the diameter by itself and that by .7854. Using this formula with the dimensions mentioned, we have 16 by 16 by .7854, which gives 201.0624 square feet. The cubic contents are then got by multiplying this by the height, thirty-two feet, which gives 6433.99 cubic feet. It has been found that a cubic foot of settled silage weighs forty-three pounds on the average in silos less than thirty-six feet in height; hence multiplying the cubic contents by the weight per foot, forty-three pounds, gives the total weight of the contents, or 277,661 pounds, and dividing this by 2,000 gives the number of tons, in this case 133.8. With these figures at hand it is easy to figure out how many feeds of thirty pounds per day a silo of a given size will furnish a herd of dairy cows.

A CLIPPING BUREAU.

An arrangement that would cost practically nothing and yet would be a real aid to the husbandman would be an envelope clipping system, which would consist merely in cutting out timely and helpful paragraphs and articles from news and agricultural papers and classifying them by means of an envelope system, one envelope being devoted to all the clippings referring to a given subject. The several envelopes could then be plainly labeled on the outside, which would make it an easy job to look up in a short time all the matter having to do with a given topic. Many a farmer already has such a system in operation, and many others would find the plan practical and helpful.

GIRLS END LIVES TOGETHER

Peculiar Case of Double Suicide at Stockholm—Bust of Norway's Famous Author, Henrik Ibsen, Unveiled at Wahpeton, N. D.—Minnesota University Professor Praises Danmark's Open Air Theaters.

SWEDEN.

Professor Gisle Bothne of the University of Minnesota has the following to say regarding the present relations between Sweden and Norway: "Relations with Sweden are much more friendly than they were just after the separation of the kingdoms. It is believed that within a few years the brother peoples will have come to a permanent understanding amounting almost to a defensive alliance. It is realized on both sides of the boundary that the only safety for the Scandinavian people living under the shadow of such powerful and ambitious neighbors lies in unity of purpose and friendly understanding. Sweden has come to realize that Norway is a nation, entitled to a seat at the council board of nations and to be treated as an equal in every way. The hard feelings entertained because of the brusque manner in which Norway terminated the union under King Oscar in 1905 are disappearing rapidly."

A singularly peculiar case of double suicide took place in Stockholm the other night when two girls, respectively sixteen and eighteen years old, resolved to die together. They had spent the night in revelry with some young fellows and getting to think over what had transpired they became so conscience stricken that they decided to jump into the Malaren. Together they went to a bridge in the southern section of the city and tying a shawl around each other they jumped to their watery grave. They left a note stating that they were not worth living, that they thought a great deal of each other, had decided to die together and wanted to be buried in the same coffin. The case aroused a great deal of attention all over the city.

The State church of Sweden is supporting 3,649 mission schools among the heathen. The hospitals are overcrowded with sick. In Tampatur no less than 13,000 have received medical aid, the medical missionaries having had 27,000 consultations with patients and having performed 566 operations. The society employs six ministers, 192 medical advisers and eleven lady Bible teachers, besides the native co-workers. The income of the society in 1910 was 260,115 crowns, while it expended 271,789 crowns.

The crown prince of Siam during his Stockholm visit invited a member of the Swedish royal house to be present at the coronation festivities in Siam in December next. King Gustaf has appointed the Duke of Sodermanland, Prince Wilhelm, to represent Sweden on this occasion. The crown prince will be accompanied by his wife, Princess Maria, daughter of the Duke of Connaught, now governor general of Canada.

A party of twenty-five eminent German physicians paid a visit to Stockholm recently. They went there to study the sanitary conditions of the city and found them to be in excellent condition, enough so that the visiting delegation will recommend the Stockholm system of sanitation to other European cities. The delegation was commissioned to vist Stockholm at the recent medical congress held in Danzig.

The General Lutheran conference of the world held its thirteenth convention recently in Upsala. This was the second time this conference convened in Sweden; the first time was in 1901, when it convened in Lund. Delegates came from different parts of the world and the Augustana synod of this country appointed Rev. Philip Thelander as its delegate. Rev. Dr. Sandt represented the General Council of America.

The Scandinavian bank which was established in Paris a couple of years ago has been such a success that the Stockholm's Dagblad suggests that a Swedish bank be established in London in the near future, stating it as its belief that the opening for such an institution in that city is a most excellent one at the present time.

Swedish, English and Danish grocery merchants united their purses and distributed 5,000 crowns among the railway employes in England who did not participate in the recent strike there. Owing to this Sweden and Denmark were able to have their orders for pork and beef filled regularly.

In the recent royal hunt at Halleberg those who participated were the king himself, Prince Wilhelm, Prince Salm, Count Hamilton, Count Tage Thott, General Fredenberg, Bank Director Wallenberg and others. Sixteen elk were killed, the king shooting one and Prince Salm two.

Lindman has resigned as premier of Sweden and has been succeeded by Herr Staf, who was formerly premier and who represented the radicals.

NORWAY.

A bust of Ibsen was unveiled last month on the grounds of the North Dakota Science school at Wahpeton, N. D. President Smith of the science school delivered the unveiling speech and Waldemar Ager, one of the most noted Norwegian authors in the United States, delivered an address in the Norwegian language regarding the life and work of Ibsen. Thus it will be seen that not alone in Boston, but on the plains of North Dakota, the spirit of Ibsen still lives. The band played "Aases Death," by Grieg, and other compositions created for Ibsen's works. The bust was made by the late Jacob Fjelde, a Minnesota sculptor, who died in Minneapolis in 1896. Ibsen posed for it twelve times in Molde, Norway. At that time he was writing "The Lady From the Sea."

Thirty-three Norwegian soldiers were tried by courtmartial at Gardmoen the other day for conducting a whistling concert in honor of a certain lieutenant. Two of the soldiers were sentenced to twenty-five days' imprisonment, fourteen were given twenty days and the rest were set free.

Twenty-eight Englishmen have been on an extensive exploration trip into the interior of the Bergenhus districts during the past summer under the leadership of Dr. Kolderup. Some eminent geologists and botanists accompanied the exploration party.

The Norwegian Telegraph company is planning to establish double current telephone connections from Christiania to Trondhjem, Bergen and Christiansund. Later on the service may be extended to Berlin and Paris.

Bjorn Bjornson, a son of the late Bjornsterne Bjornson, is touring the country, giving lectures. Mr. Bjornson, it will be remembered, gave a number of lectures in the United States and Canada some years ago.

The Norwegian brig Caprice encountered a severe storm in the North sea recently and was thrown against the English shore and smashed to pieces. Eight members of the crew perished.

Cally Monrad, the Norwegian opera singer, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Ritmester Aas. Both parties are, however, reported to be engaged to marry again.

Norway is exporting more herring to Germany this year than ever before. From fifty to sixty carloads of herring are being sent to that country every day.

Baron Cederstrom, the Swedish airman, made a successful flight over Lake Mjosen Sept. 21. He gave one or two exhibition flights in Christiania also.

Prolonged drought is reported from Stavanger and potatoes and other vegetables have suffered. There will be little or no crops in that section of the country.

The "sill" fishing has just been closed off the coast of Iceland. Norwegian fishermen returned with about 12,000 barrels of the finest "sill" in the world.

DENMARK.

Professor Richard Burton of the University of Minnesota has just returned from a visit to the Scandinavian countries. He seems to have been particularly impressed with the Danish theaters. In view of the fact that he visited the most famous theaters in Europe it is interesting to note that he was singularly well impressed with the open air productions that he saw while in Denmark and Norway. In Copenhagen a distinguished company of actors played Schiller's "The Robbers" in a grove called the Deer park, with just the natural forest setting; and in Christiania a delightful fairy play, "Elveroy," by the Danish playwright, Helberg, was beautifully acted in a park. "These two outdoor performances," Professor Burton said, "far surpassed anything of the kind I have seen in this country. I might add that the audiences were of a higher class, in intelligence and attention, than any we muster."

A dispatch from Copenhagen dated Oct. 8 says: "A message received here from Greenland says that Knud Rasmussen, the Danish explorer, failed to discover any traces of Captain Einar Mikkelsen and his companions, who, after having been rescued on the coast of East Greenland last year, left this part of the country to search for traces of the lost explorer, Erichsen. Rasmussen expresses the fear that Mikkelsen and his party have perished. Fruehen, another Danish explorer, who accompanied Rasmussen, obtained from Cook's Eskimo assistant, Etukishuk, the box which Cook alleges contained the instruments and papers which would prove his polar discovery claims. The box contains only a broken sextant and other instruments, but no papers.

The Politiken (Copenhagen) urges the Danish people to contribute to the national subscription which is being taken in Sweden at present in behalf of August Strindberg, the eminent Swedish dramatist, novelist and playwright, stating that "Denmark should share in recognizing the forty years' work that this literary giant has contributed to the literature of the North."

Rev. H. Ostenfeld of Fredriksberg has been appointed Bishop Madsen's successor in the Sjalland diocese. Rev. Ostenfeld is a splendid speaker and is considered to be one of the most learned clergymen in the country.

Looking Glasses.

The value of a looking glass is usually estimated by the thickness of the glass, because the thicker it is the stronger it must be; but, speaking scientifically, thick glasses are defective, because the outlines of the image reflected are less clearly defined. There are really three reflections and consequently three images in every glass mirror—one from the upper surface of the glass, the second from the lower surface and the third from the metallic layer at the back. An ideal mirror is one with a perfectly flat surface. But it is only possible to obtain this result in comparatively small glasses. The larger glasses do not reflect a true image, as they can't be made quite flat.

"Imp" and "Brat."

How the use of words changes is well illustrated by this extract from Bacon's "Pathway Unto Prayer."

"Let us pray for the preservation of the king's most excellent majesty and for the prosperous success of his entirely beloved son, Edward, our prince, that most angelic imp."

In those days "brat" had also quite another significance. In an old hymn by Gascoigne is the line:

"O Abraham's brats, O brood of blessed seed."

Why He Wanted No Lawyer.

An old darky charged with stealing chickens was arraigned in court and was incriminating himself when the judge said: "You ought to have a lawyer. Where's your lawyer?"

"Ah ain' got no lawyer, judge."

"Very well, then," said his honor, "I'll assign a lawyer to defend you."

"Oh, no, suh; no, suh! Pleeease don't do dat!" the darky begged.

"Why not?" asked the judge. "It won't cost you anything. Why don't you want a lawyer?"

"Well, Ah'll tell yo', suh," said the old man, waving his tattered old hat confidentially. "Hit's jes' dis away—Ah wan' tuh enjoy dem chick'ns ma-self."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Oldest Lighthouse.

La Coruna, the Spanish harbor, boasts, it is said, of the oldest lighthouse in the world, it having been built by the Romans in the time of Trajan, between 98 and 117 A. D. About 111 years ago the structure was overhauled and partly rebuilt, though the lower part of the pile was found to be in perfect condition, a tribute to the building ability of the Roman masons. When the weather is favorable the light can be seen a distance of [illegible] two miles at sea.

A Wasted Warning.

It very often happens that in strolling along the wharfs in Havana you will observe a huge box or barrel containing glassware with this inscription: "Handle with care—fragile." It is plain that the shipper, filled with a most laudable patriotic enthusiasm imagines that the English language is universal and that away off, 800 or 900 miles from the shipping point, the workmen on the wharf will be able to read and understand the recommendations that these words carry with them. How easy it would be to put those words in the language of the country to which merchandise is going.—Exporters' Review.

Frugal Bargemen.

With no rent to pay, no street car fares or other of the usual unavoidable city expenses to meet the barge and canalboat men of the Netherlands live possibly the most frugal lives of any of the urban working classes in Europe. They, with their families, exist in the holds of their craft. The rooms are small, with little ventilation and necessarily low to enable the boats to pass under the [illegible]. The decks form the children's playground. Chickens are sometimes kept on the boat and [illegible]

THE CEMENT PAINT.

A reader of these notes who is planning to do some outside painting wishes to know the recipe for making the government whitewash, or the White House paint. For the benefit of this reader and others who may be interested we give the recipe again, which is as follows: Slack one-half bushel of stone lime, using enough boiling water to keep it from burning, and keep well covered during the process. When the slacking process is finished add enough more hot water so that it will be possible to strain the solution through a fine strainer—brass or a couple thicknesses of gunny sacking. Next dissolve a peck of salt in warm water; also prepare three pounds of rice boiled to a thin paste. The rice and lime water should first be carefully stirred together while hot and the salt water then added and stirred in. To this add one-fourth pound of Spanish whiting and one pint of liquid glue. This recipe will give about seven gallons, and, if there should not be as much as this, hot water should be added to give the desired amount. Various tints can be given this paint by stirring in dry colors. The paint will give the best results if used hot and should be stirred at frequent intervals to keep the several ingredients thoroughly mixed.

HOGGING DOWN CORN.

The wisdom of hogging down corn seems to depend on whether the fencing needed to carry it out satisfactorily will come to more than the saving effected by having the hogs do the husking. Two years' experiments conducted by the Minnesota station showed that hogs in a cornfield required only two-thirds as much feed to make a given amount of gain as did those kept in a dry lot, while those in the field made as much gain in seventy-five days as did dry lot hogs in a hundred days. The field hogs seemed to be the more thrifty and to eat their rations with a good deal more relish. Pigs weighing a hundred pounds or more make the most rapid gains under field conditions. Before being turned into the corn they should be fed new corn in the dry lot in gradually increasing amounts, so that they won't have their system upset by contracting the scours. The field to be hogged down should be fenced off in such manner that there will be an average of from a dozen to twenty pigs per acre, depending somewhat upon their size.

SMUT IN WHEAT.

Smut, a disease which causes kernels of small grain to bloat and to become filled with black, ill smelling spores, can be held in check effectively by treating the seed just before sowing with a formalin solution made by diluting one pint of 40 per cent formalin in thirty gallons of water. The seed should be spread out on a clean floor in barn or granary and sprinkled with the solution, being shoveled over slowly, if possible, while the disinfectant is being applied. The aim should be to have each kernel moistened with the solution. When the grain has been thoroughly moistened it should be shoveled into a pile and covered with blankets or gunny sacking for three or four hours, during which time the fumes of the solution will the more thoroughly penetrate each kernel. The covering may then be removed and the grain shoveled over until it is dry, when it is ready for sowing. To make the job most effective sacks, measures and seeders in which the seed is handled after treating should also be disinfected.

His Great Generosity.

"We are getting up a subscription," began the lady who was carrying around the paper. Her voice trembled as she spoke, for the person she was now bracing happened to be the richest fellow in the community. She hoped against hope that she would get something fat from him.

"You are getting up a subscription?" echoed the millionaire, with a sweet smile. "I'm sure you'll be very successful. And what can I do?"

"Would you—could you"—she nearly fainted at her assurance—"would you p-p-put your name down on this paper for a h-h-hundred dollars?"

There—it was done. He wouldn't have missed a thousand, but she was pretty courageous to ask for as much as she did. His gentle smile reassured her.

"Will I put my name down for a hundred dollars?" said he. "Why, my dear young lady, I don't charge that amount for the use of my name when charity is the cause. I will put my name down, of course, but not for a hundred dollars. I won't charge you a cent for it. It is a slight service." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Female Housefly.

A female house fly which has hibernated in a dwelling house, or elsewhere, may produce in the spring, at the lowest estimate, 120 eggs. Assuming that one-half of these hatch as females, and allowing that the breeding goes on without check for four months, we have as the descendants of a single hibernating individual 214,557,844,320,000,000,000,000 flies. Now, a house fly measures exactly one-fourth of an inch in length; the distance around the earth at the equator is said to be 24,800 miles. It would take, therefore, 3,088,312,000 flies placed end to end to go around the world once. Using this number as a denominator, and the number of flies produced in four months from one mother as a numerator, we find she will give rise, in the course of a summer, to enough flies to encircle the globe at the equator 5,000 times and have plenty of progeny to spare.—Professor F. L. Washburn in Popular Science Monthly.

Severe.

A story is going the rounds at a certain university regarding one of the sarcastic professors, who was recently conducting an oral examination in a very scientific study.

There was one student, handsome, easy and self possessed, who appeared to be utterly ignorant of the simplest phases of the subject.

Professor W. put question after question to him without receiving one intelligent reply. Finally the student said naively:

"I'm very unfortunate, professor; you never ask me anything I know."

The professor said nothing, but gravely tore off a tiny piece of paper from a convenient pad.

"Here, Mr. B.," he said, handing it to the student, "write all you know. Take plenty of time—there's no hurry."

What Rhymes With Babe?

A common English word for which there is only one rhyme is "babe," and it was Swinburne who used it with exquisite appropriateness in "A Rhyme:"

Babe, if rhyme be none
For that sweet small word
Babe, the sweetest one
Ever heard,

Right it is and meet
Rhyme should keep not true
Time with such a sweet
Thing as you.

Love alone, with yearning
Heart for astrolabe,
Takes the sun's height, burning
O'er the babe.

"Silence" is another word beloved of poets that has no rhyme. Mrs. Browning went to the very limits of her passion for assonance when she rhymed it with "islands!"

Oddities About Alphabets.

When the Portuguese first explored Brazil they made great fun of the natives of that country because they had in their alphabet no f, r or l—a people, the invaders declared, without fey or rey—without faith, law or king. The Mohawks, again, have no labials and vowed it was absurd when the missionaries tried to teach them to pronounce p and b. "for who," said they, "can speak with his mouth shut?"—Blackwood's Magazine.

Something Was.

Rivers was smoking a cheap cigar. "Seems to me," said Brooks, "I smell something like cloth burning."

But Rivers was game.

He touched the lighted end of his cigar to his shirt sleeve.

"No wonder," he said, exhibiting the burned spot.—Chicago Tribune.

"PEACE AND SAFETY" A GREAT DELUSION.

God's Times and Seasons Maturing.

A NEW DISPENSATION OPENING

Pastor Russell in Glasgow—The Divine Plan Diversified but Orderly—Age Follows Age in an Uplifting Process. Not Evolution but Restitution.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Glasgow, Oct. 29.—Pastor Russell gave two discourses today at St. Andrew's Hall to large and attentive audiences. We report his discourse from the text, "Of the times and seasons ye have no need that I write unto you, for yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night. And when they shall say, Peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them as travail upon a woman with child and they shall not escape. But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are children of the light."—I Thessalonians v, 1-5.

The world is not expected to understand the Divine times and seasons, plans and purposes. The Redeemer declared that the Father hath hidden these things from the worldly-wise and prudent and has revealed them unto babes—the humble-minded, the footstep followers of Jesus. (Matthew xi, 25.) "The secret of the Lord is with them that reverence Him, and He will show them His Covenant."

"The Wise Shall Understand"

The Prophet Daniel, referring to the present day, declared, "None of the wicked shall understand, but the wise shall understand." (Daniel xii, 10.) To understand the secret purposes of the great in advance of their accomplishment implies a nearness and touch and acquaintance out of the ordinary. And so God's children, begotten of the Holy Spirit, are privileged to know the things of God—"yea, the deep things."

The speaker likened this relationship between God and His saints to wireless telegraphy. God's people have coherers tuned in harmony with Himself by His Word and Spirit. These can receive much of the deep things of God. The worldly have no co-herers at all—no means, therefore, of communication with the Infinite. The luke-warm Christian has, indeed, a coherer in the Holy Spirit, but it is not tuned to the proper key and is, therefore, not prepared to receive the deep things of Divine communication.

Our world for six thousand years has been a battlefield on which the hosts of darkness have largely prevailed over the comparatively small number of children of the light, who in an enemy's country have stood forth for God, the Redeemer, the brethren and the Truth against the "Prince of this world"—Satan. Moreover the children of light have been hindered from using the "carnal weapons" of the children of darkness. They may not render evil for evil nor slander for slander. They may only do good and bless those who revile them.

Harvest Time is Here

Is this condition of things to continue forever? Does God intend that to all eternity there shall be this battle between light and darkness, with the darkness in the ascendant and control? No! The Bible declares that a great change and a New Dispensation is at hand, in which the order of affairs will be reversed.

The Lord has been doing a work during the period of the reign of sin and death. He has been selecting two classes of children of the light, both to be used in the great world-wide work of the next Age. God refers to His work in agricultural terms; for instance, with the Jewish nation, He did a plowing, harrowing, sowing, cultivating and reaping work. Their plowing time preceded the entrance of the nation into Canaan. The Law inculcation was the sowing. The reaping of the Age was at its close; Jesus was the Chief Reaper, His Apostles were associates. To them He said, "I sent you forth to reap that whereon ye had bestowed no labor; other men labored and ye are entered into the fruits of their labors." The saints then reaped were gathered into the Gospel garner at Pentecost and after fiery tribulations the field was cleansed of its chaff.

This Gospel Age has similarly been a time of plowing, sowing and reaping. The tribulations of the early Church were associated with the sowing of the precious seed. Again we are in a harvest time—"The harvest is the end of the Age." This time the gathering of the fruitage will be to a still higher plane—"to glory, honor and immortality" by participation in the "first (chief) resurrection." Then will follow the cleansing of the field again by fiery troubles—"a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." That trouble time will be a plowing and harrowing time of a new dispensation for a world-wide crop under the most favorable conditions. These three different ages, however, produce different crops—as different as are their conditions.

Persons afflicted with tuberculosis would do well to keep in mind the curative power of fresh air, whether in the east, west, north or south. Many people of limited means might better stay at home, using the precautions they would take elsewhere of sleeping and living in the open air, in the meantime enjoying the comforts of home than to go to some far away, strange place without means sufficient for real needs. Still another class might as well stay at home, those who have money, but who go and live in stuffy boarding houses in some large city, keeping late hours and disregarding the fundamental requirements of health with the expectation that climate alone will work a cure, and that without its being given a fair chance

AWARDED CONTRACT

Bid For Construction of Auxiliary Power House Awarded Last Friday.

F. Doege, Local Contractor, Lone Bidder For The Work.

The city council held a special meeting last Friday evening for the purpose of opening bids for the erection of the auxiliary power house.

Only one bid was received in response to the call and this one was submitted by Mr. F. Doege, the local contractor. After a consideration of the bid by the council the contract for the work was finally awarded to him. The consideration of Mr. Doege's bid for the work of erecting the building was $7,930, and he expects to have the building completed about December 10th.

The work of building the foundation was commenced before sunrise Saturday morning and Mr. Doege intends to push the work through to completion as fast as possible.

The bids for the installation of the machinery for the oil power plant, will be opened at a special meeting of the city council next Saturday afternoon. These bids will be received up to 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day.

CHILD LABOR LAW

Minnesota Committees, in Annual Meeting, Plan to Renew Agitation for Legislation.

A statewide campaign for the passage of a new child labor law was begun yesterday at the annual meeting of the Minnesota child labor committee. The committee also decided to bring the child labor exhibit to Minneapolis if possible after the exhibit is shown in Duluth Nov. 9-12. The reports showed a noticible decrease in child labor in Minnesota.

Speakers will be sent to all parts of the state between now and the next legislative session to urge the passage of a new child labor law. Church clubs and commercial organizations will be asked to join the campaign. The bill to be introduced will be identical with the one which failed to pass at the last session, but which was lost for lack of time, as there was no opposition. The bill will raise the age at which messenger boys may be employed from 16 years to 18 years, and prohibit the employment of girls less than 21 as messengers.

The bill provides for medical examination of children as to fitness for labor, an eight-hour day for all classes of work. The committee believes that if this bill passes Minnesota will have the best child labor law in the United States.

The reports showed that but 1,545 permits were issued in 1910 as against 1,707 for 1909, and the reduction is attributed to an increasing sentiment against child labor.

All the officers were re-elected. President, W. D. Washburn, Jr., Minneapolis; vice president, Miss Jean Poirer, Duluth; secretary and treasurer, Henry F. Burt, Minneapolis. E. C. Hall of Minneapolis, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, and Mrs. E. H. Loyhead of Faribault, president of the Minnesota State Federation of Women's clubs, were added to the committee. The committee will prepare a program for the child labor conference in Duluth, Nov. 8.

BETTER PICTURES

"The Best is None too Good" to Quote Proprietor Morgan of the Lyceum Theatre.

Proprietor Roy L. Morgan, of the Lyceum Theatre, assures his patrons of the most select pictures on the film service hereafter. Mr. Morgan believes in getting films with an educational and elevating value and is using every effort to secure the films of that kind. Recently Mr. Morgan has received pictures that he believes should not be shown to an exact and discriminate public, and so far as possible has eliminated all such pictures that he does not think would meet with the approval of the public.

In several communications to the film service companies he has severely critized some of the pictures that are being shown to the public, with the result that he has been assured the most choice material on the market.

Anyone who has taken in play houses of a similar nature in other cities and who have witnessed the programs at the Lyceum will agree that the pictures shown here by far surpass those they have seen at the majority of places elsewhere.

Selection of Potatoes.

We have noticed, in attending a number of county fairs, that some of the people who have exhibited potatoes at these fairs have made very little effort toward selecting uniform and desirable tubers. While farmers are, in one sense, independent and can raise any crop they wish, if they would get the best price for their products they must raise the kind of products that buyers want. Large buyers of potatoes, who are really the people who make the market for potatoes, prefer and will pay more for smooth, medium-sized, uniform potatoes than they will for large, rough potatoes or potatoes not uniform in size. They pay more for two reasons: First, the smooth, uniform potatoes can be peeled with much less waste than can the other kind of potatoes; second, these smooth potatoes can be peeled much more cheaply, often with the paring machine; while with the rough, irregular potatoes it is impossible to use the paring machine without very great waste.

The grower who wishes to please the customers, and thus get the top price for his products, will be very careful in selecting potatoes, especially for seed. In selecting potatoes for seed another point beside uniformity and smoothness must be considered; that is, one must know the general character of the type of potatoes grown, and hold closely to that type in his selections. Potatoes are likely to "run out" if the seed is not carefully selected. One of the first indications of running out is the slight tapering at the seed end; and no potatoes having a tendency to taper at the seed end should be used for seed. It is possible to maintain, and even to improve, a variety of potatoes grown in a locality, if careful attention is paid to the selection of seed and the preparation of the soil.—A. D. Wilson, Minn. Agri. Ext. Division.

RAILROAD RUMORS

Report Afloat That G. N. May Extend Line Out of Thief River.

Visit of G. N. Engineers to This City Last Week Strengthens the Report.

With the visit of a party of Great Northern surveyors to this city last week who have been at work surveying a connecting link between the Great Northern and the Soo road in this city naturally there arises a revival of railroad rumors that seems to have a good foundation.

While nothing definite can be learned from the engineers regarding the visit here or for what purpose the link is being laid out, there are well founded reports afloat to the effect that the Hill road will run a line from this city in a northeasterly direction to International Falls. Several lines have been run over this territory by engineers in the past and a proposed line has been placed on the railroad and warehouse commissioner's map which was issued last spring.

It is believed that if the Hill interests are to construct a line that approximately the same route will be taken as the ones that have already been surveyed as in so doing the road will open up the largest amount of fertile lands and the country is most easily accessable for the construction of a railroad.

All the government lands that are now lying idle are fast being taken up and converted into the finest and most fertile farming lands in the state of Minnesota. Lands that are a distance of from 80 to 100 miles from market are being settled on every day. Well-to-do farmers from Iowa, Illinois and eastern states are pouring in at a rapid rate and are settling on these lands. These farmers who have always had the best in railroad facilities and accessibility to market are not discouraged over the inadequate railroad facilites at present but are going ahead and establishing their homes, and improving their lands; and there to await the arrival of the only necessary article, (a railroad) and they rest assured in the ultimate future of Northern Minnesota.

ANGUS HAY HERE

Well Known Newspaper Man and Brother of J. H. Hay Here For a Visit Last Week.

Angus Hay, postmaster and well known newspaper man at Whitebluffs, Washington, arrived in the city Thursday evening of last week for a couple of days visit with his brother, Prof. J. H. Hay.

Mr. Hay is an ardent lover of "really" good sport and the purpose of his visit here at this time was mainly with the intention of taking a short deer hunt. He left for Duluth the first of the week where he will meet parties and go out on the iron range where they will open the campaign against the giant denizens of the forest when the season opens.

Besides being an able and influentail newspaper man in his home town of Whitebluffs Mr. Hay is not content to remain in the newspaper harness alone but is likewise a postmaster at that place.

Dr. Vistaunet Loses His Suit Against City of Thief River Falls.

Mayor Named Health Officer, But No Ordinance Provided for Health Board.

A decision was handed down last Thursday by Judge Watts in the case of Dr. Vistaunet againt the city of Thief River Falls. The case involved the claim of the doctor against the city for $204 for quarantiningg and disinfecting buildings during a scarlet fever and diptheria epidemic in this city in the early part of 1908.

The doctor had in three years previous and in the beginning of that year been appointed by Mayor as health commissioner, and in that capacity he had been attending to quarantining and disinfecting as health office, and the city had been paying for it, but the city council refused to pay the bills for services in this line after Jan. 1st, 1908, and suit was brought to recover for them.

The court decided that the services were performed and worth the amount claimed for them, but that the law under which the mayor had assumed to appoint a health commissioner was repealed in 1901, and that as the city of Thief River Falls has never by ordinance provided for a board of health and no appointment has been made by the state board of health, the city has not at any time since 1901 had a board of health or health commissioner or any other health officer, and as Dr. Vistaunet was not a health officer when he performed the services sued for, he cannot recover anything for them.

The suit was brought in the spring of 1908 and the hearing was held at the term of district court at Red Lake Falls last fall but the decision was not handed down until last Thursday.

This is a great hardship on the doctor as he performed the services in good faith, but the opinion of the court the failure of the city council to provide by ordinance for a board of health leaves him without any legal right to recover from the city.

GORDON IN RACE

Lieutenant Governor Intimates in Letter He Will Announce Candidacy Jan. 1.

Minneapolis Journal: Sam Y. Gordon has broken his silence, and in a letter to Ole O. Canestorp of Elbow Lake, published today in the Elbow Lake Herald, the lieutenant governor discloses his feeling with regard to the governorship. The circumstances of the letter and its publication make it tantamount to an announcement of Mr. Gordon's candidacy, though he says that "soon after the first of the year will be sufficiently soon to open a campaign." In his letter Mr. Gordon sounds the keynote of his coming campaign by condemning "the present arrogant machine-controlled methods of the party in Minnesota." It is apparent that he is preparing to bid for the support of republicans who are dissatisfied with the administration and Governor A. O. Eberhart.

CHANGES HANDS

"Flynn" Barber Shop Changed Hands Thursday of Last Week.

Albert Levin, of Alexandria, who some time ago purchased the barber shop in the Evelyn block, more commonly known as the "Flynn" tonsorial parlor, last Thursday disposed of his interest to Roy Lambert.

Roy states positively that just because he has come into possession of the shop he does not intend to quit his duties as pill maker to become a tonsorial artist, but just made the deal because of it being a good investment.

The many friends of Joe Flynn will be pleased to hear that he has again decided to locate in this city, and will take charge of the barber shop for Mr. Lambert. He arrived the first of the week to enter upon his duties.

MORE POTATOES

Pennington County Farmers Are Increasing Culture of Tubers.

Many farmers in this county have been increasing acreage in potatoes year by year, until now the land given over to the raising of tubers will compare very favorably with that in the great potato regions in Minnesota. E. A. Anderson, a farmer living just south of the city, is marketing 2,000 bushels which he dug off 7 acres. This crop he is receiving 50 cents for and this is about the price which prevails in this city and adjoining territory. The potatoes which are raised here are well known for their excellent qualities, as the soil contains the proper elements to produce the spuds to please the potato experts. Large shipments have been made to the Twin Cities and many of the local growers are holding their product until spring for seed, all of which will find ready sale in this neighborhood.

Awful Deed of a Little Mouse.

We have often heard of little things being capable of accomplishing huge and otherwise seemingly impossible feats but a "teeny" mouse; a native of Crookston, has a record for its "cheek" that is hard to beat.

A number of peculiar incidents took place when Mr. Mouse ventured into the Crookston power house last Friday evening determined to satisfy the curiosity of his little self as to what really happened to Moses when the light went out.

It happened this way: A mouse started a little exploration trip in the power house at the water power plant of the Crookston Water Works, Power & Light Co. Its itinerary included a scenic pass between two contact points on the high tension switch board, which carries 2300 volts. The mouse never got any farther. Its body formed a path for the current between the two contact points and short-circuited the current.

The little animal was found later, thoroughly baked and baked as stiff as though he (though its curiosity indicates it must have been a "she") had been petrified. The carbonized mouse will be kept for exhibition purposes and as a solemn warning to other mice to avoid being a "juice" conductor.

Here is the "mess" that it caused: Threw the entire electric light system out of commission for fully fifteen minutes, and by reason of that, one fatal accident is reported as having been escaped only by a miracle, a panic of 200 children congregated in a hall was narrowly averted, and numerous other things too numerous to mention took place in the streets and darkened buildings.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Northern Minnesota Development Ass'n Met at Minneapolis Last Week.

Daniel Shaw, of this City, Elected Chairman of the Commission.

Members of the Northern Minnesota Development League's immigration commission met at Minneapolis last Friday to decide on a campaign to bring immigrants to settle in the northern part of the state. Minneapolis was selected as the permanent headquarters for the association, and it was decided at the meeting to rent quarters in that city for a permanent exhibit and immigration bureau, which will be in charge of W. R. Mackenzie, of Bemidji, secretary of the association. It was decided to raise $12,000 at once for the first year's work.

An appeal will be issued at once to the thirty-three counties which comprise the Northern Minnesota Development association and which will have about 70 per cent of the land area of the state, to co-operate with the immigration work of the association, and a special request will be sent out to land owners, bankers and railroads.

One feature of the work to be done is a soil survey, which will show to prospective buyers at a glance the character of soil to be found in each county and district, and help to direct them in their search for farm homes.

Daniel Shaw, of this city, was elected chairman of the commission in place of W. A. McGongle, of Duluth, who has up to this time been chairman but is unable to give his time to the work. With Mr. Shaw's experience and qualifications in this work a better selection could hardly be made.

Other officers were elected as follows: John Runquist of Grasston, Kanabec county, vice-president; A. G. Wedge, Jr., Bemidji, treasurer; David D. Tenney, of the Shevlin-Carpenter company, Minneapolis, and L. B. Arnold, land commissioner of the Rock Island railway, auditing committee, and W. R. Mackenzie, secretary and commissioner.

Other members of the commission are, P. H. Konzen, Hallock; J. B. Foote, Crookston, and C. M. Sprague, Sauk Centre.

This will fill a long felt want, as the only thing that Northern Minnesota needs to bring in actual settlers is advertising and this commission is just what is needed to do this work.

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face," writes [illegible] Pickard of North Carolina. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases, stops the itch instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

Trial bottle 25 cents, enough to prove the merit of this wonderful remedy.

We can also give you a full size bottle for $1.00 on our absolute guarantee that if this very first bottle fails to give you relief it will cost you nothing.

A NIGHT RUN

Story by a Locomotive Engineer of Civil War Service

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There is one feature of the civil war that has never been written up.

I refer to the railroads. They were the main instruments of transportation and communication. Their possession was therefore usually the most important element in a campaign. And when taken the next problem that arose was how to hold them and the next how to operate them to a purpose. The people living in the south through which they passed were mostly sympathizers with the Confederacy and did all they could or dare do to wreck trains in Federal hands. They would take up a rail, saw the stringers of a bridge, so that the weight of a train would break it; they would interfere with switches. Indeed, there was no element of danger they could devise that they would not throw in the way of the Union operation of the road.

Before repeating a story that was told me by an ex-Federal railroad engineer I will mention a narrow escape to which I was a party. I was with a Union general who was riding on a locomotive through a hostile country. The engineer was a young southerner whom the general had impressed for the service, forcing him to run the engine. We were speeding along at night. Suddenly I saw the engineer reverse the wheels, then, pale as a ghost, wait for something terrible to happen. I felt a jolt, and the engineer at once recovered his courage. He had seen a tie wedged in between the rails with a view to throwing our locomotive off the tracks and down an embankment. The effort had failed. In a few minutes we thought no more about it. The deaths we missed and were constantly missing counted for nothing. Now for the story.

"One morning at daybreak," said the narrator, "after a forced march we struck one of the main railroad arteries in the southwest and captured a lot of rolling stock. My captain told me that the general had called for those of the command who had been railway engineers, conductors and trainmen, and I, being an engineer, was to report at once at headquarters. I did so. The general asked me a few questions about my experience and told me to report for duty to Captain Benton, who had been appointed railway superintendent. I was given an engine and hauled troops to the eastern end of the road, which they occupied.

"It was about two weeks after this that the superintendent told me to report in person to the general. I did so, and he said to me:

"'Sergeant, I have just received a telegram from L., at the other end of the road, that the force there has been attacked by a superior force. The colonel commanding has promised not to surrender for at least two hours. You must take a train through to him loaded with troops and ammunition within that period.'

"'But, general,' I expostulated, 'there are three elements against me. I must go in the night, the roadbed will not admit of a safe rate of over thirty miles an hour, and the people along the route will do all they can to wreck the train.'

"'You must go the whole ninety miles in two hours. The possession of L. is of vital importance. If you reach there before the surrender it will be saved. Better that you should wreck your train than be a minute late.'

"That's what a man's life—not one man's life, but thousands—is worth in war. I walked away from the general feeling that I had been ordered to take nine chances in ten of killing and maiming 800 men, including myself. But I'd been in it a year then and knew how little our lives were worth against the possibility of achieving success for the nation.

"I found that the superintendent had been getting a train ready for me and it was loaded with the probable victims. I sprang on to the cab and with a couple of short toots from the whistle started the machine, the one in best repair in our possession. I had been over the line nearly every day for a fortnight and knew where I must endeavor to make the best time. I hadn't had any time to figure it out mathematically. I must take frightful risks on the straightaway parts and let up on the curves. And even on the curves I must drive far beyond a safe rate.

"If I may be said to have got on well on any part of the journey it was the first half. For that period my arm was steady and my brain was cool. Nevertheless it was an hour calculated to break the stoutest nerve. Word must have got to some of the people along the line, for I had scarcely got over ten miles when I found an obstruction. Coming to a sharp curve around the base of a hill, I said to myself, 'If they're going to throw me off anywhere they'll do it right here.' So I cut my speed down to what would enable me to stop within less than a train's length. It was well I did so. At the farther end of the curve I pulled up within ten feet of a tree felled across the track.

"Ten minutes was all the delay occasioned, and I pushed on. But whatever of hope I had felt before that this element of danger would not come up before me was crushed out of me. Beyond the curve I came to the first long straight bit of the road on the line. I knew I must do over sixty miles an hour here in order to get through in the limit of time. For twelve miles I kept my eyes fixed on the track illuminated by the headlight, tearing along so fast that should an obstruction be on the track I could never slow up in time to avoid it. Every minute of strain on my nerves took just so much strength out of them. I believed that no one would place anything on a straight track to throw me off and took all the chance on this, besides the danger of leaving the rails. The locomotive swayed and groaned and bounced till it seemed that the next bump would surely throw it off. At even the slightest curve I held my breath, and every time I came to a switch which I could not plainly see I was sure the rattling and pumping beneath meant that we were on the ties and in another moment would be rolled up in a universal smash.

"I had an excellent headlight, the reflector of which I had polished myself. Under its glare the shadows before me looked black and heavy as if they had been stone. There were telegraph poles beside the track, and it seemed to me as I approached their shadows that I was about to encounter the trunk of a fallen tree. They faded in rapid succession, but the approach of every shadow was like the falling of a sledgehammer on my nerves.

"I had gone seventy miles and was on time when suddenly a big block of solid stone loomed up ahead. I reversed, whistled down the brakes and came to a full stop. But I neither knew when I stopped nor for a few moments after whether I had escaped the peril, for I was so benumbed with fright that my senses refused to act. As soon as I was conscious that the machine was at rest I took another look ahead. There was the block I had seen, but as far distant as it had been when I discovered it. I jumped down and ran ahead. I couldn't see the obstacle, for my own shadow concealed it. Nevertheless I did not reach it. I stepped aside, and there it was—ahead. I ran forward a bit and, not reaching it, returned and examined my headlight. There on the glass directly before the light was a tiny moth.

"Summoning all my resolution to disregard these phantom obstacles, I put on full speed, and when I came to a straight bit of road I shut my eyes that I might not see and be racked by them. Again the old iron swayed and groaned and wheezed and puffed and spit fire and smoke till I entered upon the last ten miles between me and my destination. Then suddenly there was a crash, and a bit of splintered glass struck me in the face. I supposed that at last the catastrophe had come.

"But, no. The cowcatcher had thrown up a chicken or some other object that had broken the lamp of the headlight. The lamp continued to burn, however, though unprotected, since I had reversed as soon as the crash came. However, I knew it would not keep lighted under speed, and I felt that after all I had been blocked. But just as I was about to give up hope I saw a light ahead, and presently a locomotive bore down on us, slowing up as it came. It had been sent out by the commander at L., who was hard pressed to learn if we were nearing him.

"We managed to get this other headlight in position on my locomotive, and again I pushed forward. From this point now and again we could occasionally hear the faint booming of guns and as we drew nearer the rattle of musketry. The moon was at the full. Evidently the Confederate commander was determined to crush his enemy before the arrival of re-enforcements, and the Federal officer was fighting against time.

"I did not know at what moment the latter might give way, and, although the road was as rough and as crooked as any part I had passed over, I drove the machine as rapidly and as recklessly as before. I approached our men from the rear, though they were being flanked, which we were made aware of by a sudden fire into our train.

"The commander of the troops I had hauled through pulled the bell cord and when I had come to a halt ordered his men out of the train. They drove back the Confederate flankers and joined the main body.

"The arrival of re-enforcements caused the Confederates to withdraw, and the place was saved.

"As soon as my work was over I tumbled over on the cab floor. My fireman picked me up, and I revived very shortly. I knew what an important victory I had achieved and wanted to go right back and tell the general all about it. But instead of that I went to bed.

"The next morning I was all right and took a train back, passing over the route I had traversed the night before and smiling at the phantom obstructions that had filled me with horror the night before. As soon as I arrived an aid-de-camp told me to report in person to the general, and I went to his tent.

"He put out his hand to me, just as if I had as many stars on my shoulder as he had himself.

"'You've not only saved this army from a retreat,' he said, 'but have saved the force at L. from capture, besides preventing the loss of all this territory we have been months in acquiring. I shall recommend you to the governor of your state for a commission, and I wish you at once to take personal charge of the running of trains.'"

GOD'S LONGER DAYS A THOUSAND YEARS

Mankind's History the Workday of Great Week.

The Length and Value of Time Viewed From the Divine Versus the Human Standpoint—Pastor Russell Still Abroad.

"A thousand years in Thy sight are but as yesterday."—"A day with the Lord is as a thousand years."—Psalm xc, 4; II Peter iii, 8.

PASTOR RUSSELL

London Tabernacle, Lancaster Gate W., Oct. 22.—Pastor Russell spoke here twice today to large audiences. We report one of the discourses which treated on the difference between human and Divine standards of measurement.

He said in part:—

Humanity's Great Workday

From the Divine viewpoint, earth's history, from Adam's day until now, is merely the workday portion of a great week whose Seventh Day or Sabbath of a thousand years is "the day of Christ," "the last day," "the day of judgment" or trial for the world, the day in which "every knee shall bow and every tongue confess to the glory of God," the day in which "the righteous shall flourish and the evildoers shall be cut off in the Second Death."

In the Divinely-arranged custom of the Jews the new day began at sunset. Thus we are in the evening or beginning of the great Seventh Day of the Divine Week—the day which means so much of blessing, uplifting, privilege, opportunity of Divine favor to our race through Messiah's glorious Kingdom, which throughout this Seventh Day will reign "from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth," putting down everything contrary to the Divine standards and uplifting the world of mankind (bought with the precious blood at Calvary) from sin, meanness, degradation and the tomb.

"Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, but the Seventh is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. In it thou shalt not do any work." Whoever reads carefully, intelligently, the pages of history must be struck with the working energy which has been manifested by our race and is still being manifested.

Next the Lesson of Good

The forbidden fruit of Eden was from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. Doubtless the Creator would eventually have given a full knowledge of both good and evil to our first parents. They were merely forbidden an immediate plunge into knowledge to their own disadvantage. Craving knowledge before its due time, Mother Eve disobeyed her Maker and enticed her husband into disobedience. The result has been that instead of learning the philosophy of good at first and of evil later, they and their race have been precipitated into lessons respecting evil first, with the knowledge of good to come later.

The holy angels, who have never transgressed the Divine Law, have continually the lesson of good—an appreciation of the Divine character, the principles of righteousness, etc. Their lessons in respect to evil they are gaining by observation instead of by experience—the way recommended to our first parents by the Creator, but in their ignorance rejected.

But God foreknew the course which His human children would take under the influence of temptation; He foreknew that they would fall into sin and therefore would experience its penalty—sorrow, pain and death. While His eye has pitied His poor creatures for six thousand years, nevertheless He has allowed His great original Plan of the Ages to move along slowly to a grand climax—the Plan which He purposed in Himself from before the foundation of the world.

God Has Not Neglected Us

From this Divine viewpoint God is not slack concerning His promises. Only six days of the week have yet passed. The glorious Seventh Day in which the great Mediator between God and men will assume His Kingdom powers is just at hand. Instead of thinking that God is neglecting and forgetting to fulfil the Messianic promises, we should with the eyes of faith realize that He is working all things according to the counsel of His own will. We should consider the matter from the opposite standpoint that God has exercised great patience with humanity in not blotting out the race. He has been long-suffering. And this assures us that the Unchangeable One would prefer that none of His creatures should perish in death, but rather that all, if they would, might turn unto Him and live.—II Peter iii, 9; Ezekiel xxxiii, 11.

The great opportunity for the masses of our race to turn to the Lord and to attain everlasting life will be after the darkness shall have passed, when the Sun of Righteousness shall be shining forth; after the highway of holiness shall have taken the place of the broad road to destruction; after Messiah, the great King, shall have dethroned Satan, the Prince of darkness, from the world's control; after the Prince of Peace shall have established peace upon a proper basis.

A HAPPY DISPOSITION.

Every one should strive to cultivate a happy disposition. A happy disposition is largely a disposition to make others happy. One life permeates all things, and there is no corner of the cosmos too remote to feel its heart throb.—Henry Wood.

The old familiar song "you'll never miss the water 'till the well runs dry" apparently has lost its significance when being applied to the situation of the Red Lake river.

Anyone who says the G. N. is not making any improvements here has only to look at the new time table installed at the depot last week an be convinced to the contrary. Every little bit helps.

We have been asked the question: "Do hogs pay?" We will state right here we know of a good many that do not. The particular hog we have reference to is the one that takes the home paper several years without paying for it and then finally has the pos master send it back marked "refused" or "left city no address."

Saturday is the last day on which prospective candidates, who aspire to the city offices, have to file their petitions. Thus far in the campaign nothing has stirred to mar the peacefulness but as election day draws closer the candidates will make their presence more and more felt.

We are still being made subject of severe criticism for ever intimating that the now notorious "log jam" at the outlet of the Red Lakes has had little or no effect on the condition of the Red Lake river. The Eleven Towns and the Sunbeam, particularly, take a wallop at us for confessing our belief that the present conditions are due solely o natural conditions and not to any material causes. We are being "showed up" in a rather peculiar light for taking the defensive in the matter, and the reasons main'ained are of a varied and humorous nature. Here is one of the reasons why we are "pulling the wool over the eyes" of the public regarding the situation, as "published by the Red Lake Falls Gazette, of two weeks ago:

> "The big saw mill at Thief River Falls is idle and it is probable that it will not again be operated, so the people of Thief River Falls cannot afford to antagonize the lumber companies by making any demand for the removal of the log jam.

Such talk as this is in our estimation a fine line of "prattle" to lay the foundation of an argument on. If the Gazette knew that there is an iota of truth in the statement that the local mill has closed down, which it does not, how can any sane mind figure out where we would have anything to gain by unjustly defending the interest of the company. Such arguments as the above is, on the face of them, to rediculous to be taken into any consideration whatsoever.

School Notes

The total enrollment in the high school to date is 194. This will be considerably increased when the short course begins next Monday.

Pupils from Minneapolis, Fargo, St. Cloud, Kimball and the towns of North and Rocksbury entered school this week. This is typical of the weekly additions to the enrollment.

Supt. Hay is in Minneapolis attending the meeting of the state educational meeting.

The short course of five months opens next Monday at the Lincoln building. Miss Rilla Palmer, an experienced teacher and a graduate of the state university, has been hired to care for this work.

Two more young ladies applied last Monday morning for admission to the normal training department. They were denied entrance, of course, as the state high school board sets the maximum enrollment at twenty. At least fifty students would have enrolled in this department this fall had they been permitted to do so. There is not the least doubt but a sixth state normal school at this point would have an enrollment of 100 students.

A new mimeograph has been purchased by the board of education. This instrument will be of great service in running off the mass of outlines, examination questions, blank reports, and other material required in quantities in the schools.

There are 135 pupils enrolled in the seventh grade. When this class enters high school two years hence the Lincoln will probably be filled from top to bottom.

The products on the five acre tract south of town are being cared for and sold by the agricultural department this week. The receipts will net a snug sum on the right side of the ledger account of this field.

The monthly report cards will be issued next Monday. They are worthy of the closest examination by parents. It is a rule with rarely an exception that those students who loiter about town evenings are the ones who invariably fall below grade. These can scarcely hope for promotion at the close of the school year. Particularly in the high school will the requirements demand that the student perform his tasks and where parents find that their children are falling below "passing" it would be the part of wisdom to inquire closely for the cause.

WEDDING BELLS!

Dan Cupid Is Pleased With the Result of His Week's Labors.

GAYNOR-SCHUSTER.

Last Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the St. Bernard parsonage occurred the marriage of Miss Isabelle M. Gaynor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gaynor, of Milbank, S. D., to Mr. Harry L. Schuster, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Adolph. Miss Lorena Zaiser and Homer Mussey acted as witnesses to the ceremony.

The happy couple has gone to housekeeping at the Schuster home on the East Side.

TIMES EDITOR MARRIES.

Last Monday morning at St. Bernard's church, the Rev. Fr. Adolph Dingman officiating, was solemnized the marriage of Miss Lorena M. Zaiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Zaiser, of Red Lake Falls, to Mr. Homer F. Mussey, junior editor of the Thief River Falls Times. The bride was attended by Miss Marie Veilleux, while Mr. Tom Majeres acted as best man.

A wedding dinner was served at two o'clock, at the home of the bridegroom to about twenty of the intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The happy couple were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts as tokens of the esteem in which they are held.

The News together with their host of friends extend to the Times editor and his young bride congratulations and wish them success and happiness on their journey through life.

BURNS-CONNELLY

Last Tuesday at Warroad occurred the marriage of Anna Burns to Mr. Dennis Connelly, who resides south of the city. The bride has been residing on a claim near Benwood north of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Connelly arrived here yesterday afternoon to make their home on Mr. Connelly's farm.

KRETZCHMAR-MYRLAND

At five o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna Kretzchmar, was solemnized the marriage of Miss Esther Kretzchmar to Mr. John Myrland, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Seltz in the presence of immediate friends and relatives.

The contracting parties are both popular among the younger set in this city and have the best of wishes of their large host of friends.

Miss Elsa Robbecke attended the bride while Edwin Myrland, a brother of the bride groom, acted as best man.

The happy couple left on the Soo "flyer" for Minneapolis and other points on a two weeks honeymoon trip after which they will go to housekeeping in this city.

The News joins in with the large number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Myrland in extending congratulations.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Peter Blagen, sixty years old, a resident of the town of Carmel, Marshall county, is dead from injuries received in a fall from a wagon in which he was riding. Blagen was returning from a trip to Thief River Falls. The wagon plunged into a broken culvert and he was thrown from the top of the load and his neck was broken by the fall.

Engineer Zenone of Crookston, Minn., was killed, Brakeman A. J. Baxter of Grand Forks, N. D., and Fireman Harry Wava of East Grand Forks, Minn., were badly scalded when a northbound freight train on the Great Northern was wrecked eleven miles south of Portage La Prairie, Man.

Despondency over marital troubles is believed to have been the motive for the suicide of A. G. Johnson, aged thirty, of St. Paul. Johnson was evidently looking at a photograph of his four-year-old daughter when he fired a bullet through his heart. The photo was found on the floor near the body.

A burglar hid in the parlor at the home of E. P. Keenan of Minneapolis, watched members of the family return from a visit and then, while they were eating supper in the dining room, he stole diamonds valued at $600 and left the house.

Charles Cashman, freight conductor of St. Paul, fell beneath the wheels at Menomonie Junction, Wis. Both legs were cut off. He died soon after he had been taken to a hospital at Eau Claire, Wis.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Harris G. Gary, eighty-nine years old, pioneer railroad man and one of the best known Masons in Minnesota, is dead at Marshall. In 1854 he came to Minnesota and settled at Winona, joining the Masonic lodge a few years later. He was an engineer on three different roads in Minnesota.

E. G. Barnaby, senior partner of E. G. Barnaby & Co., clothiers, and one of the best known of Minneapolis merchants, is dead, aged seventy-three.

Passing of St. Paul Pioneer.

N. P. Langford, one of the discoverers of Yellowstone park and its first superintendent, who first reached St. Paul in 1854, traveled overland to the Rocky mountains in 1862, in great hardships and perils, was a leader of the vigilantes that put down conditions of outlawry in Montana and president of the Minnesota Historical society, is dead at St. Paul at the age of seventy-nine.

DEEP CUT IN IRON ORE RATE.

Steel Corporation Roads Announce Large Reduction.

Ore rates on the two Iron Range roads of the United States Steel corporation in Minnesota will be cut to 60 cents a gross ton within the next thirty or forty days. The announcement of the proposed reduction came from President William A. McGonagle of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern and was later confirmed by President Frank E. House of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad.

The present rate on iron ore is 80 cents per gross ton from all Mesabi range points to Duluth. This rate covers all shipping points on the Duluth, Missabe and Northern road, and all the Mesabi range points on the Duluth and Iron Range railroad. From Tower the rate is 90 cents to the docks at Two Harbors and from Ely it is $1.

When the proposed change takes effect there will be a flat rate of 60 cents a ton from all points on the two ranges. The cut from Ely will, therefore, amount to 40 per cent; from Tower 33⅓ per cent and from all Mesabi range points 25 per cent.

The Great Northern, it is believed, will be compelled to meet the reduction.

ST. PAUL LEADS IN DEPOSITS

Heads Cities Where Postal Savings Banks Started Sept. 1.

St. Paul's postal savings bank, with a total of deposits of $72,549 for the month of September, leads those of all other cities in which these institutions were established on Sept. 1, and compared to cities having much larger populations, and in which the banks have been in operation for two months, has made a remarkable record, according to a statement issued by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The statement covers the business done by each of the twenty-five leading depositories, including all of the cities having postoffices of the first class.

According to the statistics Boston in two months accumulated only $10,000 more than the people of St. Paul deposited in one month.

Juhl Given Life Sentence.

Peter Juhl, who shot and killed Detective Frank Fraser at St. Paul on Aug. 12 last, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced by Judge Grier M. Orr to life imprisonment. Juhl killed the detective while at liberty, having escaped from the state prison with Jerry McCarthy, who also killed Policeman Ollinger in Minneapolis and was himself killed.

New Store for Thief River.

A deal has been closed for a long term lease of the Sharbach rooms in the First State Bank building. Mr. J. L. Inman, formerly of Marshalltown, Iowa, has leased this property and on December 1st, will open to the public, one of the finest and most complete general merchandise stores in this section of the country. Mr. Inman has been for twenty-five years a successful merchant in the Iowa city. He intends to give his entire attention to his business interests here, which insures that the people of this city will be rewarded by his record of long years of success. No effort will be spared to meet the needs of his customers who will be granted every consistent favor possible by the management.

Mr. Inman has already ordered a large portion of his stock and he assures us that he will have as fine a line of Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Groceries and Notions as any concern in the city. It speaks well for us that he, after a tour of many towns in this part of the country, selected this city as his idea of the best place to locate.

Mr. Inman expects to make Thief River his home and within the next few weeks will move his family and property here.

YOU WANT MORE MONEY?

It is easy enough to hope for better wages or a bigger salary, but at this writing no man has yet been found who wished his way to success. The world is filled with young people who arise in the morning full of rosy aspirations and go to bed at night with the same aspirations unfilled and unrealized.

The Great Question For You to Consider,

young men and young women, is not what you hope to do next year, but what you are going to do today to realize these fond ambitions. The time is ripe to act.

If you don't do something now, chances are you never will.

Every day that you put off doing the things that ought to be done, separates you just that much farther from the realization of your hopes. Think how many hundreds of thousands of persons are going through life today, traveling along the very hardest lines simply because they did not embrace the opportunity to make the necessary preparation at the right time for the battles that every individual must fight.

The Eye of Benares

A Man Counts His Loss as Gain

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The Street of the Sellers of Precious Stones was a dusty, sun smitten alley in the business quarter of Benares. The striped awnings, unstirred by any breeze, drooped limply above the tiny shops burrowed out of the stone walls.

Stephen Lawler swung briskly down the narrow thoroughfare, his blue eyes keenly awatch for a familiar face. At last he came to the shop of Hanzal-Benal and, thrusting aside the hangings, stooped and entered.

The proprietor, aged, white bearded and patriarchal of visage, sat like a hewn stone image of "Contented Old Age." Before him was a large, heavy block of Agra granite, worn smooth by much trafficking and rubbing of leather jewel bags in brown, slim hands.

"My lord is late," remarked Hanzal-Benal, with a trace of reproach in his kindly tones, as he signaled for the American to be seated on the rich rug before the stone table. "I might be drowsing in the heat of the noontide, but the Eye of Benares—it never sleeps, and it watches for the coming of its master!"

Lawler's eyes followed the backward jerk of the Hindu's thumb, and he stifled a sharp exclamation of wonder at the sight. Peering down at him from the gloom of the darkened interior was a lurid red and angry eye that seemed to belong to nothing human. Fiercely glowering out of space, at first it impressed him as exerting some strange influence over him. Then he laughed shortly and remembered that he was in India and must keep his wits about him.

"So that is the famous Eye of Benares?" he asked with assumed nonchalance.

The jeweler nodded solemnly. "It never sleeps, and it seeks unerringly the souls of the wicked. No wrongdoer can hide from its searching light. What is now passing through the brain of my lord is revealed to the eye."

"I have heard all that before, Hanzal-Benal," remarked Lawler significantly. "My time is limited, as I must catch the train for Calcutta, where a steamer awaits me."

"I was only reminding my lord of the mysterious power of the ruby," said the Hindu humbly as he opened a large ebony box and placed it on the stone table. He pulled out tray after tray and placed them before his customer, revealing a glittering array of precious stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds, pearls, lapis lazuli and sapphires—bankrupt spoils from the treasure chests of many a hard pressed prince.

"What are these?" demanded Lawler without interest as the stones under the jeweler's skillful manipulation dazzled his eyes almost to blindness.

"Perhaps my lord prefers one of these to the Eye of Benares," suggested Hanzal-Benal craftily.

"The deal is off, Hanzal-Benal," said Lawler curtly. "I've dickered with you over this confounded ruby for the past two weeks, and now when I come to you with the purchase money you sidestep the bargain. Not another rupee will I add to the offer I made you, and you will either deliver the goods now or consider the incident closed. Which shall it be?"

"My lord has purchased the ruby," said the Hindu hastily. He clapped his hands sharply and then held his palms upward. The Eye of Benares dropped softly down into Hanzal-Benal's slim brown fingers and was deftly flashed in Lawler's face and then placed on the stone table. "Shall the bargain be concluded?" asked the jeweler suavely.

Lawler dropped to his seat on the rug and took the beautiful stone between finger and thumb. The sunlight increased its brilliance a thousandfold. From every finely cut facet it radiated light and color—the color of blood.

He bent over the stone, examining it closely and even bringing out a magnifying glass to assist his keen eyes. There was not one flaw on this magnificent jewel, which was as large as a walnut and slightly flattened in shape.

Hanzal-Benal watched his customer anxiously. He knew that Stephen Lawler was agent for a large American firm of importing jewelers, and the sale of the Eye of Benares was not their first business transaction though it was destined to be their last.

Slowly the American brought forth his leather wallet, together with a heavy bag of gold. These he set down on the table among the jewel trays and close beside the ruby he had purchased. "Your letter writer is here—the notary?" he asked. "The transaction must be in writing."

For an instant the Hindu hesitated, and then he clapped his hands. From the shadows there were evolved the dim outlines of a turbaned form, and then there slipped down on the carpet the thinnest specimen of a Brahmin priest that Lawler had ever seen, and he had seen a good many.

The priest or secretary or notary—he acted in whatever capacity he was required—drew forth a roll of yellow paper and an inkhorn from the tin writing case at his waist. He flourished a long goose quill and adjusted huge horn spectacles on his nose.

"I am ready," he uttered, his little black eyes fixed greedily on the ruby.

Lawler, in the stuttering Hindustani he had learned, dictated the terms of the short document. When he had concluded and the paper had been duly signed and witnessed Lawler counted out the price of the Eye of Benares and pushed a pile of golden rupees across the table.

At the same instant he picked up the ruby and, carefully rolling it in a silk handkerchief, placed it in the inner pocket of his linen coat. The Brahman watched him ceaselessly.

Lawler rose to his feet with a sharp breath of satisfaction at the conclusion of such a good piece of business. His firm had given him a commission to purchase for one of their customers as large a ruby as the world's markets afforded, and the agent confidently believed he had accomplished the task.

Hanzal-Benal placed the rupees in a large bag and tossed the bag over his shoulder. It did not fall to the floor, but disappeared soundlessly, as though it might have been caught by a pair of dark hands and passed on to one and another pair until secrecy had swallowed it up. The Brahman moved to the narrow entrance of the shop and blocked the opening by carelessly lounging there.

"Farewell, Hanzal-Benal," said Lawler courteously. "I shall return next year and look at your goods. If you have anything of great merit—like the Eye of Benares—let me know through the medium of the public letter writer. Here's my card."

He dropped the bit of pasteboard down on the table and turned to go. As he did so there was a rushing forward from the shadowy corners, a heavy cloak was thrown over his head, while agile fingers slipped here and there among his garments in search of the Eye of Benares.

"Help, help!" yelled Lawler as he pulled out his revolver and endeavored to crowd the muzzle under the edge of the muffling cloak.

They pulled out the white handkerchief in which he had wrapped the Eye of Benares, only to find it empty, for Stephen Lawler by clever sleight of hand had deluded them and concealed the ruby elsewhere. While they searched him with nimble fingers he struggled to release himself from their wiry grasp. It was a case of one against seven, and Lawler was fast losing his strength when all at once there came the welcome sound of an English speaking voice, and a stout stick was laid heavily among the squirming legs in the shop.

As if the stick had possessed some magic inspired by the sharp authoritative voice of its wielder, Lawler's assailants vanished, bearing with them the enveloping cloak. Hanzal-Benal still sat before his table, replacing the jewels in the box, his placid features somewhat disturbed.

In the doorway was a stout figure clad in gray flannels—a good American face, clean shaven, strong and utterly fearless. "What's all this? Hey, there!" bawled the stranger at the jeweler.

Lawler stepped down into the street, and his hearty hand struck the open palm of the newcomer. "Mr. Ferriss, where did you come from? I have to thank you for saving me from a nasty row. You came in the nick of time."

"Don't thank me—thank Beatrice here. My dear, where are you hiding? Ah, this is Stephen Lawler—used to know his father. This is my daughter."

Lawler found himself greeting the most charming girl he had ever met, and he wondered why he had never known that Mr. Ferriss must have had a daughter. He had missed years of joy in not knowing her before.

Mr. Ferriss was indulging in a linguistic combat with Hanzal-Benal in a broken mixture of English, Arabic, scraps of Latin and very little Hindustani. Lawler came to the rescue.

"Just tell him," sputtered Ferriss, mopping his heated brow, "that I have called to get the ruby my daughter left here to be engraved. She took a fancy to have it engraved. It isn't a first class stone; I may as well admit it. I picked it up last year at an auction room in Paris, but Bee doesn't know that. She thinks its a pigeon blood. Tell the old rascal I've come for it and I want it in a hurry; got to catch a train for Calcutta."

Lawler looked long into the shrinking face of Hanzal-Benal, and then from some mysterious source about his garments he brought forth the Eye of Benares. "This the thing?" he asked carelessly.

"Yes, and the rascal hasn't touched it yet. Never mind. Here, Bee!" He tossed the counterfeit that was brilliant enough to stand among the rarest gems without detection. "What were you doing with it?" he asked of Lawler, and the agent told him briefly.

The sight of two revolvers pointed close to his venerable head induced Hanzal-Benal to clap his hands and bring from the darkness the bag of rupees which Lawler counted before returning to his pocket. "The Eye of Benares was watching you, Hanzal-Benal," he said coolly.

As they all made their way to the railroad station, for it developed that they were all to sail home on the same steamer, Beatrice Ferriss turned to Lawler.

"I am afraid you are very unhappy now that you cannot fulfill your commission to procure a great ruby for your firm," she said sympathetically.

"I haven't a regret in the world," assured Lawler hastily. "I count this the luckiest day of my life."

He reiterated this statement the day they were married, and he added that the pair of brown eyes he had won far outmatched the farfamed Eye of Benares, which still eludes him.

White Seal Beer
IS A FOOD

It contains about the same nourishment found in milk.

There is this, however, in favor of our product that makes it different from all other food beverages and of much greater value:

WHITE SEAL BEER

is predigested. It places no burdens upon the stomach. Instead of making work for the latter, it aids in the digestion of the solid foods.

Its clear color, its tendency to enrich the blood and improve the health, its splendid flavor and its thirst "cutting" quality, all combine to make this poduct one eagerly sought.

A Romantic Story

But a Matter of Fact Man Spoiled It

By WILLARD COOK

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A number of men were lounging around a trading post in upper Canada. There was Jacques Trudeau, Jules Marier and others, including Silas Hutchins, a Connecticut Yankee, who had come up to trade miscellaneous articles for furs. Jacques Trudeau had the name of being a great story teller. Often of an evening in winter, when the trading of the day was ended, those living near his store would drop in, gather about the stove, get out their pipes and call on him for a story. His yarns, if they had been developed into novels, would have made "best sellers" today, for they were full of adventure, surprises and escapes. But these were flavored with that rhapsody which the French people love so well. On this particular evening Jacques, having been called upon for a story, chose an especially romantic subject.

"When I was a young man an English gentleman named Brewerton came up here with his daughter Clarissa. He bring gold monies to buy furs. He was ver' fine gentleman indeed, and his daughter Mees Brewerton was ver' fine young lady. Mademoiselle she haf nothing to do here, so her father, while he buy furs to tak all togedder at one time down to Montreal to sell, wish to find amusement for her. So he get a young skil teacher named Antoine Brisson to teach Mees Brewerton to use skils. Antoine Brisson he ver' fine looking young man. His face handsome, his hair fall on his shoulders in long black curls from under his fur cap. His buckskin suit show a divine figure lak ze Apollo Belvedere statue. When he speak his voice was lak bass notes of ze organ."

"See here, Trudeau," interrupted Hutchins, "wasn't there some danger o' them two fallin' in love and puttin' the ole man to a heap o' trouble?"

The story teller and the listeners sitting around the stove all looked up reproachfully at the Yankee. They knew that there was bound to be a love affair between these two, but they wished to have it developed in good story form. Trudeau did not deign a reply, and when they had all recovered from the shock of the interruption he continued his story without changing in the slightest the lines he had laid down for its construction:

"Meester Brewerton he wish his daughter to learn to trap. So he engage Edouard Rubidoux to teach her. Thees Rubidoux he ver' handsome man too. He haf eye lak the eagle"—

"Hook nose?" interrupted the Yankee.

"No, sare. Why you ask zat?"

"Eagles have 'em. Go on with your yarn."

"So Brisson he teach Mees Clarissa to walk on skils in ze morning, and in ze afternoon Rubidoux set ze traps for her, and another young man name Peter Garnier some time teach her to shoot ze rifle. Thees way Meester Brewerton try to gif hees daughter somethings to do that she not be lonely in ze dark Canada woods in ze winter, when everyt'ing covered with snow. She learn to shoot ver' fine and skil ver' fine, and she know how to set trap. One day she kill a bear, anudder day she kill a deer, and in ze traps she catch enough mink zat her fadder say he tak ze skins to Montreal and haf them made into cloak for her."

"How much did he save," asked Silas Hutchins, "on the Montreal price?"

"I dunno. Mees Brewerton want a cloak made of ze skins she trapped with her beautiful hands.

"By thees time she go alone on her skils and some time long distance. She tak rifle, so eef she see somethings to shoot she can shoot them, and when she come home somebody go out and bring in what she shoot. Efery afternoon she go out in thees way to set her traps, and in ze morning she go again to see what she haf caught.

"One day she went out on her skils with her rifle to set her traps, and nobodies knew she haf gone. That war ze day of ze great blizzard. Eet begin to snow at 4 o'clock in ze afternoon, and in half an hour ze flakes come down twisted by ze wind so they make one person dizzy. At 6 o'clock Meester Brewerton come in for his supper and ask for his daughter. Then he learn she is not at home, and he ver' much scare, for he t'inks she go set her traps and not get back for ze storm.

"He call on Antoine Brisson and Edouard Rubidoux and Pierre Garnier and say: 'You go find my daughter. Go by different ways, and whoever brings her home to me I gif him hundred pounds.'

"Thees men go outside, and Brisson say, 'I go to ze nearest trap, and Rubidoux say, 'No; I go to ze nearest trap. You go to one of ze udder traps.' And Garnier he say, 'Which trap I go to?' And Brisson say, 'You go to ze third trap.' And Garnier say: 'No; I go to ze second trap. I got more chance to find ze lady.' Then they all talk at once, each man talking louder than ze odder man, and"—

Father Seemed Right.

The organist was not lacking in patriotism, yet he rebelled when requested to play "The Star Spangled Banner" at a wedding.

"It is not appropriate," he said.

"Ain't it?" said the bride's father. "For this wedding it is the most appropriate thing you can play. Cut all the rest of the program if you like, but stick to that. I had the hardest kind of a fight to keep Belle's mother from marrying her off to a foreigner. Between Belle and me we won out for an American, and if this isn't the time for the 'Star Spangled Banner' I'd like to know what is."—New York Sun.

Making Up For Lost Time.

"You don't cook like Mary, my first wife, used to do, Alice," he said in tones of gentle, exasperating reproof.

"No; it seems to me you can't cook like she used to."

On another occasion he remarked:

"You are not so smart at getting about as Mary was. You don't appear to catch up where she left off."

Also at this time a heavy rolling pin came in contact with his head.

"What do you mean by that, you?" he exclaimed in agony.

"I am doing the work that Mary neglected," she replied.

There was more peace in that family afterward.

Bodies Turned to Stone.

Human bodies buried in limestone countries are often turned to solid stone by the limewater which penetrates the graves. In other soils there are elements which sometimes so embalm the buried dead as to preserve form and features unchanged. Many such cases are on record. Robert Burns' body was disinterred in 1815 to be removed to a new tomb. To the surprise of all his friends the features were found to be as perfect as at burial. When the body of John Hampden, the famous English patriot and leader, was disinterred by Lord Nugent 200 years after burial the form and features were as unchanged as if the corpse had been recently laid in the grave.

Oats as Food.

Oats contain a larger amount of flesh and bone forming substances than any other cereal.

A Chameleon's Tongue.

The tongue of the chameleon is wonderfully extensile and extensible. A naturalist says: "By the former word I mean the distance it can be thrown out of the mouth. By the latter word its own elongation is inferred, for I am sure there is not space sufficient in the lower part of the mouth to accommodate the eight inch tongue which can be thrown out unless it is greatly contracted again. We know that it lies "folded" in the mouth, but it folds into a very small space, and when I have held a chameleon's mouth wide open to try to get a sight of this remarkable member it lies so compactly in the loose lower lip that to see it is next to impossible."

A Curiosity In Nomenclature.

The negroes in the British West Indian island of Grenada find it very difficult to keep track of their descent and their relatives because of a curious custom they follow in naming children. The father's Christian name is given to the son for his surname. Thus if a man is named John Jones his son may be called James John and that son's son Robert James, and so on to the end of the chapter. Naturally in a few generations families get into a hopeless muddle, and nobody knows exactly to whom he is related.

More Suitable.

She Was in a Hurry.

"Can you not wait on me immediately?" demanded the richly dressed lady. "I'm in a great hurry."

"Yes; let me have your prescription," said the harassed druggist.

OPENED BIDS SATURDAY

City Council Considered Bids For New Oil Power Lighting Plant.

Northwestern Electric Equipment Company of St. Paul Awarded Contract.

At the special meeting of the city council held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock bids for the installation of the oil power plant in the new auxiliary power house, now in course of construction came up for consideration.

Three bids were received, while a couple more side bids were handed in for generators and electric equipment.

The favorable bidder was the Northwestern Electric Equipment company, of St Paul, and the amount of this bid was $37,570. This amount includes the erection of a 20,000 gallon storage tank.

It was unanimously decided by the council that the kind of engine most favorable was the Desel engine, a product of Busch-Sulzer Bros. of St. Louis, Mo.

The other bids handed in and the amount of the respective bids were the following:

Busch-Sulzer Bros., St. Louis—$39,600.

Fairbanks-Morse Co.—$29,984.

J. G. Roberts, St. Paul—$39,000.

The equipment is expected to arrive here in a short time and will be put on the ground immediately so as to permit its installation as soon as the building is completed which will be sometime in December.

Standardizing Agricultural Education.

The meeting, at St. Anthony Park, of instructors engaged in teaching Agriculture in high, consolidated an other schools, to consider the standardizing of Agricultural courses, was well attended but resulted in nothing beyond a lively and illuminating exchange of views, and the appointment of a committee to arrange a variety of courses, among which the teachers are to be at liberty to choose the one they deem best suited to their respective local conditions-or none.

If any one, prior to the meeting, entertained the notion that Agricultural education, in a great State like Minnesota, could be "standardizied," by the adoption of uniform courses, so that pupils taking such would come out as much alike as so many tenpenny nails, he must have experienced a rude awakening. For there was manifestly little desire for any such process. You may standarize tools, machines, text books; but never thinking, investigation processes or development; and Agricultural education, in its present stage, has more to do with these last than with the former. It it undesirable that the channels or directions in which these are employed should be in any way limited. Every day makes new revelations of the boundlessness of Agricultural development made possible by the application of science to the processes of the farm.

Local conditions, too necessitate so many variations in the subjects which it is desirable should be taught, or in the comparative amount of time to be given each, as to render still more difficult the work of standardization.

There are, however, certain facts, both elementary and abstruse, and certain generally accepted theories, the teaching of which may well be made common in all agricultural formity or "standardization" in the teaching of them with a view to the most rapid advancement of the pupil as he passes through the various grades leading up to the Agricultural College, is of course desirable. This will probably be acceptably made through the labors of the committee referred to.—C. R. Barne, Extension Division, Minn. Col. of Agr.

NOT ON THE MAP

Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls Left Off Great Northern Map.

Travelers looking for Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls on the Great Northern folder map will be surprised to find that both these cities are conspicuous by their absence.

The folder is the latest edition gotten out by the railway company and was issued July 10th, this present year.

All cities and villages, large and small, are given but through some mistake the two named cities are not represented among them.

In spite of that we are here just as big as you please and proud of it.

NAME NEW TOWNS

Reorganization of Split Towns is Completed—New Names For Some.

Shortly after the creation of Pennington county, the fractions of the towns of Polk Centre, Black River and River Falls remaining in Red Lake county were organized as separate towns and the old names retained. However, at the last meeting of the board, action was taken changing the names of these towns. This action was taken because of the fact that other towns in the state have the same names. In the future the old town of Polk Centre will be Wylie, the old town of Black River will be Brown's Creek, the old town of River Falls will be Hope.

At the last meeting of the board of County Commissions, held Oct. 14, action was taken securing a township organization for a fraction of the old town of Deer Park remaining in Red Lake county. A petition signed by twenty legal voters in the territory asked that the territory be annexed to the town of Equality. The petition was granted and Equality is now larger than it used to be and the old town of Deer Park is no more.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

BACK MOVEMENT

T. B. Walker and Other Big Owners Have Taken Up the Work in Earnest.

The cut over lands of northern Minnesota are to be colonized. There is to be a general campaign for the next six months.

Not only are the state and national agricultural departments going to enlist in this work with more rigor than usual, but large land owners are going to take the matter in hand.

T. B. Walker and other prominent lumbermen, who own thousands of acres of Northern Minn. land, have announced their intention of spending a considerable sum of money and pushing the colonization movement with all their might and main.

It is said that the plan of colonization will be so attractive that the lands will soon settle up. In view of this movement, which has been undertaken by several wealthy men, some of the expressions of the masters of finance will be of interest. Louis Hill, president of the Great Northern, says:

"Northern Minnesota offers greater opportunities to the homeseeker than any portion of any other state I have ever seen."

President Elliott of the Northern Pacific said. "In the growing of potatoes and other vegetables, a large part of the state offers most excellent opportunities for settlers."

"There is no place I have ever heard of where a farmer of limited means can do so well as in Northern Minnesota," is the way Prof. Bull of the Agricultural College puts it.

Northern Minnesota has been neglected for years. It is time there was a greater move made for its settlement," is the expression of Fletcher Walker, the lumberman.

Just what plans will be involved to settle up Northern Minnesota, remains to be seen, but with the big interests back of the move, there is bound to be "something doing."

From now on the slogan will be "watch Northern Minnesota grow and develop."

Al Huseth went up to his claim near Mud Lake the first of the week, where he will spend some time.

CITY ELECTION NEXT TUESDAY

A Few More Days In Which to Select Your Candidates--Election Nov. 8.

Arpin Withdraws From Mayorality Race and Gudnow Torrison Filed Petition Saturday.

Just five days more and the polls will be thrown open for the city election. Saturday was the last day on which candidates could file their petitions with the city clerk and no one whose petition was not filed on or before that day will be able to have his name printed on the city ballot. The only way that now remains for a candidate to get his name on the ballot is by the "sticker" route, but there is little possibility of anyone trying this at this election, especially as there is a large selection of candidates on the ballot.

The withdrawal of Mr. A. M. Arpin from the mayorality race the latter part of last week made it look as though the fight for that office would be two-handed, but on Saturday a petition was circulated for Gudnow Torrison, and was filed that evening, which makes the contest between Messrs. Lars Backe, Wm. Booren and the above named candidate.

Owing to the increasing volume of business Mr. Arpin found that to hold a public office would interfere too much with his business and for that reason felt compelled to withdraw from the race.

Mr. Torrison, who will succeed Mr. Arpin in the race, had filed his petition for alderman-at-large, and simultaneously with his withdrawal as a candidate for that office is the filing of Mr. A. H. Akre's petition for alderman-at large,

All positions are applied for excepting that of special municipal judge.

The following makes up the city ballot:

Mayor—Lars Backe, Independent; W. A. Booren, Public Ownership; Goodnow Torrison, Independent.

Treasurer—E. M. Evenson, Independent.

Alderman-at-large—J. O. Berg, Independent; Albert A. Akre, Independent; Fred Roth, Public Ownership; Lorin B. Lorimer, Public Ownership.

Alderman, 1st Ward—Jacob H. Jacobson, Independent; C. O. Golrud, Public Ownership.

Alderman, 2d Ward—Ed A. Krohn, Independent; Arthur Tanem, Public Ownership.

Alderman, 3d Ward—Joseph Johnson, Independent; Frank Mousley, Public Ownership.

Alderman 4th Ward—D. K. Bryant, Independent; C. M. Wilson Independent; B. Dan Bjorkman, Public Ownership.

Municipal Judge—N. W. Tarrant, Independent; Milton Forder, Independent; H. O. Kjomme, Independent; J. M. Bishop, Independent.

A GIANT PELICAN

Fine Specimen Received In this City By K. Runnestrand Last Thursday.

A giant pelican, which weighs about 50 or 60 pounds and whose wings measure 8 feet from tip to tip, was shot by Karlstad parties last week.

The bird was received in the city last Thursday by K. Runnestrand, the local taxidermist, who is this week stuffing it preparatory to sending it back to the owner at Karlstad.

BUYS ALLIGATORS

Will Be Put In Lincoln High School Fountain Next Summer.

K. Runnestrand, local taxidermist and head janitor at the Lincoln and Washington schools, last week purchased from O. Lawson the two alligators which have been kept in the show window at the Lawson saloon.

Mr. Runnestrand will house the animals over winter and in the spring will put them in the fountain at the entrance of the Lincoln building.

A Bad, Bold Burglar.

A bad, bold burglary was committed last week in one of the business places of the city.

The case is not put down as one in which a large "booty" is concerned, but what makes it seem bold is the fact the stealth was committed in the presence of a large gathering without the miscreant being discovered. The victim of the stealth is our popular operator at the Lyceum theatre and his loss is a pair of brand new gloves.

It is hoped that if said miscreant is detected he will be immediately brought to justice or made to give back the gloves to the owner with his apologies.

GAME SATURDAY

Local High School to Try Conclusions With Fosston Saturday.

Saturday afternoon on the local gridiron will take place the battle royal between the High School football team of this city and the fast Fosston aggregation. Inasmuch as these two teams have been evenly matched and have been rivals for first honors in years past, it is safe to say that the boys will put all their energy in the game and make it a very interesting contest.

Everyone who is at liberty to do so should "turn out" and see the game, and incidentally help the boys pay the expenses of bringing the visitors here and be able to accord them royal treatment during their stay in the city.

LANDSHOW RATES

Rates to Be Offered By Railroads for Week of Land Show at St. Paul.

That the thousands of people in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and the Dakotas who did not attend the Minnesota state fair because of wretched weather, may still have an opportunity to see the finest collection of agricultural products ever brought together, the railroads have just recently announced reduced rates to the Land Show to be held in St. Paul Dec. 12 to 23.

While the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific roads are the first ones to make the announcement, it is expected other roads will follow. The rate will be one and one third fare for the round trip from points within two hundred and fifty miles of the Twin City, but this may be extended if there is a call for rates from a longer distance.

The great exhibit made by the counties of Minnesota at the state fair has been preserved and many additions made, while the best samples have been secured from six other state fairs, making the Land Show a condensed exhibit from all the state and county fairs of the American Northwest.

WILL NOT RETURN

H. G. Maxwell Decides to Open Up Music Studio In Grand Forks.

The News scribe is in receipt of a letter from H. G. Maxwell, who left here about a month ago, to the effect that he has decided to locate in Grand Forks where he will open up a music studio.

Mr. Maxwell's intention was, in the first place, to go on to Chicago to spend the winter, but while stopping off at Grand Forks on his way he was so impressed by prospects in that city that he decided to locate there.

His many friends here will regret to learn of his intention not to return to this city in the spring, but wish him success in his new field.

FIXING UP THINGS

Improvements Are Being Made at the Thief River Falls Co-operative Creamery.

The work of making a number of improvements at the local creamery, one of which is putting a stone foundation under the building, is now in course of operation.

The work was commenced about two weeks ago and it is expected that everything will be completed in about two or three weeks.

With these improvements the creamery will be housed in a good and substantial building, and one that will see service for years to come.

EXTRA SESSION

Demand For Extra Session of Legislature Becoming Strong.

D. P. O'Neill Writes Interesting Letter to Bemidji Pioneer.

Below we quote some extracts from a letter of Rep. D.P. O'Neill of this city, to the Bemidji Pioneer of last Friday, in which he justifiably sanctions the plan for an extra session of the legislature:

"There can be no doubt about the language used by the governor at Brainerd, and I for one believe he will do just what he said he would if there is a general demand that he should carry out his promise. The expense will be nothing compared to the benefits. If the law makers got right down to business they could accomplish everything necessary in thirty days.

"Next to reapportionment in importance is the passage of the income tax amendment. If governments are instituted among men for the protection of life and property, then certainly property, and not necessities should be taxed for its support.

"Now, having lived in Southern Minnesota for about thirty years, and being personally acquainted with all its leading politicians, I say most emphatically there is no disposition on their part to deprive agricultural Northern Minnesota of its just representation. There is and has been opposition to increasing the representation of the three large cities, and this opposition is not confined to Southern Minnesota alone but extends very largely throughout all the strictly agricultural sections of the state. Take for instance such a big broad minded, able man as Senator Gunderson of Alexandria who has always seen danger in giving control of the senate to the cities with a few others from state institution districts,

"I am firmly of the opinion that if the governor would call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of re-districting the state, that, both the House and Senate would have a bill, perhaps not quite what we would demand, but a bill which would give to Northern Minnesota a larger and fairer representation.

"Now as to good roads, the crying need of Northern Minnesota. I am afraid that my good friend Robert has never got entirely over the superstitions of his native country where they see fairies in every bush for he sees ghosts now. The idea of Southern and Central Minnesota defeating the Good Roads Amendment by which all the counties will receive fair treatment, because a few counties in Northern Minnesota see fit to take advantage of the Elwell law, when the county and the property owners not only pay half the expense, but also their share of the state tax, does not seem reasonable. Southern Minnesota must know and realize that Northern Minnesota is contributing annually of its iron and timber over twenty times as much as it could receive. No, let us have Elwell roads, Bob Dunn roads, or any other fellow who wishes to make good roads. We need them all and we will give them all due credit besides. Winona in Southern Minnesota is the first county to take advantage of the Elwell law. If twenty-five per cent of the increase in farm values in Northern Minnesota for the last two years, brought about by the drainage and building of roads, and the boosting of the Northern Minnesota Development Association, could be collected, it would make a fund sufficient to build all the truck lines proposed and still have millions left, and this drainage and road making did not cost the state a cent."

VALUABLE DEMONSTRATION.

The Pennsylvania experiment station has been doing some work of a practical nature within the past few years along the line of instructing the orchardists of the state in the matter of giving their orchards more careful and scientific care. Some four years ago eleven orchards were selected with the idea of giving them a ten year course of experimental treatment along the line of better culture, fertilizing, spraying, etc. The orchards have been divided into check plots, the different areas being given different treatment to test results. Some of these received no fertilizer, others various combinations of nitrogen, phosphoric acid, phosphorus, lime, barnyard manure, clover and mulch. The results have been most instructive. It was found that the plots receiving no fertilizer gave practically no return. Other treatments yielded net returns ranging from $100 to $500 per acre. Nitrogen alone or in combination gave excellent results. Potash or phosphoric acid alone showed no increase in fruit production, but did when used in combination with nitrogen. Lime alone had no beneficial effect, but barnyard manure gave the best results of all. For the purpose of gathering up and giving fruit growers of the state the benefits of a direct inspection of some of this experimental work a field meeting was held on the Johnson farm, in Lawrence county, on Sept. 27. Horticultural experts in charge of the experiments, assisted by those from other states, were present to explain the demonstration work to the many who assembled to get the benefit of it.

THE EROSION OF EARTH.

Investigations which have been carried on by the United States geological survey show that the surface of the country is being worn away by the erosive action of water at the rate of an inch in 760 years. This seems like a very small amount, but it is an enormous amount when viewed in the action of single drainage basins. It is estimated that the Mississippi river carries annually to the gulf of Mexico 136,400,000 tons of dissolved matter and 340,500,000 tons of suspended matter, such as particles of earth. Of this total the Missouri river contributes more than twice as much as does the Ohio. The Colorado river delivers at its mouth 100,740,000 tons of suspended matter, or more than any other single drainage system. It is estimated that all rivers in the United States which flow to the sea bear thither a grand total of 883,000,000 tons of dissolved and suspended matter, or the equivalent of 610,000,000 cubic yards of surface soil.

THE TWO-YEAR AGRICULTURAL COURSE.

In years past much of the work done by agricultural colleges has failed to confer the largest possible usefulness because of the rigid and quite exacting requirements for admission to the agricultural courses, in many cases the equivalent of a high school course being necessary. Within the past two years several leading agricultural schools, realizing this fact, have provided for a two-year agricultural short course, which is open to all young people who have had the branches taught in the average country school, a knowledge of which would be necessary for satisfactory progress in the courses offered. The benefit which will result from thus throwing these practical and helpful courses open to a greatly increased number of young men and women can hardly be estimated. It will mean the realizing of a maximum value from the most practical type of instruction that is offered in American schools today.

A SPECIALIST'S OPINION.

Professor Hopkins of the University of Illinois, one of the leading speakers at the conservation congress held a short time since at Kansas City, made the rather startling statement that notwithstanding the fact that the soils in many sections of the country have been depleted by soil robbing to the point of virtual bankruptcy, we are exporting annually 1,000,000 tons of our best phosphate rock for the paltry sum of $5,000,000, when if this same phosphorus were applied to our own depleted soils it would be worth $1,000,000,000 in the production of bread for future generations. He made the further interesting statement that, with proper handling based on a knowledge of the fundamentals of preserving soil fertility, millions of acres of practically abandoned land in the older states could be brought to a point of productivity where they would have a value in excess of the $200 corn-belt lands of the central states.

SHOULD BE RIPE.

The enjoyment to be derived from eating pears—and this has to do with texture, juiciness and flavor—is almost entirely dependent upon their being ripened at the time of consumption. Pears for shipment any distance are always picked while hard. They may have attained full size and good color, but at the same time be hard and worthless. The proper way of handling pears in such condition is to put them away in a cool dark place, and before many days they will be perfection—soft, luscious and finely flavored. If any readers have never given pears this preliminary treatment they should do so and get favorably acquainted with the finest fruit that grows.

MORE ARRESTS FOR ARSON

Edward and Edwin Geralds, Prominent Business Men of Bemidji, Appear in Court.

Charged with arson in the third degree, Edward and Edwin Geralds, twin brothers and prominent in business circles of Bemidji, were arraigned before Judge C. W. Stanton of Bemidji on an indictment returned secretly recently by the Beltrami county grand jury. Neither entered a plea, signifying to the court that they wished more time in which to prepare it.

Bail bonds in each case were fixed at $5,000 and the accused men were given further time to enter a plea. Each furnished bonds and was released. No attorney appeared for either. E. E. McDonald represented the state.

The alleged crime of which the Geralds are accused is the setting on fire of a building in Black Duck last April. Dr. D. F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, convicted recently by a jury of third degree arson for the attempted burning of the postoffice at Puposky, is alleged to have been a confederate in the commission of the Black Duck crime.

While no other arrests have been made in connection with the arraigning of the Gerald brothers, it is hinted that other persons are involved in the burning of the Black Duck building. Whether anyone besides the Geralds has been indicted by the grand jury in this connection is not known, as any indictments which may have been returned other than those against the brothers were not made public.

Edward Geralds was arrested in Portland, Ore., and reached Bemidji, accompanied by officers, just before the arraignment of the brothers.

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

At a meeting of the Carnegie hero fund commission at Pittsburg among scores of medals awarded was one to John Murdock, a young farmer of Clitherall, Otter Tail county. Last winter a party of boys were crossing a lake on skates when one of them fell through an airhole. The rest of the party rushed to Murdock's house on the shore of Lake Clitherall and called him to the rescue. Murdock crept out on the ice to the edge of the hole and saw the boy's body lying on the sandy bottom of the lake, eighteen feet below. He dived and brought the body to the surface.

John Shequin of Marshall has just celebrated his 103d birthday anniversary, and his wife, who is hale and strong at the age of ninety-three, helped to cook and make ready for the members of the family who were present. Mr. Shequin tried to enlist in the Civil war in 1861 but was refused as being too old. He was only four years old when the war broke out in 1812, so he is not a war veteran, but it is no fault of his.

Mrs. Jean Whitcomb, who has been known for a number of years in this country and in France as a social guide, is a charity patient in the Metropolitan hospital, New York city, suffering from rheumatism. She is the widow of O. P. Whitcomb, who was a pioneer in Minnesota and state auditor from 1873 to 1882. She served as companion in wealthy families before she was stricken.

The "seven senator" case will be appealed to the state supreme court from the order of Judge W. E. Hale of Minneapolis, who refused the petition of C. R. Fowler and W. D. Washburn, Jr., for an injunction restraining Secretary of State Julius A. Schmahl from placing the proposed amendment to the constitution on the general election ballot.

The state board of control having ordered that cells in the Owatonna city jail be replaced with new and higher ones the city has retaliated by asking the board to change the doors at the state public school there, so they will open outward, and has refused to obey the board's order in regard to the jail.

According to latest reports St. Paul is to have a new Union railway station. It is to be one of the largest, best equipped and finest in the country. Construction work will be commenced within sixty days and the building will be on the site of the present structure.

John A. Johnson, a traveling salesman, has been nominated for mayor of Duluth by the Socialists of that city, and John A. Keyes for municipal judge. The party also named aldermen from every ward in the city.

George W. Cross of Tohatchie, N. M., has been appointed superintendent of the Fond du Lac Indian reservation, with headquarters in Cloquet. He succeeds A. A. Pear, who was recently transferred to Oklahoma.

Daniel and Mrs. Whipps, early settlers of Minnesota, who came from Southern Ohio in a prairie schooner, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary at Minneapolis last week.

"I understand old Skinflint has got religion."

"It's possible."

"Do you really think so?"

"Well, if Skinflint and religion have come together at all I think it is safe to say that he has got religion. There certainly is nothing to indicate that religion has got him."—Chicago Post.

If What We Say Is True You Want This Roofing

You are a business man. Here is a business proposition. We make some strong claims in this ad as to what Vulcanite Roofing is and as to what it will do. If these statements are facts, you can't afford to buy any other kind of roofing. It costs nothing to investigate.

Here's the way to test us. Go to the dealer named below. Ask him for the book, "Ten Years Wear in Ten Minute Tests" and a sample of Vulcanite Roofing. Then get samples of other kinds of prepared roofings, both lower and higher priced than Vulcanite. Apply the tests the book contains, and choose the roofing that proves itself best.

No amount of money will bring a better piece of goods than

Vulcanite Roofing

Every dollar you put in Vulcanite Roofing brings you one hundred cents worth of real roofing value. Prices are based on actual cost of material and making. No prepared roofing can be better than Vulcanite. Higher prices can't bring you more roofing worth. They simply mean more profit for the maker. Lower prices can't bring as good a roofing as Vulcanite. Cost of material and making won't permit.

So go to the dealer and get the book today. It is well worth having and well worth keeping.

The Minneapolis Journal in its issue of Oct. 18 has the following interesting editorial on the "Advance of Swedish Democracy," which we believe will interest many readers of this column. It says: "Sweden's recent elections were the first held under the new law granting universal manhood suffrage. They were held for the Second chamber only, the First chamber—corresponding somewhat to our senate—remaining unchanged. The results were a stunning surprise to the Conservatives, who had counted on retaining sufficient strength in the popular chamber to hold on to power. The complete returns show the parties to be thus represented in the lower house of the riksdag: Liberals, 102; Socialists, 64; Conservatives, 64. When the Conservatives three years ago were forced into permitting the universal suffrage measure to become law, they succeeded in making a part of it a peculiar system of proportional representation, whereby the minority was to have its proportional share of the representation. They hoped in this way to retain their strength in the Second chamber. This they had usually been able to dominate under the old Swedish system of property qualifications, which permitted only about 8 per cent of the adult men to vote. But the Conservative hopes proved illusive, and both the Liberals and the Socialists have made tremendous gains at the expense of the old party. So great, in fact, was the overturn, that on joint ballot of the two houses the Conservatives will be outvoted. Under the Swedish constitution when money measures cannot be agreed on by the two houses acting separately, a joint session is held and the result of the vote of both memberships is decisive."

That Miss Alma Hedin, sister of Sven Hedin, the famous explorer, has been elected to the municipal council of Stockholm, as stated in recent cable dispatches, is not surprising in view of the importance assumed by women and by people of culture and attainment in public affairs of Sweden. The success of Miss Hedin is probably not all in the way of a tribute to Dr. Sven Hedin, although his daring and toilsome journey overland to Peking, described in his book, "Through Asia," made him something of a national hero and gained for him a worldwide reputation. Dr. Hedin himself was recently honored by election to the Academy of Sciences.

A Swedish-American tenor, who, however, has little financial means at his command, has arrived in Stockholm, where he was given an opportunity to try his voice for the well known Swedish composer, Peterson-Berger, who declared that the young man has a wonderful voice and a most promising future. Even in spite of this excellent recommendation young Mr. Gronlund has not been able to find any of the prominent vocal teachers in Stockholm willing to accept him as a pupil.

Ellis Olson Ellis, said to be the foremost comic actor and singer in Sweden, will arrive in this country Nov. to make a brief tour as a star in the title role of "Sten Stensson's Saga." Dr. Victor Nilsson of Minneapolis has, after negotiations extending over several years, at last succeeded in having Mr. Ellis come over to appear with Swedish-American companies in different cities of the East and West.

Sven Hedin's latest book, entitled "From Pole to Pole," has just now been placed in the market by the Albert Bonnier Publishing company of Stockholm and will be translated into not less than twenty-one languages. Literary critics pronounce it a singularly interesting book and predict that it will have an enormous sale in the Scandinavian countries and also among Scandinavian-Americans.

L. Brante, a prominent Swedish veterinary surgeon, who has just returned from an extensive tour through Germany, states that the trade agreement between Germany and Sweden is being violated every day in Germany and that it is up to the Swedish government to see to it speedily that the trade pact is enforced. Sweden, claims Mr. Brante, is losing trade under the new arrangements every day.

Selma Lagerlof has completed a new novel, which will be ready by Christmas and will be entitled, "Liljecrona's Home." It is practically a prologue to "Goesta Berling's Saga" and will be published in Swedish, Danish, Finnish, German, Italian, Dutch and English.

In Hamar there is in progress an important electric exhibit showing the various uses of electricity for the countryside. Waterfalls are being utilized in all parts of the country and once the power is harnessed it is an easy matter to lead it to the farmhouses and use it in a hundred practical ways. Electricity in the country districts is getting to be a general thing and farmers are pumping their water, grinding their feed and lighting their houses, besides using the electric power in many different ways.

Madame Anna Larsen, who is considered one of the leading actresses in Denmark, is at present engaged in an extensive lecture tour throughout Norway. Wherever she appears she is greeted by large audiences and her lectures are reported to be among the most instructive and entertaining that have been offered the Norwegian public in many years. She lectures principally upon Norwegian and Danish poetry and even in the country districts people will sit and listen attentively to her rather learned lectures.

Haugesund, Norway, is to have a new daily newspaper, which is reported will have a conservative tendency. Haugesund has been coming right to the front during later years and the town may be said to be booming at present. This is the case with a great many Norwegian towns along the coast and the general situation bodes well for the future.

In the Trondhjem districts they have a fine crop this year. There has been plenty of rain and farmers are all doing well. The season in this part of Norway has been favorable throughout and the hay crop turned out unusually well.

The theatrical season was opened in Bergen last week with "Carmen," with Agnes Hansen in the title role and the Swedish opera singer, Sven Nyblon, appearing as Don Jose. Large audiences have patronized every performance.

Ex-Premier Michelsen is reported to be in rather ill health. He was unable to attend the annual meeting of the National Shippers' association, of which he is president. The meeting was held in Christiania a few days ago.

The United Steamship company is building two new passenger steamers, which will ply between West Norway and Denmark. The route will include Kristiansand, Stavanger, Bergen and possibly Trondhjem.

The Christiania students carried off first honors at the international rowing contest, which was held in Stockholm the other day. The Norwegians were easy winners over the Swedes.

The National Bankers' association of Norway held its annual meeting in Trondhjem week before last. About 500 delegates were present.

Though remote from the great capitals, says a Copenhagen dispatch, the women of Iceland are leading the world in their achievement of complete equality with men. Not only has the allthing sanctioned woman's suffrage and the eligibility of women to sit in parliament, but complete equality has been secured in competitive activities outside of politics. Women from this year will be free to take any positions under the government and to compete on equal terms in examinations for scholarships or public offices. Only on the right of women to become pastors of churches has there been any dissension, but even that has been overcome. The national sentiment runs particularly strong among Iceland women of all classes and nowhere in the world is the picturesque national dress more generally worn.

On Oct. 1 appeared the first issue of The International Milk Dealer, which is published by H. P. Olsen, a Danish-American, at Milwaukee. Mr. Olsen has for a number of years published the Butter, Cheese and Egg Journal and has met with splendid success. In his new publication he will publish weekly notes regarding the progress of the dairy industry in Denmark and other countries. The Journal will prove of much benefit to dairymen throughout the Northwestern states.

What happens in Denmark during the course of only one hour has recently been figured out by a clever statistician thus: Nine children are born every hour, six people die every hour, two couples are married during every hour and one person emigrates to America every hour; 270,000 kilometers of coal, 18,000 liters of petroleum, 9,000 kilograms of sugar, 13,500 kilograms of coffee are consumed every hour in little Denmark.

They are having a little trouble at present with the new 50 and 500 crown bills. They are so much alike that even bankers have made the mistake of passing a 500 crown bill for a 50 crown one and vice versa. Indeed the new bills are so much alike and so stiff to handle that the government will soon be called upon to issue new ones.

The Norwegian steamer Ringhorn, from Bergen, collided a few days ago with another Norwegian steamer, Karmo, hailing from Skudenes. The Ringhorn was filled with water, but somehow the vessel managed to keep afloat and the crew found time to save themselves.

DR. VINCENT INAUGURATED

Impressive Ceremony at the University of Minnesota.

In the presence of his two predecessors in office and the most notable gathering of American educators in the history of the West, Dr. George E. Vincent was formally inaugurated president of the University of Minnesota and in a stirring inaugural address outlined his plans for the future of the university.

At 10 a. m. addresses were given by President Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago, President Albert Ross Hill of the University of Missouri, President John Huston Finley of the College of the City of New York, and President Charles Richard Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin.

Luncheon, for the delegates and speakers was given in Sanford hall at 12:30 and for invited guests in Shevlin hall.

The academic procession then formed again and, at 2:10 o'clock, proceeded to the armory for the installation exercises, presided over by former Governor John Lind, president of the board of regents, at which President Vincent delivered his inaugural address.

ATTACKS SANBORN DECISION

St. Paul Lawyer Files Brief in Minnesota Rate Case.

Acting as "a friend of the court," Edmund S. Durment of St. Paul has filed with the United States supreme court at Washington a supplemental brief in the Minnesota railroad rate case. Frederick S. Tyler of Washington appeared in court as counsel for Mr. Durment. Mr. Durment sets forth that he appeared in the case when it was tried in the lower court.

Mr. Durment attacks the holding of Judge Sanborn that a railroad should be allowed a reasonable profit on the value of its property. He does not believe in valuations of railroad property made by the courts. Mr. Durment takes the position that such valuations must of necessity be based on statistics furnished by the railroads. As the railroads are perfectly able to employ all the experts they need the court valuation in such circumstances, he says, is unreliable.

President of Oliver Company Back From New York Conference.

Official announcement of the United States Steel corporation's decision to cancel the Hill iron ore leases was handed out by W. J. Oliver, president of the Oliver Mining company, upon his return to Duluth from New York city, where he had attended conferences of officials of the subsidiary companies. Mr. Olcott said:

"I have to confirm the statements that have appeared in various papers foreshadowing the cancellation of the Hill ore lease. The lease calls for the giving of at least three years' notice of the intention to cancel and that will be given very shortly. The cancellation will take effect Jan. 1, 1915."

According to the sentiment of the press it is becoming more and more evident that the wisest thing Gov. This he should and undoubtedly will do.

FIRE PREVENTION

People of Minnesota Will Consider This Important Question November 8th.

During the past few years the people of the nation, particularly those of the Northwest, have heard a great deal about the conservation of the natural resources.

In the mad scramble for the dollar the average American citizen has grown both reckless and extravagant, and the waste resulting is enormous.

In the endeavor to interest the public in the necessity of conserving the forest and the producing quality of the soil the very important question of the prevention of fire waste has been overlooked, with the result that Minnesota's ash heap has yearly been increasing by leaps and bounds. Taking the year of 1910 as a basis the fire waste in Minnesota was over $3.00 for every man, woman and child in the State or approximately $6,500,000. Much of this waste could have been prevented had the proper care been used. If the ratio for the first six months of 1911 holds out during the entire year the per capita loss in Minnesota will be in excess of $4.000, while the loss in the European countries is on the average about 40 cents.

A good portion of this loss is, of course, paid by the insurance companies, but comes out of the people in the last analysis. Minnesota's shameful fire waste has caused it to be known throughout the country in insurance circles, as "the burning state". During 1910, fourteen insurance companies, with a combined capital of $31750,000, were compelled to withdraw from the state because of excessive losses, and ten of these were so financially embarrased as to have to either reinsure their entire business, or merge with other companies. In 1907 there were 173 fire insurance companies of all kinds operating in Minnesota with risks amounting to $983,067,378. This did not include 147 Township Mutual Companies who carried insurance to the amount of $221,278,232. At the close of 1910 there were but 170 stock fire insurance organizations operating in the state, carrying insurance to the amount of $970,354,810. The above figures do not include 148 Farmers' Mutual Companies who carry insurance to the amount of $274,003,040.

At the last annual meeting of the National Fire Marshalls' Association held in Chicago in June of this year, a resolution was passed urging the Governors of the various states to set aside a certain day to be known as "Fire Prevention Day." Fire Marshall C. E. Keller and Insurance Commissioner J. A. O. Preus took up the matter with Governor Eberhart, who realized the importance of the move and issued a proclamation setting aside Wednesday, November 8th, 1911, as "Fire Prevention Day."

At the meeting held at the Governor's office several weeks ago, attended by the state officials interested, representatives of various civic and business bodies, an executive committee consisting of Insurance Commissioner J. A. O. Preus, Assistant Fire Marshal Asa M. Wallace, Secretary of the St. Paul Association of Commerce Joseph Beek, Secretary of the Minnesota Fire Prevention Association Louis Law, and James Matchitt, editor of Northwestern Insurance, were appointed to look after the details and arrange a suitable program for a monster meeting to be held at the Palm Room of Hotel St. Paul, St. Paul, on the afternoon and evening of November 8th.

The object of this Fire Prevention Congress is to discuss the question of fire waste from all its various phases. The insurance experts will handle the question from their view point. Men prominent in the work of fire prevention in other states will speak, while the question of the prevention of fires in the forests of the state will be given close attention.

Fish as Mirrors.

A scientist says he always fancied little fish were protected against the mouths of the big fish chiefly by their markings looking like the stones and reeds in the water, but he now concludes that all shining silvery fish are mirrors, reflecting the dark bottom of the pond, and it is only when such fish come to the surface that the light shines on them, and they become visible to the big fish that prey on little fish. So long as the little silvery fish stay close to the bottom they look like mud and stones, only showing their shining silver when they come near the top and so are soon swallowed down.—Detroit Free Press.

Ancient Rules For Carving.

Our ancestors fully recognized the value of good carving, and many were the rules by which a carver was expected to be governed. The ancient "Boke of Kervyng," among other things, admonishes him to touch venison only with his knife and to "set never on fysche, flesch, beeste ner fowle more than two fyngers and a thumbe." Fingers he was naturally obliged to use since forks were a luxury of later date and were not in private use until James I.'s reign. Piers Gaveston, the favorite of Edward II., had three silver forks for eating pears, but this was regarded, no doubt, as a great and special luxury.

What's In a Name.

A large steamer was once wrecked because one of the sailors was named West. The vessel was outward bound from Rotterdam, and the sailor was on deck polishing some brasswork. Suddenly the captain called him and told him to go below. The second officer on the bridge heard the captain call out the man's name and thought it was an order to change the course of the vessel to west. He did so, and the result was that the ship ran on to a dangerous shoal. That name cost the owners of the vessel the sum of $500,000.

Fully Qualified.

The story is told of a man who by some unaccountable blunder by the appointing authority was made judge of a minor court. He could neither read nor write, but that did not give him any uneasiness, although it aroused some fears in the breast of his wife.

"What are you going to do when there's any reading or writing comes into cases?" she timidly inquired.

"The folks that bring the readin' will read it, and the folks that want the writin' will write it," calmly replied his honor, "or if they can't I shall commit 'em. All I've got to 'tend to, Hitty, is the judgin', and I can do that as quick as anybody."

Chinese History.

The Chinese claim for their civilization an antiquity of from 80,000 to 100,000 years, but the claim deserves no particular consideration. Most of the eastern peoples claim for themselves a similar antiquity. There are few authentic dates in Chinese history prior to the year 600 B. C., though, of course, the Chinese civilization greatly antedates that period. It is safe to say that the Chinese is among the oldest of existing civilizations, but when it comes to being precise it is quite out of the question.

Malibran's Generosity.

Malibran, the celebrated mezzo soprano, who was born at Paris in 1808 and died at Manchester, England, in 1836, was beloved for her amiability, generousity and professional enthusiasm. Her benefactions amounted to such considerable sums that her friends were frequently obliged to interfere for the purpose of regulating her finances.

Cleopatra.

Cleopatra means "fame of her father." It was once very common among the royal ladies of Egypt and Greece and survives in the French Cleo. Cleopatra was born in Alexandria 59 B. C. and died at the age of thirty-nine not by applying a poisonous asp to her bosom, but by swallowing some secret poisoning.

Father's Shortcoming.

"The trouble with father," said the gilded youth, "is that he has no idea of the value of money."

"You don't mean to imply that he is a spendthrift?"

"Not at all. But he puts his money away and doesn't appear to have any appreciation of all the things he might buy with it."—Exchange.

Its Havoc.

"Love certainly does play havoc with a man's anatomy."

"In what way?"

"It makes him lose his head, give away his hand and often breaks his heart."—Baltimore American.

An Ice Poultice.

In many cases of inflammation an ice poultice is a very useful application. It is made in this way: Spread a layer of linseed meal three-quarters of an inch thick on a piece of cloth and upon the meal put at intervals lumps of ice about the size of a marble. Sprinkle meal over the ice and cover all with the cloth, turning the edges over. In this way the ice will last much longer than it otherwise would, and the poultice will be quite comfortable.

A Point Well Taken.

It seems odd how a business man in a town like this will kick over the traces if a farmer sends away for a bill of goods, yet the same business man will send his printing out of town without even giving the local printer a chance to figure on it. FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN
BY
F.E.TRIGG
CENTRAL POINT
ROGUE RIVER VALLEY
OREGON
CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

The national apple show, the greatest event of the year horticulturally, will be held in Spokane, Wash., this year, the date set being Nov. 23-30.

Many a shock of corn is hard hit from heavy fall rains through failure to make a second and later tie above the first when the fodder was cut and which has become loose through a shrinkage of the stalks and leaves.

A fish hatchery in Oregon has just started its "incubators" going with 10,000,000 salmon eggs. These will be given proper "brooder" accommodations and when old enough to forage for themselves will be liberated in the streams of the Pacific slope.

The fact is certainly not appreciated as fully as it should be that no food is so beneficial as milk in increasing the quantity and improving the quality of blood and thus building up a depleted and rundown physical system. A quart a day with all of the butter fat will do the business.

The sumac and hard maple stand at the head perhaps in the popular esteem for their gorgeous leaf coloring, but in seasons when the leaves of the hazel brush have time to ripen naturally they produce a variety as well as a quiet richness of coloring that is unsurpassed.

In Cairo, Egypt, where the Mohammedan religion holds sway, dogs are held sacred and practically swarm in the streets. As one passes through some of the small towns in America the number of dogs to be seen would seem to justify the belief that the followers of Mohammed were getting a foothold.

With prices of hay ranging as high as at present there would hardly seem to be any need for urging the best possible care to be given in the handling of stalks, straw and other forms of roughage. Before another growing season rolls around hay will be a mighty scarce article and the price out of sight.

The consensus of opinion of those who have had experience in dry farming is that land sloping to the north or northeast is best suited to the purpose. This is due to the fact that land with such slope is not exposed so directly to the rays of the sun, loses less moisture from evaporation and is less likely to suffer from hot winds.

Not only does the orchardist who takes scientific care of his trees get an extra price for his fruit when there is a short crop, but he is well paid for this care even when he sells on a flush market, for it is under such conditions especially that quality counts, as fruit that is given no spraying or other attention does not justify paying freight to get it to market.

An interesting trait of waterfowl that most every hunter is acquainted with is that when wounded on the water they will almost invariably crawl out on land, while if winged on land they will as often seek refuge in nearby water. The redhead, one of the most highly prized of game birds, has a still more exasperating habit of diving when wounded and seizing hold of some water plant and there dying.

The story is familiar of the donkey that ate heartily of dry prunes and in crossing a broad ford got them soaked up, with the result that they expanded so that the animal burst asunder. But not until this season has the writer noticed apples developed during a dry season, dropping in August and several weeks later bursting their skins following copious rains through absorbing moisture from the damp grass in which they lay.

A reader of these notes inquires if it will injure seed corn which has been gathered some little time to be left out in a rain. Provided it was where the sun would shine on it and dry it out no injury would result unless a hard freeze caught the corn unprotected with this moisture in the germ and cob. By far the better plan is to see first that the corn is thoroughly dried out, then hang it in a dry and well ventilated place until winter, when it may be hung in a dry cellar or vacant room upstairs.

A farmer in the north part of the corn belt who lives near a sweet corn canning factory recently banked $1,000 as the proceeds of thirty acres of sweet corn. Besides this he has the fodder left, which he considers equal acre per acre with timothy hay. This fodder he feeds as a part ration for a dairy of a dozen or more cows, from which he gets a revenue of $100 per head. These figures are not unusual, but merely show what can be accomplished by combining energy and intelligence.

Potato prices are found to justify importation of foreign spuds when the price level is 2 cents per pound or more. When the price is less than this the surplus produced in European countries is manufactured into alcohol or used as a ration for farm animals.

The only gorilla ever brought to New York alive is dead of homesickness. The animal was a female and would not eat; hence it slowly starved to death. Sixty of her companions, male and female, died when attempts were made to bring them from their native haunts in Africa to this country.

A friend who is a careful student of bird life and habits calls attention to the interesting difference in quality between the songs of Mississippi valley and Dakota plains meadow larks, the notes of the latter, in his opinion, due to a drier condition of atmosphere, being sweeter and clearer than those of their more easterly cousins.

The farmers in the dry belt who have been prevented from thrashing their scanty yield of wheat through unusually heavy rains, which have prevailed lately, have the fact to console them that these rains held captive in the mellow soil and properly conserved by a fine surface mulch next spring, will insure a crop next season.

Foliage plants of rare and beautiful leaf can be had for indoor display by getting slips from one's neighbor or a nearby greenhouse and inserting them in water until tiny roots are visible. They may then be transferred to permanent pots previously filled with rich and mellow earth. The plants should be well watered and kept in a warm room.

The bed of pansies which has furnished a profusion of beautiful bloom during the past season will keep nicely through the winter if given a mulch covering of spent manure or straw litter. One lady we knew used an old carpet for this purpose, and her pansies came through the winter nicely and were ready to bloom by the time the wind flowers opened.

An interesting fact of sugar beet culture is that the beets from which the seed for commerce is raised are not, as one would naturally suppose, the largest beets obtainable, but little fellows about an inch in diameter, which are secured by sowing thickly the seed from highly pedigreed plants. The Germans, who are among the pioneers in beet culture, call these seed beets "stechlinge."

It is well to keep in mind the fact that the soil in the orchard may become badly soured and disordered by leaving piles of cull apples to rot, as has been the case the past few weeks in many sections. It is far better to remove such cull stuff from the orchard entirely, but if such piles have been allowed to rot the spots should be sweetened with a generous sprinkling of slaked lime or ground limestone.

One of the most eminent physicians of the country states that a vast majority of the misery folks suffer from ill health could be prevented by knowledge of simple laws of health and making the most possible of the aid to be got from nutritious food, sunshine and fresh air. His statement, if trustworthy, means that if people would live as they ought to live the medical profession would practically be put out of business.

An article in a recent issue of this department which outlined the bond issue plan for raising funds for highway improvement in Jackson county, Ore., gave the amount raised in 1910 for road work as $960,012, instead of $96,012, while the valuation of property in the county was given as $5,000,000, when the amount should have been $50,000,000. As the figures appeared the amount raised for road work annually was 20 per cent of the total property valuation of the county, which is at a glance an absurd situation.

The boldest tree "graft" that has been pulled off in a long time is being worked by a bunch of get-rich-quick chaps in several eastern states. They are selling cyanide of potassium (a deadly poison) at several dollars a pound to be used in vaccinating trees for the cure or prevention of the diseases from which they may be suffering. This or any other dope injected beneath the bark of trees can have not the slightest effect in curing or preventing tree ills, and, so far as doing any good is concerned, such dope might just as well be put in a hole in the ground out back of the barn.

Within the past two years several thousand Hungarian pheasants have been distributed by the game wardens of several northern states among farmers, who agreed to look after them and see that they were protected from their numerous [illegible]. It is gratifying to learn that as a result of this care and favorable weather conditions these pretty [illegible] have multiplied in a satisfactory [illegible]. It is further a pleasure to record that they are more than paying their way in the service they are rendering as [illegible] destroyers. It is [illegible] that one farmer who became the protector of several pairs of these [illegible] had a big potato patch [illegible] with bugs. The [illegible] forthwith [illegible] patch, [illegible] of the insects and [illegible] estimated [illegible]er. It is a safe guess that this man will look after these birds from this on.

White Seal Beer
IS A FOOD

It contains about the same nourishment found in milk.

There is this, however, in favor of our product that makes it different from all other food beverages and of much greater value:

WHITE SEAL BEER

is predigested. It places no burdens upon the stomach. Instead of making work for the latter, it aids in the digestion of the solid foods.

Its clear color, its tendency to enrich the blood and improve the health, its splendid flavor and its thirst "cutting" quality, all combine to make this product one eagerly sought.

TO BE USED FOR EDUCATION

SWEDEN.

A distinguished Scandinavian-American, Professor Carl Lorenzon of New York, professor of languages at Columbia university and president of the American-Scandinavian society, was a guest in Stockholm last week, whither he went recently for the purpose of ascertaining as to how best dispose of 1,000,000 crowns which was left for him to divide between the three countries. Professor Lorenzon has this money in his possession which was bequeathed to the three Scandinavian countries by a wealthy Danish-American, Niels Poulsen, who died last spring leaving the sum of 1,000,000 crowns to the Scandinavian-American society. The society itself, according to law, has no right to dispose of this money direct, but has appointed a committee of fifteen persons, consisting of eight Americans and seven Scandinavian members. But the society has this aim in view. It proposes to use this money in an effort to tie closer the bonds of friendship among the Scandinavians in the home countries with those who reside in America. The money will be used in the first place to improve the cultural relations between the friends across the sea and also aid them in their material progress. Scandinavian students who desire to study at American universities will be the first beneficiaries of this fund and certain scholarships will be established at different American high schools and universities for this purpose. Naturally Professor Lorenson has been most cordially received in Stockholm, Christiania and Copenhagen and he has been promised all the aid that can be possibly mustered from the other side.

There is a rapid increase in the development of industries in Sweden. In 1909 there was an increase over 1908 of forty-two manufactories, 6,182 workmen and in the value of manufactured products of over 58,000,000 crowns. The report of 1910 is not yet published, but that of 1908 shows a large increase over that of 1907. The report of 1909 gives 11,261 manufactories, 386,205 workmen and 1,387,252,320 crowns valuation of manufactured goods. With its extensive resources at hand Sweden is developing into one of the leading manufacturing countries of Europe. It has long been known that the country has been wonderfully rich in natural resources, as is the case particularly in iron ore, not to mention the copper industry, the latter barely having been touched upon. The numerous water falls which the country possesses in the northern sections are also being harnessed and the electric power that can be had from these is enough to develop any and every industry the country possesses.

Last summer a "Mission Society of Bible Friends" was organized in the Rosenius church in Stockholm. The meeting was presided over by a wholesale merchant named Jeppson. A constitution previously prepared was adopted and fourteen preachers were appointed in different parts of the country. The society will operate chiefly in Southern Sweden, where opposition to the "Fosterlandstiftelsen" seems to have been the strongest. Some fifty delegates took part in the organization meeting.

Occasionally we read of a minister having been in the active service of the church for fifty years, but when it goes beyond sixty it is very unusual. Provost N. F. Kullberg, in Oaker, has been in continual active service for more than sixty-five years. He was born in 1823 and was ordained in 1846. He is still in good health and vigor, preaches every Sunday and performs his pastoral acts without assistance.

The state railways of the country appear to be doing a prosperous business right along. The income of the roads during the month of July, for instance, was 7,046,600 crowns. This is practically half a million more than for the same month in the year of 1910. The expense of operation for the corresponding period was 4,971,712 crowns, which is a gain of 226,712 crowns.

There is an arrangement in the schools of Berlin by which a certain number of school children may have a free summer trip to Sweden. This last summer forty-three children were granted the opportunity to visit Sweden.

The national society for the prevention of emigration has been very active in recent years and at present is waging active campaigns in thirteen of the twenty-four districts of Sweden.

NORWAY.

In all that part of Norway lying south of Trondhjem there has been a persistent drouth which has caused much damage and anxiety. It was thought that with the advent of of the autumn season that general rains would be forthcoming, but such have not set in, at least at last reports. Big rivers have turned into small streams, and the smaller streams have, some of them, dried out completely. Of course the crops in that section of the country have suffered immensely, there being a complete crop failure in some parts. The water is so low that it will be almost impossible to engage in lumbering this winter, for there will scarcely be enough water in the spring to float logs effectually. Thousands of men will thus be thrown out of employment.

Emperor William of Germany has, as a commemoration of his many summer trips to Norway, presented the country with a statue of the song hero, Frithiof. The statue has been completed by the German sculptor, Max Unger, and will be twelve meters in height. It will be formally presented to the Norwegian government in 1913, when Emperor William will for the twenty-fifth time cruise along the Norwegian coast. It will be erected in Sognefjord, where Frithiof and Ingeborg are buried, according to the old saga.

The commercial value of Norwegian waterfalls has recently been estimated by an expert engineer, who claims not less than 4,000,000 horsepower can be secured from the various waterfalls by means of electric power. The question of harnessing the waterfalls of Norway is now uppermost in the minds of all keen business men and speculators and some wonderful developments are looked for in the near future.

Hoffmann, the Norwegian swindler, who got away with 10,000 crowns, has been arrested in London and will be taken back to Christiania, where he will be given a trial. When placed under arrest he carried an automatic revolver and on his person were found important papers which will shed a light on his embezzlements.

The city of Christiania has donated 100,000 crowns to the university centennial jubilee fund. All over the country free will offerings are raised and the amount solicited and collected already amounts to over 120,000 crowns above what Christiania has donated.

According to latest dispatches from Christiania Queen Maud is suffering from an acute attack of bronchitis. Her majesty has been troubled with bronchitis for some time and her physicians express the fear that it may take a serious turn.

DENMARK.

Professor Karl Larsen of Denmark, the well known author and novelist, will this winter deliver a number of lectures in American cities where there are found a large number of Danish-Americans. He will on this trip visit as many Danish colonies, schools and colleges as he shall find time for. Professor Larsen is well known both in Denmark and among Danish-Americans of the United States. He has written a number of realistic novels, in which he deals especially with characters of the under world in Danish cities and pictures conditions just as he has found them in actual life. He has especially devoted his efforts in describing the condition among the downtrodden laboring classes. His latest book is entitled "Danish Settlers" and the book is reported to be highly interesting, with a rather dramatic setting. Professor Larsen will arrive in New York Oct. 31, and after delivering one or two lectures in that city, he will start for the Danish colonies in the Western states.

In accordance with the international system established for the interchange of professors between universities, Dr. James Gore, from the George Washington university, delivered his first lecture at the Copenhagen university a week ago last Monday. His subject was "Modern Co-Operation in Business." His next lecture will be on "American Trusts" and at this lecture several members of the Danish royal family are expected to be present. Professor Gore's lectures are attracting a great deal of attention in Copenhagen and his first lecture was attended by some of the most prominent and learned men in the city.

A notable visit to Copenhagen lately was that of the two sisters, Queen Alexandra of Great Britain and the dowager czarina, and their brother, the king of Greece. Queen Alexandra was clad in deep mourning and has let her wish be known that as little attention as possible be paid her in public. They reside during their visit to their native land at Villa Hvidore, where the two royal sisters will spend a few weeks of quiet rest away from the din of the great cities.

Norman Hansen, who formerly was a physician and surgeon in Chicago, but who is now a Greenland explorer, returned a week ago last Tuesday, after a year's stay at Julianahaab, Western Greenland, and stated on his return from the inland ices that he has discovered large villages and hamlets occupied by Norsemen. The Royal Geographical society will publish a report in detail regarding his discoveries and explorations in Greenland.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

WELL RECEIVED EVERYWHERE

President Taft Appreciates Warmth of Welcome Given Him by the People of Minnesota.

Hearty and whole souled was the welcome tendered President Taft in Minnesota. From the time he entered the state at Glencoe he was received by cheering crowds. At Shakopee two progressive legislators, Senator M. E. Clapp and Congressman C. R. Davis, took part in the welcome that was formally extended by Governor Eberhart and a prominent group of Minnesotans from the Twin Cities and other places. Everywhere the executive's remarks were well received and Mr. Taft showed that he appreciated the warmth of his greeting.

Rain had no terrors for the people of Mankato, who turned out by thousands to greet the president, who insisted upon carrying out the original program, including an automobile drive through the country, an address in the open at the state normal school, a public address at the opera house and a dinner at the Elks' club, followed by another short drive through the city to the Great Western depot.

Addresses Crowd at Minneapolis.

At Minneapolis the president discussed trusts, international peace and railroad regulation before a large audience. After an introduction by Cyrus Northrop, in which the former president of the University of Minnesota and former instructor of Mr. Taft pictured the president as the greatest of progressives because of his work in behalf of universal peace, the president made an address of an hour in which he discussed in detail the tariff question, the control of trusts and the railroad regulation question.

The discussion of the trust question gave the president occasion to repeat his answer to the charge that he had set up the supreme court with the understanding that the judges would emasculate the anti-trust act and in more vigorous language than before.

"Of course," he said, "there is not the slightest foundation in such a statement. Of course, I never had an understanding with any judge I ever put upon the bench upon any subject.

"And the man, or the men, who make such a charge lightly reveal the fact that they have no realization of the iniquity, the corruption that would be involved in such an understanding."

Talks on Peace at St. Paul.

The reception given President Taft at St. Paul was most cordial and he did not disappoint his audience in the talk he gave them.

In clear cut, simple sentences he discussed the peace treaties which he has negotiated with England and France, explained their every detail and showed how they would be an example to other nations which would be an important step in avoiding bloody conflicts between nations.

The president was in a happy mood. The speech in substance was one he had given before, but his many happy expressions and his ridicule of some of the arguments against certain provisions of the treaties brought many a round of laughter and applause from his audience.

The Auditorium, where the president spoke, has seen just as large a crowd a few times before, but no larger. For the Auditorium was filled with 10,000 people, just as it was filled last year when the president spoke at the conservation congress and the day following when Roosevelt spoke there.

ALLEGED SLAYER ARRESTED

Officers Get Chisholm (Minn.) Woman After Siege.

Mrs Rosie Aspich, a prominent Chisholm woman, was arrested after a long siege on a charge of poisoning her husband, whose death ten days ago was supposed to have been due to alcoholism.

The body was exhumed and an autopsy made by the officials disclosed the presence of poison in the stomach. Mrs. Aspich is being held in the Hibbing jail without bail pending the action of the grand jury.

HURLS HIMSELF TO DEATH

Chisholm (Minn.) Miner Drops on Exploding Dynamite Charge.

After waving his hand in a farewell salute to his fellow workmen, Miles Subalz, of Chisholm, twenty-two years of age, rushed forward, threw himself upon a charge of dynamite about to explode and was blown to pieces before the eyes of his horrified companions.

Subalz was an employe of the Leonard mine at Chisholm.

Motorcyclist Hurled to Death.

Henry Knutson of St. Paul, twenty-two years of age, was hurled from his motorcycle by an automobile driven by John Cramsie and died a few minutes later in the operating room of St. Luke's hospital, where he was taken in an automobile. Cramsie is held at Central station pending investigation by Coroner Jones.

MOTHER AND CHILD PERISH

Stove Explodes and Burns House Near Granite Falls.

The farmhouse of Ole Johnson, two miles down the river from Granite Falls, was destroyed by fire and his wife and one child were killed by the flames.

Mr. Johnson says he had been trying to start a soft coal fire in the kitchen stove and as it would not burn readily he went out after some kindling.

While he was away he heard an explosion and, looking up, saw the entire lower part of the house ablaze.

Rushing to the house he succeeded in getting out the youngest child, but his wife and the older child had been left in the kitchen and it was impossible to enter this room on account of the heat.

After the fire had consumed the house pieces of the stove were found scattered about the room and some pieces were found in other rooms and it is evident that after her husband left the house the woman thought she would aid in starting the fire by pouring kerosene on the hot coals.

SUIT BEGUN AT MINNEAPOLIS

Government Takes Action Against the Lumber Trust.

The government's fifth suit in its fight to break up the so called lumber trust was begun in the United States court at Minneapolis, where most of the defendants live. The bill was filed by United States District Attorney Charles C. Houpt.

It is directed against the Northwest Lumbermen's association, the Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information, an Illinois corporation already under fire in another suit against the trust brought in Colorado; Luke W. Boyce, owner of a private detective agency at Minneapolis, who is charged with spying on independent lumber dealers who had the temerity to violate trade "ethics" laid down by the alleged trust, and the Lumberman Publishing company, a Minnesota corporation which issues the Mississippi Valley Lumberman, a trade journal, which the government charges has been the organ of the trust in this section.

INDICTED ON A NEW CHARGE

Mayor Dumas of Cass Lake Pleads Not Guilty.

Having learned that he had been jointly indicted with Edward and Edwin Geralds and Ed Leclare for the alleged crime of arson in the third degree, committed at Blackduck on March 19 last, Dr. Delbert F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, and recently convicted on a charge of an attempt at arson at Puposky, came into court at Bemidji to enter a plea of not guilty.

No attorney for the state happened to be present, and the Cass Lake mayor had to wait several minutes before he could make his plea to the new charge.

In the meantime Attorney E. E. McDonald, special counsel for the state in the arson cases, was called, and he moved the arraignment of Dr. Dumas, who waived the reading of the indictment and entered a plea of not guilty. Bonds were fixed at $3,000, which makes a total of $24,000 bonds now up on behalf of the doctor.

CONFESSES TO OLD CRIME

Homesteader Says He Murdered Companion Sixteen Years Ago

John Sandberg, who confessed to officers at Blackduck to having murdered a man in Aitkin county sixteen years ago, was taken to Aitkin and pleaded guilty to murder in the first degree.

Sandberg's story is that he owned a homestead two miles from Grayling in 1895 and that fall he went to North Dakota and worked in the harvest fields with a young man about twenty years old, known to him only as "John." They returned to the homestead together and when hunting Sandberg, who was walking ahead with the only gun, turned and shot John in the head.

Two Plead Guilty to Murder.

Atanas Lazoff and Costa Nickoloff, the two Macedonians who were arrested on Sept. 6, suspected of the murder of John Witanoff on the night of Sept. 3, in a box car at Prior Lake, were arraigned at Shakopee on an indictment charging murder in the first degree. The defendants entered pleas of guilty as charged and were sentenced to life imprisonment at Stillwater.

Jealousy Cause of Shooting.

Frank McCormick, a switchman formerly employed by the Twin City Rapid Transit company, shot his wife twice through the head while at the Bethel hotel in St. Paul. Jealousy, occasioned by the fact that the woman has been attending dances without her husband, is given by the police as the motive. The woman's condition is critical.

Gas Kills Aged Couple.

Daniel Herman, seventy-six years old, whose wife died of asphyxiation a day before at their home in West St. Paul, also succumbed to coal gas fumes at St. Paul's German hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Herman were overcome by gas from a defective stove.

Lived Nearly 103 Years.

James H. Hogan of Homer Ridge, Winona county, is dead from the infirmities of age at the advanced age of 102 years and nearly 3 months. He was born in Ireland and had made his home in Winona county since 1856.

TURKO-ITALIAN WAR.

Another army expedition to Tripoli sailed secretly from Naples, escorted by a naval division which will be strengthened with other ships after the convoy has passed through the Straits of Messina. The transports and warships carried no lights and nothing leaked out as to whether the troops would be landed at Tripoli, Benghazi, Derna or Tobruk.

In letters received at Malta from Benghazi, Tripoli, the writers estimate the casualties among the inhabitants, resulting from the bombardment by the Italian fleet, at 4,000. The British consulate was a badly damaged and Consul Jones was wounded. Numerous buildings, including a Maltese church, were destroyed.

From uncensored dispatches from Tripoli reaching England by way of Malta, which in part are confirmed by censored dispatches reaching Rome, it is apparent that Italy's campaign in Tripoli already has cost more lives than the government anticipated, while the financial outlay greatly will exceed the estimates.

Advices from Constantinople state that reports from recent battles with losses for Italy at Tripoli have ended at present any chance for mediation. The Turkish government, adopting the standpoint of the people, has swung over to the idea of continuing the war. Germany accordingly sees no opening for intervention.

All reports concerning the possibility of an armistice between Italy and Turkey are discredited in official circles at Rome, which affirm, on the contrary, that Italy is determined not to cease her military operations until Tripoli is wholly conquered.

Turkish forces attacked the town of Homs, not far from Tripoli, but were repulsed with heavy losses.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, died aboard his yacht, the Liberty, in Charleston (S. C.) harbor. The immediate cause of Mr. Pulitzer's death was heart failure. He had been in ill health for several days, but until a few hours before the end none suspected the gravity of his condition. Mr. Pulitzer was sixty-four years of age.

John R. Walsh, former banker, publisher and railroad owner, released nine days previous from the Leavenworth federal penitentiary, died of heart disease at Chicago. Mr. Walsh had been in bed most of the time since his arrival home from Leavenworth Oct. 15. He had been attended constantly by physicians. He was seventy-four years of age.

Death has claimed Ida Lewis, keeper of Limerock (R. I.) lighthouse for more than half a century, heroine of numerous thrilling rescues and frequently alluded to as "Grace Darling of America." She was stricken with apoplexy while at her post and expired a few days later.

Robert Mather, chairman of the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and director of many railroads and banks, is dead at his residence in New York city after a short illness.

Lowry W. Goode of New York, president of the Cairo and Norfolk railroad, ended his life at Boston. Ill health was the cause.

Rear Admiral James H. Sands, U. S. N., retired, is dead at Washington. He was sixty-six years old.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

John Till, the New Richmond (Wis.) "plaster specialist," is defendant in two personal injury suits, aggregating $120,600, started in the Ramsey county district court by Fred Stein and T. J. Flaherty, said to be residents of Minneapolis. Each plaintiff is asking $60,300, $25,000 of which is demanded for pain alleged, $25,000 for wrongfully applying the plasters, and the rest for incidental expenses. Stein alleges that he was given medicine to take internally, which he says contained poisonous acids that caused him distress.

More than $11,000,000 has been added to the valuation of the iron mineral properties of St. Louis, Itasca and Lake counties by the state tax commission. The total assessment is more than $235,000,000. The 1911 assessment shows a net increase over 1910 of 20,100,358 tons, or an increase in dollars of $11,136,678. The commission has completed its valuation of mineral properties in those countries.

The proposed reduction of iron ore rates on the United States Steel corporation's two iron range roads will result in reducing the state's income from the gross earnings tax on railroads an average of 25 per cent, amounting to a decrease of approximately $250,000 in case the ore shipments in 1912 reach the high record of 1909, according to State Auditor S. G. Iverson.

In the last five years the farmers of Blue Earth county have received from co-operative creameries a total of $2,216,744 for their butterfat. There are nineteen creameries in the county, one more than five years ago, so that the gradual increase from $207,000 paid to farmers in 1905 and the $500,000 paid in 1910 represents an improvement in the quality of the cows as well as the number.

Manager H. L. Halverson of the Meeker County Farmers' Shipping association reports that since its organization three years ago 206 cars of stock have been shipped, for which the farmers received $230,981.

Attorney General George T. Simpson has received a check for $12,998.75, representing the inheritance tax due the state from the estate of Adela J. Sloan of Lennox, Mass. The tax is on Great Northern stock.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

The body of a man found in an almost inaccessible swamp of muskeg, in the Crooked Lake country, near Coleraine, has been identified as that of James McArthur, known all over the range, and who last was seen at Hibbing. A search of the swamp did not disclose any track of the dead man's clothing. The police hold to the murder theory.

The state immigration commissioner has placed John Ostermeier under arrest at Litchfield for making false reports to the officers of the immigration bureau upon his arrival with a woman from Germany. He is charged with leaving his wife in the old country.

Joe Visika, residing at Mahnomen, was run over and killed by a Soo local train about three miles south of White Earth agency. He was returning from Detroit and it is presumed he accidentally fell off the train. The body was badly mangled.

Charles J. Berry, a well known miller who was found dead in the basement of the mill at Norwood, was killed by a blow over the heart from a grain spout which had been struck by the spoke of a fast revolving pulley.

Burglars entered the store of Aberwald & Drake, St. Paul clothiers, and packed at least $1,200 worth of merchandise into suit cases taken from the store's stock.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Charles E. Woodward, a resident of Minneapolis since 1888, is dead. Mr. Woodward was born at Bowdoinham, Me., Aug. 11, 1832. He moved to Minnesota in 1856, taking up a farm in Wabasha county, where he was prominent in pioneer days. Mr. Woodward served during the Civil war in an Illinois regiment. He was an active member of the G. A. R.

Former State Senator C. P. Reeves of Glenwood is dead in St. Paul. Mr. Reeves was a lawyer by profession. He was elected to the house of representatives of the Minnesota legislature for the sessions of 1893, 1895 and 1897, and to the senate for the sessions of 1899 and 1901. He was fifty-five years old.

Mrs. G. A. Cook of Wabasha, mother of State Senator L. O. Cook of Lake City, is dead at the age of ninety-two. She was one of the pioneer women of Minnesota, having reached Wabasha county in 1854 and living there ever since.

George Ward, a well known figure in the history of Rochester, was found dead in bed by his wife, who had prepared breakfast and returned to his room to call him. Mr. Ward had been a resident of Rochester about forty years.

Mrs. Agnes Orr Carmichael, aged eighty-four, mother of Robert Carmichael, Dakota county farmer, prominent in Minnesota politics and state fair matters, is dead at the Carmichael homestead in Castle Rock.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL. XXVIII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1911 NUMBER 46

SEASON OPEN TOMORROW

Big Game Season Will Be Thrown Open Tomorrow—Ends November 30.

Hunters Allowed to Kill But One Deer and One Moose—Other Provisions.

The open season for hunting deer and moose in Minnesota will open tomorrow (Friday, November 10) and continue to and including November 30; and already many hunters have picked out their hunting grounds and will be moving on the deer and moose as soon after they are able to get their license from the county auditor as possible.

At the last session of the legislature, near the close of the session, a law was adopted regulating the number of deer which could thereafter be killed at one, the number having formerly been two But one moose can be killed, the law remaining the same in this respect. Another change was making it impossible for county auditors to issue licenses to hunt big game until three days before the open season, which would be November 7th.

We quote herewith portions of the law which every hunter should know:

"Every resident of this state over 21 years of age is prohibited from hunting, taking, or killing any game animals unless he shall have first procured a license therefor from the county auditor in the county where he resides. Said auditor shall not issue to any person a license prior to three days before the opening of the season."

Any resident who has paid said fee ($1) and procured such license to hunt game animals, may, during the open season hunt, take and kill one (1) moose and one (1) deer."

From the above it would appear that a hunter must have a license to hunt big game anywhere in the state, and cannot legally hunt deer and moose in his own county without first having obtained a license therefor.

It is unlawful to sell either game birds or game animals.

The usual five days are allowed hunters in which to bring in their deer and moose from the woods, after the 30th of November; but the law also provides that seals shall be attached to the carcasses in order that the animals may be retained for one's own consumption after the season closes.

All other provisions of the law are as heretofore, relative to shipping the game and the requirements as to tags.

GAIN IN REVENUE

Increase of $512,854 Shown in Soo Gross Earnings for September.

The total operating revenue of the Soo Line for September was $1,763,591, an increase of $512,854 over the same month of 1910. The total operating expenses and taxes amounted to 924,080, an increase of $172,338, leaving the operating income at $839,505, a gain of $340,516.

For the first quarter of the fiscal year the operating income amounted to $1,813,782, an increase of 501,692. These figures do not include the Wisconsin division.

5000 Acres Wanted—I want to list every farm in northern Red Lake county that is for sale, for quick sales. Call or write Wm. Jasetler, St. Hilaire, Minn., R. R. No. 1, box 19.

Dr. Spofford will be in Thief River Falls, Nov. 8, at Evelyn Hotel. Glasses fitted.

Build More Roads

Much Railroad Building Prophesied For This Section Next Year.

To credit the many railroad rumors in circulation it is evident that something along the railroad construction line will be actually realized in this section of the state within the next two years.

In commenting on the proposed line of the M. & St. L. from the Twin Cities to connect with the Canadian Northern the Roseau Region has the following to say:

"Last Saturday W. G. Bried, general manager, and R. G. Kemley, chief engineer, of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway arrived in Roseau in an automobile, having made the trip from Minneapolis north through Princeton, Brainerd, Bagley, Thief River Falls and through Roseau county by way of Benwood, Wannaska and Roseau. From here the party went to Warroad on Sunday. These railroad officials made a tour along a proposed route for a railroad to connect with the Canadian Northern, and the line will pass through the eastern part of Roseau county, either at Roseau or Warroad. It has been known for several years that the Canadian Northern was seeking an entrance to the twin cities and it looks as though there was something doing.

Mr. Bried disclaimed any such a project, but to the editor talked freely of the country they had passed through on their trip north and pronounced the general character of the land in the northern part of the state as good as could be found anywhere, with a soil that was the best in the world. Roseau county can stand another railroad and then some. The branch of the Great Northern running through Roseau county is the best paying mileage of the G. N. system, so says President Louis Hill."

Another proposed line of the Soo is from Thief River Falls, to Grand Forks; thence southwest through Carrington to Bismarck, about 240 miles Grand Forks has long wanted the Soo; and the fact that surveyors, believed to be in its employ, have been at work between Thief River Falls and Grand Forks gives confidence to its expectations. The commercial club of Grand Forks is acting in concert with the commercial club of Duluth and every effort will be made to encourage the building of that line.

Fargo is also desirous of having connections with the Soo's main line at Enderlin, and its commercial club has taken action looking to that result, and has received encouraging assurances from officials that a line would be built from a point on the Soo somewhere near Detroit, Minn., to Fargo, thence southwesterly to Enderlin. It seems hardly possible that North Dakota's two largest cities, Fargo and Grand Forks, can long be neglected by so aggressive a railroad as the Soo.

POSTAL SAVINGS

Bonds to Be Issued on the First Day of January, 1912.

1. Depositors of the Postal Savings System may exchange the whole or a part of their deposits on January 1, 1912, for United States registered or coupon bonds in denominations of $20, $100, and $500, bearing interest at the rate of 2½ per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, and redeemable at the pleasure of the United States after one year from the date of issue, both principal and interest payable 20 years from that date in United States gold coin.

2. Postal savings bonds are exempt from all taxes or duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form by or under State, municipal, or local authority.

3. Applications for the conversion of deposits into bonds on January 1, 1912, must be received before December 15, 1911, by the postmaster at the depository office where the certificates were issued. The postmaster will supply an application form which must be made out in triplicate. The depositor must indorse and surrender with his application postal savings certificates covering the amount of the bonds desired, for which the postmaster will give him a receipt. When the postmaster receives the bonds applied for he will notify the depositor and will deliver the bonds on presentation of the receipt for the certificates surrendered.

4. The conversion of deposits into bonds at a date less than one year after the certificates began to bear interest forfeits interest on the deposits as in the case of withdrawal for any other purpose.

5. Postal savings deposits converted into bonds are not counted as a part of the maximum of $500 allowed one depositor, and there is no limitation on the amount of available postal savings bonds which may be acquired finally by a depositor. The exchange is considered as taking effect on January 1, and a depositor who has applied to convert into bonds all or part of the maximum balance of $500 may deposit an additional amount in January, though the bonds may not yet have been delivered.

6. Postal savings bonds can be procured only by the conversion of postal savings deposits and will not be issued to persons who are not depositors. They may be sold or assigned to any person, however, by the holder, and when a registered bond is assigned a new bond will be issued in the name of the owner.

7. The depositor's application must indicate whether bonds are desired in registered or coupon form. Coupon bonds are preferable for a depositor who intends to hold them for a short time only and who has ample facilities for their safekeeping. These bonds are payable to bearer, and the title will pass by delivery without endorsement. Interest on coupon bonds is collected by means of interest coupons, which are detached by the holder as they become due.

Registered bonds are preferable for persons intending to hold them for a considerable period, and they differ from coupon bonds in the following respects:

(a) They have inscribed upon their face the names of the persons to whom they are issued.

(b) They are payable only to the persons to whom issued or their assigns.

(c) The ownership of registered bonds can be transferred by assignment in proper form.

8. Registered bonds are assigned by the use of a form printed on the back, properly dated and acknowledged. When the assignment is made by mark, it must be witnessed by at least one person other than the person for whom it is made. A ledger account is opened at the Treasury department at Washington with each holder of one or more registered bonds, and when such bonds are assigned they should be transmitted by the new owner to the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Loans and Currency) for transfer on the books of this department. Registered bonds can not be exchanged for coupon bonds. Coupon bonds may be converted into registered bonds, without charge, at the request of the holder.

9. Under the regulations of the Treasury Department a minor can not assign registered bonds without the consent of a duly appointed guardian or trustee, evidence of whose authority must be submitted. A minor has the right to convert his postal savings certificates into registered bonds, but if he should desire to assign the bonds during his minority he must comply with this regulation. This difficulty does not exist in the case of coupon bonds, which are transferred by mere delivery.

10. Interest on registered bonds is paid by checks drawn at the Treasury Department in favor of the registered holder. These checks are sent by post office mail to the address of the holder, and the holder of a registered bond should notify the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Loans and Currency) of any change in his post office address at least 15 days before the interest falls due. Checks for interest on registered bonds, as well as interest coupons detached from coupon bonds, are payable on presentation at the United States Treasury or at the office of any assistant treasurer of the United States. Interest checks and coupons covering interest on postal savings bonds may be cashed by postmasters under the same conditions as other government paper.

11. Payment on registered bonds that have been lost or stolen may be stopped by notifying the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Loans and Currency) at Washington. If coupon bonds are lost the Government does not undertake to protect the owner against the wrongful holder, but recognizes the bearer only. The owner has recourse only to such means as he could use to recover any other valuable property. When bonds, either registered or coupon, have been destroyed wholly or in part, a claim may be filed with the Secretary of the Treasury under certain prescribed conditions for their replacement. Such claims will not be allowed for coupons which have been detached from coupon bonds.

12. United States bonds are issued, transferred and redeemed under such regulation as the Secretary and Treasurer may prescribe. Requests by holders for additional information after the delivery of the bonds should be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury (Division of Loans and Currency), Washington, D. C.

Brown-Du Champ.

Fred Du Champ, of Thief River Falls, was up this way last Sunday evening trying to find his way to Neptune. As this was the first time Fred has been seen here we were a little suspicious of his actions, but directed him the best we could. Afterwards we learned that he was looking for his prospective bride, as Miss Lorine Brown, the oldest daughter of A. D. Brown, of Neptune, and Fred were married on Monday. They both have many friends among the readers of the Eleven Towns who will join with us in wishing them all happiness on life's journey.—Eleven Towns.

THE PEAT FIRES

Forester Cox Sends Warning to Prevent Needless Waste by Fire.

Warning to the state forest rangers to exercise the utmost diligence in obtaining evidence against persons setting fire to the forests and fields have been sent out by W. T. Cox, state forester.

Numerous peat fires have broken out in Pennington county, north of Thief River Falls, but Mr. Cox expects to keep them under control. One fire burning in an area of about 300 acres has been ditched all around clear to the clay bed underneath and should die before long.

"In many places the peat bogs are of immense extent, covering thousands of acres," said Mr. Cox. "When drained these lands are extremely valuable for agricultural purposes, but if the fire destroys the peat, the lands will be ruined. A peat fire virtually destroys a fertilized soil which has been accumulating probably a thousand years, and undoes nature's work of centuries."

C. A. BOVEY DEAD

Forty-one Years Identified With Minneapolis and Prominent In Lumber Industry

Charles A. Bovey, a pioneer in the commercial development in the northwest, for forty-one years a figure of prominence in the lumber industry of the United States, died at his home in Minneapolis last Friday at the age of 79

Born in Bath, Me., May 27, 1832, Mr. Bovey was in the lumber business at St. Johns, N B, in his early business life, but he came west prior to 1869, and in 1870 identified himself with William W. Eastman and John De Laittre of Minneapolis. They formed the pioneer lumber firm, Eastman, Bovey & Co., leased a saw mill on the west side of the river in Minneapolis, then known as the "Pioneer" mill, and began the production of lumber. Some years later the interest of Mr. Eastman was acquired, and the existing Bovey Delaittre Lumber company was formed. This firm bought the old Butler saw mill in Minneapolis from Dr. Levi Butler and, after its destruction by fire, built the present Bovey-De Laittre mill, near Camden Place, Minneapolis, once one of the greatest producing mills of the world which cut its last logs last season.

Mr. Bovey, through ownership of Minnesota lands, which the firm acquired, and individually, came to have iron land interests of importance in northern Minnesota, through discovery of ore after the timber had been cut off.

Mr. Bovey decided upon practical retirement from business after the death of Mrs. Bovey, two years ago, and gradually failing health has since then confined him more to his home. During the summer he lived in Magnolia, Mass., where he had gone for the past several years during the hot months. Returning to Minneapolis in October, his health continued to fail, and death was due to complications of ailments attending old age.

Thoen-Iverson.

At 8 o'clock last Saturday evening at the Norwegian Lutheran parsonage, Rev. I. T. Aastad officiating, occurred the marriage of Miss Hilda Thoen to Pete Iverson, of this city. The bride is well known in this city and has made her home on a farm five miles north of the city, while the bride-groom has been a resident of this city for some time. They will make their home here.

WINNERS IN CLOSE GAME

The Local High School Football Team Takes One From Fosston.

Score Was 5 to 0. Touch Down For Locals Made in First Quarter.

In a very interesting game of football the local high school team captured a game from the Fosston high school by a close score of 5 to 0 Saturday afternoon.

The game was without doubt the cleanest and best game that has been witnessed on the local gridiron in a long time, and was free from any unnecessary bloodshed and "rag chewing."

The locals made their touch down in the first quarter which netted them their five points, and after this neither side was able to carry the ball past the goal line.

Fosston tried hard for the goal in the second quarter and succeeded in bringing the ball within two or three yards of the goal line, but was held back by the local line and failed to make any gains in the three downs when the ball was returned to the local side. Although the Fosston aggregation was equally as heavy as the locals, they were unable to smash through the local line for any great gains, but used the forward pass to a good advantage some times. The locals, however, pushed their men through the visitors' line for heavy gains and very seldom used any fake plays or the forward pass. The game was called off in the last quarter, with three more minutes to play, to allow the Fosston team to depart on the afternoon G. N. train for home.

This, however, did not alter the result of the game, as it is unlikely that the visitors would have been able to reach the goal in that length of time with the ball on the fifty-yard line.

The following members go to make up the two teams:

Fosston—
Arthur Granum, right end.
Ole Reierson, left tackle.
Nels Breimo, right tackle.
Grundy Grundyson, right guard.

SPECIAL RATE TO LAND SHOW

One and a Third Fare Fixed for Round Trip.

The Western Passenger association has granted a rate of one and one-third fare to Minneapolis and St. Paul during the Land Show, according to Will A. Campbell, secretary of the association, and thousands of visitors, in addition to the usual influx to the Twin Cities during the holiday season, will visit the two cities in December as a consequence.

This concession of reduced rates is the first ever granted to a land show. The tickets will go on sale Dec. 11 and will be good until Dec. 24, extending over a radius of 250 miles. Further announcement was made that in view of these reduced rates all of the railroads running into the Twin Cities will begin one of the stiffest advertising campaigns ever conducted in the Northwest to bring visitors to the show.

SAYS SHE LOST $10,000

Woman Claims to Have Been Robbed of Fortune.

Robbed of a grip containing $10,000 in cash while in the act of boarding a street car at the terminal across the lake is the substance of a startling story told the Winona police by Mrs. W. F. Jahn of Rollingstone. The police are puzzled.

The police found the suitcase at a point about 300 feet from the alleged place of the robbery. It had been tucked away among willows and evidently had been ransacked.

The police are not altogether satisfied with the story of Mrs. Jahn. They are at a loss, however, to explain the finding of the grip, but are convinced that there is more to the story than has been revealed.

NEW SOO LINE TO DULUTH

Track Laying to Be Finished Before End of Month.

In twenty-five days Minneapolis will have a new line to Duluth, for the Soo road has resumed the laying of rails on its Frederick extension. North of Frederick and about twenty-five miles distant the company has bridged the St. Croix river. This work has just been completed. Trains have crossed over the bridge and a track laying machine taken across and started working northward. Forty-five miles of track will have to be laid into Superior and Duluth.

The building of the St. Croix river bridge necessitated the stopping, three weeks ago, of the track laying, but the work will be pushed vigorously from now on.

MILLIONS SENT TO COUNTRY

Crop Movement Puts Nearly $1,000,000 a Day Into Farmers' Coffers.

Minneapolis sent $20,000,000 into the country in the twenty-six business days of the month of October, or nearly $1,000,000 a day, to pay the farmers for the grain they shipped to the Mill City, and, on a month's movement, or 20,437,110 bushels into that market compared with 19,880,200 bushels in October a year ago, the outflow of money to the country that shipped the grain was greater by nearly 25 per cent than on the movement of any like quantity in the commercial history of the Mill City.

ENDS LIFE BESIDE BRIDE

Man in Despondent Mood Drinks Acid in Bed.

Lewis Felber committed suicide at Pelican Rapids, Otter Tail county. Felber was about twenty-two years of age and was married about a month ago. He has been rather unfortunate financially of late. He had talked of suicide, but no one took the talk seriously.

He awoke his young wife and then placed his hand over her mouth and asked her to say nothing. Almost immediately afterward he went into convulsions and died in a short time. He had taken carbolic acid.

EIGHT INJURED IN CRASH

Great Northern Train Derailed Near Moorhead.

The Crookston train on the Great Northern road was derailed near Moorhead, when a passenger coach struck a broken rail.

Immediately after the car went off the track the carbide tank exploded, setting fire to the car. This created a panic among the passengers, and eight were injured when they broke through glass windows to make their escape. No one was seriously hurt.

Minnesota Makes Less Beer.

Internal revenue department figures show that a steady decrease in the quantity of beer manufactured in the state of Minnesota has caused an important falling off in the amount of internal revenue tax. During the last four months, July, August, September and October, the collections of internal revenue in the state were $754,040.35 as compared with $1,001,713.25 collected during the same four months of 1910, a decrease of $247,672.90.

Indicted for Double Murder.

James Dygart, charged with the double murder of Mrs. Walter Bolton and her cousin, Frank E. Rhodes, on the Bolton farm in Anoka county Sept. 18, was indicted by the grand jury on two counts, charging murder in the first degree. When arraigned before Judge Gibbings the farmhand, who is said to have confessed to the double crime, entered a plea of not guilty.

Shooting a Fish.

A fact known by every one is the peculiar apparent bending of a stick when thrust into clear water. It is due to the refraction or bending of light. Now, if one saw a fish in fresh water and desired to shoot it the gun must be pointed under the fish, for it must be remembered that the fish appears as did the submerged end of the stick—too far up. If the fish was directly under the observer, however, the light would not be bent, and it could be shot straight at.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Whistler and Disraeli.

Whistler once came very near to painting a portrait of Disraeli. He had the commission. He went down to the country where Disraeli was, but the great man did not manage to get into the mood. Whistler went away disappointed, and shortly afterward there took place a meeting in Whitehall which was the occasion of a well known story. Disraeli put his arm in Whistler's for a little way on the street, bringing from the artist the exclamation, "If only my creditors could see!"

"Liquid Money."

In France the money that must go for living expenses in a family is termed "liquid money," and the phrase is used to contrast such part of the income with funds that are set aside for "a rainy day."

Incorrigible.

"Have you laid by anything for a rainy day?" asked the serious friend.

"Yes," replied the frivolous person. "I'm cutting out all the 'fair and warmer' weather predictions and preserving them."—Washington Star.

Did ever a fall come that some old rooster, pretending to be a reader of cornhusk signs and goosebone kinks, did not predict that the "coming" winter was going to be a hard one.

The woods during middle October offer few prettier sights than a symmetrical elm still in full leaf and every leaf a golden yellow, a condition that is only possible when the leaves ripen naturally and are not hit by a hard frost.

Wisconsin is the greatest pea raising state of the Union. Thousands and thousands of acres are raised for canning, while a large acreage besides is devoted to raising peas for seed. One company in Eau Claire county grew 1,200 acres of peas this season on its own land.

In the hop fields of Kent, England, stilts are now used by pickers instead of the time honored stepladders. Some one has advanced the theory that this same idea might be adopted by orchardists in the pruning of their trees and gathering of fruit from higher limbs. Maybe.

An eastern farmer who has had considerable experience with Angora goats speaks strongly of them as a means of devouring and killing out poison ivy in fence rows and brush lots and, further, that a few of them kept in a flock of sheep are a sure protection for the latter animals against attacks by dogs.

The theory of feeding rations such as turnips and silage immediately after milking in order to prevent a contamination of the milk by flavors given off by the feeds is based on the fact that the juices of the foods in which the flavors are contained pass off through other channels before the time of the next milking.

There are dogs and dogs. One kind sleep at the corner of the house, bound out on passing teams and are not worth the salt they get on the bones they gnaw. The other kind gnaw the same kind of bones, but in addition are well bred, mind their business, carefully inspect strangers and can be counted on to fetch up the cattle at night.

While their dumpy condition may be due to other causes, it is often the case that lice are at the bottom of the trouble with the poultry. In any event an examination should be made, and if lice are present they should be gone after hammer and tongs, which should include not only treatment for the poultry, but a fumigating and whitewashing of the poultry quarters.

Inasmuch as it seems to be the inborn tendency of the hog to seek and get into all the dirt and filth it has access to, it is the part of good management to make its quarters and surroundings as clean and sanitary as possible. When a disease breaks out in a herd of swine the number of germs is quite apt to be in direct proportion to the filth present.

Plowing with a steam or gasoline tractor is not an unalloyed picnic, particularly if those in charge of the work do not understand the business thoroughly and do not have things properly adjusted. One farmer we read of the other day spent two days with three men and a boy getting one of these plowing outfits equipped and after making four rounds gave it up as a bad job and finished the field in the old fashioned way—four horses and a gang plow.

Since the tiller of the soil does most of the grunting and sweating in connection with produce consumed by the millions of mouths of the country it is an illuminating commentary on the system of economic distribution in vogue that in spite of all his labors he gets but 35 cents of the dollar which the consumer pays for his produce. It is this very situation that is responsible for the establishment in many larger cities of the country of markets where producers and consumers can meet and trade.

The wrecking of the town of Austin, Pa., on Sept. 30 by a flood of water loosed by the breaking of the cement dam of the Bayliss Pulp and Paper company, and that on the heels of a bad scare which the inhabitants of the town had six months or more ago, when the dam was strained to the breaking point by winter rains, would seem to emphasize the need of far more stringent state laws which would compel the inspection and repair of these unsafe structures and the construction of new dams for the purpose of impounding waters according to specifications furnished by competent civil engineers.

THE CITY MARKET.

In many cities of the land the prices of the necessaries of life have been forced to such a height by shortage in supply, greatly aggravated by the unjust increase levied by middlemen, that the mayor and councilmen have taken the bull by the horns and in many cases established city markets where truck gardeners can go with their fresh produce and where consumers can buy their supplies of fruits and vegetables. Under this market system growers not only get just as much for their stuff as they did before, but consumers are enabled to buy at prices from 20 to 40 per cent lower than they were prior to the establishment of the market. In Indianapolis the mayor took matters into his own hands and bought potatoes and sold them to consumers at cost to break a combination of commission men that had been levying an unjust tax on the people. If commission men suffer as a result of this new movement they have themselves to blame and no one else. The consuming public is willing that middlemen should receive a fair profit for handling produce, but when the prices of it are advanced outrageously by simply passing through their hands folks can hardly be expected to put up with the imposition. It would seem, therefore, up to the middlemen as a class to correct this abuse or be put out of business to a considerable extent.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN POULTRY.

Investigation into an outbreak of infantile paralysis not far from where the writer lives points quite conclusively to the fact that the disease was contracted from chickens on the place, a number of which had a short time before died of a disease which bacteriological examination showed was due to germs that cause infantile paralysis. The chickens affected first appear dumpy, lose the use of their legs, then lie around on their sides for several days and finally die. In the outbreak referred to not only young poultry, but young pigs and one calf were attacked by the disease. The disease seems to have been transmitted to the children of the neighborhood through the medium of flies which fed on the carcasses of the chickens and later infected food which the children ate. The case in question points plainly to the necessity of burning or burying deeply the bodies of all chickens that die from the disease and a further warfare on all flies about the premises. As this paralytic disease has appeared in chickens no cure has as yet been found for it.

TWO SUCKERS.

Dispatches of recent date tell of the fleecing of two Iowa farmers by a ruse that for sheer nerve and brass on the part of the perpetrators and gullibility on the part of the victims beats any fraud that was ever perpetrated. A chap of the name of Haggins met the grangers on a train, scraped an acquaintance with them and so won their confidence that he got them to send him small sums to bet on horses in Chicago. Of course the races on which the money was bet panned out right, and the stake and winnings were returned to the farmers. This fired their cupidity, and shortly after they received word to raise all the money they could and send it to Haggins, as a race was to be pulled off on which they were sure to win. They mortgaged their farms for $8,000 each, sent the money to the stranger and in a short time received word that they had won and that they could have their money by going to Kansas City. They went thither, but found no Haggins and no money. Today they are a lot wiser, but considerably poorer financially.

"THE GOOD OLD TIMES."

Not a few elderly folks are wont still to refer occasionally to the "good old times." In many ways they were good, for folks had, or, at least, took, a little more time to breathe and enjoy life's best things as they went along. Then, again, in some other respects the old times were not so good. An incident illustrating this truth was narrated to the writer the other day by a friend who is near his seventieth year. He owed a rich money lender in his neighborhood a hundred dollars or more. To meet this obligation he decided to sell his hogs. He found the market price was 90 cents a hundred. To save his bacon to the fullest possible extent and to save hauling expense he drove these hogs eight miles. When he tendered his creditor the hardly earned proceeds from the sale of these porkers the latter replied that he was in no hurry for it and really didn't need it.

TRANSPLANTING TREES IN FALL.

The writer is asked whether an elm tree transplanted in the fall will live. This depends upon two conditions—first, that the tree shall be practically dormant (growing process over) at the time it is taken up and, secondly, that it be kept well watered from the time it is set until freeze up if the latitude is such that the winters are severe. In fall as in spring transplanting the rule should be followed of cutting back the top of the tree to correspond with the root system. In the spring and next summer all newly planted trees should be kept well watered if the season is dry, and this is made the more easy if each tree is given a good mulch of manure or other litter that will [illegible] moisture and prevent evaporation from the soil.

POLITICAL NEWS.

Purported statements of others that Edward Hines, the lumberman, helped to "put over" the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin and that Hines and Stephenson each contributed $55,000 to a pot of $110,000 to induce the absence of Democratic members from the Wisconsin legislature March 4, 1909, so that Senator Stephenson might be elected, formed the basis of sensational testimony given by Thomas Morris, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, before the senatorial investigating committee.

Bitter excoriation of President Taft, a promise to carry the fight for presidential nomination to the home and a plea for the aid of American women marked the opening at Chicago of the progressive element of the Republican party to nominate Senator Robert M. La Follette as the Republican candidate for president.

Senator La Follette has been endorsed as the progressives' candidate for president without dissent. The conference of progressives at Chicago was a La Follette demonstration from start to finish. About thirty states were represented.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

Jubilation over their victory for equal suffrage in California and Washington marked the opening sessions of the forty-third annual convention of the National Woman's Suffrage association at Louisville, Ky. Bitterness over defeats of other years appeared to be wiped out by the recent successes.

Twenty corpses from the petty officers' quarters and berth deck of the battleship Maine were removed from the wreck to Cabanas fortress at Havana. About forty five bodies have now been recovered since the work of raising the sunken craft began.

Saturday's football games: Minnesota 23, Nebraska 3; Chicago 24, Illinois 0; Wisconsin 26, Colorado 0; Michigan 19, Ohio 0; Northwestern 6, Indiana 0; Army 6, Yale 0; Harvard 11, Amherst 0; Dartmouth 23, Williams 5; Navy 0, Princeton 0.

Mrs. Ida von Claussen, who first came into prominence through a controversy with the United States minister to Sweden and later with President Roosevelt, has been committed to the Bloomingdale (N. Y.) insane asylum.

FOREIGN NEWS.

The prices of all kinds of meats have risen to such an extent throughout the German empire that horseflesh has become an article of common consumption. In the first six months of this year 85,277,495 pounds of horse were sold, as against 45,458,683 pounds of mutton.

An explosion of gas in a sulphur mine at Trabonella, Italy, set the mine afire and caused a number of deaths. The bodies of twenty men have been recovered and some other miners who were working in galleries distant from the mouth of the pit are still missing.

An earthquake of brief duration occurred in Sicily, the strongest shocks being felt at the east base of Mount Aetna. Troops were dispatched to the work of rescue and removed twenty bodies. Eighty persons are known to have been injured.

Twenty-six men were killed by an explosion in the Bardot coal mine at St. Etienne, France, while fighting a fire.

In the Art Gallery.

"Ah," exclaimed Mrs. Oldcastle, who was again enjoying the splendors of her new neighbor's art gallery, "a Corot, I see!"

"Where?" asked her hostess, looking doubtfully at the canvas which seemed to claim the other's attention.

"There," answered Mrs. Oldcastle, pointing with her lorgnette.

"Well, now, I declare. I can't see a single crow anywhere around. You don't mean them little black spots in the left hand corner, do you? Them's clouds!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Air In the Lungs.

In one minute in a state of rest the average man takes into his lungs about eight liters or 48.8 cubic inches of air. In walking he needs sixteen liters or 97.6 cubic inches, in climbing twenty-three liters or 140.3 cubic inches, in riding at a trot thirty-three liters or 201.3 cubic inches and in long distance running fifty-seven liters or 347.7 cubic inches.

Movable Foliage.

"You ought to plant some shrubbery around the station. The division superintendent will be through in a few days."

"That won't give me time enough to plant shrubbery," said the station master, "but I'll get some of our whiskered citizens to stand around as he passes through."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

How Perfume Is Weighed.

It was the Italian physician Salvioni who devised a microbalance of such extreme delicacy that it clearly demonstrated the loss of weight of musk by volatilization. Thus the invisible perfume floating off in the air is indirectly weighed. The essential part of the apparatus is a very thin thread of glass, fixed at one end and extended horizontally. The microscopic objects to be weighed are placed upon the glass thread near its free end and the amount of flexure produced is observed with a microscope magnifying 100 diameters. A mote weighing one-thousandth of a milligram is said perceptibly to bend the thread.—Buffalo Courier.

School Notes.

As a matter of interest to the tax payers, it ought to be stated that all school supplies of every nature whatsoever are purchased by the board of education from dealers in this city. Bernard Knutson, one of the board members, is purchasing agent, and no employe of the board, not even a board member, is authorized to buy anything for the schools unless on the signed order of the purchasing agent on a blank provided for that purpose. Textbooks and occasionally an article not carried by local dealers are necessarily purchased abroad. An examination of the purchasing blanks will also disclose the fact that the business is divided as equally as possible among the dealers.

The kindergarten rooms in the Knox and Central will be placed on half day sessions next Monday. The crowded condition of these rooms compels this action. The Central enrolls 39 and the Knox 33. Under the half day session plan the children will receive more assistance and actually work longer time than at present, as the first division of older pupils will remain in school from 9 to 12 o'clock, and the younger children from 1:30 to 4. They will also have the undivided attention and time of the teacher. If the approaching cold weather cuts down the attendance the rooms will return to whole day sessions. The legal school age is from 5 to 21, but the board of education, in accordance with the custom prevailing in many towns, requires beginners to be at least six years of age. Parents are insisting on entering children of five years of age and over and it is an impossibility to discriminate.

The football boys won a hard fought victory last Saturday over their oldtime antagonists from Fosston. The close score of 5 to 0 shows the fierceness of the struggle. The game was marred by no unseemly actions on either side and was a good exhibition of modern football with enough of the old mass plays thrown in to give it spice. The expense of bringing the Fosston players here and the small gate receipts compelled the team to "pass the hat around" to meet the deficit.

The teachers were pleasantly entertained last Saturday evening by the Misses Emma and Clara Backe at their residence on south Main avenue. This hospitable home is annually thrown open to the school faculty and the event is always regarded as one of the most pleasing experiences of the whole school year.

Parents sometimes report that their children have no home work to do evenings. Every child in and above the sixth grade has home tasks to perform which requires from thirty minutes to two hours, according to the grade. The parents may rest assured that where no advance work is attempted there is something wrong. These tasks are assigned as there is not time in school for all the recitations and the performance of the advance work as well. The excuse that many children spend their evenings on the street and still are making passing marks will not hold, as nearly all of this class of students are failing in one or more studies every month and they will eventually fail of promotion and leave school, as have all their predecessors.

Every person over 15 years of age who for various reasons cannot attend school but a few months each year ought to enroll in the short course as soon as possible. There are no expenses of any kind connected with the course and students may enter and leave each day to suit their convenience if they have home tasks to perform.

The enrollment by buildings to date is as follows: Knox, 259; Central, 361; Washington 310; Lincoln High School, 194; total, 1115.

The total expense of the sewing and cooking departments in the high school for all material used during the month of September was $21.68; for October, $13.28. The supplies were purchased from seven different firms in this city and were used by 63 girls in the high school and 11 in the eighth grade. This makes the per capita expense for these two departments about 16 cents a month.

With a reliable timepiece now on duty at the Knox, it is possible to keep the bells of the schools correct.

Janitor Runnestrand spent the last few days in Fargo on business.

Backe Is Elected Mayor.

Wins Out By a Close Majority of 31 Votes Over Sedlacek; Public Ownership Candidate.

Socialists Elect 4 Aldermen

Tarrant Becomes the Next Municipal Judge By A Majority Vote of 21.

As was prophesied the city election proved to be the closest contested election held in this city in years. With the large number of candidates in the field the campaign was particularly keen and as is shown by the large vote cast some strenuous work was done by the candidates and their supporters. Bright and early Tuesday morning rigs and automobiles were out conveying the voters to the polls, and every candidate was out with his glad rags using every effort to strengthen the rails in his political fence on the last leap to victory or defeat.

While the fight was mainly centered on the mayoralty contest and between the four candidates running for Municipal Judge the other positions were hard fought for and what was gained was well deserved.

In the fight for mayor Lars Backe won out but was closely followed by Emil Sedlacek and Gudnow Torrison. Mr. Sedlacek, the Public Ownership candidate, who took the "sticker route" after the withdrawal of Booren from the race, made a better run than was expected for the short time in which he had to announce his candidacy.

For Judge Nick Tarrant won out by a majority of 21 votes over J. M. Bishop, who in turn "bested" Kjomme by only one vote.

The Socialists were instrumental in electing five of their candidates for aldermen for the six positions applied for; A. H. Akre being the only independent candidate elected and this was for alderman-at-large.

While, of course, no election can result in pleasing everybody, the voice of the people has been heard and it now remains for them to help their officers and to make the burden which they will have to carry as light and as pleasant as possible. The following is the vote by wards:

Mayor: Wards —	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
Backe	82	73	49	78-282
Torrison	60	46	36	36-178
Sedlacek	58	56	47	90-251
Treasurer:
Evenson	147	131	85	122—485
Aldermen-at-Large:
Berg	69	50	42	67—228
Akre	87	65	58	64—274
Roth	73	87	59	76—297
Lorimer	49	64	44	72—229

Aldermen:
1st Ward, Jacobson 80; Gulrud 94.
2nd Ward, Krohn 67; Tanem 93.
3rd Ward, Johnson 50; Mousley 75.
4th Ward, Bryant 54; Wilson 53; Bjorkman 89.

Municipal Judge:	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
Tarrant	48	32	35	88—203
Forder	48	25	35	25—133

Erect New Hotel

Erection of a Sixty Room Hotel Will Be Commenced in the Near Future.

Articles of Incorporation to launch a stock company for the purpose of erecting a large hotel in this city was drawn up last Tuesday and was sent to the Secretary of State last evening. The promoters of the company are H. A. Brummond, proprietor of the Ogahmah Hotel and C. J. Vollmer, of Minneapolis. The company will subscribe stock to the amount of $50,000; $25,000 of which has already been subscribed, and intend to erect a three story brick building consisting of about 60 rooms and will be equipped with the most modern ideas and conveniences.

The work of erecting the building will be commenced as soon as the details connected with organizing the company are completed and will be under way in the course of 30 or 60 days at the most. At present several sites for the building are in view but no selection has been made but this will be decided upon as soon as every detail is completed, as this matter will be left in the hands of the stock holders to be determined.

Mr. Brummond has been selected president of the company; C.J. Vollmer, vice president; while Perl W. Mabey has been appointed secretary and treasurer to look after the affairs until after the formation of the company.

The want of a really first-class hostelry in this city has been advocated for a long time and is necessary to take care of the large number of transients visiting this city every day and for the trade locally.

With the two men at the head of the company, Thief River Falls can be assured of a hotel that will give utmost satisfaction to the public and prove a success financially, as well as being a credit to our city.

Miss Edythe Brown left for her home at Thief River Falls Tuesday, after about a month's visit with her many friends in and around Kennedy. While here Miss Brown visited Hallock, Red River, and Bronson but spent most of her time in Kennedy, her former home, where she undoubtedly found it considerably homelike, regardless of the changes having taken place here during the three years of her absence. Her many friends were indeed glad to welcome her back to Kennedy and only regret of her visit not being of longer duration however. But trust that they will become more frequent hence. Before returning home Miss Brown will visit for a few days in Warren with the Rev. E. O. Chelgren family.—Kennedy Star.

Susbcribe for the News

Chestnuts are quoted at $300 per ton. This seems to be due not to a greatly increased consumption, but to the fact that a deadly plant disease is rapidly destroying most of the chestnut trees in the New England states.

It has been found by leading physicians through long experience that the juice of the orange is most healthful in its effect upon the human system, the stomachs of children and invalids being able to retain it when they cannot the juice of any other fruit.

A reader of this department reports water to a depth of 150 feet in a well which two men and a drilling outfit worked on steadily for two months and dug to a depth of 323 feet. Dug at the close of an unusually dry season, it is probably safe to consider this well drought proof.

Two brothers from the dry country in western Kansas have the past season successfully watered ten acres of their farm by pumping water for the purpose from a well ninety feet deep with a gasoline engine. The limit beyond which it is usually considered unprofitable to pump water is a depth of fifty feet.

The Kansas experiment station has had several calls lately from different parts of the state for assistance in fighting attacks of the army worm. The work is being directed by an expert, who recommends rolling the young wheat with a heavy roller, which finishes the worms and benefits rather than harms the wheat.

A friend who has had a small field of alfalfa this season reports three tons of hay from it per acre, and that in a season when the second and third cuttings were greatly reduced by the dry weather in July and August. As it was, the yield was nearly three times that of nearby clover fields. Had the season been favorable he thinks he would have obtained a yield of at least five tons per acre during the whole season.

There are thousands of farms the country over whose owners do not think they can afford a manure spreader where more than the cost of a good machine is wasted annually in a loss of fertilizer elements as a result of careless handling of the barnyard manures. A ton of fresh manure is worth $2.25 in crop production, but loses 50 per cent of this value if allowed to weather in the open for four or five months. On this basis it will be seen how quickly the value of a spreader would be dissipated.

This matter of finding a section of the country in which the climate is ideal is a good deal of a will-o'-the-wisp undertaking. It's too hot in midsummer in Texas, too muddy in Oregon in winter, too cold in North Dakota, and so on, when the fact is that it doesn't make such an awful sight of difference what the weather is for short periods during the years if only one is doing well in a business way and is busy and happy. On the other hand, if one is not prospering the best climate in the world won't suit him or support him.

There are three practices followed by many families that have been outlawed by modern views of sanitation and which are without question responsible for more dumpy spells and doctor's bills than any others in the whole category of offenses against the laws of health. They are keeping bedroom windows closed during the night hours to promote warmth, the burning of kerosene lamps turned low during the same hours and the banking up of the house with ill smelling manure from the barnyard. Any one of the three practices is bad enough, but when all three are combined it makes a pretty stiff combination.

The fellows on the usually low and wet land who in wet years past have done a heavy business in mosquitoes, bullfrogs and pitchfork burrs, have been in clover during the past two seasons and have already harvested bumper crops of small grain and will soon gather big yields of corn. The owners of this low land—almost invariably rich and fertile—should more fully appreciate that the tilling of this land will in the main have the same result in making it productive that there two dry seasons have done, and that the sooner they get it tilled the sooner will they cease to be the helpless victims of wet seasons and be able to raise bumper crops on it every year.

The commission men are at their same stale old tricks this year—namely, reporting an oversupply of fall and winter apples and thus "bearing" the market. They will likely continue on in this line until the fruit is pretty much out of the growers' hands, when prices will jump as if they had been given an electric shock. There is little question that in the case of late summer and early fall apples there was an oversupply in some sections, but that there is more than half a crop of standard late fall and winter apples is not borne out by either the government crop reports or those from other reliable sources. Hence if one has a good quality of fruit which has been sprayed and is free from worms it will be well worth his while to box or barrel it carefully, and if a fair price is not offered by buyers at once to put the fruit in cold storage. Producers of fruits have been flimflammed by commission men long enough, and it is high time the former took the necessary measures to safeguard themselves. The plan suggested above and intelligent co-operative effort are two means by which this end may be accomplished.

"Was it snowin' all this time?" asked Hutchins.

"Snow? Eet snow harder all ze time. Bimeby Brisson he dash off in one direction and ze udders in two different ways, and all disappear in ze whirling snow flakes. Zey all know where ze traps are, and one go to one trap and anudder to anudder. But by thees time eet grow dark, and eet was hard to find ze way. But they all were used to go in ze dark like ze animals, and thees does not make so much difference.

"Meester Brewerton he walk up and down lak a bear much worried. He tink he not git hees daughter back no more and she freeze to death under ze snow. Nine o'clock come, and nobody comes—11 comes, and Garnier he comes and says he find nothings of Mees Clarissa and he fear she freeze to death. At 12 o'clock Rubidoux he come in stiff with ze cold and haf not found ze young lady. Then Meester Brewerton he say all my hope is in Antoine Brisson."

"Was he the feller with the curls?" asked Hutchens.

"Hees hair war lak ze wing of ze raven"—

"A raven is the same as a crow, isn't it?" asked Silas.

"You call him crow. Mos' peoples call him crow. Story teller always call him raven.

"Nobody come no more zat night, and Meester Brewerton he gif up hees daughter for lost. In ze morning eet still snow, and eet was not before afternoon zat eet stop and ze people mak up party to go ze round of Mees Brewerton's traps to find her body and ze body of Antoine Brisson, for zey tink he die too. Zey go to ze first trap and find nothings. Then zey go to ze second and still zey find nothings. Between ze second and ze third there war big drift, and zey had to dig ze snow away to get through. When zey reach ze third trap zey find nothings, but one man say not far from here is deserted cabin. Mebbe Mees Brewerton find her way zere before ze snow comes down too thick.

"Zey all went to where ze cabin was, but zere was nothings but a hill of snow. Then one of ze men gif sudden shout. He see a little smoke come from ze tip top of ze snow hill. Then odders see it. Ze chimbly of ze cabin ees just below ze snow, and zere mus' be fire below.

"Zey all climb to ze top of ze snow hill and see a leetle crater lak ze volcano, and in ze center was ze chimbly top, with ze smoke coming out. Zey call down ze chimbly, and ze sweet voice of Clarissa Brewerton replies:

"'Who is it?'

"Zey tell her zey haf come to search for her, and she say yesterday, seeing ze snow come faster and faster and knowing where war ze empty cabin, she went zare, and before ze snow cover ze dead wood on ze ground she gedder eet, working till it snow ver' hard, and tak it in ze cabin. But, alas, she haf no way to light a fire. She had hoped to find a match or to strike a spark, but zere was no match, and she could not strike a spark."

"See here, Trudeau," put in Silas. "You've got this yarn into a fix where you can't unravel it. You said the gal made a fire, didn't you? How the dickens was there a fire when she couldn't light it?"

At this interruption Trudeau looked at the matter of fact Yankee triumphantly.

"I come to zat," he said. "Mees Brewerton found notting in ze cabin to keep her warm, and ze cold grew more and more bitter. She feared to go to sleep, but at last was about to do so when she see man's face look in ze top of ze window above ze snow. Eet was zat noble skii teacher, Antoine Brisson.

"Antoine always carry match to light hees pipe. He hand Clarissa ze box, and she light ze fire. She ask Antoine to come in and warm himself. He say no, she must stay zare one, two, meb be t'ree day. He not compromise her good name by going in. She tell him he die if he not come in. 'Ver' well, mademoiselle,' he say. 'I die for your sake; I love you so much.'

"Antoine he dig hole in ze snow outside, and we look for him. We find him in ze hole, but ze cold had frozen him He was dead."

There were exclamations from all the listeners expressive of admiration for this noble act except the Yankee.

"Wasn't he the least bit squeamish?" he remarked.

"No, no. Ef he stay zere Mees Brewerton reputation gone forever."

"How would it have been if there'd been an old woman with 'em, blind and deaf?" said Silas.

No one paid any attention to this satirical reflection on French etiquette, and Trudeau continued:

"When they tell Mees Brewerton zat Antoine war dead she faint. Her reputation was saved, but Antoine had given his life for eet. Zey carry her home to her fadder, and he war wild with joy to see her. When zey hear ze story of how ze noble Antoine haf given hees life for hees daughter's reputation he weep many tears. Then he say:

"I gif ze hundred pounds I promised as a reward to saving my daughter to build fine monument to zis noble man."

"Seems to me," remarked Hutchins, "if I'd been the skii teacher I'd rather have had my life than the monument."

"Ze monument great honor."

"What become o' the girl?" asked Silas.

"Mees Brewerton she go to Montreal with her father. She come here when ze monument was put up and every year for long time."

"I guess she'll get over it," was the Yankee's final criticism. "They all do."

Death by Poison.

In Greece poison was the favorite method of capital punishment and of suicide. Valerius Maximus relates that he saw a "woman of quality in the island of Ceos who, having lived happily for ninety years, obtained leave to take a poisonous draft lest by living longer she should happen to have a change in her good fortune."

LAND SHOW WILL GIVE MANY PRIZES

St. Paul Associaton of Commerce Offers Silver Trophy Cups.

BEST EXHIBITS WILL WIN

Business Interests of the Twin City and Those Interested in the Development of the American Northwest Contribute Prizes Worth Thousands of Dollars to Encourage Exhibition of Products at Land Show in St. Paul December 12 to 23.

Exhibitors from every state at the Northwestern Land Products Show in St. Paul Dec. 12 to 23, will be given an opportunity to compete for more than fifty valuable silver trophy cups offered for the best displays, twenty of the trophies being given by the St. Paul Association of Commerce.

This announcement was made by the management of the Land Show and the Association of Commerce this week. Accompanying the announcement is the statement explaining how the trophies are offered.

"As the Land Show in St. Paul is an enterprise given by the states of the American Northwest, individual competition is almost eliminated by necessity," says the statement. "The trophies are therefore offered to the commercial clubs, communities or states first. Another class of prizes is offered for the growers furnishing the best samples to their state or sectional exhibits. It is not desired that any individual make an exhibit at the Land Show except as the samples are furnished those who are collecting and preparing the state and sectional exhibits. The name of the grower may appear on each of these samples. The trophies in this class, of course, will go to the grower furnishing the samples, but competitors must make all entries with those in charge of the state or community exhibits in their own states and not through the Land Show management."

The offering of fifty trophies is on a par with other things about the St. Paul show. It is perhaps the largest list of trophies ever offered by a Land Show.

These states and their individual contributors, commercial clubs and communities will have the opportunity to win the cups: Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Alaska.

Three of the Association of Commerce Trophies.

Here is a partial list of the trophies offered:

The St. Paul Association of Commerce will give silver trophy cups for the best state exhibit and for the best sectional exhibit.

In Minnesota the following cups are offered: For the best half bushel of winter wheat; for the best ten ears of corn; for the best bushel of potatoes, and for the best bushel of oats.

For North Dakota two prizes are offered, a cup for the best bushel of wheat and another for the best half bushel of flax.

South Dakota exhibitors will be given cups for the best bushel of wheat and for the best ten ears of corn.

For the best half bushel of non-irrigated and for the best half bushel of irrigated winter wheat some Montana growers or exhibitors will receive cups.

Idaho is offered a cup for the best five boxes of commercial apples.

Oregon and Washington growers will have an opportunity for friendly competition, as a cup is offered for the best bushel of apples grown in either Washington or Oregon, and another cup for the best sample of alfalfa. There is a cup for the best half bushel of wheat shown from Central Oregon, and for the best collection of processed fruits from either state.

Besides the cups offered by the Association of Commerce, the Great Northern railroad offers a cup in each state for the grower furnishing for the state exhibit the best collection of samples. The Sioux City Tribune is offering a handsome silver cup for the best showing made from an acre of alfalfa in South Dakota.

Many other prizes are offered by the Land Show and business firms of St. Paul and Minneapolis, announcements of which have been made to the state commissions collecting the exhibits.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

The Minnesota State Agricultural society has $2,500 cash on hand; will have about $2,500 more coming in before Jan. 1; will have to pay out $48,000 between now and Jan. 1, and is behind $45,000 on the last fair as closely as can be estimated, according to a report of Secretary J. C. Simpson. "We will call upon the business men of Minneapolis and St. Paul for the proportion of the money they promised to advance that we will need," Mr. Simpson said. "At the annual meeting Jan. 2, we will know just where we stand."

Attorney General George T. Simpson, in an opinion given to Senator V. L. Johnson of Chisago county, holds the provisions of the automobile road law passed last winter, which requires all vehicles other than motor vehicles to carry "a white light" when on the public highway between an hour after sunset and an hour before sunrise, is constitutional. The attorney general says he believes the provision will stand, as the title of the act includes the phrase "prescribing road rules."

Refuting the statement that Minnesota's public lands are falling into the hands of speculators, State Auditor Iverson has compiled a statement showing that of the 102,758 acres sold during the present calendar year the average number of acres bought by each person was 110, and that 934 individual buyers made investments. The state received $679,261.37 for the 102,758 acres, an average price of $6.62.

Speed of 100 miles an hour is expected from an improved monorail gyroscope car invented by two professors at the University of Minnesota. It will travel on one rail without the rocking motion common to railroad trains on account of the impossibility of making the two rails exactly parallel. If it should leave the track, the inventors say, it would keep right side up until coming to a stop.

Bids for the construction of the Minneapolis postoffice were opened in the office of the supervising architect of the treasury at Washington. The lowest bidder is the firm of H. W. Leighton & Co. of Minneapolis, which offers to construct the building of limestone for $447,787; of sandstone for $454,850, and of granite for $565,537.

The Minnesota State Horticultural society's annual meeting will take place at Minneapolis Dec. 5 to 8. About 159 boxes of apples will be shown and 1,000 plates of different varieties. The annual banquet will take place Dec. 7. Several auxiliary societies will assist in the program.

For the eighth consecutive time Minnesota has won first honors in buttermaking over all other states of the Union. Information to this effect comes from J. G. Winkjer, state dairy and food commissioner, who attended the National Dairy show at Chicago.

C. A. Smith, member of the board of regents of the University of Minnesota for seven years, will resign from the board at either the next regular meeting of the board or the one following, according to his friends in Minneapolis.

Several prominent prohibitionists are included in the list of ten delegates selected by Governor Eberhart to represent Minnesota in the national conference on interstate liquor traffic at Washington, Dec. 13.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Mrs. Rose Apich, held on suspicion of causing the death of her husband at Chisholm by poison, waived examination in district court at Hibbing before Judge Hughes and was bound over to the grand jury. She was taken to Duluth. The woman is being held on suspicion.

Charles J. Hutchings, aged fifty-four, a pioneer citizen of Sleepy Eye, was killed by coming in contact with a live wire. He was stringing a telephone wire when he touched an electric cable. Death was instantaneous.

Daniel Fitzgerald, thirty-one years old, was struck and killed by a train in the Northern Pacific railroad yards at St. Paul. No one witnessed the accident and the circumstances surrounding the fatality are not known.

J. J. Reynolds, an electrician, is dead at his home in Minneapolis of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by Charles A. Hedding. The accident was declared accidental by the police.

The corpse of a man found in Crooked lake recently and identified as that of Tom McCarthy of Hibbing, probably was John Cox of Calumet, as Tom McCarthy is alive and well in Hibbing.

A. F. Hollinger of Hastings, formerly head packer at the Gardner mill and prominent in Odd Fellow circles, was found dead, having been asphyxiated by coal gas at his home in that city.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Charles A. Bovey, a pioneer in the commercial development of the Northwest, for forty-one years a figure of prominence in the lumber industry of the United States and identified with the growth of Minneapolis, is dead at the age of seventy nine.

H. R. [illegible], a prominent lumberman of Duluth, died at Downieville, Cal. following an attack of pneumonia. He had been ill but two days.

SWEDEN.

Stockholm dispatches state that this year's Nobel prize for physics will be awarded to the world famous inventor and scientist, Thomas Alva Edison who has just returned to his home in Brooklyn after an extensive trip through Europe. The prize could not have been awarded to a more worthy man than Thomas Edison and in Sweden Edison's selection has met universal praise. Professor Allvar Gullstrand of Upsala university will receive the Nobel prize for medicine Professor Gullstrand is regarded as the greatest authority on the eye, ear and nose in his native land and has an international reputation, having been honored by many learned societies of Europe. He has also written several exhaustive treatises on medicine, which have been translated into English, French and German.

In the death of Consul Peter Olsson of Helsingborg, Southern Sweden has lost one of its most prominent and influential men. He was born in 1830 and as early as 1853 he engaged in the grain business, at which he soon made a great success. He established a sugar factory and a furniture factory and also engaged very extensively in the importing and exporting business. He served for several years in the Second chamber of the Swedish riksdag and since 1900 he has been consul for Germany, a post which he has filled with singular success. He was regarded as Helsingborg's most prominent business man and leaves a considerable fortune.

Stockholm papers relate that Andrew Carnegie has announced to the American legation that he has donated a hero fund, consisting of $230,000, or 850,000 crowns in Swedish money. This fund will be placed in the hands of a committee, whose duty it shall be to see that "hero donations" will be properly made. This donation on the part of Mr. Carnegie has been much praised in all Swedish papers. Young people throughout the kingdom are universal in their praise of Mr. Carnegie and the prediction is that heroes will not be lacking in Sweden.

During the past summer infantile paralysis was quite prevalent in Sweden. From reports now in the hands of the national board it is evident that the disease originated in the province of Norrland and there it has also been most prevalent. Out of ninety-nine cases recently reported to the board seventy-seven were in the country and twenty-two in the cities. It is evident that the disease is very contagious, but how it is carried about is still unknown to physicians.

Swedish-Americans have been aroused by the cruel murder of a prominent mining engineer, C. L. Erickson, who was shot to death in a hotel at Salt Lake City, Utah, a couple of weeks ago while endeavoring to intercede in behalf of Saul S. Brown, who had been enticed into one of the rooms of the hotel and robbed by two masked men. Erickson graduated as a mining engineer in Stockholm and was considered an expert in his profession.

The United States foreign department has been making inquiries through the American legation at Stockholm as to the cost of erecting a suitable home for the United States legation in that city. All the other powers have prominent locations in the city and the United States wants to either erect a building of its own or buy a building in a desirable part of the city.

Johan Christopher Sceidler, vice admiral of the Swedish navy, has received the flattering assignment to reorganize the Siamese navy and departed for that country about two weeks ago to engage in this important work. Admiral Sceidler was at one time a marine attache in London and Paris and has for years been considered one of the most able officers in the Swedish navy.

The State Church of Sweden has 2,700 ordained ministers laboring in the different activities of the church. A report has recently been published which gives the name and address of each one. Also the position or positions each one holds; the number of persons belonging to each parish and some other valuable information on education.

Swedish officers are popular in Persia. The Persian government now requests that ten more Swedish officers be sent to help train their army. There are at present over twenty five Swedish officers in the Persian army.

Prince Wilhelm and Princess Maria left Stockholm last week for Siam, where they are to attend the coronation festivities.

NORWAY.

A great deal of opposition is developing in Christiania to the so called moving picture shows, which are very popular over there as well as in other countries. But people are growing tired of them, at least those who class themselves as reformers, and propose to eradicate them altogether, inasmuch as they are regarded as dangerous to the growing generation. A movement in the direction of suppressing them has been started in Christiania and it is likely that the city council will hereafter place all the shows under strict censorship.

Christiania dispatches state that two men belonging to a Spitzbergen winter expedition have arrived at Christiania after great suffering. Three members of the expedition died of starvation in February last and the two who have arrived in Christiania had long ago given themselves up for lost. They were without food and ammunition and were finally compelled to tear sealskin off their shoes and boil it. They were on the point of starving when the Arctic navigator, Nils Larson of Tromsoe, rescued them.

London and Berlin syndicates have purchased the well known Tyssefallen in the Hardangerfjord, which until recently has been the property of a Norwegian firm, with Knut Tillberg as general manager. The latter will retain his interests and will also be the manager of the new company. A zinc factory of immense proportions is to be erected at the Tyssefallen in the near future and it is believed that some 500 men will be employed there.

The name Bjornson still continues to interest Norway. A selection of letters written by Bjornstjerne Bjornson to his daughter, Mrs. Sigurd Ibsen, which have just been issued from the press, is being hailed with delight by hosts of admirers of the great poet. These letters were not printed for general circulation, but the call for them is so great that it is certain that a second and larger edition will soon be issued.

Russel Jensen, a Norwegian-American student of the South Dakota Agricultural college, obtained the most coveted prize at the National Dairy show, the so called "Taft cup," and it was presented to the young man in the person of the president himself, who complimented the young man highly on his success.

DENMARK.

Regarding the rather "hot" reception accorded Dr. Cook in Copenhagen recently a well known daily newspaper remarks: "Dr. Cook of polar infamy never did get his moral deserts in America, although he not only tried to hoax the world, but also on false pretenses extracted some $80,000 from those who paid to hear his lies. In Denmark, where he is visiting, he seems to be receiving his deserts. He was mobbed in the streets of Copenhagen; Dr. Nansen, the explorer, formerly Cook's friend, publishes a statement calling upon everybody to close their doors to 'the swindler,' and the Danish journals strenuously denounce him. Cook said himself: 'If I am proved to be making false claims, I deserve to be ostracized by society. Can I make it stronger?' In Denmark they are taking him at his word. But in America we are lenient, because the joke is on us. But we are neither lenient nor cordial to Peary, and the beginning of our dislike of Peary was his prompt denunciation of Cook."

A Copenhagen dispatch says: "In addition to the annexation and incorporation of part of the Finnish province of Viborg for strategical reasons the Russian government has now ordered the abolition of the boy scouts of Finland as being an unauthorized military organization and a pretext for the dangerous cultivation among young Finlanders of a national pride and spirit hostile to Russia. While Russia has only been able to use General Baden-Powell's idea to form a system of 'toy soldiers,' the Finnish boys have turned out real scouts in every sense of the word. The abolition of the boy scout societies in Finland is another severe blow from the heavy hand of Russia."

During the early part of the fall Bishop P. Madsen, one of the leading theologians of Denmark and primate of the Church of Denmark, died at Copenhagen. Bishop Madsen was sixty-eight years old and had been primate only one and one half years. He was born in [illegible] and studied at the University of Denmark, from which he graduated and later pursued studies at [illegible]. [illegible] a faithful member of the State Church of Denmark. He is said to have been a man of the [illegible] and always took a hearty [illegible] in their welfare.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

Several Buildings in Main Business Section of Becker Destroyed by Fire.

Two children were cremated and the main business section of Becker was destroyed by a fire which started in living rooms over the Edward Cox store.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox were in the lower portion of the building when the fire broke out. They had sent the children upstairs to play and it is believed one of the tots tipped over a lamp. Ruth Cox, aged two and a half years, and Eddie, aged eighteen months, were cremated, despite the efforts of their parents to rescue them.

The flames swept on to the F. R. Brasie building, occupied by Younger Dyson as a general store. Driven by a stiff wind the fire consumed the Becker creamery and the postoffice, but was stopped at the Becker State bank. This building is of brick and stone and saved the other buildings on the street from destruction.

FORMER RECORDS BROKEN

Minnesota Transfer Handled 61,347 Cars in October.

The Minnesota Transfer, near the Twin Cities, the barometer of business conditions in the Northwest, handled the biggest volume of traffic in October in its history. The record of the month surpassed that of October, 1909, which was the crest of the prosperity wave in the United States.

The total number of cars handled at the transfer last month was 61,347, as compared with 58,070 cars for October, 1910, an increase of approximately 10 per cent. The figures for October, 1909, were between these two.

DUMAS GETS VENUE CHANGE

Cass Lake Mayor Will Be Tried on Arson Charge at Brainerd.

Saying he believed it would not be just to try Dr. Dumas in Bemidji on the charge of having committed arson in the third degree at Blackduck April 19 last Judge Stanton, at the conclusion of the reading of affidavits and arguments, ordered a change of venue from Beltrami county to Crow Wing county. The term at Brainerd opens Dec. 5.

The court ordered Dr Dumas to furnish a bond of $3,000 for his appearance at Brainerd at the opening of the December term of court.

TWO KILLED BY DYNAMITE

Bodies Blown to Pieces While Thawing Explosive.

While thawing out dynamite on a farm near Midway for the purpose of blowing up stumps a homesteader and his hired man were instantly killed, being blown almost to pieces by the explosive. The dead are: Chris Walin, aged forty-six, married, and Eric Bolin, aged twenty-nine, single.

Bolin worked for Walin. Both men stood near by the fire on which they were thawing out the dynamite. Mr. Walin leaves a wife and two children.

STOCKMAN DIES IN WRECK

Great Western Passenger Train Runs Into Freight.

One man was instantly killed, several passengers were slightly injured and five freight cars were smashed to splinters when the first division of passenger train No. 1, northbound from Chicago on the Chicago and Great Western road, ran into the caboose of a freight on the main line near the depot at Randolph.

Joseph Peach, twenty-nine years old, a stockman, living in the village of Waltham, was riding in the caboose and was instantly killed.

DECLINE IN ORE SHIPMENTS

1911 October Mark 157,937 Tons Less Than a Year Ago.

Ore shipments for October from the docks at the Head of the Lakes, including those of Two Harbors, show a decrease for the period of 157,937 tons, compared with October, 1910.

The season to date is 6,958,666 tons behind last year's figures for the same period.

Changes Plea to Guilty.

Harry T. Robinson, whose trial on a charge of robbing the Shubert theater safe at St. Paul Jan. 2 last of $3,392.64 has been in progress in the Ramsey county district court, changed his plea to guilty after the prosecution had presented its case. Robinson was given a twenty year sentence in the penitentiary.

Duluth Conductor Held Up.

H. W. Scott, conductor on a Woodland street car at Duluth, was held up and robbed of $37. The highwayman threw the trolley off the car near the "Y" at the east end. When the conductor came to adjust it he demanded his money at the point of a gun. Scott delivered promptly.

No. 13.

In many London streets there is no No. 13. Even hard headed business men seem to have an aversion to this number, which is lacking from Threadneedle street, Tokenhouse Yard and Lombard street. In one street, however, having a singularly unlucky name superstition is boldly defied. For many years past a flourishing manufacturer has located his city offices at 13 Friday street; an address which seems eminently fitted to be the headquarters of the Thirteen club.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Schools of Holland.

In the schools of Holland it is part of the course of instruction to teach French, German and English. When a pupil reaches the period of graduation he must take an examination in these languages. It is therefore not strange that a person of fair education in Holland is able to speak English, at least understandably.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

Did ever a fall come that some old rooster, pretending to be a reader of cornhusk signs and goosebone kinks, did not predict that the "coming" winter was going to be a hard one.

The woods during middle October offer few prettier sights than a symmetrical elm still in full leaf and every leaf a golden yellow, a condition that is only possible when the leaves ripen naturally and are not hit by a hard frost.

Wisconsin is the greatest pea raising state of the Union. Thousands and thousands of acres are raised for canning, while a large acreage besides is devoted to raising peas for seed. One company in Eau Claire county grew 1,200 acres of peas this season on its own land.

In the hop fields of Kent, England, stilts are now used by pickers instead of the time honored stepladders. Some one has advanced the theory that this same idea might be adopted by orchardists in the pruning of their trees and gathering of fruit from higher limbs. Maybe.

An eastern farmer who has had considerable experience with Angora goats speaks strongly of them as a means of devouring and killing out poison ivy in fence rows and brush lots and, further, that a few of them kept in a flock of sheep are a sure protection for the latter animals against attacks by dogs.

The theory of feeding rations such as turnips and silage immediately after milking in order to prevent a contamination of the milk by flavors given off by the feeds is based on the fact that the juices of the foods in which the flavors are contained pass off through other channels before the time of the next milking.

There are dogs and dogs. One kind sleep at the corner of the house, bound out on passing teams and are not worth the salt they get on the bones they gnaw. The other kind gnaw the same kind of bones, but in addition are well bred, mind their business carefully inspect strangers and can be counted on to fetch up the cattle at night.

While their dumpy condition may be due to other causes, it is often the case that lice are at the bottom of the trouble with the poultry. In any event an examination should be made, and if lice are present they should be gone after hammer and tongs, which should include not only treatment for the poultry, but a fumigating and whitewashing of the poultry quarters.

Inasmuch as it seems to be the inborn tendency of the hog to seek and get into all the dirt and filth it has access to, it is the part of good management to make its quarters and surroundings as clean and sanitary as possible. When a disease breaks out in a herd of swine the number of germs is quite apt to be in direct proportion to the filth present.

Plowing with a steam or gasoline tractor is not an unalloyed picnic particularly if those in charge of the work do not understand the business thoroughly and do not have things properly adjusted. One farmer we read of the other day spent two days with three men and a boy getting one of these plowing outfits equipped and after making four rounds gave it up as a bad job and finished the field in the old fashioned way—four horses and a gang plow.

Since the tiller of the soil does most of the grunting and sweating in connection with produce consumed by the millions of mouths of the country it is an illuminating commentary on the system of economic distribution in vogue that in spite of all his labors he gets but 35 cents of the dollar which the consumer pays for his produce. It is this very situation that is responsible for the establishment in many larger cities of the country of markets where producers and consumers can meet and trade.

The wrecking of the town of Austin, Pa., on Sept. 30 by a flood of water loosed by the breaking of the cement dam of the Bayliss Pulp and Paper company, and that on the heels of a bad scare which the inhabitants of the town had six months or more ago, when the dam was strained to the breaking point by winter rains, would seem to emphasize the need of far more stringent state laws which would compel the inspection and repair of these unsafe structures and the construction of new dams for the purpose of impounding waters according to specifications furnished by competent civil engineers.

VALUABLE DEMONSTRATION.

The Pennsylvania experiment station has been doing some work of a practical nature within the past few years along the line of instructing the orchardists of the state in the matter of giving their orchards more careful and scientific care. Some four years ago eleven orchards were selected with the idea of giving them a ten year course of experimental treatment along the line of better culture, fertilizing, spraying, etc. The orchards have been divided into check plots, the different areas being given different treatment to test results. Some of these received no fertilizer, others various combinations of nitrogen, phosphoric acid, phosphorus, lime, barnyard manure, clover and mulch. The results have been most instructive. It was found that the plots receiving no fertilizer gave practically no return. Other treatments yielded net returns ranging from $100 to $500 per acre. Nitrogen alone or in combination gave excellent results. Potash or phosphoric acid alone showed no increase in fruit production, but did when used in combination with nitrogen. Lime alone had no beneficial effect, but barnyard manure gave the best results of all. For the purpose of gathering up and giving fruit growers of the state the benefits of a direct inspection of some of this experimental work a field meeting was held on the Johnson farm, in Lawrence county, on Sept. 27. Horticultural experts in charge of the experiments, assisted by those from other states, were present to explain the demonstration work to the many who assembled to get the benefit of it.

THE EROSION OF EARTH.

Investigations which have been carried on by the United States geological survey show that the surface of the country is being worn away by the erosive action of water at the rate of an inch in 760 years. This seems like a very small amount, but it is an enormous amount when viewed in the action of single drainage basins. It is estimated that the Mississippi river carries annually to the gulf of Mexico 136,400,000 tons of dissolved matter and 340,500,000 tons of suspended matter, such as particles of earth. Of this total the Missouri river contributes more than twice as much as does the Ohio. The Colorado river delivers at its mouth 100,740,000 tons of suspended matter, or more than any other single drainage system. It is estimated that all rivers in the United States which flow to the sea bear thither a grand total of 883,000,000 tons of dissolved and suspended matter, or the equivalent of 610,000,000 cubic yards of surface soil.

THE TWO-YEAR AGRICULTURAL COURSE.

In years past much of the work done by agricultural colleges has failed to confer the largest possible usefulness because of the rigid and quite exacting requirements for admission to the agricultural courses, in many cases the equivalent of a high school course being necessary. Within the past two years several leading agricultural schools, realizing this fact, have provided for a two-year agricultural short course, which is open to all young people who have had the branches taught in the average country school, a knowledge of which would be necessary for satisfactory progress in the courses offered. The benefit which will result from thus throwing these practical and helpful courses open to a greatly increased number of young men and women can hardly be estimated. It will mean the realizing of a maximum value from the most practical type of instruction that is offered in American schools today.

A SPECIALIST'S OPINION.

Professor Hopkins of the University of Illinois, one of the leading speakers at the conservation congress held a short time since at Kansas City, made the rather startling statement that notwithstanding the fact that the soils in many sections of the country have been depleted by soil robbing to the point of virtual bankruptcy, we are exporting annually 1,000,000 tons of our best phosphate rock for the paltry sum of $5,000,000, when if this same phosphorus were applied to our own depleted soils it would be worth $1,000,000,000 in the production of bread for future generations. He made the further interesting statement that, with proper handling based on a knowledge of the fundamentals of preserving soil fertility, millions of acres of practically abandoned land in the older states could be brought to a point of productivity where they would have a value in excess of the $200 corn belt lands of the central states.

SHOULD BE RIPE.

The enjoyment to be derived from eating pears—and this has to do with texture, juiciness and flavor—is almost entirely dependent upon their being ripened at the time of consumption. Pears for shipment any distance are always picked while hard. They may have attained full size and good color, but at the same time be hard and worthless. The proper way of handling pears in such condition is to put them away in a cool dark place, and before many days they will be perfection—sweet, luscious and fine flavored. If any readers have never given pears this preliminary treatment they should do so and get favorably acquainted with the finest fruit that grows.

DAIRYMEN'S MEETING

Red River Valley Dairymen's Assn. Closed Annual Meeting at Crookston Friday.

Peter Engelstad, of this City, Elected First Vice President of Association.

The annual meeting of the Red River Valley Dairymen's association was held at Crookston last Thursday and Friday, and is reported as having been the most successful meeting in the history of the association. Officers elected for the ensuing year:

President—C. G. Selvig, Crookston,

First Vice Pres.—Peter Engelstad Thief River Falls.

Second Vice Pres.—T. H. Nesseth, Fertile.

Secretary—H. A. Lidenberg, Fosston.

Treasurer—C. M. Davidson, Climax.

In an address delivered on the last day of the convention W. J. Winkjer is quoted as urging the buttermakers to go outside of their routine and extend their influence to the farmer, the cream producer, and thus lay the foundation for the highest grade of butter, as the buttermaker, without the cream in the proper condition and properly safeguarded, could not get the best results, despite the most strenuous efforts in his department.

He urged the buttermakers to make frequent visits to the farms of the creamery patrons, council with the farmers and in special instances where it was required, by calling on the dairy and food department. George Miller, who had been specially assigned to that branch of the work, would be sent to secure the best possible conditions on the farm. Mr. Winkjer also urged the organization of junior dairymen to include the farmer boys from 12 to 18, who could meet once or twice a month at the creamery and receive such instruction as the buttermaker or creamery manager could give them.

Must Dispose of Brush.

Under the new law it is made the duty of everyone cutting timber for any purposes to dispose of the slash. This applies to people doing any kind of logging, clearing land for farms, cutting out roads, etc. It is part of the effort being made to prevent forest fires and is going to be enforced. Rangers will be on duty in the winter as well as in the summer to see that brush is properly disposed of. The manner in which slash must be handled will vary more or less with the character of the woods, so that it will be well to get in touch with the ranger before cutting begins.

Contractors and people letting contracts for cutting timber are directly affected by this brush disposal law and the measure being taken to carry it out.

THANKSGIVING

President Taft Designates Thursday, Nov. 30, as the Day for National Worship and Prayer.

The people of this land, having by long sanction and practice set apart toward the close of each passing year a day on which to cease from their labors and assemble for the purpose of giving praise to Him who is the author of the blessings they have enjoyed, it is my duty as chief executive to designate at this time the day for the fulfillment of this devout purpose. Our country has been signally favored in many ways. The round of the seasons has brought rich harvests. Our industries have thriven far beyond our domestic needs, the productions of our labor are daily finding enlarged markets abroad. We have been free from the curses of pestilence, of famine, and of war. Our national councils have furthered the cause of peace in other lands and the spirit of benevolence has brought us into closer touch with other peoples to the strengthening of the bonds of fellowship and good will that link us to our comrades in the universal brotherhood of nations. Strong in the sense of our own right and inspired by as strong a sense of the rights of others, we live in peace and harmony with the world. Rich in the priceless possession and abundant resources, wherewith the unstinted bounty of God has endowed us, we are unselfishly glad when other peoples pass onward to prosperity and peace. That the great privileges we enjoy may continue, and that each coming year may see our country more firmly established in the regard and esteem of our fellow nations is the prayer that should arise in every thankful heart.

"Wherefore, I, William Howard Taft, president of the United States of America, designate Thursday, the thirtieth of November next as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer and I earnestly call upon my countrymen and upon all that dwell under the flag of our beloved country, then to meet in their accustomed places of worship to join in offering praise to Almighty God and devout thanks for the loving mercies He has given to us.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed. Done at the city of Chicago, this thirtieth day October, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eleven, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-sixth.

By the president:
William Howard Taft.
P. C. Knox, Secretary of State.

Governor A. O. Eberhart in Annual Proclamation Says State Was Favored.

Governor A. O. Eberhart, in his Thanksgiving proclamation, just issued, declares that the state of Minnesota has been favored greatly during the year, prospering not only in agricultural and industrial lines, but in education and moral uplift. The governor's proclamation, following that of President Taft in fixing Nov. 30 as the day for Thanksgiving, is as follows:

"In conformity with long established usage and pursuant to the proclamation of the president of the United States, it is fitting that the people of Minnesota prepare to sum up the blessings enjoyed during the year now drawing to a close and to express their appreciation of the same. In few states of this nation have there been more favoring conditions in all lines of activity than in Minnesota. Material prosperity in agriculture, in commerce, in industrial pursuits has been, attended by distinct advances in practical education, in development of resources, and in moral uplift as applied to civic affairs."

"The spirit of fraternal helpfulness, of consideration for the rights of others and of fairness and justice in all the relations of life pervades the community to a most couraging extent, and mark this year of our Lord, 1911 as epochal in the history of this great growing commonwealth."

"Therefore, I, Adolph O. Eberhart, governor of the State of Minnesota, earnestly recommend that all the people of Minnesota observe Thursday, Nov. 30 as a day of prayer and thanksgiving, in sincere acknowledgment of the manifold blessings vouchsafed by the Almighty during the past year."

SENT TO ST. PAUL

Cereal Products Raised In this Vicinity to Be Shown at St. Paul Land Show.

Will Also Decorate the Governor's Special On Its Eastern Trip.

The samples of grain and other cereals owned by Daniel Shaw which have decorated his office, was shipped to St. Paul Monday, where it will be put on exhibition during the land show to be held in the capitol city next month.

These samples have been selected by Mr. Shaw after careful study for his own individual collection and are representative of some of the best grains that are being raised in this part of the state.

The collection of Mr. Shaw and possibly a few other samples from this vicinity to follow later should put Pennington county in the foremost ranks in grain raising and will be an advertisement to this county of considerable importance.

This collection will also be used to decorate the Governor's special on his trip through the eastern states this winter.

J. J. Vorachek was down to Mahnomen looking after his farm interests last week.

BUYS COUNTY DITCH BONDS

J. A. Duffy, of Red Lake Falls, Successful Bidder for Part of County Ditch Bonds.

Bonds Amounted to $85,000 and Will Draw 5½ Per Cent Interest.

At the meeting of the county commissioners of Pennington county held in this city November 2nd the bid of J. A. Duffy, cashier of the Merchants State Bank at Red Lake Falls, for Pennington County drainage bonds to the amount of $85,000, was accepted. The bonds will draw interest at the rate of 5½ per cent per annum and will run all the way from 6 to 20 years before maturity. This is just a part of the drainage bonds for this county as bonds to the amount of $100,000 have been prepared and will be disposed of as soon as the satisfactory arrangements can be made.

HAS BEST BUTTER

Minnesota Again Wins First Honors At National Dairy Show.

For the eighth consecutive time, Minnesota has won first honors in buttermaking over all other states of the Union, information to this effect having been received by J. G. Winkjer, state dairy and food commissioner, while at Chicago attending the National Dairy Show.

In a message to F. W. McIntosh, secretary, Mr. Winjer said that Minnesota lead, with an average score of 96.53. Wisconsin was second, with a score of 95.86, and Iowa third, with a score of 95.33. Minnesota had 200 entries.

A. J. Anderson of Ostico scored highest, with a record of 97.50, and J. L. Wahlstrom of Stark was second with a score of 96.33.

DAIRY NOTES

OF LOCAL INTEREST

By F. S. Trigg

In ponds where carp are raised for market the practice is quite common of fattening the fish before catching them by feeding them soaked shelled corn, which they are said to eat greedily. Even fish know a good thing when they get it.

One should not only exercise care in the matter of the terms of notes which one signs, but also in the wording and terms of contracts for land that he may contemplate purchasing. It is some bother perhaps to look into this matter carefully and if necessary pay a good attorney for doing so, but in the end one may save hundreds and possibly thousands of dollars.

The San Jose scale is a pest that requires a stronger spray than tender growing foliage will stand. For this reason the treatment should be made between the time the leaves fall in autumn and the time they start in the spring. If the job is delayed until spring the spraying will also play smash with the green aphis, which is a troublesome pest in many sections.

A fine team of six-year-old Percherons which a friend drives to town frequently and for which he would hardly take a cold $600 indulged in a short but vicious run the other day. In explaining it the owner said it was not due to any meanness on the part of the horses, but to the fact that the harness and double trees were in poor repair. This team will not run away with him for the same cause again.

It is a long step from the grease which used to be sold at country stores before the day of the creamery at 5 cents per pound to the 2,000 pounds of butter which were sold the other day at auction at the close of a big dairy show, which scored an average of ninety points and brought 33½ cents per pound. The difference in the prices quoted nicely typifies the progress which has been made in the organized dairy business in the past thirty years.

Brush land or wood soil is ideal for growing potatoes. This is due to the mellowness of the soil resulting from the large amount of humus it contains and the usual freedom of the soil from weed seeds. Where new land is not available much the same condition can be had on a piece of newly plowed pasture or on a clover meadow the last crop of which has been turned under the preceding fall. In both of these cases there will be a good supply of humus and few weeds.

A law of nature as irrevocable as that of the Medes and Persians ordains that a certain class of landlords and tenants—the kind who skin the land and put nothing back—will have to repent and turn from their evil ways or go into involuntary bankruptcy. Stated in another way, it means that this class of chaps have got to quit insulting land worth from $100 to $250 an acre with methods that for awhile were considered permissible on virgin land worth from $15 to $30 an acre.

They are getting on to the ropes down in German South Africa, having recently ordered 3,000 bushels of pedigreed seed corn from the agronomy department of the University of Wisconsin. Experiments in corn growing have been conducted in the territory mentioned and have been attended with such good results that corn culture is to be taken up on a more extensive scale. The season in South Africa is the reverse of that in the north temperate zone, corn being planted on the 1st of October instead of the 1st of May.

RED CROSS SEALS

Another Red Cross Christmas Seal Campaign for Prevention of Tuberculosis.

A Red Cross Christmas Seal campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis will be made again this winter. During the campaign in 1910, 30,000,000 seals were sold, providing the National, State and Local Anti tuberculosis Societies with about $300,000. It is estimated that the appropriation of twenty times this amount by public authorities in building hospitals, etc. was secured through the judicious use of this agitation fund as well as many nurses visiting the sick supported, and millions of people educated as to the dangers of tuberculosis.

The Minnesota Association for the preventon and relief of Tuberculosis has been appointed again sole agent for Minnesota. Last year the sales in Minnesota amounted to a trifle over three quarters of a million seals. Of the proceeds of the sale the greater part went to the local associations, especially for visiting nursing work. This year the aim will be to sell between one and two million seals.

The Red Cross Seal does not build hospitals, but it raises the fund for education of the public as to tuberculosis and enables the anti-tuberculosis societies, National, State and Local, to focus public opinion, thus created on legislation and appropriations.

Much good work has already been accomplished in this state. For example, a state sanitorium, visiting nursing appropriations from six county boards, action on county hospitals by three county boards, two state laws, etc. But much remains to be done, especially the covering of the state with local hospitals for tuberculosis. Every organization of any kind, whether business, social, educational, philanthropic or political is requested to take part in an organized way in this campaign and to get in touch with the local or state Agent.

INSTALLS A LARGE MOTOR

Seventy-Five Horse Power Motor Installed by Hanson & Barzen Milling Co.

Machine is the Product of Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Co., Pittsburg, Penn.

The large 75 horse power motor belonging to the Hanson and Barzen Milling company arrived in the city last week and on Thursday and Friday a crew of men were at work installing the machine in the company's mill.

The motor is a product of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Work of putting up the motor and of stringing the wires connecting it with the city dynamo at the temporary power house at the saw mill, was completed Friday and the motor received its first try-out that evening. The work of the new machine is satisfactory in every way and the only handicap that now remains is the lack of power to run it steady.

So far the mill has been able to run but a few hours every day on account of lack of power and these conditions will in all probability continue to a certain extent until after the completion of the new auxiliary power plant which will be some time in February.

The mill had up to the last few days been dependent entirely on the water in the river for their power and since the decrease of water the mill has, with the exception of a day now and then, been practically closed down. With the new motor there will be considerable relief even if is impossible to secure all-day power.

The loss which the milling company has sustained by not being able to run steadily cannot be estimated. Orders to supply the fall market are streaming in daily but just a small per cent of these have so far been turned out owing to the lack of power.

TO ISLE OF PINES

Alex F. Lattimore Buys a Forty Acre Tract On Isle of Pines, Near Cuba.

Alex F. Lattimore spent the fore part of the week at Crookston where he went to contract for the purchase of a 40-acre tract of fruit land on the Isle of Pines, which is a U. S. possession located near Cuba.

If everything proves satisfactory, Mr. Lattimore states that he will leave shortly for his new home and go to fruit raising. Mr. Lattimore has been advised by doctors to go to this climate for the benefit of his health and think that a few months residence in the Tropics will be sufficient to restore his health.

The deal whereby Mr. Lattimore was to over-take the Plummer Pioneer, as was stated in the News some time ago, has been withdrawn and Mr. Quist remains editor of that paper.

Mr. M. Rossland, chemistry teacher in the Lincoln High School, was over to Grand Forks on a pleasure trip over Friday night.

EXTENSION OF THE FRANCHISE

Significant Political and Economical Developments in Sweden—Steamship Line Between Norway and United States a Certainty—Finnish Press Bitter in Denunciation of Annexation of Provinces.

SWEDEN.

"While the eyes of Europe have been fixed on Italy and her adventure to the southward, highly significant political and economic developments have been taking place almost unnoticed in the far north of the continent, in Scandinavia. The elections to the lower half of the riksdag, held in Sweden on Sept. 27, were of unusual importance. Perhaps it would not be too much to say that they inaugurated for the entire world a new era based on complete recognition of the people's will as the final source of power. The old riksdag had in its lower house (or Second chamber) a membership of 223, made up of 98 Liberals, 90 Conservatives and 35 Socialists. Though the Conservatives did not even form the most numerous group, and though the other two groups were able and willing to co-operate in many matters, the government was in the hands of a Conservative ministry, headed by Arvid Lindman. The new general elections were called under a recently adopted law, providing suffrage for all men over twenty-four. To offset this extension of the franchise, the Conservatives, aided by the crown and the timidity of certain Liberal elements, had forced upon the country a very intricate system of proportional representation, intended to protect the rights of minorities. Basing their calculations on the results of previous elections the Conservatives hoped that the new system would go far toward giving them a working majority in the new riksdag. But the scheme designed for their own benefit helped the Socialists instead. The new lower house, which has 230 members, is composed of 101 Liberals, 65 Conservatives and 64 Socialists. As some of the Liberal candidates were elected by Socialist votes and may prove socialistic in their affiliation, the party of aristocratic landholders and big industrialists has practically become the smallest in the riksdag," says the Progress of the World.

A Stockholm dispatch says: The Nobel prize for chemistry has been awarded to Mme. Marie Sklodowska Curie of the University of Paris. Mme. Curie is the chief professor of science in the university and was the co-discoverer with her husband, Professor Pierre Curie, of radium, and in 1903 shared with him half of the Nobel prize for physics, the other half being awarded to Professor Antoine Henri Becquerel. Each of the five Nobel prizes awarded annually amounts to $40,000. Recent announcement was made of the success of Mme. Curie in producing polonium, "a new element possessing radio-activity superior to radium."

A Swedish scientific expedition, which for many months past has been making a study of the aborigines in Australia, has found that the inhabitants there are of a distinctly Semitic cast of countenance and that they often kill and eat one another. They do not care for the flesh of Europeans, which they declare is "too salt." The expedition has made a special study of the tribes, which it is believed are different from any other in Australia.

August Lindberg, Sweden's foremost character actor, is at present touring the United States, giving interpretations of Shakespeare's plays in the Swedish language. The Swedish tragedian, who has been connected with the Swedish Royal theater as actor, manager and director, has been received everywhere with great enthusiasm by the Swedish speaking population. Mr. Lindberg was the first one to stage Ibsen's "Ghosts."

Bishop von Scheele is at present on a journey to Holland and Italy. In the former country he will represent Sweden at the thirteenth international convention of anti-alcoholism. In the latter country he will participate in the ninth general peace congress to be held in Rome. After these conventions he will visit Naples, Palermo and other places in Southern Europe.

The fund from which ministers' salaries are paid in Sweden is in such a satisfactory condition that ministers in charge of parishes and their assistants, who have done faithful service for twenty years or more, have had an increase of salary since the beginning of May.

NORWAY.

As a result of H. G. Haugen's trip to Norway last summer, from which he has recently returned to Chicago, the first steamship line of ships between Norway and the United States was organized. At a banquet of owners in Christiania, Mr. Haugen showed plainly the profits that could be made by such a steamship company, with a capital of $2,000,000. When interviewed by a representative of the Chicago Daily News last week Mr. Haugen said: "While I believe that the state owned railroads of Norway are almost an ideal thing for that country, I do not believe state ownership would succeed in this country. The one point in which the management of the Norwegian railroads is lacking is the one that is emphasized most here—the development of the surrounding territory. The chief future of Norway lies in manufacturing."

There are two towns in Norway which have been making wonderful strides forward in the last three years. They are Notodden and Sanheim, both located in Telemarken. Both cities have a number of factories and many workingmen have been attracted there of recent years. Notodden now has 5,000 inhabitants and Sanheim 4,000. It was only a comparatively short time ago that these towns were mere villages, with a respective population of 500 or so. All the buildings which have been erected there lately are of a modern type. Each city has splendid electric light and sewerage systems and miles of fine paved streets.

Norway's telegraph director proposes to the committee on the state's budget that a national telephone line be erected through Bergen and Trondhjem, to Nordland and Finmarken, up to Vadso, with numerous side lines, so that even such northerly points as Karasjok and Kautokeine would get telephone connections. This line, for military reasons, should be built quite a distance inland. The expenditures that would be required for the building of the proposed line would probably amount to 2,700,000 crowns.

Hotel Hukell in Vinge, Telemarken, was recently destroyed by fire, entailing a loss to its owners amounting to about 35,000 crowns. A new hotel will be erected in place of the old one at an expenditure of about 50,000 crowns.

A glycerin factory is under course of erection in Larvik. The company, which will have charge of its erection and operation, is backed up by a capital of 500,000 crowns and expects to employ about 300 men from the start.

A Norwegian millionaire, an attorney by profession, P. R. Lie, died at his home in Christiania recently, leaving a fortune amounting to 8,000,000 crowns. He had made most of his money in real estate speculations.

L. C. M. Aubert, secretary to the Norwegian legation in Washington, has been appointed secretary to the Norwegian legation at Stockholm and will assume charge of his duties in Stockholm in the near future.

DENMARK.

Says a St. Petersburg dispatch: "The annexation of the two Finnish districts of Viborg to the Russian province of St. Petersburg has produced a storm of abuse of Russia in the Finnish press, and meetings are being held to protest against this 'unwarranted interference' of Russia in the self-government of the Finnish grand duchy. The remarks of many of the Finnish journals are openly provocative and seditious, and the Novoye Vremya calls for the introduction into Finland of the Russian extraordinary measures for maintaining public order and security as used here to combat the revolutionary tendencies of the Russian Socialists."

It was mentioned in these columns some time ago that Queen Alexandra of England had purchased the small villa facing Hvidore. She paid a comparatively modest sum—$7,500. When the structure is pulled down next year there will be a glorious view from this spot. Hvidore is the joint property of Queen Alexandra and her sister, the dowager empress of Copenhagen. It is located about four miles from Copenhagen.

Queen Louisa of Denmark celebrated her sixtieth birthday recently and was the recipient of scores of telegrams and congratulations from both home and abroad. The following day great festivities had been arranged in her honor. The queen is the daughter of the Swedish king, Charles XV, and was born Oct. 31, 1851, and was married to the present king of Denmark, Fredrik VIII, July 28, 1869.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Verne Voss, aged ten, was wrestling with a companion on a farm near Pipestone and was accidentally thrown under the wheels of a threshing machine just as it started to move to a new location. The wheels of the four-ton machine passed over his body near the waist. He was picked up for dead but an examination showed he had not been seriously injured and he soon joined his companions in play.

President Kettala of the village council of Kinney, Mesabi range, saved the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell at great personal risk. He was passing the Bell home when he discovered that it was in flames. He ran to see what service he could render; heard the wailing of an infant in the house and braved the fire to rescue it. The parents of the child were absent at the time.

Minnesota No. 14, the most perfect sheep ever raised at the Minnesota college of agriculture, was injured by marauding dogs, along with several others, and had to be killed. It was used for four years as the standard for judging sheep in the classes at the school. Another sheep of less value, but a high scoring animal, also had to be killed.

John Hakala, a timberman employed at the Schley iron mine, on the Mesabi range, was suffocated when entombed in a small space by falling timbers and ore, which cut off the air supply. Rescue crews worked hard and continuously in the hope of finding him alive, but he was dead when reached.

Men traveling through the woods northeast of Cloquet found the body of Victor Lund hanging from the limb of a tree. He had probably been dead for several days. He had spent the last few weeks in dissipation, it is said, and had lately been subject to fits of despondency.

John Lundgren, a farmer residing near Longville, Cass county, will spend two months in jail because he abandoned a sick horse by the roadside to die. He left the poor animal on the highway three days before it died, while it half buried itself in the ground in its struggles.

Five minutes after the last of about twenty-five workmen had left a new apartment building at St. Paul several hundred tons of reinforced concrete, which made up 30x50 feet of the roof and first and second floors of the structure, crashed through the first floor.

While carrying a 300-pound quarter of beef Phillip Sereck dropped dead from heart failure on the platform of Armour & Co.'s branch plant at Minneapolis, the beef falling upon him. Edward Dickson, a fellow employe, ran to him, but he had died instantly.

Thomas Frame, a farmer living near Northfield, was instantly killed in a runaway accident. He was helping a neighbor thresh when his team became frightened and he was thrown from the wagon. The wheel passed over his neck and broke it.

William Swisberg, aged twenty-four years, of Culbertson, Ky., employed on a farm near Winona, was run down by a St. Paul train. He died six hours later. Both legs were cut off above the ankles and his skull was fractured.

Three miners living at Brooklyn and employed in the Scranton mine were struck by a switch engine while going to work. John Lampl and Emil Jackson were instantly killed and John Farl internally injured.

Abe Heronimus, a farmer, was found dead two miles north of Little Rock, Nobles county, pinned under his automobile, which had turned turtle. The road was level where the accident occurred.

In the township of Rome, Faribault county, two young men, Hesseldahl and Blair, were playing Indian with a rifle and revolver. The weapon held by Hesseldahl was discharged, killing Blair.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Captain Josiah E. West, aged seventy-four years, after being in ill health for a long time, is dead at St. Cloud. He reached St. Cloud in 1856 and during the Civil war enlisted in the Seventh Minnesota regiment and served three years. He was mustered out as captain of Company I of St. Cloud. For seventeen years subsequently he served as postmaster of St. Cloud.

Falling into the gulch in Minnehaha glen, Patrick S. McLaughlin, an inmate of the Soldiers' home, whose body was found there, is believed to have struggled to climb the hill back to the home, but, unequal to the exertion because of valvular heart trouble, to have died in his tracks. There the body lay for two days before being discovered by the veteran's son.

Stephen Reb, a veteran of the Civil war, is dead at Mapleton. He was born in Lorraine, France, in [illegible], and in [illegible] located in Minnesota and served in Company B, First Minnesota battalion. Later he engaged in manufacturing enterprises at Mapleton.

J. S. Sutherland, aged seventy years, a pioneer resident of Virginia and proprietor of the Central hotel, died of heart disease. He had just returned from Rochester, where he had an operation.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Premier Asquith announced in the British house of commons that the government intends to introduce a manhood suffrage bill at the next session of parliament. Manhood suffrage means one vote for every adult male, with the exception of aliens, the insane and other persons usually disqualified by law. Under the present system men maintaining several residences have the right to vote in each place.

King George and Queen Mary have sailed from Portsmouth, Eng., for India, to attend the coronation durbar. The festivities will continue until Jan. 7 and will be of unequalled pomp and magnificence, this being the first visit of the emperor and empress to that country. The king will return to England the last of January.

Francisco I. Madero has been inaugurated president of Mexico, succeeding President de la Barra, who filled in the gap after the executive now sworn in had ended the rule of Porfirio Diaz. The ceremony, which was brief and simple, took place before the members of congress in the chamber of deputies.

A. J. Balfour has resigned the leadership of the opposition. There had been rumors in the lobby of the house of commons that Mr. Balfour had decided to retire from his position as chief of the Unionist party in consequence of the divergency of views regarding the efficacy of his leadership.

Reports from Angola, the Portuguese possession in Western Africa, say a revolt among the natives is spreading rapidly and the blacks are burning and pillaging everything in their path.

TURKO-ITALIAN WAR.

Strong forces of Turks and Arabs, supported by artillery, delivered a determined attack on the Italians all along the line between Hamidieh and Boumeliana, but principally against the extreme left. As usual the Turks displayed desperate courage, but were unable to withstand the tremendous combined fire from the trenches and the field artillery and the guns of the armored cruiser Carlo Alberto, which lay in the roadstead. Therefore they retreated all along the line.

Turkish artillery and Arab horsemen made several attacks upon the Italian lines at Tripoli. The Italians fought their way to the trenches of the enemy, who temporarily retired, but again attacked as the Italians were returning to their base. At night the Turks withdrew. The Italians sustained some casualties and the Arabs and Turks many.

The Turkish war office has an official telegram from Derna, Tripoli, reporting that the Turks won a big victory, 500 Italians being killed and eighteen guns and large quantities of ammunition and provisions being captured.

An Italian cruiser bombarded the town of Akabah, Arabia, sinking a Turkish gunboat which was lying in port.

The Duchess d'Aosta has arrived at Tripoli to aid in Red Cross work.

Clearing the House.

"The house is afire!" cried the tenor. "The audience must be dismissed as quickly as possible."

"All right," replied the manager. "Say nothing about the fire. Go out and sing."

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

FOUND GUILTY OF ROBBERY

Jury Finds That Fred A. Briggs of Minneapolis Was Pal of Notorious Bandits.

Fred A. Briggs of Minneapolis was found guilty of robbery in the first degree by a jury in the Hennepin county district court. The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

Briggs was accused of holding up and robbing his friend and neighbor, Martin Brennan, as an accomplice to the notorious Jerry McCarthy, pal of Peter Juhl, on July 13. A few days later McCarthy was killed in a pistol duel with Patrolman J. Olinger, who was killed at the same time.

Briggs faces another indictment charging burglary. In this instance McCarthy looted a store. Briggs is accused of being an accomplice in a number of the crimes committed by McCarthy after his escape from the state prison.

Judge Hale sentenced Briggs to an indeterminate sentence in Stillwater, the minimum sentence being five years and maximum forty.

STATION AGENT IS WAYLAID

Beaten Into Insensibility and Robbed of About $500.

Thomas Sagvold, cashier at the Soo station at Glenwood, was waylaid, knocked unconscious and robbed of between $400 and $500, the receipts at the station for three days. The station is more than a mile from the business part of town.

Sagvold was found lying beside the cinder path and taken to his home, where he regained consciousness enough to tell that his assailant appeared to be a tall man. No clues have yet been found, but it seems certain that the holdup was familiar with the custom of the cashier to bank his receipts every two or three days and knew that he had the money with him.

DESIRE PORTION OF DULUTH

Indian Heirs Will Sue to Recover Valuable Property.

Suits are to be brought by a number of the descendants of Chief Buffalo to recover property a mile square in the heart of Duluth, which the Indian heirs allege was ceded him by the government fifty years ago. Chief Buffalo's heirs reside at Red Cliff, Odanah and Bayfield.

The property extends from the Spalding hotel east and north and is valued at millions of dollars.

Announcement of the proposed action comes from Ashland, Wis. Attorney Z. I. Dahlby of Washington, D. C., has been investigating the rights of the Indians of the reservation and, it is said, he will handle the action.

LAD KILLED WHILE HUNTING

Son of Kandota Farmer Found Dead With Clothing Afire.

Fred Larson, thirteen-year-old son of John Larson, living in Kandota township, north of Sauk Center, was fatally shot while hunting rabbits. He was with an older brother, who went home first. Fred, failing to return, a search was instituted and he was found lying dead with his clothing afire.

It is thought he tripped and the gun was accidentally discharged. The body was burned and mangled, as the fire caused the cartridges in the belt to explode.

MOOSE HUNTER IS KILLED

Mistaken for Game and Companion Dangerously Wounded.

John Redmark of Deer River, was killed and his companion, Charles Lindahl, dangerously wounded while hunting at Bowstring lake, twelve miles from Deer River.

The men had killed a moose and were dressing it when fired upon by a party of unidentified hunters, who mistook the men for big game.

Lindahl was taken to a hospital at Grand Rapids and the body of his companion to a morgue at the same place.

SLAYS WIFE; WOUNDS SELF

Duluth Dock Laborer Jealous of Helpmeet, the Police Say.

August Hoo, forty-eight years of age, a Duluth dock laborer, slashed his wife's throat from ear to ear, killing her almost instantly. He then cut his own throat, but missed the jugular vein and may recover. Jealousy, according to the police, is the reason for the tragedy.

Electrocution Stops Cars.

David Carlson, an employe of the Great Northern Power company's plant at Duluth, was caught in a 13,000-volt switch. The accident put the machinery out of commission and plunged the city in darkness. Street cars were stopped for lack of power. When taken out Carlson was still alive, but died on the way to a hospital.

FOR SAFETY OF WORKERS

Employers, Employes and Labor Commissioner to Confer Dec. 7 and 8.

Arrangements for a conference between employers and employes concerning means for safeguarding employes while at work are being made by the state department of labor under the direction of W. F. Houk, commissioner. There will be meetings in Minneapolis and St. Paul Dec. 7 and 8, at Minneapolis in the courthouse, and at St. Paul in the old capitol. In both cities the conferees will visit several industrial establishments.

The conference will be followed Dec. 9 by a meeting of inspectors of casualty insurance companies and labor officials to work out the technical details of recommendations of the main conference.

PUPIL DIES OF DIPHTHERIA

Victim Isolated in Prendergast Hall at Farm School.

Olaf W. Weighum, twenty-four years old, of the intermediate class of the university agricultural school, died of diphtheria while isolated in Prendergast hall, the college dormitory, where he had been since taken ill several day previous, as the St. Paul city hospital refused to admit him to its contagious ward on account of lack of room. The body was taken to Spring Grove, the home of the deceased. Dr. Myron H. Reynolds, in charge of the health of the students, said that every precaution had been taken to prevent the spread of the disease by taking throat cultures of all students, but no new cases had been discovered.

A. DELACEY WOOD IS DEAD

Founder of Thirty-two Newspapers in the Northwest.

A. Delacey Wood, the veteran newspaper editor and founder of thirty-two papers in the Northwest, is dead at Duluth of pneumonia.

Mr. Wood was born May 15, 1855. His uncle, John Quincy Adams Wood, was the publisher of the Southern Shield at Owensboro, Ky., in 1861 and staunch Union supporter. Both his parents were devoted to literary pursuits. His father established the first newspaper published at Sauk Rapids, Minn., Mr. Wood's birthplace. He started his first paper at Prescott, Wis. His last venture was the Lake County Iron Port Advocate of Two Harbors.

STAGE GUN WAS LOADED

Actor Killed While Rehearsing Play He Had Written.

Harry Blair was shot and instantly killed near Elmore while rehearsing a play he had written. The actors, all amateurs, were going through Indian parts when the accident occurred.

Clarence Hessledahl had been given a revolver by Blair and when the time came in the play for Hessledahl to shoot Blair he fired, thinking the gun was empty. Blair walked across the room in which the rehearsal was taking place and dropped dead.

Blair, it is supposed, thought he had unloaded the weapon before giving it to Hessledahl.

HUNTERS BATTLE WITH BEARS

Maddened Animals Charge Nimrods and One Is Severely Injured.

Two Finlanders had a lively adventure with two bears near Kinney. They were out in search of deer when they ran across the animals. Each hunter selected a bear and fired simultaneously. Both animals were hit and, maddened with pain, charged the hunters. Both men fired more shots, but in their excitement neither man stopped his bear. They then clubbed the animals to death, but not until Ninivich was severely scratched and bruised. Hataala, who is a man of extraordinary strength, was unscratched.

FALLS TO BOTTOM OF SHAFT

Superintendent in Northern Minnesota Mine Killed.

William St. Clair, superintendent of the "Section 30" mine in Northern Minnesota, was almost instantly killed when he slipped from a ladder and fell to the bottom of the shaft.

St. Clair was the son of the late Julius N. St. Clair, who dropped dead in his office in Duluth last July, and was well known in mining circles.

Accompanied by his uncle, St. Clair was making an inspection of the mine, when in some unknown way he lost his balance and fell to the bottom of the pit. He was dead when reached.

May Survive 13,000 Volts.

David Carlson, who, it was reported, died at Duluth as the result of falling into a switch carrying 13,000 volts of electric current, has a chance for recovery. The shock so stunned him that physicians in the ambulance believed him to be dead. The upper part of his body was burned black, but he retains his mentality and speaks coherently. The superintendent of the plant says Carlson had gone into a forbidden chamber containing the switch carrying the heavy load and had come in contact with it, thereby short circuiting the load, which passed through his body.

Declares Minnesota Prospers.

Governor Eberhart, in his Thanksgiving proclamation, declares that the state of Minnesota has been favored greatly during the year, prospering not only in agricultural and industrial lines, but in education and moral uplift. The governor's proclamation fixes Nov. 30 as the day for Thanksgiving.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

Complete control of the railroads of the country by the interstate commerce commission and virtual elimination of the state commissions for such control is foreshadowed in an opinion handed down by the supreme court of the United States. The court held that hereafter all locomotives, cars or other equipment used on any railroad which is a highway of interstate commerce must comply with the federal safety appliance act.

An alleged corner in wheat, centered at Chicago and extending to Minneapolis, Duluth, Buffalo and Baltimore, by which it is declared 60 per cent of the country's wheat supply is controlled, has been under investigation by agents of the department of justice for some time and the results may be presented to the federal grand juries in these cities within a few days.

Attorney General Wickersham's report of his investigation of the National City bank of New York virtually charges the National City company, a subsidiary corporation, with being an embryo "money trust," controlled by the National City bank for the purpose of holding stocks in other financial institutions in contravention of the national banking law.

The United States senate committee, which for a month has been investigating charges of bribery in the election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson of Wisconsin, adjourned its hearing in Milwaukee to meet later in Washington.

The black buck of India is a very graceful animal, weighing between thirty and fifty pounds. The hide of the male when full grown is of inky blackness on the back, while the belly is as white as snow, the contrast being very striking. The horns are black and spiral in shape and in length average about eighteen inches, although they have been known to reach twenty-six inches. The animals are usually found in herds and are difficult to approach on foot, as the bucks toss their heads in the air from time to time in a very graceful manner, and some of them are almost sure to detect any attempt at stalking.

Many a canine, gentlemanly and pious looking by day, will bear watching after nightfall, particularly if there be a sheepfold in the neighborhood. There be folks who in conduct at least are second cousins to these same nice appearing dogs.

The freakish bearing of strawberries in October by plants of the common kind is the result of a practically dormant period during a droughty summer followed by late August and September rains, which produce conditions akin to those prevailing in the spring of the year.

In the latitude of north Iowa and southern Wisconsin United States weather stations have recorded for 1911 a season of 168 days without a killing frost—from May 4 to Oct. 19—a record that has not been equaled in the past twenty years and probably will not be in as many more.

The heifer calves on many a dirty farm are scrimped on butter fat and are less thrifty than they would otherwise be. It is only fair to the calves as well as good management to supply a fat forming food in the shape of corn or oil meal when the natural fat of the milk is removed or sold with the milk.

Both in the matter of safeguarding the health and well being of the members of the family and in the care of the farm animals there is all too much tendency to overlook the fact that prevention is vastly better than cure—the exercise of just good sense cheaper than medical attendance and veterinary service.

The small boy should keep in mind that even more important than a bright mind and a strong body in the life which lies before him are trustworthiness and honesty—in other words, that his word shall be good. Not a day passes but somewhere over the country men in various pursuits come to grief through this lack. The trait may require some pains to develop, but it is worth all it costs.

Many a good housewife who seeks to augment the family income by spending her spare hours with tatting, embroidery and the like would make just as much in the end and be far better off physically and mentally if she would invest the same money and put the same time in growing garden truck or raising chickens. More than this, there would be a decided saving in dope and doctor's bills.

A level headed poultryman whose premises the writer passed the other day solved the question of green food for his flock the past season by sowing the greater portion of the yard to rape. This was allowed to get a good start before the poultry was turned in, and as a result the flock has had an abundance of the finest kind of green food since, and it will be good well into winter. The plan is a simple one and well worth a trial.

In a paragraph in this department a week or two ago referring to the fellows on the wet and low land having harvested bumper crops on such lands as a result of the dry seasons attention was called to the fact that tiling the land would produce the same condition of soil and give the same results. Through a typographical error the word "tilling" was used, which changed the meaning and sense of the paragraph completely.

There is no natural enemy of the rat that is more relentless than the weasel, which now and then visits one's premises, and a mighty interesting little animal it is. At this season of the year weasels are a light mouse color on the back, with an undercolor nearly white. They have very slender bodies and can easily traverse the runways of the rats. Weasels are as fond of poultry as of rats, and this operates against them on premises where poultry is kept. Where such is not the case, however, they may be encouraged with a bit of raw beef or fruit and will become quite tame.

In all sections where the cottontail holds forth the warfare against it should be renewed with vigor every fall. This is a job in which that active boy should have a hand, and he may use both traps and a ferret to good advantage. The steel and several types of box traps give good results, as does also the wire noose trap suspended from strong brush just above its runway. The wire should be pliable and the loose end made into a slip noose into which the rabbit unwittingly sticks its head. The ferret should always be used with a stout cord or chain, so that it can be pulled from a burrow in which it has cornered and killed a rabbit. Very often if the cord is not attached the ferret will remain in the hole for a day or two, feasting on its prey.

One of the best words uttered at the national conservation congress recently held at Kansas City was spoken by the president of the association, Mr. Henry Wallace, when he said that from the time the rich lands of the country were received from the government as homesteads by present owners or their ancestors by blood or title, they have been robbed through a mining and selling of their stores of fertility in the shape of raw, unfinished crops. He insisted that if our marvelously fertile soil is not to become entirely depleted, rational methods of handling the soil that will conserve its fertility must be adopted similar to those which enable the English farmer to raise more bushels of wheat per acre today than did his ancestors on the same land hundreds of years ago.

GREATEST THING IN THE UNIVERSE.

Not Justice, Not Power, Not Wisdom, but—Love.

Pastor Russell Says That It, and It Alone, Caps the Climax of Our Creator's Adorable Character—Mistakes of the Past and How We Are Mastering Them—Crowds as Usual.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Nov. 12.—"The Greatest Thing in the Universe" was Pastor Russell's theme in the London Tabernacle last evening. He had as usual a crowded house of most attentive listeners. His text was, "That in the Ages to come He might show the exceeding riches of His grace in His loving kindness toward us in Christ Jesus." (Ephesians ii, 7.) He claimed that all Christendom has erred in respect to the lengths and breadths and heights and depths of the love of God, which passeth all understanding." (Ephesians iii, 18, 19.) This is evidenced by our conflicting Creeds, not one of which is rational enough to be defended by one in a hundred of its own clergy, who profess that they believe it and are teaching it.

This, he declared, is driving many noble souls away from the Bible, which has been misinterpreted by us all. Our difficulty has been that we looked at the unfinished parts of the Divine Program and have neglected to properly use the telescope of God's Word, which would have enabled us to see the coming features of that Plan, without which the whole would be incomplete and unsatisfactory both to God and His creatures.

The Pastor reminded his hearers that none of us would judge of a new building by the first story of the structure, incomplete and surrounded by scaffolding. On the contrary, we would inquire for the architect's drawings and consider them prophecies of the building to be. We should do likewise in considering the work of the great Divine Architect of the Universe.

God purposes the development of the church class first, as a new creation on the spirit plane and higher than the angels, "partakers of the divine nature." "Ye are the Church of the living God, a kind of first-fruits unto God of His creatures." (II Peter i, 4; James i, 18.)

Then the World's Salvation.

The Pastor impressed upon his hearers the fact that the Bible declares the Church to be the "First-borns," the "first fruits" of God's creatures. Thus does God positively declare a secondary part to His great Plan of Salvation—in which "free grace" and fullest opportunity for reconciliation to God will be granted to the non-elect.

But their salvation will be not heavenly, but earthly. Their resurrection will not mean a "change" of nature, but a raising up to the perfection of human nature to be enjoyed in a world-wide paradise, by all the willing and obedient. Nor will the unwilling and disobedient be tortured to all eternity, but as the Scriptures declare, "All the wicked will He destroy;" they shall "perish like brute beasts," in the "Second Death."—II Peter ii, 12; Psalm ix, 17, R. V.

In order to judge of the Divine character we must see the Divine Program, and not merely a primary section of it. The Jewish Age and its people, its Law, its priesthood and its Jubilee were only rough, outline sketches of the Divine Plan, which had not then even begun. The Redeemer is the Foundation for the great structure; as said St. Paul, "Other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid—Jesus Christ."

Love the Principal Thing.

However, a God of Justice, Wisdom and Power, devoid of Love, would be as cold and unsympathetic as a marble statue. The greatest thing amongst men is Love. Neither palace nor cottage could be a real home and a place of joy and peace and refreshment without love. We cannot even suppose the heart devoid of love without supposing it under the control of selfishness, and selfishness is merely another name for sin.

The greatest men and women who have ever lived, and who have done the most to bless our race, have been men and women of heart, of Love. Surely Love is the principal thing in all this world, without which none can be truly happy under any condition, but with which happiness is possible under almost any condition. Whence came to man this quality of Love, unless from his Creator?

Purport of His Text.

The speaker declared that God's Love will be most wonderfully displayed in His gracious kindness in the resurrection of the Church, to glory, honor and immortality. Then will come a further display of "Love Divine, all love excelling," when mankind in general shall be blessed under the Messianic Kingdom. But God's Love is great and our text declares that in coming Ages God will display the riches of His grace, His love, toward us, His Church, the Bride.

"Let us not receive the grace of God in vain." Let us count the necessary sacrifices as a very reasonable service.

The new schedule for the Curtis Company as follows: Ladies home Journal: $7 per line, $5,000 for inside page, $5,500 for inside cover page, $7,000 for outside cover page. Saturday Evening Post: $5 per line, $2,000 for inside page.—Ex.

CONSTANT CROWDING

Constant crowding on trains before passengers get off has been a practice in this city for a long time, especially at the Great Northern depot.

Passengers trying to make their way to the platform from the train are generally met with a mob, all eager to get on in time, and are some times forced to retreat into the cars until most of the passengers have boarded the trains. Inasmuch as the train stops here al of 20 minutes there is absolutely no cause for any crowding and something ought to be done to stop this practice, as it is an inconvenience and nuisance to the traveling public and is absolutely un-called for.

SELFISHNESS.

Selfishness in some form is at the foundation of most of our unhappiness and misery. If we could analyze all the suffering in the world and trace it back to its first cause we should probably find that selfishness was the greatest factor in creating it.

DREDGES CLOSE DOWN

Successful Season's Work by Dredging Companies Closed This Week.

Large Number of Men Will Be Kept at Work Getting Things In Readiness for Spring Operations.

The dredges of the Northwestern Drainage company, Forrestal & Feyne, J. B. Arpin and the Stevens Dredging company were all closed down for the season this week following the recent spell of cold weather. All the companies report as having done a very satisfactory season's work and the conditions have been ideal to carry on the ditching operations at a rapid gait.

The amount of dirt thrown up this season all told exceeds that of last year and the work completed already has made a radical change in the development of this country.

The Northwestern Drainage Company has had a payroll of 175 men this summer, of which 50 will be retained to work in the local shop and do hauling for the camps.

MUST BE STOPPED

Catching on Bobs Dangerous Pastime —Must be Stopped Says Chief Lang.

Children catching on bobs in the city has become a real nuisance and Chief of Police Lang states that hereafter this pastime must cease, and gives notice that anyone found resorting to this sort of thing hereafter is liable to a short session in the "cooler" to satisfy their appetite for catching on bobs.

Parents should make it a point to warn their children against practicing this sport if they fear for their safety. While the children themselves are in the most danger of receiving injuries the general public is endangered as well. In many instances teams are frightened and runaways occur which means danger to life and property.

It is the duty of the public to help the police department discourage this practice by either advising their children or reporting the offenders, to the authorities.

Mrs. Karen Engelstad Dead.

Mrs. Karen Engelstad passed away Wednesday of last week after a short illness, at the advanced age of about 70 years. Deceased was one of the pioneers of this section, having been a resident of the town of Rocksbury for more than 25 years, the most of this time she has resided with her son, P. Engelstad.

She leaves two sons and two daughters. They are the following;

P. Engelstad, of town of Rocksbury; Hans Engelstad of Everett, Wash.; Mrs. Larson, Germantown, and Mrs. Ellingson, Rugby, N. D.

The interment took place last Sunday at Greenwood cemetery.

The relatives of the deceased extend their hearty thanks to all neighbors and friends, who showed their respect and sympathy by being present at the funeral.

The Eleonora Olson Concert Trio.

What promises to be one of the best musical and entertainment treats of the season is sceduled for Thief River Falls, at the Presbyterian church, Saturday, Nov. 18. The Eleonora Olson Concert Trio, of Chicago, now on its 6th annual tour, will present its rich and varied program, consisting of music, song and impersonations, by the different members of the Trio.

The attraction is booked under the auspices of the Brage Chorus, and, besides furnishing the public with a first class entertainment, it is the purpose of the Chorus, by this attraction, to endeavor to cover the deficit which resulted from the Saenger fest of last June.

MUSHROOM CORNS

Most Painful of All Foot Ailments. How to Cure Them.

"The Mushroom corn is so called from its pitted cone top, resembling a tiny mushroom. It burrows deep into the toe and gets more inflamed than other corns. For the quick relief and cure of these and all corns and callouses the following is the most effective remedy known to science: Dissolve 2 tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of hot water. Soak the feet in this for full fifteen minutes, gently massaging the sore parts. (Less time will not give desired results.) All soreness instantly disappears and the corn or callous can be easily peeled off. It may be necessary to repeat this for a number of nights for a complete cure, but if adhered to it will surely succeed. A little olive oil rubbed on the part is very beneficial. This Calocide is a very remarkable preparation for all foot ailments and is no longer confined to doctors' use. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. A twenty-five cent package is usually sufficient to put the worst feet in fine condition. Bad smelling feet and tender feet need only a few treatments, likewise with inflamed bunions. This item will be welcomed by persons who have tried ineffectual powders and tablets.

Fully Qualified.

The story is told of a man who by some unaccountable blunder by the appointing authority was made judge of a minor court. He could neither read nor write, but that did not give him any uneasiness, although it aroused some fears in the breast of his wife.

"What are you going to do when there's any reading or writing comes into cases?" she timidly inquired.

"The folks that bring the readin' will read it, and the folks that want the writin' will write it," calmly replied his honor, "or if they can't I shall commit 'em. All I've got to attend to, Hitty, is the judgin', and I can do that as quick as anybody."

Chinese History.

The Chinese claim for their civilization an antiquity of from 80,000 to 100,000 years, but the claim deserves no particular consideration. Most of the eastern peoples claim for themselves a similar antiquity. There are few authentic dates in Chinese history prior to the year 600 B. C., though, of course, the Chinese civilization greatly antedates that period. It is safe to say that the Chinese is among the oldest of existing civilizations, but when it comes to being precise it is quite out of the question.

Cleopatra.

Cleopatra means "fame of her father." It was once very common among the royal ladies of Egypt and Greece and survives in the French Cleo. Cleopatra was born in Alexandria 60 B. C. and died at the age of thirty-nine not by applying a poisonous asp to her bosom, but by swallowing some secret poisoning.

She Was In a Hurry.

"Can you not wait on me immediately?" demanded the richly dressed lady "I'm in a great hurry."

"Yes; let me have your prescription," said the harassed druggist.

"I have no prescription. I want you to look up a number for me in the telephone book"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FIRST SNOW FALL

Blizzard Follows Drizzling Rain Friday Night. Mercury Dropped to 24 Degrees Yesterday.

This section received its first real touch of winter weather last Friday night when a blizzard swept down from the northwest following a drizzling rain which continued all day Friday.

The storm continued through Saturday with considerable ferocity until late Saturday night when it receded, followed by a drop in temperature.

Sunday the thermometer registered a trifle below zero with a steady drop in temperature, and this continued Monday and Tuesday until early yesterday morning when the the government thermometer at the local postoffice registered 24 below zero, the coldest weather this section has experienced for this time of the year.

While the storm came as a surprise no damage or any suffering from cold weather has been heard of in this vicinity. Throughout Wisconsin and other points east reports are to the effect that great damage and suffering has been caused and a number of deaths are reported.

In the tornado of snow and wind that swept Wisconsin Saturday nine people lost their lives and the damage done to property is too large to even estimate.

From Canada comes the report that In Calgary, Canada, Monday the thermometer registered 18 below and 5 below in Winnipeg. This is the earliest cold weather experienced in the west, and there is a serious shortage of coal due to the strike.

CATTLE AFFECTED

Two Belonging to Henry Hanson Killed for Being Afflicted With Tuberculosis.

CIRCUIT MEETING

Thief River Falls Circuit Meeting Held at Holt Last Week.

The semi annual meeting of the Thief River Falls Circuit, composing several Norwegian Lutheran congregations in this vicinity, was held at Holt last week. Rev. I. T. Aastad, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of this city, represented the local congregation at the circuit meeting.

At this meeting it was decided to extend the circuit to include a number of more congregations and the next meeting to be held next year will be at Greenbush.

A Basket Social.

A basket social will be held at the P E. Berg place seven miles northeast of this city tomorrow (Friday) evening, Nov. 17. The social will be held for the benefit of the school in that district. Weather permitting, quite a number from this city will be among those in attendance.

School Notes

New pupils continue enrolling in the grammar and high school grades.

The state library board has donated libraries to each of the associated rural schools. These contain fiction and material relating to agricultural activities.

The high school is organized into four literary societies, regardless of year classes. These present thirty minute programs in rotation each Friday afternoon. The purpose is to drill in public speaking and platform work of a public nature.

The older and more mature pupils in the first primary or kindergarten grades will take up the first grade readers and the first grade work at the close of this semester. This will enable them to complete first primary and first grade in one year and enter second grade at the close of their first year in school. About half of the enrollment in the kindergarten rooms can accomplish this.

All children are required to bring excuses for absence. There is no exception to this rule, as truancy can be discovered to the parent in no other manner.

The athletic association has elected the following officers: President, Raymond Pope; vice president, John Brudie; secretary, Edgar Wold; treasurer, Elmer Iverson.

On Friday evening next, a social will be held at the Lincoln building to raise funds for the maintenance of various high school organizations. Refreshments will be served, a musical program rendered, a basket ball game played, and various other interesting and entertaining devices have been prepared by the students and faculty to coax the nickels and dimes from fat pocketbooks into the hands of Treasurer Iverson. Everybody is invited to attend and meet the teachers and students.

Dr. Gambel donated a handsome mission clock to the Central kindergarten.

Minneapolis Journal editorial:"—What President Eliot states generally, Edwin G. Cooley, former superintendent of Chicago publicschool, puts more specifically. He was sent to Europe by the Chicago, Commercial Association to investigate educations, and at Cincinnati last week, before the National society for the promotion of Industrial Education, made an address. Germany's industrial and commercial advance Mr. Cooley attributes almost wholly to the superiority of German education. While England clings to a system that educates statesmen, clergy, officers, gentlemen, Germany has a system that educates blacksmiths and chemists and everything between. Schools of commerce and industry are provided, but if a workman or apprentice is far away, a teacher is sent to him. In consequence every German is educated, trained to skill in his work, and German education is enabling Germany to conquer where rivals less educated are feeling the strain. Mr. Cooley makes the point that we cannot become a true democracy until we are as much concerned about training a good blacksmith as about training a good lawyer. And of the two, the first is more important to society than the second. Her education, which is concerned to train every man, is more truly democratic than our own, which runs to universities and neglects industrial schools."

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

The stains that gather so quickly on the inside of the coffeepot may be easily removed by boiling in it a fairly strong solution of baking soda. If one treatment doesn't do the business, repeat.

One of the latest baits recommended for catching wall eyed pike is strips of orange peeling. It seems to be the bright color of the bait rather than any value it possesses for food that attracts the fish.

The Northwestern Greening is a late and none too prolific bearer, rots quickly if bruised and has none too good a texture, but it has when full ripe a twang and spiciness that are surpassed by not more than two or three other varieties.

A fellow's real patriotism—interest in the welfare of his community and country—is not measured by his fine buildings, bursting cribs and mows and sleek animals, but by the pains he takes to inform himself of the important issues of his time and to cast his vote on election day.

The Colorado blue spruce is a beautiful tree in its native habitat on the hill slopes and in the valleys of the Rockies, but it is even more thrifty and beautiful if given the special care possible when set as an ornament for lawn or park. From the standpoint of vigor, symmetry and color effect no conifer surpasses it.

A good many folks who make light in a general way of the danger of one's contracting tuberculosis from dairy cows afflicted with the disease are not at all anxious to have their own children use the milk from such animals. It is merely a case in which a trouble is not so bad provided it is "on" somebody else, say over in the next county.

Mowing the lawn in the middle of October may improve the looks of it for a brief time, but unless there is a good mulch of well rotted manure applied to enrich the soil and protect the roots of the grass from winter thawing and freezing the practice is not advisable. Grass needs a rest just like folks, and it's a pretty good plan to do no cutting after Sept. 20.

There is no tool that gives as good results in freshly cleared land and is as economical in operation from the standpoint of both horsepower and patience as the disk harrow. This holds both in getting the land in shape for a crop and tending it while growing. The advantage of the disk for the purposes mentioned is appreciated by any one who has operated one of the old break pin cultivators on a rooty field.

If the housewife has a small sized fish to bake she will find an easy as well as a very satisfactory way to do it to cut the fish along the backbone so as to lay it open and then cover it nicely with the stuffing which one prefers, a breadcrumb dressing seasoned with sage and onion being excellent. This method of baking not only keeps the fish moist and tender, but gives a brown crust to the covering which is very appetizing.

Some one has figured out that if every boy in the country would eat five apples a day for the next three months it would require all the apples which have been produced in the country this year and would insure a fair price to the growers. Another thing about this boy-apple combination is that it is just as good for the boy as it is for the apple market. Five apples a day will merely keep the average boy's digestive organs in good working order.

A point that the dweller in the well watered central and eastern states should keep in mind on going into the dry country west of meridian 100 degrees is that, while one acre of pasture in his native section will keep a steer or five head of sheep, it requires from eight to fifteen times as much land in the dry belt to furnish a like amount of forage. This is not said to the detriment of the land of the short grass, but simply for the information of the settler who may not be aware of the fact.

Many newly set family orchards that we know, like many boys and girls, need some attention just now if they are going to develop into anything symmetrical and valuable later on. As regards these young trees they should have their rangy, sprawling tops cut back so as to give a sturdier and more shapely head or frame, while cross or ill shaped limbs should be taken out entirely. This work is done easily now, while the trees are in the formative stage, while the results secured are in every way more satisfactory than if the job is postponed.

A NEEDED CONSERVATION.

One hears much these days about conservation, particularly that which has to do with the husbanding and protecting of forms of material wealth, such as ores, coal, soil and water power. This is a praiseworthy movement, but there is another type of conservation that is of even more vital concern than that involving the relations that exist in the myriad homes of the land. There is little question that along this one line there are a dissipation of vital energy and a destruction of the best wealth of American homes—their peace and happiness—that are of greater moment than the waste in any material realm can possibly be. This waste takes place in the pulling and hauling, faultfinding, bitterness and dissension that curse and blast so many homes, weaken and impoverish so many lives, and in instances not a few actually induce fatal illness and result in both murder and suicide. The average person would call another a fool who, instead of oiling a machine which he wished to operate, put acid and sharp grit on all the bearings, yet in thousands of homes everywhere this same thing is done continually—the wearing parts of the home deluged daily with the acid of bitterness and dissension and the grit of selfishness and all around meanness, when these same bearings should be kept clean and bright with cheerfulness and lubricated with kindness and real affection. The members of all too many homes seem to have missed the great fact that it is just as easy and a whole lot more profitable to be happy than miserable and that making the former condition a reality is the noblest kind of conservation.

TREE SURGERY.

There are one or two points connected with removing large limbs from shade trees that the novice at the job would do well to remember. The first is that the limb should be sawed one-third through from the underside and a foot or two from the tree. Next a cut should be made with the saw on the upper side of the limb and a foot or so farther from the trunk than the cut on the underside. This should be continued until the weight of the limb causes it to fall. Instead of ripping a strip of bark off clear down to the tree, as is so often the case when the cut on the underside of the limb is not made, this will be prevented by the undercut mentioned. A stub will be left at this stage, and the final cut should then be made, sawing this off as close to the trunk as possible without disturbing the bark and on a line parallel with the direction of the trunk. The aim should be to leave the cut in such shape that it will heal over in the shortest possible time. To prevent decay setting in to the trunk from the cut the latter should be given two or three coats of white lead paint or smeared over with a thin coating of grafting wax.

WHAT ONE CITY MAN DID.

Chicago papers of a recent date tell of the success of a city man, with a "back to the land" hankering, in raising sugar beets during the past season. He held a city position, but thought he would give agriculture a trial. Accordingly he rented a forty acre farm some thirty miles out and made his home there, going in to his work. He saw to the proper preparation of the ground and had the entire area sowed to sugar beets. He did no manual labor, but only planned and superintended the work. He has recently sold the beet crop for $3,600. His expenses were $2,000, leaving him $1,600 net for his trouble. Not every man could do this, it will be admitted, for there was necessary, first, the ability to appreciate the opportunity and, secondly, determination and energy to carry the plan into execution. But notwithstanding this the incident shows that opportunities for getting ahead are a long way from exhausted.

A POTATO EXPERIMENT.

An experiment in growing potatoes which was made by a gardener not far from where the writer lives may interest some of our readers. Last spring at planting time he dug a trench seven or eight inches deep, the width of an ordinary shovel and twenty-five feet in length. When the trench was dug about four inches of loose earth were scattered over the bottom. On top of this the pieces of seed were planted six inches apart, and on top of the seed potatoes the mellow earth was shoveled. The growing potatoes were given no hilling during the season. At harvest time this twenty-five foot row yielded three and a half bushels of tubers. An acre at the same rate would yield 837 bushels. So good were the results that this gardener will try a larger tract of ground in the same way next spring.

STORING CELERY.

Sweet and crisp celery may be kept on tap for several months by removing the plants from the ground with a good supply of earth on the roots and setting them in a box in the cellar containing four or five inches of mellow earth. Care should be taken to moisten the roots after the plants are set, and this may be done by pressing the tops to one side at the edge, tilting the box, inserting a piece of tin or paper and pouring the water between this and the side of the box so it will reach the soil at the bottom. If the tops are wet in the watering process they are likely to decay prematurely.

A NIGHT RUN

Story by a Locomotive Engineer of Civil War Service

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

There is one feature of the civil war that has never been written up.

I refer to the railroads. They were the main instruments of transportation and communication. Their possession was therefore usually the most important element in a campaign. And when taken the next problem that arose was how to hold them and the next how to operate them to a purpose. The people living in the south through which they passed were mostly sympathizers with the Confederacy and did all they could or dare do to wreck trains in Federal hands. They would take up a rail, saw the stringers of a bridge, so that the weight of a train would break it; they would interfere with switches. Indeed, there was no element of danger they could devise that they would not throw in the way of the Union operation of the road.

Before repeating a story that was told me by an ex-Federal railroad engineer I will mention a narrow escape to which I was a party. I was with a Union general who was riding on a locomotive through a hostile country. The engineer was a young southerner whom the general had impressed for the service, forcing him to run the engine. We were speeding along at night. Suddenly I saw the engineer reverse the wheels, then, pale as a ghost, wait for something terrible to happen. I felt a jolt, and the engineer at once recovered his courage. He had seen a tie wedged in between the rails with a view to throwing our locomotive off the tracks and down an embankment. The effort had failed. In a few minutes we thought no more about it. The deaths we missed and were constantly missing counted for nothing. Now for the story.

"One morning at daybreak," said the narrator, "after a forced march we struck one of the main railroad arteries in the southwest and captured a lot of rolling stock. My captain told me that the general had called for those of the command who had been railway engineers, conductors and trainmen, and I, being an engineer, was to report at once at headquarters. I did so. The general asked me a few questions about my experience and told me to report for duty to Captain Benton, who had been appointed railway superintendent. I was given an engine and hauled troops to the eastern end of the road, which they occupied.

"It was about two weeks after this that the superintendent told me to report in person to the general. I did so, and he said to me:

"'Sergeant, I have just received a telegram from L., at the other end of the road, that the force there has been attacked by a superior force. The colonel commanding has promised not to surrender for at least two hours. You must take a train through to him loaded with troops and ammunition within that period.'

"'But, general,' I expostulated, 'there are three elements against me. I must go in the night, the roadbed will not admit of a safe rate of over thirty miles an hour, and the people along the route will do all they can to wreck the train.'

"'You must go the whole ninety miles in two hours. The possession of L. is of vital importance. If you reach there before the surrender it will be saved. Better that you should wreck your train than be a minute late.'

"That's what a man's life—not one man's life, but thousands—is worth in war. I walked away from the general feeling that I had been ordered to take nine chances in ten of killing and maiming 800 men, including myself. But I'd been in it a year then and knew how little our lives were worth against the possibility of achieving success for the nation.

"I found that the superintendent had been getting a train ready for me and it was loaded with the probable victims. I sprang on to the cab and with a couple of short toots from the whistle started the machine, the one in best repair in our possession. I had been over the line nearly every day for a fortnight and knew where I must endeavor to make the best time. I hadn't had any time to figure it out mathematically. I must take frightful risks on the straightaway parts and let up on the curves. And even on the curves I must drive far beyond a safe rate.

"If I may be said to have got on well on any part of the journey it was the first half. For that period my arm was steady and my brain was cool. Nevertheless it was an hour calculated to break the stoutest nerve. Word must have got to some of the people along the line, for I had scarcely got over ten miles when I found an obstruction. Coming to a sharp curve around the base of a hill, I said to myself, 'If they're going to throw me off anywhere they'll do it right here.' So I cut my speed down to what would enable me to stop within less than a train's length. It was well I did so. At the farther end of the curve I pulled up within ten feet of a tree felled across the track.

"Ten minutes was all the delay occasioned, and I pushed on. But whatever of hope I had felt before that this element of danger would not come up before me was crushed out of me. Beyond the curve I came to the first long straight bit of the road on the line. I knew I must do over sixty miles an hour here in order to get through in the limit of time. For twelve miles I kept my eyes fixed on the track illuminated by the headlight, tearing along so fast that should an obstruction be on the track I could never slow up in time to avoid it. Every minute of strain on my nerves took just so much strength out of them. I believed that no one would place anything on a straight track to throw me off and took all the chance on this, besides the danger of leaving the rails. The locomotive swayed and groaned and bounced till it seemed that the next bump would surely throw it off. At even the slightest curve I held my breath, and every time I came to a switch which I could not plainly see I was sure the rattling and pumping beneath meant that we were on the ties and in another moment would be rolled up in a universal smash.

"I had an excellent headlight, the reflector of which I had polished myself. Under its glare the shadows before me looked black and heavy as if they had been stone. There were telegraph poles beside the track, and it seemed to me as I approached their shadows that I was about to encounter the trunk of a fallen tree. They faded in rapid succession, but the approach of every shadow was like the falling of a sledgehammer on my nerves.

"I had gone seventy miles and was on time when suddenly a big block of solid stone loomed up ahead. I reversed, whistled down the brakes and came to a full stop. But I neither knew when I stopped nor for a few moments after whether I had escaped the peril, for I was so benumbed with fright that my senses refused to act. As soon as I was conscious that the machine was at rest I took another look ahead. There was the block I had seen, but as far distant as it had been when I discovered it. I jumped down and ran ahead. I couldn't see the obstacle, for my own shadow concealed it. Nevertheless I did not reach it. I stepped aside, and there it was—ahead. I ran forward a bit and, not reaching it, returned and examined my headlight. There on the glass directly before the light was a tiny moth.

"Summoning all my resolution to disregard these phantom obstacles, I put on full speed, and when I came to a straight bit of road I shut my eyes that I might not see and be racked by them. Again the old iron swayed and groaned and wheezed and puffed and spit fire and smoke till I entered upon the last ten miles between me and my destination. Then suddenly there was a crash, and a bit of splintered glass struck me in the face. I supposed that at last the catastrophe had come.

"But, no. The cowcatcher had thrown up a chicken or some other object that had broken the lamp of the headlight. The lamp continued to burn, however, though unprotected, since I had reversed as soon as the crash came. However, I knew it would not keep lighted under speed, and I felt that after all I had been blocked. But just as I was about to give up hope I saw a light ahead, and presently a locomotive bore down on us, slowing up as it came. It had been sent out by the commander at L., who was hard pressed to learn if we were nearing him.

"We managed to get this other headlight in position on my locomotive, and again I pushed forward. From this point now and again we could occasionally hear the faint booming of guns and as we drew nearer the rattle of musketry. The moon was at the full. Evidently the Confederate commander was determined to crush his enemy before the arrival of re-enforcements, and the Federal officer was fighting against time.

"I did not know at what moment the latter might give way, and, although the road was as rough and as crooked as any part I had passed over, I drove the machine as rapidly and as recklessly as before. I approached our men from the rear, though they were being flanked, which we were made aware of by a sudden fire into our train.

"The commander of the troops I had hauled through pulled the bell cord and when I had come to a halt ordered his men out of the train. They drove back the Confederate flankers and joined the main body.

"The arrival of re-enforcements caused the Confederates to withdraw, and the place was saved.

"As soon as my work was over I tumbled over on the cab floor. My fireman picked me up, and I revived very shortly. I knew what an important victory I had achieved and wanted to go right back and tell the general all about it. But instead of that I went to bed.

"The next morning I was all right and took a train back, passing over the route I had traversed the night before and smiling at the phantom obstructions that had filled me with horror the night before. As soon as I arrived an aid-de-camp told me to report in person to the general, and I went to his tent.

"He put out his hand to me, just as if I had as many stars on my shoulder as he had himself.

"'You've not only saved this army from a retreat,' he said, 'but have saved the force at L. from capture, besides preventing the loss of all this territory we have been months in acquiring. I shall recommend you to the governor of your state for a commission, and I wish you at once to take personal charge of the running of trains.'"

WHEN HE WOKE UP

It was a surprise to Burchard when he dropped in to call upon Sylvia to find a strange young man occupying his special chair and acting quite as much at home as though he belonged there by right.

Burchard had been calling on Sylvia for months, even years, and had sat in that particular chair innumerable times. A sensation of being ill used and injured surged through his soul as he bowed with stern cordiality to the young man.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia was saying sweetly, "is a brother of my old school friend, Dot, of whom you've heard me talk so often, Ted. He's come to Chicago to go into business. Isn't that delightful!"

"Lovely!" agreed Burchard. There really was nothing else that he could say. Speech seemed to have been smothered within him by that first wave of surprise which had overwhelmed him.

Try as he might to enter into the conversation, Burchard found himself relapsing painfully into silence every little while.

The more he thought of the situation the more indignant Burchard grew. By the time he said good evening he was able to give Sylvia the frostiest sort of nod and barely to touch the tips of her fingers. The surprise in her eyes was succeeded by a flicker of something else, which was quickly hid by her lowered lids. Burchard would have been a good deal surprised if he had known that instead of dragging herself slowly up the stairs to weep over his cruelty Sylvia dropped down on the bottom step when the front door closed and laughed.

Naturally Burchard called the next evening to atone for the coolness of his good-by. Sylvia was wearing a particularly large bunch of violets, which he eyed malignantly.

"I love violets," Sylvia said absently, patting them. "You can almost smell these!"

"Almost," Burchard repeated, bewildered.

"They're artificial," Sylvia explained. "Did they fool you?"

The bound of relief that Burchard's heart gave when he found Gillmyer had not sent the flowers was perfectly evident, but Burchard was too upset to grasp the fact. He was conscious of an inner triumph when he left at 10:30 that he had had the field to himself. But these triumphs were few, for Gillmyer bobbed up at all sorts of moments.

"He knows so few people in town," Sylvia said once. "And, really, he's awfully nice, don't you think, Ted?"

"Fine chap," agreed Burchard, with a sensation of swallowing red-hot coals.

The worst of it was that Gillmyer really was a fine chap. He broke into the Sunday night chafing dish suppers that Burchard had been wont to enjoy with Sylvia, and he cut up the cheese and beat the eggs as though that had always been his duty.

Between whiles Gillmyer invited Sylvia to go to the theater and brought her books and candy as though there was no reason why he shouldn't. The little rankling jabs attached to this phase of the situation was that there really was no reason. Yet Burchard felt outraged.

The evening he called and found to his dismay that Sylvia had gone out somewhere with Gillmyer without the preliminary of letting him know when it was his regular night to call made Burchard see stars. Women, he said to himself cuttingly as he strode home at a great pace, are fickle, unreliable, frivolous, unworthy and unnecessary cumberers of the earth. He had thought Sylvia different, but that was merely because he was an imbecile.

Burchard sat and stared at the wall for an hour, smoked three cigars and then turned in. At midnight he was still awake. "I suppose they are just about getting home now," he murmured.

It amazed him that Sylvia should show no trace of contrition, shame or concern about the manner in which she was treating him. She acted as though she was perfectly all right and appeared to have no uneasiness over Burchard's acquired gloom. On the contrary, she seemed to be having a decidedly good time. That she actually could enjoy Gillmyer's society was an agonizing blow to Burchard. His mind was such a mixture of unhappiness and bewilderment that he did not even try to figure out a solution.

He was agreeably surprised when he called one evening to find that Gillmyer was not present. He took his old chair, but sat on the extreme edge because it really wasn't all his chair any more.

"Mr. Gillmyer," Sylvia remarked, casually, "has been sent west for a month."

"Thank the Lord for that!" Burchard burst out, explosively. "I don't wish him any bad luck, but I hope the train runs off the track!"

"Why, Ted Burchard," said Sylvia, in proper horror. "The idea of your feeling that way!"

"I've just discovered how I feel," said Burchard, grimly. "And now that I know my esteemed friend Gillmyer can't break in on us at any minute and that I actually have your undivided attention, I'd like to go into details and elaborate on the subject!"

"Why, Ted!" said Sylvia again. "You amaze me! But—er—go on, please!"

Articles of Incorporation of "Pennington Hotel Company."

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Kansas City Star, owned and published by William R. Nelson, has put up $600 in cash prizes, which is to to be distributed to the boys of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma who raise next year the best acre of corn as well as the most perfect specimens of single ears and groups of ears. Already the boys in the states mentioned are beginning to plan for the contest, which not only gives promise of being a splendid means of arousing the interest and occupying the energy of the boys, but of having a very tangible result along the line of a production of more and better corn.

It is seldom that profit or benefit comes through getting two bad things together, but there seems to be an exception in the case of using convict labor on the bad roads of the country. In several states where the system has been or is being tried a twofold result has been noticed—roads have been improved at a minimum cost, while the men performing the work under the supervision of proper authority have, through the wholesome influence of exercise, sunshine and fresh air, taken a decided step ahead toward better citizenship. Every state has its bad men and its bad roads. The two should be got together.

Hardly a community but has two types of citizens—the one deserving and receiving the contempt of all fair minded people, the other meriting the greatest respect. The types referred to are respectively those who will not and those who try to pay their honest debts. Instances are frequent in which folks of the former class have money a-plenty to spend for most anything under the sun, but nary a cent to pay on an obligation. Those of the other class, who take a reasonable attitude toward their debts, will often deny themselves and go short on things they actually need to meet obligations when they become due. In the same measure that the class first named is deserving of censure the latter is worthy of respect and encouragement in every way.

Call prunes no longer plebeian fare, for they are retailing at 20 cents a pound. It will be entirely proper for milady to serve them with angel's food and accessories of cut glass, silver and damask.

One of the most valuable carloads of timothy seed ever shipped was received the other day by an Illinois seed house, being valued at $7,000. The exceptionally high price of the seed is directly responsible for the great value of the shipment.

In view of the number of folks that get caught on the great variety of get-rich-quick schemes, whose seductiveness lies in the fact that outlandish returns are promised on the money invested, it must be conceded that a sucker is born every minute and some minutes twins.

Not in twenty years has the writer seen the cornfields so free from weeds as this fall. This seems to be due to two unusually dry summers and to the necessity which every corn raiser has been under of giving the growing crop enough tillage to conserve the little moisture that the soil contained.

That type of farming is to be strongly recommended—and this applies with especial force in all sections where the soil has been robbed for years past—where the maximum amount of homemade manures are produced and utilized on each farm. It is for this reason that dairying and the raising and selling of cattle, hogs and sheep have so much to commend them as types of agriculture.

Professor Dyche, fish and game warden of Missouri, recommends shooting roman candles into the trees where blackbirds are wont to roost as an effective means of driving them away. The job is most effectively done just as they are gathering to roost and before it gets dark. He states that this roman candle stunt, repeated about three nights in succession, will drive the birds away for good.

The rabbits that have made their homes on the islands along the Mississippi river during the past two years have been having a rough time of it since the rainy weather set in in the upper watershed of the big valley. Owing to the low stage of water the rabbits occupied these islands and multiplied there prodigiously unmolested. The high water drove them to the highest points of the many islands, where they have been killed or drowned by thousands.

The shipment to America within the past few months of tons and tons of Chinese cues for the manufacture of switches, rats and sundry other creations is made plain in the light of the present rebellion. It appears that a cueless crown is the mark of the new movement and that as new territory is invaded the conquered are given the opportunity of parting with their rattails or their heads, and of course they yield to the minor operation.

W. S. Keeline of Council Bluffs, Ia., president of the National Horticultural association, recently sold the product of his fifty-three acre orchard for $12,000. The price named was for the crop on the trees. Two dollars and forty-five cents was paid for Jonathan and Grimes Golden, $1.00 for Genitan and $1.00 for Ben Davis and varieties of equal grade. On the above basis the orchard tract gave a revenue of $226 per acre, which seems to demonstrate quite conclusively that scientific fruit growing pays.

More than 58,000 people made the trip to South Dakota and registered for the big government land drawing. A casual glance at the list of winners shows that virtually all reside in adjoining or nearby states. This seems to verify a claim made in an article in this department a short time ago—namely, that the method of registering and allotting these lands practically prohibited the people most in need of free land from taking or having any part whatever in the disbursement. It is conceded that the system ought to be overhauled.

A farmer living near Powhattan, Kan., has lately been quarantined for glanders, which it is evident he contracted as a result of caring for several of his horses that were afflicted with the disease last winter. The first symptom of the disease noticed in the case of the owner of the horses was what was at first thought to be a severe attack of catarrh. However, the disease spread to his lungs, and the man is now considered beyond medical aid. The instance suggests the exercise of great caution in the care of all diseased animals.

THE COMFORT OF A FURNACE.

Some of you folks that have money in the bank or what comes to the same thing—grain in the crib or fat steers in the feed lot—and have been heating your houses with all the way from two to half a dozen stoves would better look up the matter of installing a heating plant. It will not only mean an economy of fuel, but a maximum of comfort for all members of the family, coupled with a minimum of dirt and ashes for the women to clean up. While hot water systems are in some ways the most satisfactory from the standpoint of evenness of heat and economy of operation when once installed, they are also the most expensive. It is further quite necessary that the houses in which the water system is installed should be frostproof from cellar to garret. If this heating system or the steam heating type does not seem advisable the hot air system should be installed, and very satisfactory outfits can be got at from $85 to $150. The chief point in favor of the hot air plant lies in the fact that all parts of all rooms which are equipped with registers will be evenly heated. There is no "frozen on one side, roasted on the other side" business about it. If one has been subjected to these extremes for a generation or more he will appreciate the comfort of a furnace heating plant.

WINTER BLOOM.

No flowers suitable for indoor culture give such a return in both beauty and fragrance of bloom as do hyacinths and narcissuses. Varieties are now obtainable that for color and thriftiness of bloom are remarkable. While one may use a more elaborate pot, a common tin tomato can will serve the purpose unless one wishes to have a bank or bed of flowers, in which case a larger receptacle will be necessary. The pots should be filled with light sandy soil and the bulbs set with the crown just below the surface, the soil being well firmed around them. The pots should then be given a thorough watering and covered with earth in the cellar to the depth of three or four inches above the bulbs. If they show a tendency to dry out they should be given another watering. In from four to six weeks the bulbs will start to grow, when they should be removed to quarters where there will be plenty of light, yet where it will be cool. Both of the plants mentioned will produce more perfect blossoms if they are not subjected to direct sunshine at all. The paper white narcissus has a somewhat different habit and may be put in vessels containing water and small stones at once.

A QUESTION OF PROTECTION.

That the health and longevity of many of the less hardy types of apple trees are largely dependent upon the way they are protected has been pretty plainly demonstrated in the case of a Fameuse tree from which the writer picked the fruit a few days ago. The tree in question stands on the north side and about five feet from a shed which effectively protects its trunk and lower limbs from the winter sun. Not only has the tree made a prodigious growth, but it is remarkably thrifty and sound. Twenty feet to the north of it, but exposed to the sun, is another tree of the same variety which has been badly hit with sun scald and is already sick unto death. We have watched these two trees for a number of years and are convinced that, while some other factors may have played a part, the difference in their condition today is due to the protection they have had. It is this principle that makes many orchardists in northern states favor the rather close planting of apple trees in rows north and south. This serves in a measure to give the protection mentioned.

PRUNING AND BLIGHT.

In fruit growing sections where the pear blight is prevalent it is well for the orchardist to reduce his pruning work during the winter and spring to a minimum, as cutting at these times greatly augments wood growth. This means a greatly increased number of new shoots, whose tender tips are especially liable to infection by the blight germs from the feet of ants or other insects that happen to alight on them. More than this, the sap moves very rapidly in this young growth, which increases the chance of an infection of the large limbs or trunk on which the shoots are growing. Moderate pruning may be done during July and early August, and this will not only not induce the growth of these shoots, but will cause the tree to produce fruit buds for the following year. The writer had some experience along this line not long ago and knows whereof he speaks.

THE WORTH OF COMMON TOIL.

While it is entirely proper for parents to hold before their children the "room at the top" idea as affecting the life pursuits they are to follow, it is sensible to lay stress also on both the worth and dignity of the service of those who do the commoner though just as necessary work of life—who till the soil, lay sewers and water mains, hew wood and dig coal, provide shelter, food and clothing and make the thousand and one other articles that add to the comfort and satisfaction of living. These toilers may wear rougher clothing and get more dirt and calluses on their hands, but the service they render to their fellows is as noble as that of preacher, teacher or professional man.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL XXVIII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1911 NUMBER 48

GAVE BENEFIT PROGRAM

Lincoln High School Students Gave Interesting Program For the Benefit of the Athletic Ass'n.

Large Crowds Fill Spacious Halls and Corridors of Lincoln H. S. Building.

A very pleasant social time was given by the local high school students in the Lincoln building last Friday evening.

A program of both vocal and instrumental music was rendered which was followed by a basket ball game between the High School team and the Commercial-Normal students.

The program was given free to everybody but the income from the lunch served by the domestic science students' the fish pond and the candy stands netted the students a handsome amount of money, which will be given to the High School Athletic Ass'n. for the purchase of suits for the basket ball team.

The citizens young and old, turned out in large numbers for the event, and the halls and corridors of the building were literally packed with swarms of people.

The assembly room, where the program was held, was able to seat but a small per cent of the people present, and the remainder was forced to amuse themselves by looking over the fine display turned out by the manual training boys, fishing in the pond or feasting on the good victuals made by the girl students from the domestic science department.

The program rendered consisted of the following numbers:

2 selections—H. S. Orchestra.

Vocal Solo—Miss Anna Giller; Miss Theon Walker piano accompanist.

Cornet Solo—Bennie Lonson; Miss Palmer, piano accompanist.

Vocal Solo—Miss Lois Burton; Miss Palmer, piano accompanist.

All of the above numbers are deserving of considerable credit for the way they rendered and were well received by the audience. The selections by the orchestra, consisting only of high school students, were all high class and bespeaks volumes for the talent to be found in the local schools. The other numbers are equally deserving of their share of credit, and especially so is the splendid work done by Bennie Lonson, the cornet soloist. Bennie is the youthful director of the "Liberty Band" of this city and has built up an organization that has, by its splendid work, opened the eyes of our citizens. His work on the cornet is truly marvelous for the time he has played that instrument.

The basket ball game between the high school team and the Commercial-Normal team was an exiting contest, the high school finally winning the game by a 5 to 2 score, but only after some hard and close work.

This opportunity to inspect the splendid new school building and some of the work turned out by the students was well taken advantage of as is evident by the large crowd of people present. The work turned out by the manual training department was the main center of attraction and is composed of some elegant specimens of woodcraft and a large amount of skill is shown on the part of the students who have produced this work.

A GOOD CONCERT

Eleanore Olson Company Gave Splendid Concert In Presbyterian Church Saturday Evening.

The Eleanore Olson Concert Trio gave a splendid entertainment at the Presbyterian church last Saturday evening under the auspices of the Brage Choir of this city.

The program consisted of musical numbers by Miss Eleanore Olson, vocal soloist and Miss Walden, pianist, and impersonations by Miss Ethel Olson.

While the musical numbers are spoken of very highly and deserving of the highest praise, the impersonations by Miss Ethel Olson are especially deserving of the highest kind of credit. Her work can be emphatically termed among the best if not the best, heard in the city, and at various times brought forth a volley of applause and laughter from the audience.

The attraction was presented under the auspices of the Brage Choir for the purpose of endeavoring to cover the deficit which resulted from the Sangerfest held in this city last June.

An Open Letter.

Nov. 18-11.

Hon. A. O. Eberhart, Governor, of Minnesota.
Hon. J. A. O. Preus. Commissioner of Insurance.
St. Paul, Minn.

Gentlemen:

As a delegate to the Fire Prevention Congress convening in your city on the 8th inst, I wish to express my high appreciation of the proceedings of that body in which you gentlemen took such a prominent part.

The question of fire prevention is one of the most important issues that confronts our state and nation. The fire waste of our country in general, and in this state in particular, has been growing, assuming alarming and burdensome proportions. This burden, of course, falls on those who pay the insurance tax and on those who are caught in conflagration without insurance.

The Fire Prevention Association of this state, which is organized and managed by the fire insurance interests, and our Federation can well go hand in hand along the avenue of fire prevention, but at the end of the "Fire Prevention" lane the aims of these two organizations diverge at right angles. The public leads off for a lower fire tax while insurance interests are reaching for greater profits. This is very natural and, from a purely business view, the action of either party may pass without criticism.

On a declining loss ratio, the insurance public naturally asks for lower rates. The companies just as naturally defer rate reductions as long as possible, and the companies that pay the highest commissions to agents are, very obviously, standing for the highest obtainable rate. It is at this point that competition among insurance companies should become effective in reducing the fire tax to the assured, leaving a moderate profit to the companies. This would be the case if competition was applied direct with the assured; but such is not the case. The local agent controls the business and the competition between the companies is based on agents' commission: as the Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts states the case, "The assured is eliminated." The same official states that in his field commissions on many classes of risks have reached as high as 40 per cent, and that the tendency is still upward. He also states that in this country agents' commissions amount annually to $7,500,000 more than on the usual commission basis of ten years ago. The Insurance commissioner of Illinois, during a recent public address, stated that on many classes of risks, local agents' commissions had doubled within the memory of the present man. The Insurance Commissioner of Kansas has undertaken to compel the companies to limit agents' commission to 25 per cent. A former Insurance commissioner of this state suggested limiting local agents' commission by legislative enactment.

What shall it profit the tax payers if they spend time and money closing the fire waste "Bung" if the expense "Spigot," already overly large, shall be kept running at an increased capacity.

There should be a reasonable limit to the expense of collecting and distributing the fire tax.

Respectfully submitted,
K. Neutson,
Secretary.

MOVING RAPIDLY

Construction of Auxiliary Power Plant Going Ahead at a Rapid Rate.

Work of building the auxiliary power plant is being pushed as rapidly as possible and the work already accomplished gives rise to the belief that the work will be finished in due time or in less time than it has been figured necessary to complete the work.

Mr. F. S. Dodge who has the contract for the work has a large crew of men working under him and despite the cold weather no time has been lost in the construction work.

The foundation has been completed and the walls are rising rapidly by the fast work of the brick layers.

The building so far has every indication of being a substantial one and when completed will be a creditable structure for the city.

In Search of Game.

Earnest Buse, Clem Burnell and another party from Red Lake Falls passed through the city on the Great Northern Monday morning, garbed in hunting attire, bound for Middle River where they expect to board the ox team express or any other conveyance available and then proceed to the happy hunting grounds in eastern Marshall county.

The purpose of their visit, Ernie stated, is a search for the "wooly stuff" and as this applies to anything from a giant moose to a jack rabbit it is a safe bet that the boys will not be dissapointed entirely on their hunting trip.

Large Crowd at Basket Social.

The basket social at the Kratka school house Saturday evening was well attended. Quite a number of local people drove out and a large crowd is reported having been present. It is reported by some of those present that three members of the Arpin oil gang were instrumental in boosting the price of baskets to such extent that some of the boys had to tax their pocket books rather heavily or loose them and the company of the "best girl" for the evening. Be this as it may, a neat income was received from the sale of the baskets which will be applied to the district school fund. A good time is reported by those present.

WATCH YOUR DOG

Tie Up Your Dog If He Shows Any Symptoms of Ugliness.

Several complaints have been heard from pedestrians on the East Side who have been bitten by dogs. The practice of letting dogs run around loose without even furnishing food or shelter for them is characteristic with some people, but nothing more harmful can be done than this. Besides being a burden and a nuisance to the whole neighborhood, these dogs eventually become ugly and dangerous.

If you must own a dog see that he is given one good, square meal a day anyway, and furnish him with shelter or otherwise make him a present to the dog catcher to decorate the dumping grounds with. Make it a point to tie him up if he shows symptoms of ugliness and thereby preserve the peace and safety of the community.

LEFT THE RAILS

Spreading Rails Delays Duluth Passenger Train Saturday Evening.

The Soo passenger train on the Thief River and Duluth line due in this city at 7:15 was delayed between two and three hours Saturday on account of an accident due to spreading rails. The train left the rails near Frogner, a small station twenty miles west of Duluth, as the result of frost spreading the rails.

At the time of the accident the train was running not more than 12 miles an hour, no one was injured and but little damage was done to the locomotive or any of the cars.

WAS EXONORATED

State Board of Control Agrees Not to Remove Him, As Stated In Complaint.

Frank A. Whittier, superintendent of the state training school for boys at Red Wing, was exonorated unanimously by the state board of control last Saturday from charges preferred against him by Ralph W. Wheelock, secretary to Governor Eberhart.

The resignation of Mr. Whittier was received, however, as soon as it was found that he had been cleared of the charges preferred against him, and was accepted by the board. His successor will be appointed as soon as possible, but it is thought that he will remain at his post until the close of the fiscal year, which will be July 31, 1912.

This ends a year-long campaign against Mr. Whittier in which he has been charged with brutal and inhuman treatment to some of the inmates of the training school.

Altho some of the acts of Mr. Whittier are not approved by the board, it cannot be found where he could be rightfully removed from office by law for exceeding his authority in office.

"The board will make a very careful investigation," said Chairman P. M. Ringdal, "of training school methods, with a view of making such changes as may be deemed advisable, and for that purpose will visit some of the largest and best known instititutions of this character in the country. It will at the same time endeavor to obtain the services of a superintendent who by character and experience will be fully qualified to carry out the important work at Red Wing."

After summarizing the evidence in eighteen "findings of fact," the board finds in conclusion:

"That upon all the evidence in this case the respondent is not guilty of misconduct, incompetency or neglect of his official duty in connection with the management of the said state training school, as charged in the complaint herein."

C. J. Swendsen, republican member, dissents from the reasons advanced by the two members, but agrees with them in declining to remove Mr. Whittier, basing his action on the advice of C. Louis Weeks, assistant attorney general.

"I can under no circumstances approve of some of the methods which have been practised at the state training school for the purpose of enforcing decipline," says Mr. Swendsen's report, "nor can I give my approval of some of the punishments shown to have been inflicted upon various inmates of the institution. I am of the opinion that the report adopted by the state legislature on April 7, 1911, is substantially a true statement of conditions prevailing in the school."

After citing some of Mr. Weeks' replies to the board's legal questions, he concludes:

"In view of the fact that the law as construed by the attorney general gives the superintendent of the state training school the right to exercise a wide discretion in disciplinary methods, and in view of the further fact that no permanent injury is shown to have resulted from any of the punishments authorized or approved by Mr. Whittier, and in view of the fact that no malice has been shown to have actuated the respondent in administering punishments, I am forced to the conclusion that the board of control cannot lawfully remove Mr. Whittier from office."

JAS. MEEHAN GETS VERDICT

James Meehan Secures Verdict For $8,200 Against the P. Meehan Estate.

Verdict Secured Last Friday in District Court at Red Lake Falls.

Last Friday in district court at Red Lake Falls the suit of James Meehan, Jr., vs the estate of Patrick Meehan, asking $10,400 as services rendered for the deceased from 1900 to 1908, was tried, and a verdict was handed down in favor of the plaintiff in the sum of $8,200.

Mr. James Meehan has been taking care of the P. Meehan interests in this city since the death of the latter, and there have been some difficulties over settling the estate, Mr. Meehan claiming that he had not been given the share of property due him and the suit was consequently broght with the above results.

Greely Carr, of Minneapolis, formerly of this city, and F. A. Grady of Red Lake Falls, appeared as attorneys for the plaintiff, while O. E. Boughton, of Red Lake Falls, E. M. Stanton of this city and Mabor, of Milwaukee, represented the estate.

MAN IS ROBBED

Thomas Sagvold, Station Agent at Glenwood Is Beaten Into Insensibility by Assailant.

Thomas Sagvold, cashier at the Soo station at Glenwood, was waylaid on his way downtown last Thursday night, knocked unconscious and robbed of between $400 and $500, the receipts at the Station for three days. The station is more than a mile from the business part of town.

Sagvold was found lying beside the cinder path and taken to his home, where he regained conciousness enough to tell that his assailant appeared to be a tall man. No clue has yet been found, but it seems certain that the man was familiar with the custom of the cashier to bank his receipts every two or three days, and knew that he had the money with him.

New Cars are Beauties.

The Minneapolis Daily News tells of the recent additions made by the Soo Line to its passenger equipment, which consist of 35 cars. These cars are of steel, from track to roof, floors and vestibules included, which makes them as nearly absolutely safe to those who travel in them as human ingenuity can make them.

These cars are all of the de luxe type in their interior design and finish. In concluding a detailed description of the the elegance and comfort of the cars the News says: "Take it altogether the new equipment of the Soo is just about the finest ever attempted by a railroad. It cost over half a million to put these cars into service. But it is worth it. You cannot get anything better or more beautiful and you certainly cannot get anything safer."

Must Keep the Roads Open.

Rural route patrons are requested to keep the roads open that are traveled by the carriers if they expect proper service. The carrier has not the time and neither is it his business to break roads while delivering mail during the winter. Patrons should see that the roads are broken after each blizzard, thereby complying with the rules of the post-office department in regard to rural routes.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

With proper care ducks will begin laying at five months without regard to the time of their being hatched.

Data lately published show that about 14,000 families are at present residing on land watered by government irrigation systems.

While there may be greater risk in raising them, a flock of cockerels at 10 cents a pound live weight are a more profitable proposition than the average hog or steer.

A unique experiment in oiling railway tracks was worked out the other day on a transcontinental line when a tank car containing 10,000 gallons of coconut oil sprung a leak and the contents were spilled for a long distance. The dust was laid, but the material used was a bit high priced.

There is mighty little consistency in the cry put up by many farmers about the high price of farm machinery resulting from manipulation by the trusts when these same implements are left exposed to the weather in headlands and fence corners with no covering but a few cobwebs.

The grand total value of all live stock of the country, including the several kinds of domestic animals, poultry and bees, as reported to the census bureau for 1910, is $4,895,000,000. This is an increase of nearly 60 per cent over the showing of 1900, when the figures were $3,075,000,000.

The idiotic practice still persists of getting pure bred cattle so fat in making them ready for live stock expositions as to virtually ruin them for breeding. The live stock authority or judge who has the nerve and good sense to lead a vigorous revolt against this senseless practice will be entitled to the thanks of every raiser of blooded cattle in the country.

Ensilage is coming more and more into favor as a part ration for feeding cattle. A combination that is hard to beat is twenty-five to thirty pounds of silage, from eighteen to twenty pounds of corn and from two to four pounds of clover hay or alfalfa. Where it is not possible to secure these legumes two or three pounds of oil or cottonseed meal will be a good substitute.

In a good many states laws recently passed specify what shall constitute official weights for the many products of the soil used in general consumption. Where such laws have been passed it means that the buyer can insist on a fair measure when he buys a given amount. Three products of general consumption where the enforcement of the law is likely to make a difference are potatoes, onions and apples.

Every thinking horseman knows that it is not whether a collar is soft, but whether it fits, that makes it a good or bad collar. Without question the best collar made today is an iron frame in which there is no leather or padding on the parts touching the shoulder. This reduces perspiration to a minimum and keeps the surface of the skin in a healthy condition. A collar that has to be padded is likely to be either a poor fit or poorly made.

As a source of supply for the nitrogen ration needed on the farm a field of alfalfa is preferable to a clover meadow for two reasons. The first is that it is a perennial, not a biennial, as is the clover. This means that it can send its roots deeper into the earth and when once established is much less likely to winter kill or die in a dry spell, as was the case last summer. A second point in favor of alfalfa is that under equally favorable conditions it will yield twice as much hay as will clover. Perhaps it is somewhat more difficult to get a field of alfalfa started, but it is worth the effort.

For those living in the northerly latitudes who have a strawberry bed to carry through the winter for the first time a suggestion will be in place as to protecting it. It is well to wait until the ground is frozen firmly, when the bed should be given a covering of clean straw, coarse hay or cornstalks and of sufficient depth to shield from the rays of the sun and keep the bed from alternate thawing and freezing during the winter. If one's locality is likely to be visited by a killing frost at blossom time the danger may be reduced by allowing the covering to remain on the bed until a couple of weeks after other green things get well started. If the covering is of straw it is an excellent plan to merely rake it from the plants on to the spaces between the rows, where it will serve as an excellent mulch and keep the berries clean.

At the land show held recently in New York four $1,000 cups for the best wheat, oats, barley and alfalfa were won by Montana farmers, this in competition with the United States and Canada.

The roots—turnips, carrots, parsnips and such—which have been put in the cellar for winter keeping will remain crisp and firm much longer if they are put in boxes and covered with moist sand. They will keep the longer if the cellar is cool.

The real merit of a cream separator does not depend upon the cheapness of the price at which it can be secured, but rather upon its durability and the kind of job it does in removing the butter fat from the milk. A good many get caught by the cheap bait and a little later throw their bargain out on the junk pile.

Get that boy interested in raising a prize winning acre of corn in one of the several corn growing contests that are being held in many sections of the country and there will be little need of worrying about his leaving the farm. Stated in another way, this means that if the boy finds something of real live, up to date interest on the farm he will stay there. If not he is quite likely to dig out.

There is little question that the decided improvement in quality of fruit produced the past season by orchards not sprayed was due to the fact that the total failure the year previous in practically all the territory east of the Rockies made the propagation of worms and to quite an extent the spread of fungous pests impossible. It illustrates nicely the well known truth—misfortunes, like blessings, are seldom unmixed.

A new theory is seldom advanced but straightway some one comes along and overturns it. Not long ago enterprising poultry keepers attached great merit to the forced molting of a flock of hens to induce early and long continued laying. More recently the declaration has been made that this forced molting is an injury rather than a benefit. The truth probably lies between these extremes—that such feeding at molting time as will put the flock in the most vigorous and active condition possible is a benefit.

It is a bit hard to understand just why it is so, but the grape does best on a soil which at surface at least would be called thin. One of the largest vineyards in the country lies along the railroad right of way between Pasadena and Redlands, and the surface soil is as nearly pure white sand as it could well be. Yet it is a marvelously thrifty vineyard through the entire tract of 3,000 acres. Similarly the most profitable vineyards in Michigan, New York and other grape producing states are, as a rule, situated on this same light and thin soil.

Many a dog—and this applies to both town and country canines—becomes an all around nuisance by being allowed to form the habit of rushing out and barking and biting at every animate object that passes the place. Naturally this habit enrages passersby, who, to use a common phrase, "lay" for the brute. After he has been whipped and stoned about so much he naturally looks upon every traveler as his enemy and a foe to the premises he has undertaken to protect. The time to take the kinks out of a dog of this kind is before they are formed, by administering a good whipping every time he tries it. It won't take him long to catch on, and he will stay near the house, where he belongs.

Two farmers in eastern Kansas have had an object lesson on the benefits of tiling that should be of practical help to other tillers of the soil. The soil in the section where these men live is a stiff clay and does not have adequate natural drainage. One of these men, a sort of agricultural progressive, decided he would tile a part of his land—this some five years ago. Every year since the land was drained it has produced bumper crops, whether the season was wet or dry. The season just past, notwithstanding the severe drought, yielded seventy bushels of corn per acre. A patch belonging to his neighbor who had no faith in tiling produced just thirty-five bushels, and that in a dry season, while if the season had been as wet as some have been within a decade it would have raised no crop at all. Tiling is a boon to heavy soil in a wet season and also benefits it in a dry. The man who can add two and two is no longer debating whether tiling pays.

The Pennsylvania experiment station has been making some investigations along the line of the handling of manures that have practical value. In the course of these it was found that where the manure was thrown out as fast as made and kept in a covered shed it lost one-third of its nitrogen, one-fifth of its potash and one-seventh of its phosphoric acid. By a second method in which the manure was left to be tramped down with bedding of straw as fast as made during a period of six months it was found that there was very little loss of fertilizing elements owing to the fact that the manure was in so compact a mass that very little air got to it. The advantage in dollars and cents in favor of this latter method was found to be $2.50 for each steer fed for a period of six months. But better than either of these methods was that of spreading the manure as fast as made directly upon the land. This plan is followed by many of the best farmers today and is largely the result of an introduction of the manure spreader.

VALUABLE CO-OPERATION.

A co-operative undertaking is being carried out by the Wisconsin experiment station and Ashland and Bayfield counties, in the northern part of the state, that is to be strongly commended from the standpoint of good sense and practical value. A quarter section of cut over land, most of it of the red clay type, was given jointly by the two counties for use as a branch experiment station. The state will equip and manage the farm, and a foreman from the college will be in charge. Any workers of the college who may require the red clay soil in their experiments will be assigned plots on the farm in question, which is located near Ashland Junction. In addition to the strictly experimental work, the crops will be so planned as to serve as a demonstration to nearby farmers. Meetings will be held each year when the crops are in the best condition for demonstration purposes. The superintendent and his assistants will be at the service of the farmers of the northern part of the state and help them in every way to improve farming conditions. The land comprising this farm is typical timberland, and the same problems will have to be worked out that the homesteader in the section would have on his hands.

DIRT AND DISEASE.

Many of the diseases that attack farm animals are traceable to germs that flourish and live from year to year in the litter in and about stables and pens, many of which are in a decidedly insanitary condition. Among the germ life flourishing under these conditions are likely to be those of tuberculosis, contagious abortion, navel disease, lumpy jaw, hog and calf cholera, while parasites that cause scab, mange and itch likewise flourish. Where a stable is in such condition it should be given a thorough cleaning. This should include not only brushing down cobwebs and dust from ceiling and walls and a thorough cleaning of the partitions and floors, but when this has been done the interior should be given a coat of whitewash made by adding salt and three or four tablespoonfuls of carbolic acid to a considerable quantity of the lime wash. This should be kept stirred and may be applied with a broom or long handled brush, but the job is more easily and effectively done if one has a spray pump such as is used in orchard spraying operations. Applied in this manner the solution can be forced into every crack and crevice.

RATS IN THE JELLY.

A reader whose good wife's jelly cupboard has just about been cleaned out by rats asks the writer what he can do to get rid of the pests. Any person who has had experience in this matter knows that it is a good deal easier to tell how to do the job than it is to actually do it. However, there are several methods that have given good results. In the line of traps good results can be had with the cage trap, especially if the whole rat tribe in the immediate locality can be inveigled into it in a night or two. The spring or guillotine trap is one of the best we have tried and is the more effective if the bait used is tied to the tongue of the trap. There are several rat poisons on the market which do the business if used according to directions, while an excellent, slow working poison is made by mixing one part of barytes with eight or nine parts of cornmeal and adding enough wetting to give a stiff dough. Small quantities of this should be placed in the runways of the rats, out of reach of poultry or other creatures.

A COSTLY LESSON.

The writer has in mind a pretty level headed orchard owner who somehow got the idea that the chaps who are in charge of the horticultural work at his own and other state agricultural colleges were impractical and did not know what they were talking about when they laid much stress on the importance of a thorough spraying with arsenate of lead within ten days after the petals fall. This was in the season of 1910. Acting on his own belief in the matter, he delayed his first spraying for the codling moth until the little calyx cup was closed and the apples were about two-thirds of an inch through. The theory of the college men was amply justified in the fall, when this orchardist had no end of worms, which converted what would have been fancy box stuff into cheap stuff for a canning factory. It is needless to say that this experience was not repeated.

A WINNING COMBINATION.

A friend, a banker, living in a section where alfalfa and corn do well and silos have been built the past season for the first time states that some farmers of his section have some doubts whether the silo is advisable in case of the man who does not care to take up dairying, but does want to raise beef cattle. The writer would suggest that any doubts these farmers may have along this line be put aside, for if the extensive feeding experiments which have been conducted by many experiment stations make any one point clear it is that the cheapest as well as the best beef in the world is produced in those sections where both corn and alfalfa can be grown and where the corn crop is put into the silo for safe keeping. It is our opinion that these fellows are in clover in very truth and the sooner they get those silos built the better it will be.

LIKELY TO SUPPORT LIBERALS

Socialists In Sweden Expected to Unite With Premier Staaff in Reform Legislation—Abel Eliasen, Aged 115, Norway's Oldest Inhabitant, Becomes Resident of Poor Farm—Genuine Rembrandt Discovered In Copenhagen.

SWEDEN.

"Although the Socialists," says the Review of Reviews, "refused to join the new ministry in Sweden, they will probably support Premier Staaff in the reforms to which the ministry is pledged. Foremost among these must be counted various measures designed to make the entire administrative system more truly democratic. The program of the Liberal party has much in common with that of the corresponding political group in England, and in many features it is not only progressive, but largely socialistic. It is interesting to note that, at one of its first meetings, the ministry was asked to consider the advisability of extending government support to the new steamship line which intends to run steamers between Stockholm and San Francisco 'for the purpose of carrying California fruit instead of Italian to supply Swedish and Norwegian markets.' Whether the change of government will tend to abate the labor disturbances so characteristic of Sweden during the last decade remains an open question. The radicalization of the Swedish masses has been progressing with startling speed and the process gains added importance from the fact that popular education is older in Sweden than in any part of the world outside of the United States. Many persons familiar with conditions in Sweden believe that its monarchial form of government is doomed, and that the coming form of government will be not only republican but socialistic. Even moderate men have expressed the opinion that only some such change, giving the mass of people a chance at the soil, can save the Swedish nation from the anemia caused by the constant emigration of its vital elements to America."

The death of former Premier Lundeberg marks the passing of one of the most prominent Swedish statesmen during the past ten years. It was Lundeberg who conducted the Swedish side of the controversy at Karlstad and he was one of the foremost framers of the now historic treaty, which was directly responsible for evading a war between the "brother kingdoms." In early life he took an exceedingly active interest in politics and when he had reached a mature age he held one prominent and important position after another and no matter what capacity comprised his field of endeavors, he was always regarded a painstaking and conscientious officeholder. When he became a member of the First chamber of the Swedish riksdag he vigorously opposed the proposition to give Norway free sway in regard to consular positions, yet when it came to the dissolution time at Karlstad, Lundeberg proved to be one of the most fairminded and at the same time one of the shrewdest representatives that Sweden had at that conference. This man will be missed in Sweden, where his influence has been felt in a direction for the general good of the country for many years.

The Nobel prize for literature this year has been awarded to the Belgian author, Maurice Maeterlinck. The latter is regarded as one of the greatest literary men of Europe. He began writing books in 1889 and since that time has also written a series of dramas and plays within the realm of the mystic, which eminent European critics have declared to be among the world's masterpieces. After Maeterlinck's marriage—he married Georgette Leblanc, an actress—he abandoned the field of mysticism and has since devoted his literary efforts to natural science and the great questions of the day.

Judging from statistics the Salvation Army is doing a magnificent piece of work in Sweden. The army now comprises eighty different institutions, 640 corps and outposts, has in the course of only one year fed and aided 205,718 homeless men, women and children, extended financial aid to 12,446 and secured employment for 2,457 women. In Stockholm the army has thirty-one slum stations where unfortunates are cared for and in every large city of Sweden the army is busy doing deeds of kindness.

The Swedish American society held its last meeting Oct. 28 in Rosenbad's restaurant, when Rev. Carl Solomonson of Duluth, who is at present studying at Upsala university, delivered an address on the subject: "The Economic and Cultural Condition of the Swedish Americans." The address was well received and was listened to with intense interest by the large audience which had gathered to hear him lecture.

NORWAY.

The oldest person in Norway at present is Abel Lind Eliasen of Buknes, who a short time ago was taken to the parish poor farm. His wife is lying ill at the parish hospital, located about a mile from the poor farm. The old gentleman is still spry enough to walk this distance once a day to visit his aged wife. A Norwegian paper remarks that such a spry man as that, who has succeeded in attaining so high an age as 115 years, would deserve a better fate than to be placed in an institution for the poor.

One of the prominent ministers of Christiania is Rev. Herman Laude, who has just passed his seventieth milestone in the journey of life. For a number of years his labors were abroad. First he was seaman's missionary; then for a number of years he labored in Paris, collecting and administering to the spiritual wants of the Norwegians scattered in that large city. The last twenty years he spent in Christiania, first as an assistant and then as pastor of a congregation.

Andrew Carnegie, the American steel king, through the American minister in Christiania, has advised the Norwegian government that it is his intention to present $120,000 for a heroes' fund for Norway similar to that which he has presented to Sweden and other countries. The Norwegian government has acknowledged the gift with thanks and will in the near future appoint a committee to take charge of the disposition of the fund.

John Forsell, the Swedish opera singer, sang at a symphony concert given at the National theater in Christiania Oct. 28. Mr. Forsell was greeted by a full house and was exceptionally well received in the capital city. Forsell has appeared twice in the United States, having on both occasions made extensive concert tours.

The annual jubilee album, published in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the University of Christiania, proved a popular seller and has already netted the university something like 5,000 crowns. It has been published in two editions already and still another edition will be published before the holidays.

Bjornson's "Marie Stuart in Scotland" has recently been rendered at the Dramatic theater in Christiania. There has been a full house every evening that the play has been given. The company rendering the play is managed by Bjorn Bjornson, a son of the late poet and dramatist.

The promising young author, Jens Troan, died very suddenly from pneumonia about two weeks ago, aged only twenty-eight years. He was a gifted writer and was the author of several novels which have received much favorable mention from leading literary critics in the country.

Much snow is reported to have fallen in the northern section of the country and unprecedented cold weather has been reported from all parts of the country. Many farmers in the northern section of the country have been compelled to sell their stock for want of fodder.

There is a scarcity of houses and flats for rent in Christiania and the city council has been having its hands full to find room for destitute families who want shelter for the winter. Add to this the exorbitant house rents and the situation grows even more problematical.

DENMARK.

A newly discovered Rembrandt painting was exhibited for a number of newspaper representatives a few days ago in Copenhagen by Karl Madsen. There is every evidence that the painting is one of the famous Rembrandt products dating back to 1669. The painting had originally been kept in the so called "Gamle Kunstkammer" in Copenhagen palace, but during the end of the Eighteenth century it was removed to Fredensborg palace, where no one seemed to pay any attention to it and where it was hung in one of the rooms occupied by one of the portiers of the palace. The valuable painting has now been placed in the Holland department of the National Museum of Arts and is at present the object of much attention from art lovers, sightseers and tourists. The painting is valued at 500,000 crowns, but inasmuch as it is the property of the Danish government it is not likely that it will be disposed of to any private party.

Norman Hansen, formerly a physician in Chicago, and now a well known Greenland explorer, has returned from a year's stay at Juliane Haab, West Greenland. He states that while making a long journey through the interior he found ruins of the houses of the old Norwegian colonists. Greenland explorers have for years looked in vain for these ruins and the discovery is considered to be very important. The Royal Geographical society will publish a detailed account of the discovery.

A sensation has been caused in army circles by an order from the chief of the military department that all Adventist soldiers will be relieved from military duties on Saturdays. Such soldiers do not even have to report for duty. It is feared by many that a great many soldiers will now turn Adventists in order to avail themselves of an extra holiday.

WHITTIER RESIGNS POSITION

Superintendent of the State Training School Retires After Exoneration by Board of Control.

Superintendent Frank A. Whittier of the state training school for boys at Red Wing has been exonerated by the state board of control of charges made against him and he at once tendered his resignation, which was accepted.

The decision finding in favor of Whittier was signed by P. M. Ringdahl, chairman, and Charles E. Vasaly, Democratic members.

The decision of the board sustaining Whittier was unanimous, although C. J. Swendsen, the Republican member, dissented from some of the reasons advanced by his colleagues for the acquittal of Whittier.

Mr. Swendsen says that he does not see how the board can remove Mr. Whittier under the ruling of the attorney general on the points of law involved in the case.

"In view of the fact that the law, as constructed by the attorney general, gives the superintendent a wide discretion, and in view of the fact that no permanent injury has been inflicted on any of the inmates of the school, I do not believe that this board can lawfully remove Mr. Whittier."

Immediately following his exoneration Superintendent Whittier submitted his resignation as head of the Red Wing training school to the board. It was accepted, Mr. Whittier to remain until his successor is appointed.

FORMER MAYOR AMES DEAD

Prominent Minneapolis Physician Suddenly Passes Away.

Dr. Alonzo A. Ames, several times mayor of Minneapolis and one time Democratic candidate for governor, is dead. His death was unexpected and the doctor practically slept into death.

Dr. Ames was nearly seventy years old and was a graduate of Rush Medical college. He was assistant surgeon of the Ninth Minnesota volunteers and a member of the legislature in 1867. In 1876 he was elected mayor of Minneapolis as a Republican.

In 1882 he was defeated for the Republican nomination by C. M. Loring, but was nominated by the Democrats and defeated Loring by 1,800. In 1884 he defeated George A. Pillsbury for mayor by 6,000 votes and in 1886 he was the Democratic candidate for governor and was defeated by A. R. McGill by 2,500 votes. In 1900 he was elected mayor on the Republican ticket. It was in this term that the Ames graft scandal arose, during which the mayor, his brother, Fred W. Ames, who was chief of police, and several members of the police force were indicted for graft charges.

Mayor Ames resigned from office and disappeared. On his return he was tried and the first jury disagreed. He was convicted on the second trial and appealed to the supreme court, which ordered a new trial. On the third trial the jury disagreed and the case was dropped. His brother and several other police officers served short terms in state prison.

STEAMER LOAD OF BIG GAME

Returning Nimrods Say Hunting Best in Years.

Perhaps the greatest consignment of big game that ever was brought to Duluth reached that city on the steamer Eastman, which carried twenty moose carcasses and more than forty deer. The animals were shot along the north shore and the hunters returning say the hunting is the best in years.

One of the prizes of the entire load was an immense bull moose shot by Frank Berry. The animal weighed nearly 1,600 pounds undressed and was perfect in hide and antlers.

SHOCK VICTIM FINALLY DIES

Duluth Man Succumbs to 13,000-Volt Charge After Brave Fight.

David Carlson is dead, at Duluth as the result of 13,000 volts of electricity that passed through his body nearly a week previous. He was employed by the Great Northern Power company and touched the switch while doing some cleaning.

His fellow employes saw him fall, but were afraid to help him.

Two Men Asphyxiated.

Roommates for the last ten years, John Shield, fifty-seven years of age, and Frank Reilly, thirty-seven years of age, were found dead in their room at St. Paul. According to Coroner Jones death was due to gas poisoning. An unlighted gas jet was found open and the windows tarred. It is believed by Dr. Jones that one of the men turned off the gas and then accidentally turned it on.

WAVES AND BILLOWS ON THE ATLANTIC

"As Well as Ever," Is Pastor Russell's Message.

On the Atlantic Returning From Most Successful Lecturing Trip Abroad—Says That Church's Present Experiences Are by Way of Preparation For Her Future Work.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Nov. 10.—"As well as ever, thank God," was Pastor Russell's message to the millions who read his sermons weekly in the secular press. His text was from Psalm xlii, 1-8, especially the words "All thy waves and thy billows are gone over me." St. David spoke of his own experiences, his own tribulations; but prophetically he represented the Messiah—Head and Body—Jesus and His saintly few gathered during this Age out of all nations, sects and parties—"the Church of the First-borns, whose names are written in heaven.—Hebrews xii, 23.

In Love Not In Anger.

The Prophet's experiences—wave after wave of trouble, disappointments, etc.—he knew were not evidences of God's disfavor, but contrarywise proofs of the Heavenly Father's love and care—evidences that he was being taught of God, in preparation for a work which he was to do. He was pursued by Satan's devices and was like an antelope in the chase, famished for water. "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, oh! God;" "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God. When shall I come and appear before Thee, oh God? When will my trials, my testing be finished? When shall I be received into everlasting fellowship as the Son of the Highest."

The people in general could not understand how Divine favor could be with one so tempted, so tried, so beset by persecutors, so maligned; as he said, "Mine enemies speak evil of me: When shall he die and his name perish? If he come to me as a reporter, he speaketh falsely; his heart gathereth iniquity to itself; when he goeth abroad he telleth it." "All that hate me whisper together against me."—Psalm xli, 5-7.

Full of faith St. David would not be overwhelmed. His faith would outride the storms. He would learn his lesson. He would thus demonstrate his faith, his loyalty to God.

The Greater David—Beloved.

Pastor Russell declared the most important feature of St. David's career centered in the fact that he typified the Messiah—Head and Members. The name David signifies Beloved, and Messiah is the beloved Son of God. He is the Chief or Head over this house of sons, all of whom are God's dear children—Beloved. Thus the prophecies of the future in which David figures prominently are properly understood to refer to the great work of Messiah's Kingdom—the Throne of David will be the Throne of Messiah which will be established under the whole heavens.

The waves and billows of trouble which passed over the Prophet David, typified the trials and difficulties of the narrow way in which Jesus and His faithful followers of the new creation must walk to attain the promised glory, honor and immortality. St. David's trials of faith and loyalty to God typed the faith and loyalty of Christ Jesus and the Church amid the trials that will come with the end of the present night time, ushering in the New Day, in which Christ will reign in righteousness for the overthrow of sin and death. They may rejoice in hope, knowing that all things are working together for good to them, because they love God supremely. (Romans viii, 28.) "Weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning."—Psalm xxx, 5

Our Mission Now—and Then.

Sin, the fall, degradation and selfishness have had the effect of hardening the hearts of mankind. They are stony-hearted by reason of the prevalent selfishness; the tender-hearted, who love righteousness, are bruised—wounded—broken. This heart-breaking is not injurious.

The broken-hearted are the more ready to receive the message of God's love and mercy. It is of this broken-hearted class that the Lord is making up His Elect Church. "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." So far from its being the mission of the Church to break men's hearts it is the very reverse—it is theirs "to bind up the broken-hearted."

Then will come the Church's future work for which all of her present experiences are preparations—are being overruled by Divine providence. Present experiences with trials and difficulties, battling with the waves of trouble and obtaining Divine assistance to surmount them, will all be valuable preparations of the Church for her future work of glory. Then she will be perfect with her Redeemer on His heavenly throne. How much her own present experiences will serve to make this class sympathetic and merciful priests of God toward men "in the Ages to come" (Ephesians ii, 5-7), none but God can foretell.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL

Fourteen secretaries of as many retail lumber dealers' associations, indicted by a special federal grand jury at Chicago for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, constituted a new kind of "trust," according to the United States attorneys who conducted the investigation. The retail lumber dealers, it was admitted at the close of the investigation, had no corporation, no capital stock and did not try to control prices and prevent competition among themselves. Instead they had what the attorneys say was a "trust of power" and sought to provide that all lumber should be sold to consumers only through retail dealers and not by wholesalers or manufacturers. The men, as secretaries of the retail associations, constitute the Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information, incorporated in Illinois in 1905, and represents thousands of retailers.

The United States circuit court of the Eighth district, sitting at St. Louis, filed an opinion that the purchase of the Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific did "not amount to a direct and substantial restraint of either interstate or international commerce." The recent decision of the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil case was cited among others by Judge Elmer B. Adams, who wrote the majority opinion. Supreme Court Justice Willis Van Devanter, while a circuit judge of the Eighth district, participated in the hearing, deliberation and conclusion in the case and concurred in the opinion. Judge William C. Hook filed a dissenting opinion.

The United States circuit court for the district of Delaware handed down a decision declaring that the alleged powder trust, which is dominated by the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company, is a combination in restraint of interstate commerce in powder and other explosives, in violation of section 1 of the Sherman anti-trust law; that it attempts to monopolize and has monopolized a part of such commerce, in violation of section 2 of the same law, and decreeing that the combination shall be enjoined from continuing this violation and that it shall be dissolved.

Advances in the minimum charge for the transportation of freight in single packages and in small lots proposed by the railways in classification territory, to become effective July 1, were suspended by the interstate commerce commission until Oct. 28 next. The suspension affects approximately 600 roads.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie road has bought valuable and extensive freight terminal property in Chicago. This property cost millions of dollars and will be improved with freight tracks and freight house.

His Slang Won.

A ragged wayfarer accosted a well dressed pedestrian on Fifth avenue and said:

"It is up to you whether I flop."

"I construe this," said the well dressed one, "to be the usual request for money. There is a quarter. It is not alms. I will pay it to you for a definition of flop as you use the word."

"Flop," explained the ragged one, grinning, "means to sleep. I make a book they nick your wad for ten swell slugs every time you flop. Take it from me, kid, ten of those in our set is good for an even hundred nights."

"Here is $10, then," smiled the well dressed one. "Flop a hundred."—New York Globe.

NEW POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

St. Paul and Minneapolis to Have Them Sept. 1.

After weeks of speculation and unofficial reports fixing various dates, St. Paul, together with Minneapolis and eight other cities of the large class, will get their much talked of postal savings bank Sept. 1, according to an order signed by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

Encouraged by the success of the postal banking system in the hundreds of smaller cities where it already is in operation the postmaster general decided to install them in ten cities of the United States, known in the postal service as group B of the first class. They include in addition to St. Paul and Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Wilmington, Del., and Long Island City. All of these cities rank high as industrial and commercial centers and all have a large foreign born population.

REPEAL CLAPP AMENDMENT

Oklahoman Has Solution of White Earth Difficulties.

Major J. R. Howard, superintendent of the White Earth Indian agency in Minnesota, was the only witness before the committee on expenditures in the interior department, which is investigating the Indian administration in Minnesota.

Representative Ferris of Oklahoma, a member of the committee, made a suggestion in the hearing which failed to find sympathy with Representative Graham of Illinois, the chairman. Mr. Ferris gave it as his belief that the crux of the situation was the necessity for the repeal of the Clapp amendment. The whole matter, he declared, should be referred to the committee on Indian affairs, with a recommendation for legislation providing for the repeal of the Clapp law, which permits the mixed bloods to alienate their allotments.

A Washington merchant whose store was No. 1313 failed on Friday, October 13th. Yet there are people who do not believe in hoodooes.

Martz in Washington.

C. H. Martz left last week for Washington, D. C., where he went as the chief witness in the investigation which is being conducted there against the Rockefeller interests.

Alleged graft in connection with the purchase by the Rockefeller interests of the Duluth, Massabe & Northern railroad from the great Minnesota ore field to Lake Superior, is the main cause for the investigation.

Mr. Martz was the engineer who made the original survey for the Duluth, Missabee & Northern railroad, which is now a subsidiary of the steel trust.

In regard to the case the St. Paul Dispatch of yesterday says in part:

The story of how Mr. Rockefeller acquired the Duluth, Massabee & Northern railroad from the great Minnesota ore field to Lake Superior, by loaning money to the Merritt brothers of Duluth, original builders of the road, and then taking the property over when the debt wasn't paid, was briefly told by Charles H. Martz, the engineer who built the road for the Merritts.

Martz told the committee that Joseph R. Cotton, of Duluth, as Mr. Rockefeller's counsel when he acquired the railroad in the early nineties, urged him to make a report to the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission, declaring that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern cost $5,000,000 to build, when, as a matter of fact, it cost only $1,700,000. He was unable to do this and lost his job not long thereafter.

Martz also complained that nineteen of the forty-nine shares of stock he held in the road had been taken from him and never returned and that he was forced to sell the other 30 shares to Mr. Rockefeller at $30 a share although it now pays $200 a share in annual dividends.

CO. STATEMENT

Semi-Annual Statement of County Treasurer Published This Week.

The first semi-annual statement of the condition of Pennington county treasury is published in this week's issue of the News. This statement is issued in compliance with Chapter 522, Revised laws of 1905, which makes it necessary for the county treasurer to have the statement published in one of the papers in this county.

The statement shows a neat sum on hand which is accounted for by the large amount of money in the school and tax fund and the undistributed taxes.

DISTRICT NO. 17, MARSHALL CO.

Mr. Walberg, Sr., went to Warren Saturday on business.

Ed Larson and his father in law, Mr. Simonson, went out east about 25 miles last week where each filed on a homestead. They are well pleased with their new location and expect to move onto their claims in the spring.

Mr. Mussy moved into town last week with part of his family where they will attend the schools for the coming year. His son will remain on the farm and look after the stock.

S. R. Rogers has been hauling wood the past week and has now a fine pile in his yard. He has also engaged Mr. Ali to drill a well for him on the farm he lately bought, being the Larson farm five miles north of town.

Mr. Oslund and his son are making a fine improvement along the river bank by clearing it off and triming up the young trees.

Ole Nelson has just returned from near Nelson, N. D., where he had been harvesting and threshing the past summer and fall.

Young M. Weborg has been hauling wheat to town the past week.

FAILED TO PASS

Proposition to Place City Utilities In Hands of Commission Not Looked Upon With Favor.

A special invitation was extended to the citizens to be present at the meeting of the city council last Tuesday evening at which time the advisableness of placing the public utilities in the hands of a commission was discussed.

The issue was discussed at length and the sentiment of those present favoring or not favoring the plan was heard. Inasmuch as the proposition failed to meet with the approval of the big majority it was likewise turned down by the council.

The main reasons expressed as objections was that the matter should be left for the in-coming council to decide and not to be left in the hands of the present council.

The meeting was also called as a preliminary step to voice the sentiment of the public in regard to a commission plan for this city some time in the future.

Island of Patmos.

Commercialism has somewhat dimmed the romance of the island of Patmos, to which the Apostle John was exiled. There he saw the visions of the Apocalypse. The island is rocky and barren, containing sixteen square miles. On a mountain stands the monastery of John the Divine, built in 1068. Greek sponge fishers to the number of about 4,000 inhabit the island, which is now under Turkish rule, and by unremitting energy manage to earn little more than enough to eke out their existence.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The demand for the abolition of the commerce court, which has been smoldering for months and which burst into flame with that tribunal's decision of the intermountain rate cases, has assumed serious proportions. The Democratic house is eager for the chance to repeal the provision of the law creating the court and developments indicate that a sufficient number of votes in the Republican senate are available for the passage of the repeal through that body.

The state department practically has decided to send a regiment of troops from Manila to Chinwingtao, a seaport in China about 250 miles from Peking, on the Gulf of Pechili. The purpose is to perform an international duty under the Boxer treaty in keeping open the line of communication between Peking and the sea.

The arrest of General Bernardo Reyes by United States authorities at San Antonio, Tex., on a charge of violation of the neutrality laws is exactly in line with the policy of this government to stamp out revolutionary activities against Mexico in United States territory, according to Secretary of State Knox.

President Taft is planning to take up the high cost of living in a special message to congress when he transmits the report of the tariff board's investigation of the wool and cotton schedules. It is also said the president will vigorously renew his recommendation for a parcels post.

The government will appeal to the United States supreme court from the decision of the commerce court granting temporary injunctions of the orders of the interstate commerce commission in the transcontinental freight rate case.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

Coincident with the issuance of orders by Governor O. B. Colquitt of Texas to Adjutant General Hutchins that all Mexican revolutionists near Laredo must leave Texas within forty-eight hours and the announcement that President Taft had instructed Secretary of War Stimson to co-operate with Governor Colquitt an order was issued by the war department directing Troop I, Third United States cavalry, to hurry to Laredo.

The government will not appeal from the decision of the United States circuit court at New York which approved the plan of dissolution proposed by the American Tobacco company. While the government may ask the supreme court to review the decision at any time within a year it is learned that Attorney General Wickersham was not planning to do so at this time and probably will not.

Exploration of the bottom of the battleship Maine about 150 feet aft of the bow revealed a plate, identified as forming a portion of the outer hull of the ship on the port side near the keel and under the magazines, as having been blown inward, the upper part being folded inward. This apparently could result only from external pressure.

POISON OF WORRY

Worry is one of the few things that we can lay down a law against, as it is absolutely poisonous. Unlike other poisons, it does not stimulate, but is a depressing, paralyzing and breaking up poison. It is a sheer waste of energy, and life would become much more bearable if only people would take things philosophically, as a matter of course.—Eustace Miles.

All Happens In a Second.

A second is the smallest division of time in general use, and when we consider that in one year there are about 31,558,000 of these periods it would certainly seem as if it was enough for all practical purposes. But, after all, a good deal can happen in the fraction of a second.

A light wave, for instance, passes through a distance of about 186,000 miles in this length of time. A current of electricity has probably an even greater speed. The earth in itself moves in its orbit at a rate of about twenty miles a second.

A tuning fork of the French standard vibrates 870 times per second to produce the note A on the treble staff.

Drawing the Line.

A London tailor made his pile and retired to a Welsh castle, where he set up as a squire. But the tailor had hardly got established as a squire when a London hatter retired and set up in a neighboring castle as a squire also. It was disgusting.

A friend, apropos of the former hatter's coming, said to the ex-tailor:

"Will you call on him?"

"Not I," was the reply. "One must draw the line somewhere."

"And so," said the friend, "you draw it round the neck, eh?"

Enjoying a Novelty.

"The newest cook we've got seems to be satisfied," announced Mrs. Hiram Weekleigh proudly.

"Has she made up her mind to stay with us?"

"She has."

"Discharge her at once!"

"Hiram! Just when we've got one at last who"—

"Yes. We've had a dozen cooks in as many weeks, and we've never had a chance to fire one yet. Go on. I want to see how it feels."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TRUE FRIENDSHIP.

The majority of men recognize nothing in human affairs as good unless it yields some return, and they love those friends most from whom they hope to obtain the most profit. Thus they lack that loveliest and most natural form of friendship which is sought for its own sake only, nor do they know from experience how beautiful and how lofty such friendship is.

The New Kind Of A School

A school based on tradition, but on the peoples' NEEDS; a school that meets conditions as they are today, and not as they were a century ago; a school that fits you to be useful in actual life and not artificial in a drawing room:—

Such a school is the Commercial Normal.

For instance, many new comers among us from Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Germany and France need to learn the English language quickly and accurately.

We have teachers who understand THEIR language to teach them English.

In our commercial department pupils are taught what they need to know and how to use what they know.

He Talked Shop.

He was a railroad man and spoke mostly in railroad terms. He was the father of two boys. One day he invited the minister home to dinner. The hungry boys wanted to pitch in as usual, but the father in a stern voice cautioned them to wait. The minister bowed his head to return thanks. The boys, innocent of what was being done, began to eat before the blessing was half said. "Excuse me a minute," said the father, addressing the minister, "until I switch a few empties."

Stopping a Train.

Of the informalities of railway traveling in Scotland half a century ago Dr. John Ker gives some instances in his "Memories Grave and Gay." "At Ordens, a siding on the Banff branch line," he wrote, "I was instructed to go to this siding, and, as the train approached, to set light to a newspaper or any other material that would make a good blaze and the train would stop. The night was dark and windy, and I failed to set fire to the newspaper, but a stentorian shout had the same effect and I was taken aboard."

PASTOR RUSSELL AROUND THE WORLD

Chairman of Investigating Committee of Seven.

Visit to Heathen Lands Is Not In the Hope of Converting Them—Heathen Have More Than Doubled In Last Century—Kingdom Must Be Established Before Every Knee Will Bow.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Brooklyn, December 8. — The public was not made aware of Pastor Russell's presence in our city today. No notices were given out because the Academy of Music was not obtainable, and the Tabernacle would not accommodate the crowds. As it was, however, the Tabernacle was crowded. The afternoon text was, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved."—Jeremiah viii, 20.

The Pastor seemed specially to enjoy the semi-privacy of this meeting with the Tabernacle congregation. As is generally known he is about to start on a tour of the world in company with a committee of six gentlemen of affairs, of which he is the chosen Chairman. The committee was appointed some months ago by the International Bible Students Association to visit heathen lands and investigate conditions there and report to the Association and to the public their findings along the following lines:

The Committee's Instructions.

(1) Are the foreign Missions being conducted along Christian business lines?

(2) To what extent are the methods used successful in reaching the heathen peoples and in bringing them to Christianity?

(3) What are the teachings, what the inducements to accept Christianity and how enduring are the results?

(4) What is the attitude of Heathendom toward the Missionaries and toward Christianity and what are the prospects for Foreign Missions becoming self-sustaining?

(5) What, if any, changes should be made in teaching or in financial administration to make the foreign missionary work more successful in future?

(6) What hope is there for the conversion of the world in this generation as proposed by the Layman's Missionary Movement with its thirty-million-dollar endowment?

(7) To what extent do the monies donated benefit the heathen and could any improvement along this line be suggested?

Only the Church Harvested.

The Pastor reminded his hearers that he believes the Bible to teach that we are now in the Harvest time of this Age. Consequently none should misunderstand the visit to heathen lands to imply any expectation on his part that the heathen must be converted before this Age will end. That such would be a human impossibility is shown by the government statistics—the numbers of heathen having doubled during the past century.

What he does expect is that as there are a few of God's "very elect" in all denominations of Christendom now to be garnered, so also there are a few saintly ones amongst the heathen who have accepted Christ—including some of the missionaries. The Harvest must cover as wide an area as did the sowing of the Gospel seed.

The Foolish Virgins Not Lost.

The text points out a lesson. Not all who have professed to be followers of Christ will be amongst the blessed ones of the Harvest and be transported by the First Resurrection" to glory, honor and immortality.

Among the Redeemer's parables, the Pastor said, is one which pictures the consecrated saints of God in this harvest time as virgins. But some were wise and some foolish—all virgins, however. The masses of mankind—yea, the masses of Christendom, are omitted from this parabolic picture. Only the virgin class is dealt with at all, and it is divided into two parts. Only the wise, the faithful, "more than conquerors," will have the honor of entering into the wedding with the Bridegroom and becoming "the Bride, the Lamb's wife." Then the door will be shut. No more will ever enter that door. No more will ever be added to the Bride company—the number of the "Elect" will have been completed.

Later on the foolish virgins pass through tribulation and obtain the oil and the light which they should have had before. But it will then be too late to be of the Bride company. They will knock saying, "Lord, Lord open unto us;" but the Bridegroom will declare, I do not recognize you as members of My Bride.

The Scriptures show us elsewhere that these "foolish virgins," passing through a great time of tribulation, will be called to the marriage supper of the Lamb and be presented before the great King as the virgins, the Bride's companions and subordinate helpers.—Psalm xlv, 13-15.

One lesson, said the Pastor, is that it is not sufficient that we say, "Lord, Lord"—that we publicly proclaim ourselves Christians—nor is it sufficient that we be engaged in good works. Obedience to the Word is necessary.

DEEP CUT IN IRON ORE RATES

Steel Corporation Roads Announce Large Reduction.

Ore rates on the two Iron Range roads of the United States Steel corporation in Minnesota will be cut to 60 cents a gross ton within the next thirty or forty days. The announcement of the proposed reduction came from President William A. McGonagle of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern and was later confirmed by President Frank E. House of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad.

The present rate on iron ore is 80 cents per gross ton from all Mesabi range points to Duluth. This rate covers all shipping points on the Duluth, Missabe and Northern road, and all the Mesabi range points on the Duluth and Iron Range railroad. From Tower the rate is 90 cents to the docks at Two Harbors and from Ely it is $1.

When the proposed change takes effect there will be a flat rate of 60 cents a ton from all points on the two ranges. The cut from Ely will, therefore, amount to 40 per cent; from Tower 33⅓ per cent and from all Mesabi range points 25 per cent.

The Great Northern, it is believed, will be compelled to meet the reduction.

ST. PAUL LEADS IN DEPOSITS

Heads Cities Where Postal Savings Banks Started Sept. 1.

St. Paul's postal savings bank, with a total of deposits of $72,549 for the month of September, leads those of all other cities in which these institutions were established on Sept. 1, and compared to cities having much larger populations, and in which the banks have been in operation for two months, has made a remarkable record, according to a statement issued by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The statement covers the business done by each of the twenty-five leading depositories, including all of the cities having postoffices of the first class.

According to the statistics Boston in two months accumulated only $10,000 more than the people of St. Paul deposited in one month.

Juhl Given Life Sentence.

Peter Juhl, who shot and killed Detective Frank Fraser at St. Paul on Aug. 12 last, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced by Judge Grier M. Orr to life imprisonment. Juhl killed the detective while at liberty, having escaped from the state prison with Jerry McCarthy, who also killed Policeman Ollinger in Minneapolis and was himself killed.

Passing of St. Paul Pioneer.

N. P. Langford, one of the discoverers of Yellowstone park and its first superintendent, who first reached St. Paul in 1854, traveled overland to the Rocky mountains in 1862, in great hardships and perils, was a leader of the vigilantes that put down conditions of outlawry in Montana and president of the Minnesota Historical society, is dead at St. Paul at the age of seventy-nine.

Death by Poison.

In Greece poison was the favorite method of capital punishment and of suicide. Valerius Maximus relates that he saw a "woman of quality in the island of Ceos who, having lived happily for ninety years, obtained leave to take a poisonous draft lest by living longer she should happen to have a change in her good fortune."

Chinese History.

The Chinese claim for their civilization an antiquity of from 80,000 to 100,000 years, but the claim deserves no particular consideration. Most of the eastern peoples claim for themselves a similar antiquity. There are few authentic dates in Chinese history prior to the year 600 B. C., though, of course, the Chinese civilization greatly antedates that period. It is safe to say that the Chinese is among the oldest of existing civilizations, but when it comes to being precise it is quite out of the question.

Fish as Mirrors.

A scientist says he always fancied little fish were protected against the mouths of the big fish chiefly by their markings looking like the stones and reeds in the water, but he now concludes that all shining silvery fish are mirrors, reflecting the dark bottom of the pond, and it is only when such fish come to the surface that the light shines on them, and they become visible to the big fish that prey on little fish. So long as the little silvery fish stay close to the bottom they look like mud and stones, only showing their shining silver when they come near the top and so are soon swallowed down.—Detroit Free Press.

The black buck of India is a very graceful animal, weighing between thirty and fifty pounds. The hide of the male when full grown is of inky blackness on the back, while the belly is as white as snow, the contrast being very striking. The horns are black and spiral in shape and in length average about eighteen inches, although they have been known to reach twenty-six inches. The animals are usually found in herds and are difficult to approach on foot, as the bucks toss their heads in the air from time to time in a very graceful manner, and some of them are almost sure to detect any attempt at stalking.

LAUGHTER.

"He who laughs," said the mother of Goethe, "can commit no deadly sin." Sterne declares that every laugh lengthens our lease of life. Even the cold and cynical Carlyle declares, in his extreme fashion, that "no man who has heartily and wholly laughed can be altogether irreclaimably depraved," and Sydney Smith said, "God has given us wit and flavor and brightness and laughter and perfumes to enliven the days of man's pilgrimage and to charm his pained steps over the burning marl."

The Formation of Gold.

The Indians have a theory concerning the formation of gold. It was formed after the deluge. The deluge was about the time when the leaves of the trees were turning yellow. The winds came before this flood and blew the leaves in all directions. Where the leaves lodged at the time of the deluge is where the gold is now found. The gold is found in two forms—in nuggets and in leaf form. The nuggets were formed by the leaves blowing and whirling into small nuggets, as they are now found. Where the gold is found in leaf form are the places where the leaves were buried by the washing of sand and rock by the waters of the flood.—Red Man.

TRIALS IN ITALY.

Criminal Court Methods There Utterly Different From Ours.

Criminal court trials in Italy are conducted under a very simple system, though utterly different from the system which governs procedure in American or English courts, says an exchange.

The trial takes place before three judges and a jury, to which are added a certain number of extra jurors, who are sworn and are present in court to hear the testimony and are held ready to take the place in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The depositions of all the witnesses have been taken in writing and signed before the trial begins. Each of the judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused furnish to the court a list of the witnesses they desire called, and these are all summoned by the court, which has power to punish nonattendance.

The first thing that happens when the trial begins is the questioning of the accused by the presiding justice. In Italy, as in most of continental Europe, a man accused of a crime is considered by the law to be the very best witness to his own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he chooses. In Italy he is the first and most important witness.

The accused is allowed the widest scope in defending himself. He has a right to tell his own story in his own way, to offer anything he can in the way of justification or palliation. Even hearsay evidence is admissible. The judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony may be received and what excluded, and any judge who exercised this discretion unfairly would be an object of execration. Bias on the part of one judge is possible, but there are always the other two judges on the bench with him, and they are a perfect check against unfairness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted personally with his accuser. The accuser is necessarily the principal witness against him. Strictly speaking, the prisoner has no right to interrupt his accuser while the latter is telling his story, but in practice the judges permit it, and the confrontation sometimes becomes a three cornered debate between accuser, accused and judge, the latter giving the accused the widest leeway to demonstrate his innocence.—Case and Comment.

How Watches Vary.

Theoretically, says [illegible] are perfect, but actually they both gain and lose time every day. Even if the good watch does not vary one second at the end of the twenty-four hours, the expert insists, it has both gained and lost in that time. If it is wound in the morning it runs fast and toward the next morning runs slow, thus equalizing the time. He says the best watches should be wound twice a day and then at only two-thirds of the capacity of the mainspring, thus preventing either binding or extremes of strong or weakened spring. The balance wheel was expected to equalize differences of mainspring tension, but really this is not the case to what is called perfection.—New York Press.

Boston's Winter and Summer.

Nearly all visitors to Boston, if they do not see it, are told of the place where one may "step from Winter into Summer or from Summer into Winter at any time of the year without giving a thought to his clothing." This may be done at the point where Washington street intersects the street which is "Winter" on one side and "Summer" on the other. A guide was enlarging on this bit of humor to a visitor from New York a few days ago, but was not rewarded by the smile which the Winter and Summer joke usually calls forth. "That's nothing," said the New Yorker, "but what is really funny here is to see the entrance to the underground railway marked 'The Elevator.'"—New York Tribune.

The Church Cough.

Of all coughs the church cough is the most difficult to check, and it is almost as contagious as yawning. The late Mr. Haweis practically cured his Marylebone congregation of coughing during the service. He used to announce an interval for coughing with a polite request to those who found this insufficient to go outside. There is a somewhat similar practice in the Russian army—the nose blowing drill—which is performed by the whole regiment at a signal from the colonel. And no soldier dares sneeze at any other time.—London Spectator.

The Old Order Passeth.

What has become of the old fashioned man who was about to solve the problem of perpetual motion?

And where is the old fashioned woman who wore gloves that reached only halfway to the end of her fingers?

Can anybody furnish information concerning the whereabouts of the old fashioned boy who wore mittens which were fastened to a long string?—Chicago Record-Herald.

Considerate.

"Why do you argue with your wife?" asked the bachelor. "Don't you know the futility of it?"

"Of course," replied the married man, "but I have to allow her a little pleasure once in awhile."—Puck.

Curiosities of Color.

After any severe shock you will be very likely to find that you have become temporarily color blind. Your perception of green light has probably gone, at least partially. White objects will then appear to you of a reddish purple and green objects to be very much duller in hue than ordinarily. Any one can make himself or herself temporarily color blind by wearing a pair of ruby red glasses. The prolonged action of red light on the eyes ends by tiring out the nerves which receive red light. Consequently when the glasses are at last removed a rainbow appears to have only two colors—yellow and blue.

Expert Witnesses.

A man appeared in the courts not long ago in Paris charged with insulting the police in the execution of their duty. He denied having done anything of the kind, but the police brought two witnesses into court to prove that he had not only been extremely rude, but had also attempted to strike the policeman who arrested him. The two witnesses were called. The first, who had "heard the insult," was an old man of eighty. He was stone deaf and could not hear the judge's [illegible]. The second, who "saw the assault," was an old lady. She was so blind that she had to be led to the witness bar. The prisoner was acquitted.—Paris Cor. London Express.

Good Hearted Cabbage.

A well known expert in cooking encountered trouble in a suburban community the other afternoon when she prepared to lecture at the Mothers' club. Her subject was "How to Cook." She began by telling how much a man appreciates good cooking and then she proposed to give various recipes.

Among the first was one for coldslaw. "To have this best," began the lecturer, "take a good hearted cabbage and"—

At this point a young matron interrupted. She was eager to get all the information possible. "Tell me, please," she spoke up, "how is one to know the disposition of a cabbage?"—Philadelphia Times.

A Grim Relic.

Collectors gather articles more or less interesting, but probably few go in for such bulky objects as those chosen by a distinguished Britisher. Old doors are the object of his desire. His doors come from old houses, castles and abbeys of historical interest. Some time ago he obtained at considerable cost a door through which during the French revolution Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday, Danton and Robespierre passed on their way to the guillotine.

The Habit of Acquisition.

"It beats me," said the philosopher, "that people will keep piling up money long after they have several times as much as they'll ever be able to use."

Then he went out for a walk. Passing a bookstore, he saw half a dozen very cheap books, which, however, he knew he hadn't time to read and doubted very much if he ever would have time to read. But they were cheap, and he bought them and sent them home to be added to his library, which already contained several times as many books as he would ever have time to read.

Nevertheless he continued to wonder at the senseless accumulation of money.—New York Times.

An Old Smoker's Trick.

"Hang it," remarked an old commuter, dropping into a seat in the smoker beside his daily companion, "I've busted my pipe, and now I've got to go through the torture of breaking in a new one." "Let this railroad break it in for you," returned his friend. "What? You don't understand that trick? It's an old smoker's recipe. Fill your new pipe—but wet the inside of the bowl first—light it, get it well started and then hold it out of the window with the mouth forward. The draft will keep it alight as well as you could by puffing on it. That will take the raw newness out of it. Try it and see."—Exchange.

Off the Map.

An Irishman called in at a Chinese laundry and found the proprietor counting his collars.

"Be jabers," said he, "you're a funny lookin' man—you wid the horse's mane hangin' down your back. And where—oh, where—do ye come from?"

But the oriental did not understand, so merely said, "Countee collars, countee collars."

"Bedad, then," said Mick, "ye're a loir, for there's no sich county in Oireland at all, at all."—London Ideas.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.

So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this advice. "Write as stated by letter, "I [illegible]

"But," she [illegible] done that, and it hasn't already been printed."

"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration with which we have nothing to do."

The Stepmother in the Classics.

The ancients were as bitter on the subject of the stepmother as any modern could be. Their metaphorical uses of these words for a stepmother are cruelly significant. Thus the Romans had an expression "to complain to a stepmother" (noverca), meaning to complain in vain, and "novercae," beginning no doubt as slang, came to be a recognized term for rough pieces of land or for ditches which drained off the water imperfectly and slowly. The Greeks were as bad with their word "metryix." Hesiod spoke of lucky and unlucky days as "mother and stepmother days," and Aeschylus brands a dangerous seacoast as "a stepmother to ships."—London Chronicle.

Saw the Whole of It.

Alexander weeping because the world was so small has a counterpart in an old inhabitant of Luss, a pretty little village on Loch Lomond side, Scotland, who at last has been persuaded to climb the mountain which has filled so large a part of his horizon all the days of his life. In Luss he has lived, as his fathers lived before him, and from Luss he has never had the ambition to journey, even as far as Glasgow. But some one got him to the top of Ben Lomond the other day.

"Eh, mon," said he, with great self congratulation, "but the world's a big place when ye come to view the whole of it!"—Dundee Advertiser.

Ruins of an Ancient City.

Adjoining Lake Titicaca, in Peru, lie the ruins of a great city whose origin was as much a matter of conjecture 400 years ago as it is today, according to the records of the Incas. The stone walls of the largest buildings were of excellent workmanship, and the gateways were elaborately carved. Evidence in abundance exists that the inhabitants were skilled masons. At present the region is cold and arid and entirely incapable of ripening cereals. It is inhabited by a few hardy mountaineers. It is evident that the climate is entirely different from what it was when the plateau was the center of a large population.

Benefits From Running.

Running is the great beautifier of figure and movement. It gives muscular development, strong heart action and free lung play. The muscle comes where it ought to be, the shoulders go back, the loins hold the trunk well balanced, and the feet take their correct positions. It was running which made the Greek figure. The more active tribes of American Indians have been runners from time immemorial, and from the chest to the heels they are much more beautifully built than the average of white men. Running people have usually the firm but elastic texture which is the beauty of flesh.—Exchange.

BRASS WORKERS.

Theirs Is a Dangerous Trade, and They Usually Die Young.

The present rate of mortality of the brass foundryman is two and a half times that of the farmer. Respiratory diseases, particularly consumption, account for the difference. Comparative tables based on sickness and invalidism, if obtainable, would show even greater differences.

The age statistics in the trade are startling. Of 1,751 brass foundrymen but seventeen over fifty years of age were found and a bare 200 over forty years of age. When asked the cause of this officials invariably stated: "They got too old. They can't turn out the work they should every day." But what sort of an industry is this in which nearly six-sevenths of its followers are too old at the age of forty? It is not thus among ironmolders, most of whom are hale and hearty even at sixty years and still able to turn out their full quota of work daily. Workmen claim they "are knocked out by the brass fumes."

These age statistics for Chicago workmen are no different from those Sir Thomas Oliver gives in his book on "Dangerous Trades:" "Only ten brass workers of 1,200 casters in Birmingham, England, were found living beyond sixty years. A superannuation insurance for brass founders, to begin at fifty-five years of age, had only three applicants in a period of some ten years."

There is no cure for brass chills. But they can be prevented by striking at the cause. For such an important industry not to do so is like tolerating smallpox in a modern community. The workmen must be protected from the breathing in of brass fumes and foundry smoke. In large foundries with good ventilation, either natural or artificial, brass chills practically never occur.—Emery R. Hayhurst in Survey.

HUNTING THE WOLF.

Trained Eagles Are Used by the Tartar Tribes of Asia.

There are many ways of hunting the wolf in Russia, some tame as target exciting and most sportsmanlike way practice of hounds, and all over [illegible] today there are well to do sportsmen who hunt the animal in this fashion. Wolves are also taken in pitfalls and shot, while still another way is to drive in a sleigh through the forest in time of hard frost, when the wolves are bold with hunger. At the back of the sleigh one or more sportsmen lie snugly under their fur rugs with their rifles ready. A young pig is carried in the sleigh, and its cries soon reach the ears of the lurking wolves, who cannot resist following the sleigh and are speedily shot.

One of the most picturesque ways of hunting the wolf, perhaps, is that which one may see in the west of Asia on the bleak Kirghiz steppes. The Tartar tribes are wonderful horsemen, and they ride after the wolf in very large parties. Not only are dogs used to overtake the quarry, but because a fleet wolf may get away from them, eagles are used, being trained to help the hunter in very much the same manner as falcons in olden times. The great bird sits on the hunter's wrist until it is let loose. Then it soars into the air, sails after the quarry and swoops down upon it. Its duty is not to kill, but to "bother" the wolf by flapping its wings in its face and driving its sharp claws into the animal's back. Such hunting makes capital sport for the riders; but, apart from this, wolf hunting is a real necessity in those parts, the brutes being far too partial to the lambs and kids of the Tartars' flocks.—Wide World Magazine.

Hard to Get Into Jail.

There was a queer old specimen of humanity brought to the Cuyahoga county jail. He had been convicted of the crime of cruelty to animals, and there was no doubt in anybody's mind that he richly deserved the penalty inflicted. It is the custom to examine prisoners, however, before they are assigned to their cells. When this old reprobate was brought up the interrogation went thus:

"What is your name?"

"Budd Dobbs."

"What is your age?"

"Sixty-eight."

"What is your religion?"

"Great snakes! Does a man hafter git religion before they'll let him inter jail in this county?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Gentle Reminder.

Neighbor—Hello, Jenkins! How are you? Haven't seen you in the garden for quite a time, and you never come and see the wife and me now. Why is it? Jenkins—Well, the fact is, old chap, that it's not through ill will or bad feeling or anything like that, you know; only you and Mrs. Possmore have borrowed so many things from me that when I see your place it makes me feel quite homesick.—London Answers.

Art and Science.

"What a beautiful picture of an angel!" said the lady who was visiting the art gallery.

"Yes," replied the aviation enthusiast, "but between you and me those wings aren't practical."—Washington Star.

KING OF THE ASPS.

This Reptile, the Most Venomous of Snakes, Is Death Itself.

The most venomous of snakes is said to be the Echis carinata of India. It is about eighteen inches long and of a gray color. The creature is death itself and carries in its head the secret of destroying life with the concentrated agony of all the poisons.

The Echis carinata is tolerably common in India, being found in nearly every part of the peninsula.

Fortunately, however, for man, it is not, like the cobra, a house frequenting snake, for its aggressive habits would make it infinitely more fatal to life than its dreaded relative.

This king of the asps does not turn to escape from man, as the cobra will, or flash into concealment, like the korait, but keeps the path against its human assailant and, pitting its own eighteen inches of length against its enemy's bulk, challenges and provokes conflict.

A stroke with a whip will cut it in two or a clod of earth disable it. But such is its malignity that it will invite attack by every device at its command, staking its own life on the mere chance of its adversary coming within the little circle of its power. At most the radius of this circle is twelve inches. Within it at any point lies certain death, and on the bare hope of hand or foot trespassing within its reach the Echis carinata throws its body into a figure of eight coil. Then it attracts attention by rubbing its loops together, which, from the roughness of the scales, make a rustling, hissing sound, erects its head in the center and awaits attack.

It is said that no one, having once encountered this terrible reptile, [illegible] ever forget its horrifying [illegible] thus aroused, its [illegible] in constant air, its restless [illegible] over the other and stant [illegible] all the while, [illegible] but surely bring it nearer and nearer to the object of its fury.—Harper's.

TWO NEW HATS.

The Scheme That Won Them and the Way It Was Worked.

A man who used to be in politics and was a constant borrower found himself in need of a new hat, but he couldn't find anybody who would lend him a cent.

Finally he went to an acquaintance and said:

"I want to borrow $50 for five minutes."

"You can have it if you will put up a couple of fingers for security."

"Nix. Now, I've got a scheme. You lend me the fifty and you needn't let me get out of your sight. If you do it I'll stake you to a new hat."

Mystified, but curious, the acquaintance agreed to this, and the two repaired to a prominent hat store.

"Wait a minute," said the adventurer and left his backer doing sentry duty on the sidewalk.

Picking out the most important-looking personage in the store, the politician went up to him and said:

"I am So-and-so of the —— district. I have come to pay for two hats for which I have given orders on you to two of my constituents."

With that he flashed a fifty dollar bill.

There was a scurrying around, a search of books and a reply that no such orders had been presented.

"Just look out for them, will you?" said the district leader, waving the big bill, which was hypnotic in its way, for the clerk bowed low and said, "Yes."

Half an hour later two orders were presented and two hats left the store.—Chicago Post.

The History of "Stepmother."

"Stepmother" is a word with a commonly unsuspected history. Probably most people if called upon to explain it would say that it meant a woman who had stepped into the place of the true mother. Dr. Johnson, at any rate, believed that this was the suggestion of the word to most minds. Really, "step" is the Anglo-Saxon "steop," the original meaning of which appears to have been "orphaned." Stepchild, stepbairn, stepson and stepdaughter came first, and then by gradual fading of the etymological meaning of "step" stepfather and stepmother came into being.—London Chronicle.

Japanese Landowners.

A landowner in Japan owns the surface and products of the land only. All minerals under the surface appertain not to him, but to the Japanese government. Moreover, should the government or its nominee wish to extract the minerals lying under a landowner's property the latter, though he would, of course, receive compensation for loss, cannot object on legal ground to the development of these minerals.—British Consular Report.

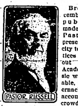
PASTOR RUSSELL AROUND THE WORLD

Chairman of Investigating Committee of Seven.

Visit to Heathen Lands Is Not In the Hope of Converting Them—Heathen Have More Than Doubled In Last Century—Kingdom Must Be Established Before Every Knee Will Bow.



PASTOR RUSSELL

Brooklyn, December 8. — The public was not made aware of Pastor Russell's presence in our city today. No notices were given out because the Academy of Music was not obtainable, and the Tabernacle would not accommodate the crowds. As it was, however, the Tabernacle was crowded. The afternoon text was, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved."—Jeremiah viii, 20.

The Pastor seemed specially to enjoy the semi-privacy of this meeting with the Tabernacle congregation. As is generally known he is about to start on a tour of the world in company with a committee of six gentlemen of affairs, of which he is the chosen Chairman. The committee was appointed some months ago by the International Bible Students Association to visit heathen lands and investigate conditions there and report to the Association and to the public their findings along the following lines:

The Committee's Instructions.

(1) Are the foreign Missions being conducted along Christian business lines?

(2) To what extent are the methods used successful in reaching the heathen peoples and in bringing them to Christianity?

(3) What are the teachings, what the inducements to accept Christianity and how enduring are the results?

(4) What is the attitude of Heathendom toward the Missionaries and toward Christianity and what are the prospects for Foreign Missions becoming self-sustaining?

(5) What, if any, changes should be made in teaching or in financial administration to make the foreign missionary work more successful in future?

(6) What hope is there for the conversion of the world in this generation as proposed by the Layman's Missionary Movement with its thirty-million-dollar endowment?

(7) To what extent do the monies donated benefit the heathen and could any improvement along this line be suggested?

Only the Church Harvested.

The Pastor reminded his hearers that he believes the Bible to teach that we are now in the Harvest time of this Age. Consequently none should misunderstand the visit to heathen lands to imply any expectation on his part that the heathen must be converted before this Age will end. That such would be a human impossibility is shown by the government statistics—the numbers of heathen having dou-

DEEP CUT IN IRON ORE RATES

Steel Corporation Roads Announce Large Reduction.

Ore rates on the two Iron Range roads of the United States Steel corporation in Minnesota will be cut to 60 cents a gross ton within the next thirty or forty days. The announcement of the proposed reduction came from President William A. McGonagle of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern and was later confirmed by President Frank E. House of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad.

The present rate on iron ore is 80 cents per gross ton from all Mesabi range points to Duluth. This rate covers all shipping points on the Duluth, Missabe and Northern road, and all the Mesabi range points on the Duluth and Iron Range railroad. From Tower the rate is 90 cents to the docks at Two Harbors and from Ely it is $1.

When the proposed change takes effect there will be a flat rate of 60 cents a ton from all points on the two ranges. The cut from Ely will, therefore, amount to 40 per cent; from Tower 33⅓ per cent and from all Mesabi range points 25 per cent.

The Great Northern, it is believed, will be compelled to meet the reduction.

ST. PAUL LEADS IN DEPOSITS

Heads Cities Where Postal Savings Banks Started Sept. 1.

St. Paul's postal savings bank, with a total of deposits of $72,549 for the month of September, leads those of all other cities in which these institutions were established on Sept. 1, and compared to cities having much larger populations, and in which the banks have been in operation for two months, has made a remarkable record, according to a statement issued by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The statement covers the business done by each of the twenty-five leading depositories, including all of the cities having postoffices of the first class.

According to the statistics Boston in two months accumulated only $10,000 more than the people of St. Paul deposited in one month.

Juhl Given Life Sentence.

Peter Juhl, who shot and killed Detective Frank Fraser at St. Paul on Aug. 12 last, pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree and was sentenced by Judge Grier M. Orr to life imprisonment. Juhl killed the detective while at liberty, having escaped from the state prison with Jerry McCarthy, who also killed Policeman Ollinger in Minneapolis and was himself killed.

Passing of St. Paul Pioneer.

N. P. Langford, one of the discoverers of Yellowstone park and its first superintendent, who first reached St. Paul in 1854, traveled overland to the Rocky mountains in 1862, in great hardships and perils, was a leader of the vigilantes that put down conditions of outlawry in Montana and president of the Minnesota Historical society, is dead at St. Paul at the age of seventy-nine.

Death by Poison.

In Greece poison was the favorite method of capital punishment and of suicide. Valerius Maximus relates that he saw a "woman of quality in the island of Coos who having lived hap-

LAUGHTER.

"He who laughs," said the mother of Goethe, "can commit no deadly sin." Sterne declares that every laugh lengthens our lease of life. Even the cold and cynical Carlyle declares, in his extreme fashion, that "no man who has heartily and wholly laughed can be altogether irreclaimably depraved," and Sydney Smith said, "God has given us wit and flavor and brightness and laughter and perfumes to enliven the days of man's pilgrimage and to charm his pained steps over the burning marl."

The Formation of Gold.

The Indians have a theory concerning the formation of gold. It was formed after the deluge. The deluge was about the time when the leaves of the trees were turning yellow. The winds came before this flood and blew the leaves in all directions. Where the leaves lodged at the time of the deluge is where the gold is now found. The gold is found in two forms—in nuggets and in leaf form. The nuggets were formed by the leaves blowing and whirling into small nuggets, as they are now found. Where the gold is found in leaf form are the places where the leaves were buried by the washing of sand and rock by the waters of the flood.—Red Man.

TRIALS IN ITALY.

Criminal Court Methods There Utterly Different From Ours.

Criminal court trials in Italy are conducted under a very simple system, though utterly different from the system which governs procedure in American or English courts, says an exchange.

The trial takes place before three judges and a jury, to which are added a certain number of extra jurors, who are sworn and are present in court to hear the testimony and are held ready to take the place in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The depositions of all the witnesses have been taken in writing and signed before the trial begins. Each of the judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused furnish to the court a list of the witnesses they desire called, and these are all summoned by the court, which has power to punish nonattendance.

The first thing that happens when the trial begins is the questioning of the accused by the presiding justice. In Italy, as in most of continental Europe, a man accused of a crime is considered by the law to be the very best witness to his own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he chooses. In Italy he is the first and most important witness.

The accused is allowed the widest scope in defending himself. He has a right to tell his own story in his own way, to offer anything he can in the way of justification or palliation. Even hearsay evidence is admissible. The judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony may be received and what excluded, and any judge who exercised this discretion unfairly would be an object of execration. Bias on the part of one judge is possible, but there are always the other two judges on the bench with him, and they are a perfect check against unfairness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted personally with his accuser. The accuser is necessarily the principal witness against him. Strictly speaking, the prisoner has no right to interrupt his accuser while the latter is telling his story, but in practice the judges permit it, and the confrontation sometimes becomes a three cornered debate between accuser, accused and judge, the latter giving the accused the widest leeway to demonstrate his innocence.—Case and Comment.

How Watches Vary.

Theoretically, says a jeweler, the best watches of today are perfect, but actually they both gain and lose time every day. Even if the good watch does not vary one second at the end of the twenty-four hours, the expert insists, it has both gained and lost in that time. If it is wound in the morning it runs fast and toward the next morning runs slow, thus equalizing the time. He says the best watches should be wound twice a day and then at only two-thirds of the capacity of the mainspring, thus preventing either binding or extremes of strong or weakened spring. The balance wheel was expected to equalize differences of mainspring tension, but really this is not the case to what is called perfection.—New York Press.

Boston's Winter and Summer.

Nearly all visitors to Boston, if they do not see it, are told of the place where one may "step from Winter into Summer or from Summer into Winter at any time of the year without giving a thought to his clothing." This may be done at the point where Washington street intersects the street which is "Winter" on one side and "Summer" on the other. A guide was enlarging on this bit of humor to a visitor from New York a few days ago, but was not rewarded by the smile which the Winter and Summer joke usually calls forth. "That's nothing," said the New Yorker, "but what is really funny here is to see the entrance to the underground railway marked 'The Elevator.'"—New York Tribune.

The Church Cough.

Of all coughs the church cough is the most difficult to check, and it is almost as contagious as yawning. The late Mr Haweis practically cured his Marylebone congregation of coughing during the service. He used to announce an interval for coughing with a polite request to those who found this insufficient to go outside. There is a somewhat similar practice in the Russian army—the nose blowing drill—which is performed by the whole regiment at a signal from the colonel. And no soldier dares sneeze at any other time.—London Spectator.

The Old Order Passeth.

What has become of the old fashioned man who was about to solve the problem of perpetual motion?

And where is the old fashioned woman who wore gloves that reached only halfway to the end of her fingers?

Can anybody furnish information concerning the whereabouts of the old fashioned boy who wore mittens which were fastened to a long string?—Chicago Record Herald.

"Of course," replied the married man, "but I have to allow her a little pleasure once in awhile."—Puck.

Curiosities of Color.

After any severe shock you will be very likely to find that you have become temporarily color blind. Your perception of green light has probably gone, at least partially. White objects will then appear to you of a reddish purple and green objects to be very much duller in hue than ordinarily. Any one can make himself or herself temporarily color blind by wearing a pair of ruby red glasses. The prolonged action of red light on the eyes ends by tiring out the nerves which receive red light. Consequently when the glasses are at last removed a rainbow appears to have only two colors—yellow and blue.

Expert Witnesses.

A man appeared in the courts not long ago in Paris charged with insulting the police in the execution of their duty. He denied having done anything of the kind, but the police brought two witnesses into court to prove that he had not only been extremely rude, but had also attempted to strike the policeman who arrested him. The two witnesses were called. The first, who had "heard the insult," was an old man of eighty. He was stone deaf and could not hear the judge's questions. The second, who had seen the attempted assault, was an old lady. She was so blind that she had to be led to the witness bar. The prisoner was acquitted.—Paris Cor. London Express.

Good Hearted Cabbage.

A well known expert in cooking encountered trouble in a suburban community the other afternoon when she prepared to lecture at the Mothers' club. Her subject was "How to Cook." She began by telling how much a man appreciates good cooking and then she proposed to give various recipes.

Among the first was one for coldslaw. "To have this best," began the lecturer, "take a good hearted cabbage and"—

At this point a young matron interrupted. She was eager to get all the information possible. "Tell me, please," she spoke up, "how is one to know the disposition of a cabbage?"—Philadelphia Times.

A Grim Relic.

Collectors gather articles more or less interesting, but probably few go in for such bulky objects as those chosen by a distinguished Britisher. Old doors are the object of his desire. His doors come from old houses, castles and abbeys of historical interest. Some time ago he obtained at considerable cost a door through which during the French revolution Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday, Danton and Robespierre passed on their way to the guillotine.

The Habit of Acquisition.

"It beats me," said the philosopher, "that people will keep piling up money long after they have several times as much as they'll ever be able to use."

Then he went out for a walk. Passing a bookstore, he saw half a dozen very cheap books, which, however, he knew he hadn't time to read and doubted very much if he ever would have time to read. But they were cheap, and he bought them and sent them home to be added to his library which already contained several times as many books as he would ever have time to read.

Nevertheless he continued to wonder at the senseless accumulation of money.—New York Times.

An Old Smoker's Trick.

"Hang it," remarked an old commuter, dropping into a seat in the smoker beside his daily companion, "I've busted my pipe, and now I've got to go through the torture of breaking in a new one." "Let this railroad break it in for you," returned his friend. "What? You don't understand that trick? It's an old smoker's recipe. Fill your new pipe—but wet the inside of the bowl first—light it, get it well started and then hold it out of the window with the mouth forward. The draft will keep it alight as well as you could by puffing on it. That will take the raw newness out of it. Try it and see."—Exchange.

Off the Map.

An Irishman called in at a Chinese laundry and found the proprietor counting his collars.

"Be jabers," said he, "you're a funny lookin' man—you wid the horse's mane hangin' down your back. And where—oh, where—do ye come from?"

But the oriental did not understand, so merely said, "Countee collars, countee collars."

"Bedad, then," said Mick, "ye're a liar, for there's no sich county in Oireland at all, at all."—London Ideas.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.

So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of advice, "Write something."

"But," she protested by letter, "I already have done that, and it hasn't been printed."

"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration with which we have nothing to do."

The Stepmother In the Classics.

The ancients were as bitter on the subject of the stepmother as any modern could be. Their metaphorical uses of these words for a stepmother are cruelly significant. Thus the Romans had an expression "to complain to a stepmother" (noverca), meaning to complain in vain, and "novercae," beginning no doubt as slang, came to be a recognized term for rough pieces of land or for ditches which drained off the water imperfectly and slowly. The Greeks were as bad with their word "metryix." Hesiod spoke of lucky and unlucky days as "mother and stepmother days," and Aeschylus brands a dangerous seacoast as "a stepmother to ships."—London Chronicle.

Saw the Whole of It.

Alexander weeping because the world was so small has a counterpart in an old inhabitant of Luss, a pretty little village on Loch Lomond side, Scotland, who at last has been persuaded to climb the mountain which has filled so large a part of his horizon all the days of his life. In Luss he has lived, as his fathers lived before him, and from Luss he has never had the ambition to journey, even as far as Glasgow. But some one got him to the top of Ben Lomond the other day.

"Eh, mon," said he, with great self congratulation, "but the world's a big place when ye come to view the whole of it!"—Dundee Advertiser.

Ruins of an Ancient City.

Adjoining Lake Titacaca, in Peru, lie the ruins of a great city whose origin was as much a matter of conjecture 400 years ago as it is today, according to the records of the Incas. The stone walls of the largest buildings were of excellent workmanship, and the gateways were elaborately carved. Evidence in abundance exists that the inhabitants were skilled masons. At present the region is cold and arid and entirely incapable of ripening cereals. It is inhabited by a few hardy mountaineers. It is evident that the climate is entirely different from what it was when the plateau was the center of a large population.

Benefits From Running.

Running is the great beautifier of figure and movement. It gives muscular development, strong heart action and free lung play. The muscle comes where it ought to be, the shoulders go back, the loins hold the trunk well balanced, and the feet take their correct positions. It was running which made the Greek figure. The more active tribes of American Indians have been runners from time immemorial, and from the chest to the heels they are much more beautifully built than the average of white men. Running people have usually the firm but elastic texture which is the beauty of flesh.—Exchange.

BRASS WORKERS.

Theirs Is a Dangerous Trade, and They Usually Die Young.

The present rate of mortality of the brass foundryman is two and a half times that of the farmer. Respiratory diseases, particularly consumption, account for the difference. Comparative tables based on sickness and invalidism, if obtainable, would show even greater differences.

The age statistics in the trade are startling. Of 1,751 brass foundrymen but seventeen over fifty years of age were found and a bare 200 over forty years of age. When asked the cause of this officials invariably stated: "They got too old. They can't turn out the work they should every day." But what sort of an industry is this in which nearly six-sevenths of its followers are too old at the age of forty? It is not thus among ironmolders, most of whom are hale and hearty even at sixty years and still able to turn out their full quota of work daily. Workmen claim they "are knocked out by the brass fumes."

These age statistics for Chicago workmen are no different from those Sir Thomas Oliver gives in his book on "Dangerous Trades:" "Only ten brass workers of 1,200 casters in Birmingham, England, were found living beyond sixty years. A superannuation insurance for brass founders, to begin at fifty-five years of age, had only three applicants in a period of some ten years."

There is no cure for brass chills. But they can be prevented by striking at the cause. For such an important industry not to do so is like tolerating smallpox in a modern community. The workmen must be protected from the breathing in of brass fumes and foundry smoke. In large foundries with good ventilation, either natural or artificial, brass chills practically never occur.—Emery R. Hayhurst in Survey.

HUNTING THE WOLF.

Trained Eagles Are Used by the Tartar Tribes of Asia.

There are many ways of hunting the wolf in Russia, some very curious and exciting and others as tame as target practice. The most sportsmanlike way is by means of hounds, and all over Russia today there are well to do sportsmen who hunt the animal in this fashion. Wolves are also taken in pitfalls and shot, while still another way is to drive in a sleigh through the forest in time of hard frost, when the wolves are bold with hunger. At the back of the sleigh one or more sportsmen lie snugly under their fur rugs with their rifles ready. A young pig is carried in the sleigh, and its cries soon reach the ears of the lurking wolves, who cannot resist following the sleigh and are speedily shot.

One of the most picturesque ways of hunting the wolf, perhaps, is that which one may see in the west of Asia on the bleak Kirghiz steppes. The Tartar tribes are wonderful horsemen, and they ride after the wolf in very large parties. Not only are dogs used to overtake the quarry, but because a fleet wolf may get away from them, eagles are used, being trained to help the hunter in very much the same manner as falcons in olden times. The great bird sits on the hunter's wrist until it is let loose. Then it soars into the air, sails after the quarry and swoops down upon it. Its duty is not to kill, but to "bother" the wolf by flapping its wings in its face and driving its sharp claws into the animal's back. Such hunting makes capital sport for the riders; but, apart from this, wolf hunting is a real necessity in those parts, the brutes being far too partial to the lambs and kids of the Tartars' flocks.—Wide World Magazine.

Hard to Get Into Jail.

There was a queer old specimen of humanity brought to the Cuyahoga county jail. He had been convicted of the crime of cruelty to animals, and there was no doubt in anybody's mind that he richly deserved the penalty inflicted. It is the custom to examine prisoners, however, before they are assigned to their cells. When this old reprobate was brought up the interrogation went thus:

"What is your name?"

"Budd Dobbs."

"What is your age?"

"Sixty-eight."

"What is your religion?"

"Great snakes! Does a man hafter git religion before they'll let him inter jail in this county?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Gentle Reminder.

KING OF THE ASPS.

This Reptile, the Most Venomous of Snakes, Is Death Itself.

The most venomous of snakes is said to be the Echis carinata of India. It is about eighteen inches long and of a gray color. The creature is death itself and carries in its head the secret of destroying life with the concentrated agony of all the poisons.

The Echis carinata is tolerably common in India, being found in nearly every part of the peninsula.

Fortunately, however, for man, it is not, like the cobra, a house frequenting snake, for its aggressive habits would make it infinitely more fatal to life than its dreaded relative.

This king of the asps does not turn to escape from man, as the cobra will, or flash into concealment, like the koriat, but keeps the path against its human assailant, and, pitting its own eighteen inches of length against its enemy's bulk, challenges and provokes conflict.

A stroke with a whip will cut it in two or a clod of earth disable it. But such is its malignity that it will invite attack by every device at its command, staking its own life on the mere chance of its adversary coming within the little circle of its power. At most the radius of this circle is twelve inches. Within it at any point lies certain death, and on the bare hope of hand or foot trespassing within its reach the Echis carinata throws its body into a figure of eight coil. Then it attracts attention by rubbing its loops together, which, from the roughness of the scales, make a rustling, hissing sound, erects its head in the center and awaits attack.

It is said that no one, having once encountered this terrible reptile, can ever forget its horrifying aspect when thus aroused, its eagerly aggressive air, its restless coils, which, in constant motion one over the other and rustling ominously all the while, stealthily but surely bring it nearer and nearer to the object of its fury.—Harper's.

TWO NEW HATS.

The Scheme That Won Them and the Way It Was Worked.

A man who used to be in politics and was a constant borrower found himself in need of a new hat, but he couldn't find anybody who would lend him a cent.

Finally he went to an acquaintance and said:

"I want to borrow $50 for five minutes."

"You can have it if you will put up a couple of fingers for security."

"Nix. Now, I've got a scheme. You lend me the fifty and you needn't let me get out of your sight. If you do it I'll stake you to a new hat."

Mystified, but curious, the acquaintance agreed to this, and the two repaired to a prominent hat store.

"Wait a minute," said the adventurer and left his backer doing sentry duty on the sidewalk.

Picking out the most important looking personage in the store, the politician went up to him and said:

"I am So-and-so of the —— district. I have come to pay for two hats for which I have given orders on you to two of my constituents."

With that he flashed a fifty dollar bill.

There was a scurrying around, a search of books and a reply that no such orders had been presented.

"Just look out for them, will you?" said the district leader, waving the big bill, which was hypnotic in its way, for the clerk bowed low and said, "Yes."

Half an hour later two orders were presented and two hats left the store.—Chicago Post.

The History of "Stepmother."

"Stepmother" is a word with a commonly unsuspected history. Probably most people if called upon to explain it would say that it meant a woman who had stepped into the place of the true mother. Dr. Johnson, at any rate, believed that this was the suggestion of the word to most minds. Really, "step" is the Anglo-Saxon "steop," the original meaning of which appears to have been "orphaned." Stepchild, stepbairn, stepson and stepdaughter came first, and then by gradual fading of the etymological meaning of "step" stepfather and stepmother came into being.—London Chronicle.

Japanese Landowners.

A landowner in Japan owns the surface and products of the land only. All minerals under the surface appertain not to him, but to the Japanese government. Moreover, should the government or its nominee wish to extract the minerals lying under a landowner's property the latter, though he would, of course, receive compensation for loss, cannot object on legal ground to the development of these minerals.—British Consular Report.

A VICIOUS COLONY

England's Penal Settlement In the Andaman Islands.

LIFE CONVICTS FROM INDIA.

Often the Most Desperate Prisoners Kill One Another, While Others Fall Victims to the Native Head Hunters, to Whom Murder Is Sport.

Frederick Taylor, F. R. G. S., writing in the Century Magazine about life in the Andaman Islands, says:

"The sailing of the Maharaja from Calcutta for the Andaman Islands was not accompanied by the usual goodbys and handkerchief waving, for of my fellow passengers there were seventy to whom no one wished bon voyage or a safe return. These were convicts, all murderers under life sentences, who for some reason had escaped the death penalty, and included six women, for the Maharaja is the ship used by the colonial Indian government to transport convicts to the penal settlements near Port Blair, South Andaman island, a distance of 650 miles from Calcutta.

"The prisoners were all manacled and shackled about the ankles, with chains fastened to bands at the wrist. They were a despicable lot. At night a continual moaning and cursing and hopeless sobbing came up from the hatches and made sleep out of the question for me, though the European officer in the steamer's cabin apparently slept undisturbed. Early the first morning I went on deck and learned that two of the male prisoners were ill and had been brought up to the deck for air. They were closely guarded, and raw recruits were stationed at the railing to prevent them from committing suicide by jumping overboard into the Hugli river.

"The Andamans are literally the homes of murderers. The inhabitants are the most vicious members of an older civilization and the uncivilized head hunters, among whom murder is a sport and a pastime. In the settlement are about 1,700 prisoners, including 800 women. On arriving at Port Blair the prisoners first spend six months in solitary confinement in the cellular jail of Viper island. They are then transferred to one of the associated jails and the comparative blessing of hard labor in company with others, though still occupying separate cells at night. After a year and a half of this they become slaves, working in and about the settlement during the day and sleeping in barracks at night, always closely guarded. At the expiration of five years a convict becomes eligible to join the colony of self supporters and live in the village, where he earns his living in his chosen way, lives in his own house and can send for his wife and children or marry a convict woman. In a limited sense he becomes a paterfamilias, but is always carefully watched and cannot leave the settlement without permission.

"Despite the rigid discipline and the vigilance of the authorities the communal life is far from harmonious, and the more vicious often rebel. The murderers kill one another and are in turn murdered by the treacherous Andamanese, who regard the hapless convicts and their guards as their natural prey. Occasional attempts at escape are made by the prisoners, but the efforts inevitably prove disastrous. The fugitive, finding his conditional freedom worse than servitude, either dies at the hands of the Jarawa warriors, falls a victim to fever or other disease or starves. There is also a system in vogue by which the more friendly tribes of savages co-operate with the authorities in capturing escaped convicts and receive rewards for the return of the unhappy deserters. More often, however, the head hunters kill the fugitive and return only the head, receiving the reward just the same, the killing adding zest to the chase and the return of the head being the easiest and quickest way of earning the reward.

"Under these conditions there are few attempts at escape, though many remarkably hazardous dashes for liberty have been made from time to time, which, though futile, were most daring. Some time ago the steamer Fulata picked up a poor, emaciated wretch who was sighted on a small bamboo raft off the Arakan coast. He was later found to be an escaped convict. When picked up he had been on the raft for twenty-nine days during one of the southwest monsoons and had secured water by catching the rain and sucking it from his turban and loin cloth. He lived upon flying fish that flew aboard the raft, eating them raw. He was swept off the raft many times by the waves, but had managed to cling to it. After a month in a hospital at Rangoon he was returned to prison and solitary confinement.

"Another daring attempt at escape was made by a party of six convicts who were sent with two native policemen to a small island off the middle Andaman to work. They managed to escape from the guards and, hoisting the sail of the small boat, started out in a gale. After seven days of heavy weather they were dashed upon the rocks of the Tenasserim coast, and the boat was wrecked. All escaped with their lives and eventually reached the Siamese border, where they were apprehended by the local authorities and returned to the prison."

The value of a thing is the peace of mind it gives you.

The Common People In Spain.

Spain is one of the most illiterate countries of the civilized world, yet also one of the best educated, unless education be merely that mass of undigested and commonly misapplied information absorbed within four walls says Henry A. Frank in "Four Months Afoot In Spain." Few men have a more exact knowledge, a more solid footing on the everyday earth, than the peasant, the laborer, the muleteer of Spain. One does not marvel merely at the fluent, powerful, entirely grammatical language of these unlettered fellows, but at the sound basic wisdom that stands forth in their every sentence.

Lighthouses.

In England the first true lighthouse was the Eddystone, built in 1760. Two centuries before Christ, however, fires had been lighted on a tower near Alexandria, Egypt, as a warning to mariners.

Writers Whose Works Are Unread.

With care and precision the journal clerks of the senate prepare the daily chronicle of the senate's doings. They are proud of their achievements, and justly so. It is a cause of sore disappointment to the makers of that journal when some thoughtless senator eager for the morning's business moves to suspend further reading.

Other clerks around the desk enjoy the joke and when the proceeding is concluded repeat in an undertone from man to man:

"Another insult."—Washington Post.

PERFECT GAUGES.

The Process of Their Making Is a Profound Secret.

LOCKED IN ONE MAN'S BRAIN

So Accurate Are These Wonderful Standards That Twenty or More of Them Rubbed Together Adhere as Though Made of One Piece of Metal.

In a closely guarded room of a small shop in an obscure Swedish village a man toils in secret, says a writer in Cassier's Magazine. Just how he accomplishes what he does no one knows, not even his sons who work with him.

Johannson has made the world beat a path to his door, for he has discovered the secret of making a more accurate limit gauge than any previously in use. A single set of his gauges gives a practically unlimited series of sizes, rising by steps of a ten-thousandth of an inch—much less than the traditional hair's breadth—to twenty-six inches. It is said that 80,000 combinations of these gauges are possible.

No dimension within their limits has been cited that they failed to reproduce. Extreme accuracy in building machinery, particularly that of motor cars, is of the greatest importance, and the first step toward that end is the perfection of a standard. Making such standards is a tedious and expensive process. But Johannson has not found it so, or else he values his secret lightly from the pecuniary point of view, for he is able to pay Uncle Sam a duty of 45 per cent and still offer his gauges in the American market for a few hundred dollars, although they could not be made here for many times their price.

When two of these Swedish gauges are "wiped" together so as to exclude the air from between them they adhere with a pressure which experiment has shown to exceed thirty pounds to the square inch. Twenty or more pieces may be thus wiped together and supported horizontally by merely holding the last one, which means that the accuracy of their various surfaces is almost absolute.

Finishing one surface or two surfaces to a very close limit by lapping—rubbing together with a fine abrasive between—is a comparatively simple matter. But achieving such perfect parallelism as is shown by these remarkable gauges is quite another thing, a secret quite well worth knowing.

The peculiarity about this mysteriously powerful adhesion of the separate pieces is that the feel of the built up gauge thus formed is exactly the same as that of a single piece of metal, and this holds for any combination, the number of pieces forming it not affecting the sensation in the slightest. Any skilled mechanic will understand instinctively the meaning of this and its testimony to the accuracy of the gauges.

For instance, a one inch gauge may be built up of pieces representing 0.5+0.2+0.05+.150+0.1 inch, and the resulting piece will be one inch absolute, or any one of several other combinations may be made to represent an inch, and blindfolded the most expert mechanic could not detect any difference between the manner in which this composite inch gauge and the one piece inch gauge fitted in a snap gauge of the same size. It would be an easy matter to confuse the two in handling.

Mr. Johannson, the backwoods inventor who discovered what thousands of the most expert mechanics in machine building centers have vainly sought for half a century, limits his output to a few hundred sets of gauges a year whether purely from inclination or because of mechanical difficulties in production is as much a secret as the process itself and one that he will doubtless take with him when he dies.

Burden Bearers In Mexico.

Strong backed laboring men take the place of moving vans in Mexico. There are huge flat trucks with four handles into which things are piled and lugged along the city streets. On moving day the household furniture may be seen paraded in full gaze of the curious from street to street to the new destination. These men are called cargadores and combine the usefulness of messenger boy and the porter of the old world. The great burdens borne thus by the strength of a single carrier are amazing. A piano will be carried along by two men on one of the strong trucks.

A Generous Empress.

It is said that one morning at breakfast a general related to the emperor the misfortunes of a brother officer, who, "because he had not 15,000 francs, must be dishonored." While the emperor questioned further particulars Eugenie flew to her room and, returning with a package of banknotes, said, "Take them, general, and never tell me his name." And his name the generous empress never knew.

Thirteen at Dinner.

Thirteen at dinner is an old Norse myth. It was deemed unlucky because Loki, god of malice, once intruded, making thirteen guests, and Baldur, the brilliant god, was slain at the instigation of Loki, who prevailed upon Hodur, a strong but blind god, to throw Mistel, the mistletoe, at Baldur, perforating the latter and letting out his divine soul.

Men of culture are the true apostles of equality.—Matthew Arnold.

CANALS IN ENGLAND.

They Had Their Origin In a Matrimonial Disappointment.

The British system of artificial inland navigation, which includes several thousand miles of canal, may be said to have had its origin in a matrimonial disappointment. The Duke of Bridgewater, the originator of the system, was engaged to be married just after he had attained his majority. A dispute arising between the couple, the match was broken off. The duke's chagrin changed the course of his life. He gave his first and last ball to the London world of fashion and then buried himself among his coal fields at Worsley. Eschewing the society of women, he refused even to employ them as servants in his manor house.

Disappointed in marrying the most beautiful woman in England, he determined to unite by means of a canal his coal fields with Manchester, then beginning its career as a manufacturing town. In those days good roads were the exceptions, bad roads the rule. The cottons of Manchester and the woolens of Leeds were conveyed from place to place on pack horses, which jogged along in single file. The freight charge from Leeds to London was $63 a ton. When the duke's canal was finished the prices of coal and other commodities in Manchester fell one-half.

The success of this canal started the duke to build one which would connect Manchester with Liverpool. To procure the funds he reduced his personal expenses to £400 a year. So straitened was he at times that the London bankers hesitated to discount his note for £500. Sometimes when "hard up" he would send his steward upon a collecting tour among the tenantry of the ducal estates. The steward would ride from tenant to tenant, getting £5 here and £10 there. When he had collected money enough he would return and pay the canal laborers their weekly wages. In a few years, however, the duke's canals paid him an annual revenue of £80,000.—New York Press.

THE WORD MELODRAMA.

Originally Meant a Play In Which Music Was Introduced.

Nowadays "melodrama" is in general use as denoting a purely sensational play, with an all but impossible hero, heroine and villain among the characters represented. Formerly the word kept more closely in its signification to actual derivation. "Melodrama" is compounded of the Greek words melos, a song, and drama, an action, a play, and was applied to two sorts of performances when it first came into use.

It signified a play, generally of the romantic school, in which the dialogue was frequently relieved by music, sometimes of an incidental and sometimes of a purely dramatic character. On the strength of his "Pygmalion" J. J. Rousseau is credited with the invention of this style. Some of the so called English operas of the older school, such as the once famous "Beggar's Opera" and the once popular "No Song, No Supper," are in reality true melodramas.

In the second place "melodrama" was applied to a peculiar kind of theatrical composition in which the actor recited his part in an ordinary speaking voice, while the orchestra played a more or less elaborate accompaniment appropriate to the situation and calculated to bring its salient features into the highest possible relief. The merit of the invention of this description of melodrama belongs to George Benda, who used it with striking effect in his "Ariadne auf Naxos," produced at Gotha in 1774.—London Globe.

Familiar Quotations.

One of the most familiar quotations from the Bible which are not to be found there upon research is "the lion lying down with the lamb." The spirit of the reference is correct enough, but turn up the passage in Isaiah and you will find: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together." The popular mind has condensed the zoological miscellany, and to the incorrect version alliteration has no doubt contributed.—Exchange.

Denmark's Outdoor Theater.

Denmark has probably the finest natural outdoor theater in the world. It is situated in the royal deer park about six miles out of the capital. There the avenues of mighty trees serve as wings and background to a stage fronted by a beech encircled slope that forms a perfect auditorium. Eight thousand people can be accommodated at every performance.

Commissioners' Proceedings

Thief River Falls, Minn.,
Nov. 2, A. D. 1911.

On the call of the county auditor, pursuant to chapter 230 of the General Laws of 1905 and acts amendatory thereof, the board of county commissioners of Pennington county met in the auditor's office in the city of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, at 10 o'clock a. m., for the purpose of considering the engineer's report, and the report of the committee on ditches, as to the completion and acceptance of county ditches Nos. 41, 43 and 49.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

Members present, Aubol, Shaw, Wold, Hedeen, Larson.

Members absent, none.

In the matter of county ditch No. 49, the following resolution was offered by Commissioner Shaw, duly seconded by Commissioner Larson, and carried unanimously:

Whereas, C. H. Martz, the engineer appointed by the board of county commissioners, has under date of Nov. 2, 1911, filed in the office of the county auditor his report of the completion of job in the above entitled matter, and the committee on ditches has reported;

Now therefore, We, the county board of said county do hereby approve in all respects the report of the engineer and of the ditch committee, and do hereby authorize the county auditor to issue auditor's warrants in full payment of the above work to Louis Steff according to the terms of said contract on file in the county auditor's office, provided that before final payment is made all claims for labor and supplies now filed against said ditch No 49 shall have been paid.

On motion duly carried the board took a recess until 1 o'clock p. m.

All members present.

In the matter of county ditch No. 43 the committee on ditch reports that said ditch has not been completed so as to comply with the specifications of the engineer as to the leveling of the roadbed, and that it would require about the sum of $150 to complete the work, and that the contractor and bonding company be notified to that effect.

In the matter of county ditch No. 41 the following resolution was offered by Commissioner Hedeen, duly seconded by Commissioner Larson and carried unanimously;

Whereas, C. H. Martz, the engineer appointed by the board of county commissioners, has under the date of Nov. 2, 1911, filed in the office of the county auditor his report of the completion of job in the above entitled matter, and the committee on ditches has reported;

Now Therefore, We, the county board of said county do hereby approve in all respects the report of the engineer and of the ditch committee and do hereby authorize the county auditor to issue auditor's warrant in full payment of above work to E. E. Griffith (subcontractor and assignee) according to the terms of said contract on file in the auditor's office; provided, that before final payment is made said E. E. Griffith shall first give a certified check in the sum of $250 payable to the county auditor of Pennington county to protect said Pennington county from any loss it might sustain on account of small portion of roadbed not being completed.

On motion duly carried the county board adjourned sine die.

ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman Board of County Commissioners, Pennington County, Minnesota.

And that the county auditor of said county forthwith make application to the state board of investment to purchase the same, which motion being duly seconded by Commissioner Olaf Larson, a member thereof, was put to a vote, all members of said board voting "aye;" and thus it was carried and so declared.

The following proposal was submitted by J. A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Thief River Falls,
Nov. 2, 1911,

To the Hon. County Board, Pennington county, Minn.

Gentlemen: For the $85,000 drainage bonds of your county dated Oct. 1, 1911, due serially in six to twenty years, bearing interest at the rate of five and one-half percent (5½), interest, principal and semi-annual interest payable in New York or Chicago, bonds to be in the denominations of $1,000 each, we will pay you eighty-five thousand dollars ($85,000), you paying for blank bonds and attorney's fees, upon delivery to us of the certified copies of proceedings evidencing to the satisfaction of our attorneys the full regularity of this issue.

As an evidence of our good faith we hand you herewith our check for $500, to be presented in payment only in case we fail to comply with the terms of the above bid; bonds to be delivered for payment free of expense at Minneapolis, Minn.

Respectfully submitted,

J. A. DUFFY.

The above bid is hereby accepted, and we agree to do all things within our power to speedily predare the necessary papers, and to do also all things within our power to legalize the above issue

ED. A. AUBOL,
Chairman of County Commissioners

Attest:

A. H. FASEL, County Auditor.

The following resolution was offered by Commissioner Weld, who moved its adoption, duly seconded by Commissioner Shaw

Resolved, That the bid of J. A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls, Minn., for $85,000 ditch bonds be accepted, and the proper officers are hereby instructed to execute the necessary papers to secure the bonds.

Commissioner Daniel Shaw offered the following preamble and resolutions and moved their adoption:

Whereas, In pursuance of and in full compliance with the general laws of the state of Minnesota applicable thereto, such steps have been duly and legally taken that those certain drainage ditches known as judicial ditch No. 13 and county ditch No. 39 have been duly located and established within this county of Pennington in the state of Minnesota and in such relation therto as to affect lands therein within the terms of the legislative acts applicable thereto, and it has been definitely ascertained and determined in accordance with the provisions of the law applicable thereto that the expense incurred in locating, establishing, and constructing said ditches respectively within this county of Pennington exceeds the following sums and amounts, towit: In the case of county ditch No. 39 the sum of sixteen thousand ($16,000) dollars; in the case of judicial ditch No. 13 sixty-nine thousand ($69,000) dollars;

And Whereas, It is necessary that the county of Pennington issue its bonds under and by virtue of the authority granted to said county by chapter 230 of the laws of 1905 and acts amendatory thereof and chapter 278 of the general laws of said state for 1911, in the aggregate sum of eighty five thousand ($85,000) dollars, for the purpose of paying the expense aforesaid for each of said ditches respectively.

Now Therefore Be It Resolved, By the county board of the county of Pennington in the state of Minnesota that the sum of eighty five thousand ($85,000) dollars is necessary to defray the expense incurred and to be incurred in locating, constructing, and establishing said drainage ditches within and for this county.

Resolved Further, That the negotiable coupon bonds of this county of Pennington be issued for said purposes in the aggregate amount of eighty-five thousand ($85,000) dollars, said bonds to be eighty five in number and numbered from 1 to 85, both inclusive; all of the denomination of one thousand ($1,000) dollars each; all of said bonds to bear the date October 1, 1911, bonds 1 to 5 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1917, bonds numbered 6 to 10 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1918, bonds numbered 11 to 15 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1919, bonds numbered 16 to 20 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1920, bonds numbered 21 to 25, inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000 dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1921, bonds numbered 26 to 30, inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1922; bonds numbered 31 to 35 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1923; bonds numbered 36 to 40 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1924; bonds numbered 41 to 45 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1925; bonds numbered 46 to 50 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1926; bonds numbered 51 to 55 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1927; bonds numbered 56 to 60 inclusive, aggregating five thousand ($5,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1 1928; bonds numbered 61 to 65 inclusive, aggregating five thousand dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1929; bonds numbered 66 to 75 inclusive, aggregating ten thousand ($10,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1930; bonds numbered 76 to 85 inclusive, aggregating ten thousand ($10,000) dollars, to be due and payable October 1, 1931; all bearing interest at the rate of five and one half (5½) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of April and October of each year, both principal and interest payable at the Continental & Commercial National bank in the city of Chicago, Illinois; said bonds so to be issued to be for said drainage ditches as follows: For judicial ditch No. 13, bonds numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 26, 27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 33, 34, 36, 37, 38, 39, 41, 42, 43, 44, 46, 47, 48, 49, 51, 52, 53, 54, 56, 57, 58, 59, 61, 62, 63, 64, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, aggregating sixty nine thousand [$69,000] dollars; and for said county ditch No. 39, bonds numbered 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55, 60, 65, 75, 84, 85, aggregating sixteen thousand [$16,000] dollars.

Resolved Further, That said bonds and the coupons attached thereto shall be substantially in the following form, necessary variations as to numbers, denominations, maturities, and the character of the drainage ditch for which the same is issued, which said forms are hereby approved:

lawful money of the United States of America, on the first day of October, 19 , at the office of The Continental & Commercial bank in the city of Chicago, Illinois, with interest from date until paid at the rate of five and one-half [5½] per cent per annum, payable semi-anually on the first days of April and October of each year, at the same place, upon the presentation and surrender of the annexed coupons as they severally become due.

This bond is issued by the county board of the county of Pennington in the state of Minnesota for the purpose of defraying, and is for an amount necessary to defray in part the expense incurred in locating, constructing, and establishing a judicial drainage ditch within said county or in such relation thereto as to affect lands therein within the provisions of the law applicable thereto, and is issued by authority of and in strict accordance with the provisions of chapter 230 of the general laws of the state of Minnesota for the year 1905, as amended and modified by chapter 469 of the general laws of said state for the year 1909 and other acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, and under and pursuant to the provisions of chapter 278 of the general laws of said state for the year 1911.

(In the bonds issued for said county drainage ditch No. 39, being bonds Nos. 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30, 35, 40, 45, 50, 60, 65, 75, 84 and 85, the foregoing paragraph shall read as follows:)

"This bond is issued by the county board of the county of Pennington in the state of Minnesota, for the purpose of defraying, and is for an amount necessary to defray in part the expenses incurred in locating, constructing and establishing a county drainage ditch wholly within said county, and is issued by authority of and in strict accordance with the provisions of chapter 230 of the general laws of Minnesota, for the year 1905, as amended by chapter 469 of the general laws of said state for the year 1909, and other acts amendatory and supplemental thereto and under and pursuant to the provisions of chapter 278 of the general laws of said state for the year 1911."

It is Further Certified and Recited, That all acts, conditions, and things required by the laws and constitution of Minnesota to be done precedent to and in the issuance of this bond have been properly done, have happened and been performed in regular and due form and time as required by law; that the ditch on account of which this bond is issued is a public ditch duly and legally located and established for the promoton of the health, convenience, and general welfare of the public, and that the total indebtedness of said county, including this bond, does not exceed any statutory or constitutional limitation.

The faith, credit, and resources of the county of Pennington are hereby irrevocably pledged for the punctual payment of the principal and interest of this bond at maturity.

In testimony whereof the county of Pennington, Minnesota, by its county board, has caused this bond to be signed, sealed, and recorded by its county auditor and countersigned by its treasurer this second day of October, 1911.

County Auditor, Pennington County, Minnesota.
Countersigned:

County Treasurer.

'MINIATURE WORLD'S FAIR'

Is Reply of Managers to Hundreds of Questions Concerning Land Show.

Minnesota Will Have Largest Display —1,500 Square Feet of Floor Space.

Hundreds of people who have heard of the "land show" which is to be held in St. Paul December 12 to 23, are writing the management and their newspaper editors, asking "what is a land show?"

The managers of the exposition have replied "a miniature world's fair." The show to be given in St. Paul is to the northwest what the world's fairs have been to continents—to the world in fact. A land show is an exhibit of the products of the soil, mines, forests, lakes, rivers and factories.

No one at the show in St. Paul will have land to sell; there are no land companies nor real estate agents represented. The exhibits of products are all placed in the show by commissions appointed by the governors of the states, just as state legislatures appoint commissions and make appropriations to have their states represented at the world's fairs. The exhibits are "official" and the literature which will be distributed will be published by the states themselves. In addition to the state exhibits all the famous fertile valleys and communities of the Northwest have separate exhibits. There are eighty exhibits in all and from their descriptions they are the most beautiful ever brought under one roof.

ANOTHER CHANCE TO SEE MINNESOTA'S PRODUCTS.

Those who could not visit the Minnesota State Fair and see the great display of Minnesota's products will have another opportunity to see everything that could be seen at the state fair, except the live stock and horse races. More than that, the exhibits of the states recources will be more complete as a whole summer and fall have been consumed in collecting the best exhibit ever gathered for display.

The state of Minnesota occupies 1,500 square feet of floor space at the "Land Show" to be held in St. Paul Dec. 12 to 23. In addition to this the railroads in the northern part of the state have 500 square feet, giving Minnesota the largest display in the show. Everything will be shown from garden truck and small fruit to minerals; from farm crops to furs and live fish.

SCHOOL VACATION

Pupils of the City Schools Have Their First Vacation of the Season.

Yesterday school was dismissed for the usual thanksgiving vacation of a few days, after very nearly three months of study, the pupils of the schools will no doubt appreciate a few days of rest.

The literary program which is generally given on Friday afternoon of each week, by the high school students was conducted Wednesday morning.

Several of the teachers who live within a short distance of this place will probably eat their thanksgiving dinners with their respective parents. They will return on Sunday evening, in due time to resume their work on Monday, December 4th.

Don't fail to attend the County Fair to be given by the ladies of the Presbyterian Church at the Auditorium Dec. 1st.

KEARNS - - GESELL

Lester Gesell Weds Washburn, Wisconsin Girl Monday Nov. 20th.

On Monday, November 20th, at Washburn, Wisconsin, occurred the marriage of Miss Gussie Kearns, of that place to Mr. Lester Gesell of this city. They are spending their honeymoon a points in Wisconsin and will return to this city the last of this week where they will make their future home.

The bride is one of Washburn's most charming young ladies. The groom has been employed as office manager for the Northwestern Drainage Co. for a number of years and has won the respect and esteem of his employers by his faithfulness. The News together with their host of friends extend congratulations to the happy couple.

A Fine Specimen.

Rolland Brothers have had on exhibition in their shop on LaBree Ave., a fine buck deer. The animal was shot by C. M. Rolland near Thief Lake, where Mr. Rolland has a claim. The deer is one of the finest specimens that has ever been seen in this city; his weight being 245 pounds.

Ed Buys "Plummer Pioneer."

Monday of this week, a deal was made between E. L. Quist and Edward Hermanson whereby the latter becomes owner of the "Plummer Pioneer." Mr. Hermanson has been managing editor of the "THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS" for the past year and has proven himself to be a first class newspaper man in every respect and we predict that the "Pioneer" under his able management will become one of the leading newspapers in this section. The News with his many friends in this city wish him unbounded success in his new endeavor.

MEAROW- -LONSON

Miss Susie Mearow of Walker and Mr. Albert Lonson of This City Married Saturday.

Saturday evening occurred the marriage of Miss Susie Mearow of Walker, Minn., to Mr. Albert Lonson of this city. The wedding was a quiet one and very surprising to the many friends and associates of the young couple. The ceremony took place at the Ogahmah Hotel at 9:30 p. m. Rev. I. T. Aastad officiated, after which a wedding supper was served to a few relatives and friends.

Miss Mearow has made her home with her sister, Mrs. H. A. Brummond, for the past two months, and has a large circle of friends who wish her much happiness.

As for Mr. Lonson, he is the well known assistant cashier at the First State Bank and has made this city his home for a good many years. The News, with his numerous other friends, wish him and his bride all the good things of life.

At the Auditorium Dec. 2.

An attraction that is being anticipated with the keenest interest by amusement seekers is "Thelma," It is one of the biggest hits in the history of the stage and is simply sweeping everything before it. This sensational drama is replete with more real situations and climaxes than most plays. It presents a beautiful picture of domestic life, with joy and sorrow familiar to all, depicted with fidelity to human nature. Bright comedy and beautiful heart interest are its salient features and with the excellent cast should make a very desirable evening's entertainment. The company is said to be adequate in every sense of the word and comes to the Auditorium, Sat. Dec., 2nd.

Special for Xmas—La Lunda cigars in boxes of 10 and 25 cigars.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Practically All Places of Business Will Be Closed to Observe This Holiday.

Today, Thanksgiving Day is observed throughout the United States by proclamation of the President and Governors of the respective states. The first Thanksgiving was kept by the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth in the year 1621, and has been repeated often throughout the States. This day has been observed annually over the United States for very nearly forty years.

If any section of the country has cause to be grateful and thankful it is Pennington County. With abundant crops, good market prices, the food we have to eat, the clothing we have to wear, the roofs that shelter us, the friends who surround our tables, and the numerous public improvements in our city and county.

It is true we have had our trials and sufferings, some more, and some less; these we can perhaps now see, and shall see more clearly later on, to have been blessings in disguise. But we have had a great deal of comfort and happiness in spite of it all. Surely we ought not pass these by unnoticed.

Have we thanked the Almighty God for all of these things? If not, let us then make today a time to give thanks for past neglects. A day of Thanksgiving in deed as well as in name. Let us all join in and give thanks to our Creator.

DITCH ORDERED

Another Ditch For Red Lake and Pennington Counties. To Cost $11,500.00

Judicial ditch No. 2 in Red Lake and Pennington counties has been ordered to be built. The contract will be let soon and the ditch will cost over $11,000.

The large part of the ditch is to be in Pennington county extending north into this county and south about one mile in Red Lake county. It runs about one mile west of Rhoda postoffice in the township of Deer Park; and will no doubt be a great help to the country.

"How We Are Gouged."

W. F. Ries, Socialist lecturer, wants to tell us about it.

The Socialists are sending to Thief River Falls, Minn., as the first number on their lyceum course W. F. Ries, who is going to talk to us about "How We Are Gouged." Seems to us the Socialists have an ungovernable penchant for selecting irritating subjects. If we have to be gouged, and according to our trust and tariff experts we do, why not have it over with and forget it? Really, we don't need the talented lecturers of the Socialist party to keep it ever in our minds.

Of the two sides of the Socialist philosophy give us the bright one every time. Don't tell us how we are gouged. Tell us how every workingman can have a home of his own and feed his family three good meals with four hours' work a day, and spend the rest of his time sitting in two-dollar seats at the ball game rooting for the home team. It may not be true, it may not be half as true as the undisputed, undeniable cast-iron fact that we are gouged by the sugar trust. But it's so much more interesting!

Mr. Ries is going to lecture at the Presbyterian church, Thief River Falls, Minn., on Dec. 6th. Why not get up a petition asking him to forget how we are gouged and paint us one of those beautiful word pictures about five dollars a day for four hours, with free lemonade and street car tickets?

***

A. G. Kallam who has been employed in the Furran barber shop on 3rd street left this week for St. Cloud. He will be married to one of the young ladies of that place, on Thanksgiving day. The young couple will return to this city where they will make their future home.

Dan Linahan of Red Lake Falls, was a passenger homeward bound Monday afternoon on the Great Northern.

A BOWLING ALLEY

Located On LaBree Avenue, First Door South of Evelyn Hotel.

Ole Thorson, who formerly ran a bowling alley on 3rd. street, has decided to re-open in a new location on LaBree avenue.

Mr. Thorson is now having the building fitted up in first class shape, and states that the place will be opened to the public some time this week. There are two alleys in the building and both are being put in very fine shape. We hope the new location will afford a very brisk business for Mr. Thorson.

Local Items.

The Lady Maccabees had a regular meeting Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served and a pleasant time was had.

Frank Kratka Jr. is spending his Thanksgiving vacation with his parents in this city.

Mrs. Mary Wilcox arrived in the city yesterday morning from Sunrise, Minn., and will make an extended visit with her son, Ed.

Mrs. Harry Carew returned from Minneapolis where she had been on a visit to her sister, Mrs. Ben Wilson bringing with her Miss Marian Wilson for a short visit.

A box of LaLunde cigars for Xmas presents or a treat to a friend.

C. P. Hornseth who has conducted a confectionery and ice cream parlor for the past year and a half closed his place of business last Friday.

The members of the Antlers Club held a social session last Friday evening which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The Northwestern Drainage Co. have a number of men and teams employed hauling large 7 x 20 storage tanks to various points in this county and Eastern Marshall County, where they will be filled with gasoline, which will supply the dredges for the coming season.

H. A. Brummond and C. J. Vollmer, both members of the Pennington Hotel Company, went to Crookston on a business mission Monday afternoon.

Mr. P. W. Sharp is shipping a car load of household goods and office furniture to Thief River Falls today. Mr. Sharp will engage in the job printing business in that city and has installed a complete new line of printing machinery which has been shipped direct from the cities. The friends of the family at Osakis will join the Review in wishing them prosperity in their new home.—Osakis Review.

ATHLETIC ASS'N

Young Men of This City Are Trying to Get an Organization on the Move.

Such an organization is being talked of by a number of the young men, who will no doubt take active part in the Association. There is no reason why an organization of this kind cannot be started in this place.

It is their intention to take a subscription to get an idea of how much funds can be secured, then call a meeting for some evening in the near future, elect officers and get the ball rolling. It is thought that the Militia Gym. in the Auditorium can be secured, which is fitted up with shower baths as well as a number of bath tubs. Why not get together and help the young men get started for it certainly will be a good thing.

Giving Good Shows.

Last Saturday and Sunday evening the "Life and Adventures of the James Boys in Missouri," attracted large crowds to the Lyceum theatre. The theatre was packed to its utmost capacity, people congregating on the sidewalk outside awaiting an opportunity to enter.

The life and adventures of the James Boys is said to be the greatest motion picture production of the age. It consists of three reels, and costs $10,000 to produce. It followed this famous band from 1865 to 1882 showing very thrilling adventures.

For Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week Manager Morgan announces Vail & Hildabrand, high class comedy singing and talking sketch artists. This vaudeville team comes highly recommended by those who have seen it. "The Pastor and the Bully," a Nestor film, will be shown on Thursday evening. This is said to be the best 5-round contest ever filmed. This will be shown for tonight only.

THE SEASON'S HIT

The Great Drama, "Thelma", Will Be Presented at The Auditorium Saturday Evening, Dec. 2nd.

The question of the greatest moment to every man or woman, married or single, is dealt with in a clear, straight forward manner, true to life, in the great drama, "Thelma." It involves a charming story of absorbing interest, beautiful sentiment, tender heart interest and thrilling realism that has won for it a place second to none in the hearts of theatre patrons. The characters are all drawn from life, and the author has cleverly avoided stagey and unnatural personalities too often seen on the stage and never in reality. It is one of the notable character play hits of a decade; a drama of intense heart interest a play that is sympathetic in its ability to reach the heart of men, women and children, and comes to the Auditorium Saturday, December, 2nd.

MARTZ MAKES TESTIMONY

Tells How Part of His Shares of Stock Were Borrowed Years Ago.

Rockefeller Did Not Approve of Employes Holding Shares in the Road.

The following paragraphs taken from the St. Paul Dispatch gives a interesting testimony of C. H. Martz, Engineer who constructed the road:

"Financiers profess to wonder why it is that there is hostility toward capital. They decry the tendency, they say, exists, to hamper and to harass big industries, particularly railroads. They preach the let alone policy, and argue for a square deal. And when they have talked long enough and earnestly enough so that they seem in a fair way to make a favorable impression, something happens. It was the testimony of Charles H. Martz, engineer who built the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road. He told how he was importuned to make a report showing that the road cost $5,000,000, instead of $1,700,000, so that the dividends would not look too big.

He testified, also, that he had owned 49 shares of the company's stock; that 19 of them were borrowed many years ago on the theory that they were wanted for purposes of hypothecation; how he was forced to sell his remaining stock at $30 a share on the statement that Mr. Rockefeller did not want any employes holding stock in the road." The stock pays $200 a share each year in dividends. He says he never got his 19 shares back nor got any money for them, but was told that he could keep his job so long as he said nothing. He needed the job and kept still, he said.

It is pretty uphill work to convince the people that the "big interests" are downtrodden in the face of such testimony as that."

The White Plague.

The Indians on the Red Lake Agency are fast becoming victims of tuberculosis. They are rapidly loosing the wonderful physical power which was their former pride.

Living indoors, like the white race, does not agree with them, while living in tepees, getting plenty of fresh air and nourishing food, plenty of exercise and living in their own natural way they would no doubt be the same strong race as a few years ago.

The fact that they are being practically deprived of their winter hunts make them easy prey to the dread disease.

AVAILABLE CROP

Potatoe Crop in Northwest is Said To Be Larger Than at First Supposed.

Potatoes in the Northwest are weaker on the local produce market. Supplies still in the hands of the growers are much larger than originally estimated, and the losses sustained through frost are found to be not nearly so heavy as at first thought.

It is evident that when the pits are opened in the spring there will be a considerable slump in the price. A continuous call is being made from southern points, but it is stated that buyers of the south will not come into the market at the present price of "spuds." They expect to keep just enough to cover the requirement.

TO DO BATTLE SEPARATELY

Taft and Eberhart Campaigns in Minnesota Will Be Under Different Organizations.

Governor Adolph O. Eberhart has corroborated the statement made recently by Ralph W. Wheelock, his private secretary, that the Eberhart organization will not carry the Taft fight in Minnesota during the next campaign. He insisted that his relations with the president are not broken; that there has been no severing of interest, but that his campaign and the campaign of Mr. Taft must be directed by two different organizations.

"I do not want the impression to go out that we are getting 'cold feet' on Mr. Taft," the governor said. "On the contrary, we give him our endorsement. But we shall not shoulder the work of his campaign at the next election."

Publication of the decision of Governor Eberhart has attracted unusual attention among Twin City politicians. It is believed that the Taft forces will stir themselves at once to perfect an organization in the state ready for the coming fight.

COTTON BRANDS STORY FALSE

Duluth Attorney Says Martz Did Not Tell the Truth.

Denying as an "unqualified and malicious falsehood" the testimony given recently by C. H. Martz before the Stanley congressional committee at Washington investigating affairs of the United States Steel corporation Hon. Joseph B. Cotton of Duluth, attorney for the Rockefeller interests on the iron range and former attorney for the United States Steel corporation, has sent by telegraph the following statement to Augustus O. Stanley, chairman of the investigating committee:

"C. H. Martz has testified before the Stanley committee that he had been ordered, as chief engineer, to 'pad' the cost of producing the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad, alleging that George Welwood Murray and Joseph B. Cotton, then attorneys for the Duluth, Missabe and Northern, had issued the orders.

"Failing to 'pad' the cost of production of the road, Martz testified, his position was taken away from him within one year. In the interest of justice I hereby notify you that any statement by said Martz before your committee, that either Mr. George Welwood Murray or I ever requested or advised or required Martz to pad or increase the valuations or estimates of cost, or cost of reproduction of the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad to any extent or in any particular whatever, is an unqualified and a malicious falsehood."

Cotton goes on to say that Martz was dismissed from the service of the road for incompetency.

CLAPP TO BE SUMMONED

Minnesota Senator Will Testify in Steel Trust Probe.

The Stanley steel trust investigating committee has decided to ask Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota to testify concerning his knowledge of the transaction by which extensive ore property in the Mesabi region of Minnesota was transferred from Alfred and Leonidas Merritt to John D. Rockefeller.

In their testimony before the Stanley committee last week the Merritts charged in substance that they were defrauded in this transaction by Mr. Rockefeller and his agents. At the time Mr. Clapp acted as counsel for the Merritts.

The indications are that the acquisition of the Mesabi mines by Mr. Rockefeller will be thoroughly investigated by the Stanley committee. Leonidas Merritt is now in Washington. Alfred Merritt has gone West to obtain documentary evidence bearing on the case.

DULUTH BACKED MERRITTS

St. Louis County Paying $12,500 Annual Interest on Bonds.

The testimony before the steel trust investigation at Washington by Leonidas Merritt of Duluth, in which he told of a transaction in which he lost heavily to John D. Rockefeller, brought to light that St. Louis county, Minn., is still paying $12,500 per year as interest on $250,000 bonds voted for the Merritts in 1893 when the county issued that amount and lost it in the Rockefeller "call" loan.

In 189[illegible] the Merritts wanted money for their railroad project to the Mesabi range and St. Louis county was asked for it. A general election was called and the people decided to allow them $250,000 as a bonus. The bonds were issued, sold and the money turned over to the Merritts.

The bonds were of the thirty year variety and the interest was fixed at 5 per cent.

GOVERNORS' SPECIAL STARTS

Will Tour Eastern States and Advertise the West.

The Western governors left St. Paul for their Eastern trip after a banquet given in their honor at the Saint Paul hotel. They left over the Burlington road.

The Governors' special will stop at the principal cities until New York is reached, Dec. 11. The return will be made over the Pennsylvania lines to St. Louis, returning to St. Paul Dec. 19, over the Burlington.

Seven governors and representatives of three other states were in St. Paul and started on the Eastern trip.

The purpose of the trip is to invite Eastern people and Eastern capital to the Western states, to make the East acquainted with the civilization of the West and to tell the East something of what the West wants in the way of legislation.

FALLS DEAD AGAINST FRIEND

Otter Tail County Clerk of Courts Fatally Stricken on Street.

District court at Fergus Falls, which is trying the case against Richard M. Hayes, the Minneapolis attorney charged with forgery in connection with the Prinzl will, was forced to adjourn on account of the sudden death of Jason T. Kidder, clerk of court. Mr. Kidder stopped to talk to a friend while on his way to court and suddenly pitched forward against the man, dying almost instantly. He was about forty years of age.

ROCKEFELLER IN STEEL INQUIRY

Oil King's Name Figures Prominently at Hearing.

The name of John D. Rockefeller figured prominently in the hearings before the Stanley steel trust probe committee for the first time. It was apparent that Mr. Rockefeller was forewarned and knew what was coming, for his personal counsel, Gordon Welwood Murray, was on hand to represent him when the committee was called to order.

The story of how Mr. Rockefeller acquired the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroad, from the great Minnesota ore field to Lake Superior, by loaning money to the Merritt brothers of Duluth, original builders of the road, and then taking the property over when the debt was not paid, was briefly told by Charles H. Martz, the engineer who built the road for the Merritts.

Martz told the committee that Joseph B. Cotton of Duluth, as Mr. Rockefeller's counsel when he acquired the railroad in the early nineties, urged him to make a report to the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission declaring that the Duluth, Missabe and Northern cost $5,000,000 to build, when, as a matter of fact, it cost only $1,700,000. He was unable to do this and lost his job not long thereafter.

Martz also complained that nineteen of the forty-nine shares of stock he held in the road had been taken from him and never returned and that he was forced to sell the other thirty shares to Mr. Rockefeller at $30 a share, although it now pays $200 a share in annual dividends.

Child Accidentally Shot.

Clara Conley, eight years old, was shot and killed sixteen miles from Deer River, when a rifle in the hands of her brother, aged thirteen years, was accidentally discharged. The shooting occurred before a large group of pupils.

FOR RIVER AND HARBOR WORK

Appropriation Recommended Is Less Than Last Year.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Estimates for continuing the work of river and harbor improvement covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, ask congress to appropriate money only for improvements which have received the approval of the army engineers after thorough investigation.

The appropriations are $29,628,098 as against $[illegible] for the current year. President Taft in his message will urge that they be strictly adhered to.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Insurance Commissioner Preus, acting upon the advice of the attorney general, has decided that his department has no supervision over the St. Paul Teachers' Retirement Fund association and that he cannot interfere with the action of the school board in compelling teachers to pay back dues from the time the association was organized.

Polk county has made a remarkable increase in butter production during the last couple of years, according to figures compiled by F. W. McIntosh, secretary of the state dairy and food commission. The production increased from 1,279,085 pounds in 1908 to 1,702,074 in 1910. The amount paid patrons increased from $267,979 to $424,317.

A total of 367 miles of railroad were built in Minnesota during the year ended June 30, 1911, according to figures compiled by the state railroad commission from the annual reports submitted by the railroads doing business in the state. Thirty-six miles of track were torn up, so that the net increase for the year is 331 miles.

For every man, woman and child in Minneapolis there is $87.04 in the savings banks, on the basis of 301,408 people, the last census figures. The last report of savings bank deposits officially made showed $19,021,007.30, compared with $18,842,619.33 in the report that preceded, and $18,475,710.12 a year before that.

Wholesale grocers of Duluth are circulating blank petitions seeking to obtain support for a movement to influence congress to reduce the duty on raw and refined sugars. The petitions are being spread broadcast through the country by a committee of wholesalers organized for the purpose.

At a special election, by a vote of 529 to 96, the city of Virginia was instructed to acquire by purchase or condemnation the water and light plant of the Virginia Electric Power and Water company and operate same for the city.

A new record has been made for Fillmore county land. The Tallek Brøkken homestead in Harmony township has, by agreement of heirs, been sold to John Brokken for $172 an acre, or $27,520 for 160 acres.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

The body of Mrs. W. E. Sivwright of Hutchinson, a woman universally beloved and prominent in all good work, was found in the cistern underneath the kitchen at her home by her daughter. Bruises on the body suggest that she must have opened the cistern, probably to ascertain the amount of water it contained, and then stepped into it, the bruises being received in the fall.

Attacked by a wounded moose which he supposed was helpless, Edward Lodgard of East Grand Forks only saved himself from death by engaging in fierce combat with the animal and finally slaying it with a knife. The battle occurred in the woods near Roosevelt, where Mr. Lodgard and several companions were hunting.

Bennis Peterson, a young farmer of Freeborn county, was thrown from a horse that he was riding and death ensued before he was restored to consciousness. He was twenty-seven years old, and was married only two months ago.

Roy Mendenhall, an employe of the Consumers' Power company at Rapidan dam, near Mankato, was killed almost instantly by coming in contact with one of the high tension wires in the power house.

Arthur Pursley, a conductor on the Great Northern, was killed at Breckenridge. He was about to take out a train and while walking across the yards in a snowstorm was struck by a switch engine.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

H. L. Heyden, a prominent member of the Minnesota State Bar association, is dead at his home at Madison, after a short illness of pneumonia. Mr. Heyden had the distinction of having served longer on the governors' board of the State Bar association than any other lawyer in the state. Mr. Heyden was fifty-six years old and one of the pioneer residents of Madison.

Michael Carney is dead at Faribault at the age of 100 years, one month and twenty-four days. Mr. Carney was born in Ireland and came to America when twenty-six. He lived in Minnesota more than forty-five years. During his life he had never been [illegible] by a doctor, always [illegible]

CRIMINAL NEWS.

Two of the defendants of the "tar party" case, John Schmidt and Sherril Clark, were found guilty of assault and battery by a jury in Judge Grover's court at Lincoln Center, Kan. Sentence of one year each in the county jail, the extreme penalty in Kansas for the offense charged, was passed on Everett G. Clark, Jay Fitzwater, Watson Scranton and Edward Ricord, confessed assailants of Mary Chamberlain, the schoolteacher who was tarred.

Extensive land frauds through the use of soldiers' declaratory statements have been unearthed by agents of the general land office in the Northwest and the commissioner of the land office has received a report of the indictment at Aberdeen, S. NEW ELECTIONS IN SWEDEN

King Gustaf Decides to Use His Royal Prerogative and Dissolve the First Chamber—Norwegian-American Line of Steamers Again Nearing a Reality—Danish Minister of War and Army Officers in Dispute.

SWEDEN.

King Gustaf of Sweden has finally decided to use his royal prerogative to dissolve the First chamber of the riksdag and call for new elections long before the regular terms of its members have expired. Members of the upper house of the Swedish parliament are elected by the twenty-five county and five city councils of the realm for terms of nine years. They serve without pay and must possess property appraised at not less than $20,000, or have paid taxes on an income of not less than $1,000 a year. Elected by local bodies, whose membership is based on a property qualification, the First chamber has long been the stronghold of aristocracy and privilege. The Conservatives have always controlled it and have thus been able to checkmate the Liberals of the Second chamber. But when the law granting manhood suffrage was forced on the Conservatives there began a peaceful revolution in Sweden toward democracy. The step the king has now taken was practically forced upon him by the Liberals, following their sweeping victory in the first election held under the new suffrage law. Gustaf, however, has shown the sort of political discretion that characterized the policy of his father, the benign Oscar and has chosen to range the throne on the side of the people rather than on that of the aristocracy. No Swedish king had ever dissolved the First chamber in this way before, although the constitution gives the king this power. The peaceful revolution which began with the suffrage victory is making great strides. The king and the commons are together.

Anders Zorn, the famous painter, courtier and sportsman, says a Stockholm correspondent, is back again in his Swedish home after his visit to the United States to paint a president and a number of millionaires. His views, as expressed to his Swedish friends, are more than usually interesting, for he knows the whole range of social grades, and though the friend of princes and presidents he is still at heart the Dalecarlian peasant without any snobbery or affectation whatever. "President Taft," says Zorn, "is fat, but he is intellectual and genial. It was Colonel Roosevelt who introduced me to him, while the 'big stick' man was boss at the White House. What their present relations are I don't know. President Taft was a good sitter and we got along very well, indeed. I used to joke with him and point out the likeness to other presidents as each new stroke of the brush suggested it. But he never spoke of Roosevelt. Life in America is generally superficial. The upper ten are recruited from self-mades—the parvenus and those who are neither. The first are pretty much alike all over the world, and so, for the matter of that, are those who have inherited fortunes. Luxury is carried to extremes and they live incredibly extravagant. Their constant cry is for pleasure and sensation."

An American who recently visited Upsala, the Swedish university city, makes the following reference to Swedish women: "A cab was in waiting for me and Dr. Braune, general superintendent from Rudelstadt, Germany, and we were soon domiciled in a fine apartment house where we spent four delightful days under the royal care of our hostess and her two daughters, the husband and father being absent in the country. Our hostess surprised me not a little when she addressed me in English, but the surprise vanished when I was informed that she had received a part of her education in England. Both daughters were unusually bright and intelligent, the elder of the two having attended schools in Germany and France. Added to their intelligence was a modesty and winsomeness, a simplicity and naturalness, in striking contrast with the pretentiousness and affectation of [illegible] American girl enjoying similar advantages. The contrast impressed itself deeply on my mind, and the reader will pardon me if I cast my vote in favor of the Swedish type of educated girlhood and womanhood, though I am not unmindful of the virtues of [illegible] American girls, nor of the danger of drawing general conclusions from specific cases."

Farmers in Sweden have their credit associations, marketing and buying associations and all are conducted along co-operative lines and are continually growing in favor. Especially is this so with so called co-operative insurance societies.

NORWAY.

Says a Christiania correspondent: "The Norwegian-American line of steamers, which is to be started between Bergen and New York, may now be looked upon as an undertaking which has passed from the condition of a proposed scheme to a reality. For a long time efforts have been made to get the undertaking on a solid financial basis, but owing to some big mistakes in starting it the public has looked upon it with suspicion and did not subscribe the necessary means. The fact of the matter was that the directors tried to go ahead and even buy a very expensive transatlantic liner, when the necessary funds were totally missing. After the setback new men have taken hold and with praiseworthy conservatism have worked hard to provide the capital, and this has now succeeded to the extent that the Christiania chamber of commerce last week held a special meeting, at which the company was endorsed and the support of the chamber promised to the fullest. This means that confidence will be established which will cause a general subscription of stock by business men of Norway and the first ship has already been contracted for. Another steamer will be ordered in about eighteen months. The terminal points will be New York and Bergen, but stops will be made at Stavanger. The speed will be fast enough to make the trip from New York to Bergen in nine days, from where Christiania can be reached by train in about fifteen hours.

✣ ✣ ✣

A fine fruit exhibition took place in Christiania about two weeks ago and brought out the fact that apples and pears of the finest qualities can be grown in Norway as well as anywhere. Altogether the summer has produced the greatest fruit crop that Norway has ever seen. Apples are selling at $1.50 a barrel and that is a great deal less than potatoes sell for at present. The unusually dry summer has spoiled the crops in many districts, especially as regards hay, but the grain crops have been of unusually good quality and therefore the farmers will not suffer very much. Primitive harvesting, says a Christiania correspondent, is still used pretty nearly all over Norway. American harvesting machinery has been sold in Norway in rather limited quantities, the principal reason being that Norway is such a hilly country that the American machinery cannot be used. Flat fields like Minnesota and the Dakotas are unknown in Norway; in fact a field of 500 acres open is not to be found anywhere in the country. The farmers and their families will, therefore, be doomed for many years to come to do their work by manual labor and it is little wonder that the temptation to emigrate to America grows strong, especially when they are informed from time to time regarding the excellent farming methods of the United States.

✣ ✣ ✣

In different parts of Norway efforts are being made to improve the younger generation physically and morally. The young people are gathered together and are taught and drilled. Military officers, physicians and ministers give lectures and instruction. These young people are taught their responsibility to the nation and to the church and that only a healthy body and pure soul will preserve the nation.

DENMARK.

A sensational agitation has been started between the officers of the Danish army and the minister of war, because the latter ordered a company of soldiers to the boundary line between Germany and Denmark, at Fredricia, for the purpose, presumably, of protecting the interest of Danish citizens on the border. Two prominent Danish generals have already resigned from their positions, stating that they believe that such a movement on the part of the government will not be looked upon favorably by the German government and might result in trouble, when, of course, Denmark would stand but little show to protect herself against the German army. The whole matter has caused no end of sensation and agitation and it is feared that the government will soon be compelled to recall the regiment.

Even in Iceland they have been suffering from drought during the past season, according to recent reports from Copenhagen. Farmers who had large herds of cattle were compelled to butcher them for they did not have anything to feed them with. The hay crop, as well as all other crops, was almost an entire failure and people of the island will suffer much during the coming winter, it is feared. Provisions are now being shipped from Copenhagen and the Danish government has decided to vote an especial appropriation for the people of Iceland.

THANKSGIVING DAY; ITS APPRECIATIONS.

Unthankfulness Is Dangerous. The Thankful Are Blessed.

Pastor Russell Says That All Should Join With the Psalmist David, "Oh, Give Thanks Unto the Lord, For He Is Good; His Mercy Endureth Forever."—Psalm cxxxvi, 1.

PASTOR RUSSELL

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26th.—Pastor Russell of the London and Brooklyn Tabernacles preached twice here today. We give a synopsis of his discourse on Thanksgiving from the text above quoted.

With more cause than ever for thankfulness, Christendom is losing the sentiment of gratitude to God, and Thanksgiving Day is to many merely a holiday. In religious matters in general, Christendom is rapidly approaching the conditions prophesied by St. Paul, when men would preserve the form of godliness but deny its power. (II Timothy iii, 5.) The cause of this the Pastor traced to the increasing intelligence of our day which, along religious lines, has cut loose from the Bible and proportionately cut loose from the true God.

Higher Critics, not content with the rejection of the creeds of the Dark Ages, have attacked the Bible, prejudiced against it by the inconsistencies of the creeds. Thinking to render assistance to humanity and to the Truth, they have for fifty years been quietly and successfully engaged in undermining the faith of Christendom in the Bible as a Divine Revelation. They claim for themselves a similar inspiration to that of the Apostles, while they ridicule the thought that holy Prophets of old spake and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit of God—II Peter i, 21.

Evolution and Higher Criticism.

Rejecting the Bible as a special Divine Revelation from a personal God, the next step of the Higher Critics was an easy one—to proclaim nature the god and creator of all things—an impersonal god. Thus they were just in line for Darwin's theory of Evolution—that nature is god and work is the law of nature—the survival of the fittest—and the fittest the most pugnacious and overbearing, and selfish and scheming.

Thus we have gradually reached the place where the masses of Christendom doubt the existence of a personal God, and are inclined to believe in a blind, brute force—a nature-god—and to hope that by some process of evolution their children's children, in the far hereafter, may attain to something better than the present; but they see not even the assurance of a future life for themselves, any more than for the brute creation.

Unthankful, Unholy, Covenant-Breakers.

This explains to us why the masses feel little interest in Thanksgiving Day, except as a holiday. They have lost their God—the living and true God—a Heavenly Father. Under these circumstances, declared Pastor Russell, it is not strange that they are unbelievers—that Thanksgiving is becoming a mere formality, that the churches are nearly empty and the prisons overflowing and many of the world pleasure-mad. St. Paul's words, "without God and having no hope in the world," surely fit the majority of Christendom today. These conditions breed the reverse of thankfulness, namely dissatisfaction. Thus we see the world enjoying blessings as never before, and discontented as never before. The opening of the eyes of understanding to the fact that our race is one, and that the blessings of earth belong equally to all, is now coming to men. These are great truths. With this knowledge should come an appreciation of the Divine supervision of the earth's affairs, and a knowledge of the Divine intention to rectify all the inequalities and in-equities of the present time in a future Age.

Since the desire of all mankind is happiness, our college men are unphilosophical in proclaiming a theory which is destroying happiness, and which threatens shortly to destroy our civilization through anarchy.

What Unthankfulness Costs.

We may be sure that unthankfulness today will bring upon man, naturally, a great curse—a great calamity. We see it coming! Unbelief in God means more trust in self—means more discontent—means strife to attain the things coveted—means anarchy—means the disruption of our present social system, as the Word of God foretells. (Daniel xii, 1.) Read at your convenience the Apostle's argument on this subject.—Romans i.

The silver lining to the dark cloud is in the Divine promise of rescue, after the world shall have learned a lesson for eternity. The Scriptures assure us that the time of trouble and anarchy will be followed by the establishment of Messiah's glorious Kingdom—the binding of Satan—the letting loose of every good influence and the true knowledge of God—the rising of the Sun of Righteousness with healing in its beams. That glorious time must be waited for.

TURKO-ITALIAN WAR.

Steamer passengers arriving at Malta from Tripoli describe the situation there as a reign of terror. Strong military patrols are continually conducting rigorous house to house searches and on the smallest pretense summary punishment is meted out. Many victims have been shot in their own homes. In the absence of any attempt to discriminate between friend and foe many foreigners have taken refuge in their respective consulates.

Further reinforcements for the Italian troops in Tripoli are being assembled at Naples. The movement is conducted with much secrecy. From an authoritative source it is learned that the present reinforcements will form another army division, comprising four regiments of infantry, besides supplementary troops, artillery, cavalry and engineers, totaling about 15,000 men.

The Lokal Anzeiger's Tripoli correspondent says Italy's losses in Tripoli since Oct. 23 amount to 1,500 men, of which 280 were killed. Eighty-seven soldiers are suffering with cholera. "The Italians," continues the correspondent, "have executed 4,000 Arabs, including 400 women and children."

According to news from Tripoli published at Constantinople the Turks have captured the last of the Italian outer entrenchments and occupied the suburb Zaher and all approaches to Tripoli from the northwest.

For Cramps.

A piece of old fashioned candle wick worn around the leg in the garter place next to the skin will prevent or cure cramp in the calf of the leg or in the foot. I have proved this by personal experience. I believe this would prove effectual in preventing swimmers' cramp. Those liable to cramp while in the water would be wise to try it. Cotton batting wrapped around the body from the armpits downward saved the life of a man suffering agony from painters' cramp. It gave instant relief.—National Magazine.

Uncertainty of Soldiering.

"Too bad about Lord Chawlie, isn't it?"

"What's happened to him?"

"Why, he's had to leave the guards, don't you know."

"And what have they done with him?"

"Put him in a common fighting regiment, by Jove!"—London Mail.

Having a Hard Time.

"Here I've been running for years," said the hall clock, "and I haven't moved an inch. I wouldn't mind that so much, but every evening about 8:30 the young lady of the family turns me back because she says I'm too fast, and then in the morning the old man comes along and grumbles because I'm too slow."

A Roar That Failed.

There is a playful apologue by Wendell Holmes about a great experiment on a universal scale. He describes mankind as arranging to combine on a certain New Year's eve to raise a shout in unison, to see if it would reach to Mars. It didn't, for the simple reason that when the crisis arrived there was no cry at all; everybody was too busy listening.

Creating a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have varied at different times. Thus, a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder were at one period given to the recipient of the dignity. A blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans, and this was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of the sword on the shoulder of the knight, a ceremony which has survived, with some modification, to the present day.

She Was.

A very loyal lady of English birth once asked an American dame in England whether they had any painters in America.

"Oh, yes," said the American, "you have some of them here—Sargent and Abbey and Mrs. Merritt and McClure Hamilton."

"Dear me," said the English lady, "you'll be claiming Whistler next!"

The Comet.

"Why did they name this special train the Comet?"

"I suppose so in case of a collision that they could keep it going after it had been telescoped."—Baltimore American.

Ready For It.

"Hubby, I'm going in for the simple life awhile."

"All right, my dear," said hubby as he reached for his checkbook. "How many gowns will that require?"—Kansas City Journal.

"A Soft Answer."

A somewhat tactless youth had taken an unwarranted liberty in criticising the new hat of a lady friend, and she was about to say that she was not inclined to be dictated to by any man. "I do not propose"— she began, but he interrupted her.

"If you did," he murmured, "I should certainly say 'Yes.'"

And his offense was forgiven.

He Understood.

The Owner—In my new house I want a simple breakfast room in addition to the more elaborate dining room. The Architect—I see. What you want is an oatmeal mushroom and a grilled mushroom room.—Chicago News.

TWO MINDEDNESS.

High mindedness and right mindedness may profitably be supplemented by "two mindedness," which has been defined as the habit of taking into account what is urged on both sides and trying to combine the essential parts of the two opposing arguments into one higher truth. Magnanimity, honesty, breadth, a trio of qualities worth possessing, and the last by no means the least.

Crookston is to have an anti-tuberculosis tag day on December 2nd.

For the first time in several years a meeting of the cabinet was held at the White House this week, instead of at the Executive offices.

The Karlstad Advocate tells in a double column article about the organization of a Commercial Club there. We anticipate, it will be a "live wire" for that village and vicinity.

The confession of Henry Clay Beattie Jr. was very unexpected to the public, as well as to the Beattie family. Beattie retained his iron nerve until the last, and took his medicine in the electric chair on the morning of Nov. 24th, at Richmond Va.

Do you wonder why the boy does not want to stay on the farm?

"He told his 12 year boy to milk the cows, feed the horses slop the pigs, hunt up the eggs, feed the calves, catch the colt and put him in the stable, cut some wood, split the kindling, stir the cream, and be sure to study his lessons before he went to bed. Then he went to the Farmers' Club to discuss the question, "How To Keep the Boys on the Farm."—Bemidji Sentinel.

A Benefit to the Farmers.

The Commercial Club met last Tuesday evening and a committee was appointed to make arrangements for places to put teams belonging to farmers when they come into the city. Heretofore a large number of teams have been compelled to stand out, on account of not being able to get accomodated at the local barns.

The Commercial Club will endeavor to make arrangements with the local livery barns and private parties, to have the necessary room that is required by the many farmers who make this their market. This no doubt will be a great comfort to the farmers. The act alone of knowing that when they arrive in the city they will have a comfortable place for their teams.

Glee Singers Coming Dec. 5th.

The Cambrian National Glee Singers the third number on the Lyceum Course which will be presented at the Auditorium Tuesday, Dec. 5th, comes very highly recommended.

Conductor Richard Thomas, is said to be the greatest tenor singer in South Wales, and has won prizes at five different occasions, also made a great hit last season.

Papers from all over the United States gives the Glee Singers great credit regarding their talent as singers. The numbers on the Lyceum Course up to this time have all been first class entertainments and that goes to say that the following number will be equally as good. Remember the date, Dec. 5th.

DIED FROM FALL

Weak Scaffold Causes Death of Louis Cloutier at Federal Dam Last Week.

Louis Cloutier who about a year ago this last summer, worked here when the Soo roundhouse was being enlarged was accidently killed at Federal Dam, last week. Louis with another carpenter, was building a school house, and was working from a considerable height, on a scaffold when the structure on which they were working gave way, letting both men to the ground.

Louis happened to be the unfortunate man; landing on his head and shoulders. He was immediately taken to the hospital at Bemidji where he died shortly after. The other man was hurt considerably, but nothing proved fatal.

Louis was well known here, having worked in and about this city for nearly a year at the carpenter trade. The deceased has three brothers, a sister and a mother to mourn his loss.

Funeral services will be held in this city today.

CAMBRIAN NATIONAL GLEE SINGERS.

Greatest Singing Company in Wales to Appear Here.

The Cambrian Glee Singers have won in prizes more than $5,000 as a company and much more as individuals; several having won highest honors in the National Eisteddfod of Wales, two of them on four occasions. Richard Thomas, the leader, John Stevens, manager, and Aneurin Morris, phenomenal baritone, as well as other favorites of last season, will again be with the company.

Alf. Thomas, known throughout Europe as "the Welsh Harry Lauder," will return with the company, notwithstanding the fact that he has received from European managers offers of more than double his present salary to remain and appear in Music Halls of London and elsewhere. The appearance of the company will be a notable event in our lyceum course.

BROKE DRIVE ROD

Great Northern Freight Engine Broke Down; Blockades Main Street Crossing.

Tuesday afternoon while the freight engine was switching in the Great Northern yards, the attachment which holds the drive rod to the wheel in some manner was broken completely off.

Shortly after the accident an engine was summoned from Greenbush which arrived shortly after the passenger at 3:40 in the afternoon. The crossing on Main Street South was blockaded very nearly all day.

Had this accident occured while the train was going 15 or 20 miles an hour it is very evident that it would have caused a very serious accident.

Shipping Lots of Hay.

J. D. O'Conner who purchased the Herman Guss farm, west of this city last year is sure doing things in the line of shipping hay. Mr. O'Conner has A. Klugress busily engaged in baling the hay while two teams are hauling it to the Great Northern yards, where it is being loaded and shipped. Six cars of this fine hay has already been loaded and ready for shipment.

TRUTH.

Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out. It is always upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

His Slang Won.

A ragged wayfarer accosted a well dressed pedestrian on Fifth avenue and said:

"It is up to you whether I flop."

"I construe this," said the well dressed one, "to be the usual request for money. There is a quarter. It is not alms. I will pay it to you for a definition of flop as you use the word."

"Flop," explained the ragged one, grinning, "means to sleep. I make a book they nick your wad for ten swell slugs every time you flop. Take it from me, kid, ten of those in our set is good for an even hundred nights."

"Here is $10, then," smiled the well dressed one. "Flop a hundred."—New York Globe.

Works Both Ways.

"Mr. Wombat, I must leave you to get married. I know a great many girls leave the firm to get married. Still, I hope you can fill my place."

"That will be all right. We have a waiting list of ladies who left us to get married, are now tired of their husbands and would like to come back."—Washington Herald.

THE WRATH OF GOD ALREADY UPON US

No Death Curse Resting Upon the Angels.

A New Interpretation Given to an Old Text Makes It Fit Well to Prevailing Conditions—Nevertheless, Says Pastor Russell, There Is "Wrath to Come," to Which We Should Take Heed.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 10.—Pastor Russell preached twice here today to large audiences. We report his discourse from the text, "The wrath of God is revealed against all unrighteousness of men." (Romans 1, 18.) The unreasonable teachings of our creeds have biased our minds to such a degree that the expression, "wrath to come," carries with it to our deluded brains pictures such as Dante, Thomas a Kempis and others have conjured for our minds, and which became impressed upon us in infancy.

The Wrath Now Revealed.

The Bible tells what the wrath to come is. We will look at that in due time, but now let us look at our text, and at the wrath which it says is already revealed. If it is revealed, where is it and what is it?

We answer that the expression of God's wrath against sin is seen in the sentence of death against the sinner—"Dying, thou shalt die." This the Scriptures call the "curse." It has rested upon our race for six thousand years. It is visible to all, attested by the reign of sin and death. Do we not see depravity all about us, and do we not realize some of it in our own selves? Do we realize that our race is dying, mentally, morally and physically?

Do we realize that all this is the penalty of sin? Every piece of crepe, every funeral procession, every casket, every cemetery, every undertaker's sign, every physician's sign, all of our weaknesses testify that God's wrath is upon our race. Moreover, the earthquakes and pestilences, the drouths and floods, tell us that our earth is not in a perfect condition, suitable for perfect man. It testifies that there is a reason why our race is treated by our Creator as a race of convicts.

No Death Curse In Heaven.

Does anyone think that the wrath of God is thus revealed in heaven—that amongst the holy angels is imperfection, sin and death? Does anyone suppose that doctors or undertakers or cemeteries are there? Why not? The answer is simple. The wrath of God is not upon them, because they are not sinners—they have continued to abide in obedience to Him.

"Who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come," were John the Baptist's words to some of the Holiness people (Pharisees) of his day. To what wrath did John refer? We answer that he was a Prophet, and was thus foretelling the time of trouble with which the Jewish Age ended, in A. D. 70. There is nothing whatever to indicate that he had made any reference to a wrath of God in the future, that would come upon his hearers after they were dead. On the contrary, the Scriptures everywhere teach that the dead are unconscious, that they can neither enjoy nor suffer anything, that they must wait for resuscitation in the resurrection.

The Wrath to Come.

Our Lord also corroborated the words of John the Baptist and declared that the wrath of God upon that nation was nigh; His words were, "These be the days of vengeance upon this people, that all things written in the Law and the Prophets concerning them should be fulfilled" (Luke xxi, 20-22); also the Apostle Paul (I Thessalonians ii, 16). Some of the things declared by the Lord in the Law and the Prophets were fulfilled in the destruction of Jerusalem, and in the trouble which came upon the Jews at that time. But other things written have had a grander fulfilment for now eighteen hundred years; and not one jot or tittle can fail until all be fulfilled.

However, St. Paul (Ephesians v, 6; Colossians iii, 6) mentions a coming time of Divine wrath; and Jesus urged His followers, saying, "Watch ye, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things coming upon the world, and to stand before the Son of Man." This intimates that the wrath here mentioned is to be world-wide, and in the end of this Age, even as the wrath upon the Jewish nation was nation-wide, in the end of their Age.

God's People Should Keep Hands Off.

This special wrath will be manifest in "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation." (Daniel xii, 1.) It will be specially upon those who fail to live up to the light and privilege which they enjoy. It will be upon all the selfish or covetous, and upon the unclean and upon those who unduly prize earthly things, wealth, honor, etc. God's people are warned, "Be ye not partakers with them," otherwise you will have no part or lot in the glorious Kingdom to which you have been called of God, as joint heirs with Jesus Christ, conditional upon your suffering with Him that you may also reign with Him.

CHARGED WITH JEWEL THEFT

Scion of Noble English Family Arrested at Minneapolis.

Wilfred Stuart Sheldon-Dickason, said to be the scion of an English noble family, whose social ambitions have carried him into the homes of the best families of Minneapolis for the last nine months, is locked up in the Mill City Central police station charged with the theft of diamonds and jewelry valued at $2,950 from Mrs. Olga von W. Haskell, well known in St. Paul and Minneapolis society.

Arrested with him on suspicion of knowing something of the disappearance of the jewels is George Haskell, son of Mrs. Haskell and of W. E. Haskell, now of Washington, D. C., formerly owner of the Boston Herald and still earlier owner of the Minneapolis Times and at one time with his father of the Minneapolis Journal.

Dickason strenuously denies knowledge of the diamonds or jewelry. For five weeks he has been the guest of the Haskell family at their home and remained there until a few days ago. The jewels were missed ten days ago and a quiet search instituted.

DYGART GOES UP FOR LIFE

Pleads Guilty to Double Murder in Anoka County.

James T. Dygart, thirty-two years of age, pleaded guilty in district court at Anoka to a charge of murder in the second degree for the killing of Mrs. Walter Bolton and her cousin, Frank S. Rhodes, at the Bolton farm in Anoka county on Sept. 11 last.

His attorney, John P. Nash of Minneapolis, said that his client wished to have the charge changed from first degree murder to the lesser charge, to which he would plead guilty. The prosecutor consented and the court accordingly passed sentence of life imprisonment in the state prison at Stillwater.

Judge Giddings, after questioning the prisoner, said he regretted that the law recently had been so amended that capital punishment had been abolished. Dygart inquired whether the law could not be "changed back." Asked if he would prefer to have it so, he said he would "just as soon."

NORTHROP DECLINES HONOR

Former University President Will Not Enter Politics.

Dr. Cyrus Northrop, former president of the state university, will not permit the use of his name for political honors. In a statement given out at Minneapolis he announced his definite decision not to be a candidate, either for governor or for congressman at large from Minnesota. The statement, beyond which he would say nothing, follows:

"I am very greatly obliged to all the friends who have given me advice on the subject of my being a candidate for congressman at large or for governor and I thank them all, whether their advice has been for or against my being a candidate; but I have decided the matter and shall not be a candidate for either position."

ORE ROAD MEN SUMMONED

Officials of Range Railroads Ordered Before Steel Trust Probers.

Officials of the Duluth and Iron Range and the Duluth, Missabe and Northern railroads, the lines in the Lake Superior region owned by the steel trust, have been summoned to appear before the house committee of inquiry into the United States Steel corporation.

Representative Stanley, chairman of the committee, announced that the inquiry for some time will be directed into the transportation charges for the shipment of ore, which, it is contended, are exorbitant and greatly to the disadvantage of independent shippers.

ATTACKS WIFE AND RESCUER

Minneapolis Man Runs Amuck With Revolver.

Anton Anderson shot and seriously wounded his wife, Carrie Anderson, at Minneapolis. Anderson also put two bullets into Benjamin Johnson, who rushed to the rescue of the woman. Both are now at the city hospital, where it is said they will recover, while Anderson is being held at the North Side station.

No motive for the shooting is known. Anderson was sent to the Rochester insane asylum a year ago and was released as cured last spring.

BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Mayor Dumas of Cass Lake, Minn., Again Indicted.

The grand jury in the federal district court at Fergus Falls has returned a joint indictment against Dr. Dumas, Martin Behan and Mike Davis, charging them with "conspiring to commit an offense against the United States government," the crime being the alleged attempt to rob the Puposky (Minn.) postoffice.

Vicious Dog Bites Eight.

Eight persons were bitten at St. Paul by a large St. Bernard dog before the police of Central and Rondo stations, in which districts the canine was on a rampage, succeeded in capturing it. None of the persons attacked was severely injured, but the majority had their Sunday clothing torn to shreds.

The stains that gather so quickly on the inside of the coffeepot may be easily removed by boiling in it a fairly strong solution of baking soda. If one treatment doesn't do the business, repeat.

One of the latest baits recommended for catching wall eyed pike is strips of orange peeling. It seems to be the bright color of the bait rather than any value it possesses for food that attracts the fish.

The Northwestern Greening is a late and none too prolific bearer, rots quickly if bruised and has none too good a texture, but it has when full ripe a twang and spiciness that are surpassed by not more than two or three other varieties.

A fellow's real patriotism—interest in the welfare of his community and country—is not measured by his fine buildings, bursting cribs and mows and sleek animals, but by the pains he takes to inform himself of the important issues of his time and to cast his vote on election day.

The Colorado blue spruce is a beautiful tree in its native habitat on the hill slopes and in the valleys of the Rockies, but it is even more thrifty and beautiful if given the special care possible when set as an ornament for lawn or park. From the standpoint of vigor, symmetry and color effect no conifer surpasses it.

A good many folks who make light in a general way of the danger of one's contracting tuberculosis from dairy cows afflicted with the disease are not at all anxious to have their own children use the milk from such animals. It is merely a case in which a trouble is not so bad provided it is "on" somebody else, say over in the next county.

Mowing the lawn in the middle of October may improve the looks of it for a brief time, but unless there is a good mulch of well rotted manure applied to enrich the soil and protect the roots of the grass from winter thawing and freezing the practice is not advisable. Grass needs a rest just like folks, and it's a pretty good plan to do no cutting after Sept. 20.

There is no tool that gives as good results in freshly cleared land and is as economical in operation from the standpoint of both horsepower and patience as the disk harrow. This holds both in getting the land in shape for a crop and tending it while growing. The advantage of the disk for the purposes mentioned is appreciated by any one who has operated one of the old break pin cultivators on a rooty field.

If the housewife has a small sized fish to bake she will find an easy as well as a very satisfactory way to do it to cut the fish along the backbone so as to lay it open and then cover it nicely with the stuffing which one prefers, a breadcrumb dressing seasoned with sage and onion being excellent. This method of baking not only keeps the fish moist and tender, but gives a brown crust to the covering which is very appetizing.

Some one has figured out that if every boy in the country would eat five apples a day for the next three months it would require all the apples which have been produced in the country this year and would insure a fair price to the growers. Another thing about this boy-apple combination is that it is just as good for the boy as it is for the apple market. Five apples a day will merely keep the average boy's digestive organs in good working order.

A point that the dweller in the well watered central and eastern states should keep in mind on going into the dry country west of meridian 100 degrees is that, while one acre of pasture in his native section will keep a steer or five head of sheep, it requires from eight to fifteen times as much land in the dry belt to furnish a like amount of forage. This is not said to the detriment of the land of the short grass but simply for the information of the settler who may not be aware of the fact.

Many newly set family orchards that we know, like many boys and girls, need some attention just now if they are going to develop into anything symmetrical and valuable later on. As regards these young trees they should have their rangy, sprawling tops cut back so as to give a stundier and more shapely head or frame, while cross or ill shapen limbs should be taken out entirely. This work is done easily now, while the trees are in the formative stage, while the results secured are in every way more satisfactory than if the job is postponed.

CANALS IN ENGLAND.

They Had Their Origin In a Matrimonial Disappointment.

The British system of artificial inland navigation, which includes several thousand miles of canal, may be said to have had its origin in a matrimonial disappointment. The Duke of Bridgewater, the originator of the system, was engaged to be married just after he had attained his majority. A dispute arising between the couple, the match was broken off. The duke's chagrin changed the course of his life. He gave his first and last ball to the London world of fashion and then buried himself among his coal fields at Worsley. Eschewing the society of women, he refused even to employ them as servants in his manor house.

Disappointed in marrying the most beautiful woman in England, he determined to unite by means of a canal his coal fields with Manchester, then beginning its career as a manufacturing town. In those days good roads were the exceptions, bad roads the rule. The cottons of Manchester and the woolens of Leeds were conveyed from place to place on pack horses, which jogged along in single file. The freight charge from Leeds to London was $63 a ton. When the duke's canal was finished the prices of coal and other commodities in Manchester fell one-half.

The success of this canal started the duke to build one which would connect Manchester with Liverpool. To procure the funds he reduced his personal expenses to £400 a year. So straitened was he at times that the London bankers hesitated to discount his note for £500. Sometimes when "hard up" he would send his steward upon a collecting tour among the tenantry of the ducal estates. The steward would ride from tenant to tenant, getting £5 here and £10 there. When he had collected money enough he would return and pay the canal laborers their weekly wages. In a few years, however, the duke's canals paid him an annual revenue of £80,000.—New York Press.

THE WORD MELODRAMA.

Originally Meant a Play In Which Music Was Introduced.

Nowadays "melodrama" is in general use as denoting a purely sensational play, with an all but impossible hero, heroine and villain among the characters represented. Formerly the word kept more closely in its signification to actual derivation. "Melodrama" is compounded of the Greek words melos, a song, and drama, an action, a play, and was applied to two sorts of performances when it first came into use.

It signified a play, generally of the romantic school, in which the dialogue was frequently relieved by music, sometimes of an incidental and sometimes of a purely dramatic character. On the strength of his "Pygmalion" J. J. Rousseau is credited with the invention of this style. Some of the so called English operas of the older school, such as the once famous "Beggar's Opera" and the once popular "No Song, No Supper," are in reality true melodramas.

In the second place "melodrama" was applied to a peculiar kind of theatrical composition in which the actor recited his part in an ordinary speaking voice, while the orchestra played a more or less elaborate accompaniment appropriate to the situation and calculated to bring its salient features into the highest possible relief. The merit of the invention of this description of melodrama belongs to George Benda, who used it with striking effect in his "Ariadne auf Naxos," produced at Gotha in 1774.—London Globe.

Familiar Quotations.

One of the most familiar quotations from the Bible which are not to be found there upon research is "the lion lying down with the lamb." The spirit of the reference is correct enough, but turn up the passage in Isaiah and you will find: "The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid, and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together." The popular mind has condensed the zoological miscellany, and to the incorrect version alliteration has no doubt contributed.—Exchange.

Denmark's Outdoor Theater.

Denmark has probably the finest natural outdoor theater in the world. It is situated in the royal deer park about six miles out of the capital. There the avenues of mighty trees serve as wings and background to a stage fronted by a beech encircled slope that forms a perfect auditorium. Eight thousand people can be accommodated at every performance.

Positively Brutal.

While She Was Away

"Why, I haven't seen you for an age!" cried the girl with the fall hat as she rushed at the other girl with the golden hair and innocent blue eyes, who was buying handkerchiefs assiduously. "How well you look! Your summer in the country—"

"Oh, I didn't go to the country," said the girl with blue eyes. "I stayed at home this year!"

"What!" gasped the girl with the fall hat, in a shocked tone. "My dear, you don't mean to say you've passed the whole dreadful summer cooped up in the city, without a bit of change or—"

The girl with blue eyes regarded her calmly. "I managed to have a very good time," she said.

"I know," commiserated the other. "But I do feel sorry for you! When every one you know is away it must be hard to be patient and amuse yourself. I think it is wonderful that you have stood it so well. I should have been bored to death, I feel sure. You know that I simply must have lots of people around me and things going on.

"I had a perfectly glorious time at the lake," proceeded the girl with the fall hat. "There were several men there who simply kept me busy and, of course, while I didn't want to make the other girls unhappy, I couldn't help it if they got left out a good many times. But it is perfectly dreadful when three or four men happen to fall in love with one the same summer!"

"I should think so," said the girl with blue eyes. "Which one did you take?"

The girl with the fall hat looked annoyed. "Oh, I'm in no hurry about that," she said. "I'm not so crazy to get married as most girls. They all will probably be on here soon to see me. I was so rushed that I am afraid I rather neglected my old friends. I did write Harold asking him to come up, but something tiresome kept him in town. Of course, then I wrote and told him to come any time that suited him and not to think of hurrying back, but, some way or other, the poor boy got delayed each time.

"The head of the firm came on from the east once and his mother was sick another time, and goodness knows what else interfered. I felt so sorry for him, for I knew how disappointed Harold was—well, he was—"

"Yes?" queried the girl with the blue eyes, with some interest.

The girl in the fall hat managed to blush faintly. "Well, between you and me, Harold was getting so terribly fond of me that I couldn't help seeing what was coming. He can't help showing his feelings in his eyes—did you ever notice? But, of course, you were never in exactly the same situation as I was with him, so you wouldn't notice. If there is anything I hate to do it is break a man's heart and I wanted to be kind to Harold. That was why I asked him up to the lake."

"That's an odd way to proceed when you are refusing a man," commented the girl with the blue eyes.

"I didn't say I was going to refuse him, did I?" demanded with some asperity the girl with the fall hat. "Harold is very nice and devotion such as his appeals to a girl with sensibilities such as I have! It just spoiled my birthday picnic for me because he couldn't be there. I kept thinking of him working away alone in town, wanting to join me and imagining the good time I was having with other people! I wrote him a long letter to cheer him up that night."

"He must have appreciated it," said the girl with the blue eyes.

"Of course he did," agreed her friend. "Harold has the finest nature! It's too bad you don't know him well enough to realize it. However, I think I'm about the only one to whom he shows his real self. He must be out of town now, because I've called up his office every day since I got back and the telephone boy always says he's not in. I expect he's terribly anxious to get back now that he knows I'm here."

"Harold isn't out of town," said the girl with the blue eyes.

"He isn't. How do you happen to know that he is not?"

"Because he was at my home last evening," explained the girl with the blue eyes.

The girl with the fall hat stared at her indignantly. "The idea!" she said "He can't know that I'm back! I'll telephone him right away, and—"

"Telephone him, of course, if you want to," said the girl with blue eyes good humoredly. "But I ought to tell you first that Harold and I got engaged during the summer that we passed cooped up in this dreadful town! Still, the news will scarcely interest you, since you have all those men you met at the lake coming to the city to see you this winter!"

Works Both Ways.

"Mr. Wombat, I must leave you to get married. I know a great many girls leave the firm to get married. Still, I hope you can fill my place."

"That will be all right. We have a waiting list of girls who left us to get married, are now tired of their husbands, and would like to come back."

One Widow's Mistake

Once a week for six months Mr Charles Ford had driven over to Gorse Lake from Pentville to call at the residence of the Widow Bush. That made 24 times. On the 25th he declared his love and asked for her hand. He was crushed to earth when told that the widow's heart was not in the affair. There were reasons—many reasons why she could not love. As a brother he might continue to drive over from Pentville as long as he wished, but any future conversation must not touch upon the subject of love.

Late one afternoon, a week after the great refusal, the Widow Bush set out in her auto to go to Pentville. It was not to see Mr. Ford and hint to him that she had changed her mind, but to visit a relative. At the same hour Mr. Ford set out from Pentville to motor over to Gorse Lake. It was not to submit a new matrimonial proposal, but to see a man on business. Both motors could have made the trip before dusk came down but for accidents. Something went wrong with both machines. Something had to be tinkered at. There was delay. And thus it happened that an hour after dark on a moonless night, with rain threatening at any minute, the two autos came together on that long hill. It is impossible to tell how things happen. In this case both machines had their lamps lit—both were running slowly and carefully—Mr. Ford was prudent and the widow's man experienced, and yet those autos struck head on. There was a jar, but no one was hurt. It would be some hours before the Widow Bush could reach Pentville, or Mr. Ford could talk business with that man in Gorse Lake. Three of the four lamps were smashed. The chauffeur took the fourth and started off to find a farmer to come with a team of horses.

And then it began to rain, and the darkness thickened until Mr. Ford could not see the tip of his nose. The widow had the shelter of a tonneau; he had none. He had to stand out and take the pour as it came.

After the chauffeur had departed there was silence between the rejector and the rejected. It didn't last long, however. At the end of 10 minutes the widow opened the door and called out:

"Mr. Ford, I am sorry that you are out in the rain."

"You ought to be. It is all owing to that fool-man of yours!"

"Mr. Ford, are we in danger of bears?"

"Yes, we are, and I hope ten or twelve of them will come!"

"Mr. Ford, are you smoking?"

"Yes."

"What's that noise?"

"It sounds like the bellowing of a bull."

"But will the animal come here and attack us?"

"He may."

It was a bull, and he had leaped the pasture fence. He came along down the hill, bellowing at every stride and hoping to find something to demolish, and the widow began to scream and threw the door open to jump out.

"Get back there and stop your noise!" commanded Mr. Ford, and his grasp was not gentle as he seized her arm.

Then he disappeared into the night. There were stones in the road. He felt them under his feet and pelted the bull and started him into a retreat. As he came sloshing back through the mud and water the widow asked:

"Mr. Ford, don't you think you ought to follow William and ascertain the cause of this delay?"

"No, ma'am, I don't!" he promptly answered.

"Then I will follow him myself!"

"Then you will stay right where you are! If William isn't the biggest fool in the state he has crawled under a haystack somewhere and won't be seen until daylight."

That settled things for a long half hour. Then the tonneau door opened and a soft voice said:

"Mr. Ford, please come nearer. You loved me, didn't you?"

"Y-es," he sulkily admitted.

"You asked me to marry you, and I refused. I refused because I had not read you aright. I am willing to admit that I was entirely mistaken in your character."

"H-how?"

"I took you for a sissy, like my late husband—awfully good, but a sissy. I didn't know that you were aggressive. I didn't believe you'd dare face a bellowing bull, even by daylight, with a six rail fence between you. I couldn't have been made to believe that you would dare order me about. Tonight you have shown me my errors. Oh, how mistaken I have been!"

"Then why don't you say you are coming in here beside me and order me to move along? It seems to me we ought to have a talk—a new talk."

And soon after daylight, when the chauffeur returned with a farmer and a team, he saw the widow's sleepy head resting on Mr Ford's shoulder and lost his presence of mind and stepped back to exclaim:

"Well, but who'd a thought it!"

A Great Admirer.

"Have you Thackeray's works?"

"No," sighed Mrs. Timpers; "although I am a great admirer of Thackeray."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; and I was so anxious to have his works complete, but I couldn't find a binding that would harmonise with the color scheme in our library."

Overboard at Sea

To be lost overboard on a dark night, hundreds of miles south of the Cape of Good Hope, with a strong wind blowing, and to live to tell the tale, does not happen to many sailors. William Galloway of the crew of the British ship Kilbrannan had such an experience several years ago, and told his story to a reporter of a San Francisco newspaper of the time, from which the following account is taken:

Galloway is a brown-faced Scotch laddie who says "mither" for mother, and everything about him, from the frayed bottoms of his jean trousers to the wiry-looking tufts of hair which peep from beneath the front peak of his little fore-and-aft cap, betoken the rollicking, happy-go-lucky deep-sea sailor boy. Of his adventure, First Mate William Coalfleet said:

"It was eight o'clock in the evening. We were fifty-five days out from Philadelphia, bound for Hiogo, Japan, and near latitude forty-four one south, longitude fourteen forty-four east. A strong easterly wind was blowing. It was dark and bitter cold, and the sea was running very high.

"Galloway was half-way up the ratlines, unhooking a block from the main-sheet, when the ship gave a lurch and he fell into the sea.

"The captain threw him a life buoy. The ship was brought up in the wind as quickly as possible, and a boat lowered and manned. I took command of her.

"We heard the boy shout as we were lowering the boat, but he had yelled himself hoarse, and we had nothing to guide us as we pulled aimlessly about in the heavy sea.

"We pulled round for over an hour, and as we lost sight of the ship several times, and the night was getting rougher and thicker, I was about to give up the search in despair, when we heard a feeble moan, and straining our eyes, saw Galloway clinging to the lifebuoy, almost under our bow.

"We soon had him on board, but it took some slapping and rubbing to put warmth into his rigid limbs."

Galloway said to the reporter: "I am a good swimmer, and managed to ride the big seas that came along, but it was terribly cold, and my legs began to feel like lead. It was a good job for me that the water was so black, or I never could have seen the white lifebuoy as it came to me on the crest of a wave.

"I got it under my arms and stopped paddling. I was tired out. I shouted as long as I could, but my voice grew husky.

"The albatrosses and mollyhawks swooped down on me, and I kept waving my arms, thinking every moment that one of them would drive its beak through my skull.

"I lost all hope and thought of mother and my sisters in Glasgow. Then I saw the white hull of the mate's boat. I tried hard to shout. They heard me and I was soon hauled on board.

"The captain gave me medicine, and with plenty of warm blankets and hot coffee, I soon began to feel myself again."—American Home Monthly.

CHEERS FOR THE ANIMALS

Lecturer Annoyed by Being Interrupted by Cheers and Jeers While Delivering a Lecture.

The naturalist was delivering a lecture at West Point to the entire body of cadets, and he was telling them a big bear story. "At that moment," he said, "the mother bear—"

His remarks were interrupted and broken off short by a huge yell from the cadets, with clapping and stamping and cheers and jeers that gave him no opportunity to continue. He simply had to wait, nonplussed, until the noise had subsided. Then he took up his discourse again. "I don't know what I said," he remarked, "to bring forth such an outburst. I suppose it must have been something queer. If nobody tells me I'll simply have to go on and do the best I can without that salutary information. As I was saying, the mother bear—" Again the yells broke forth, but this time they were brief and the lecturer was allowed to finish explaining about the antics of Lady Bruin. Then another slide was slipped into the stereopticon and a picture of a small animal was thrown on the screen. "This little fellow," the lecturer stated, "is often extremely annoying about camp. He is a porcupine—" Howls and yells again broke out, and the lecturer shook his head in despair of being able to have his lecture received seriously by these militant youths of the country, who evidently know something about animals that he did not know. Having been very much of a boy himself, however, some years previous, he knew the game well enough to join in with a cheerful grin, and after a time he completed his talk, though it was punctuated with yells and laughter as the wolf, the badger, the owl, the crane and even the malodorous skunk appeared on the screen and made their respective bows to the audience.

At the close of the talk the lecturer sought information from the officers. They smiled as one of them told him, "Nicknames. We have a fellow here that the boys call 'the mother bear,' another that goes by the name of 'porcupine,' and so on down your list. It is a wonder that you got through at all."

Two Simpletons

Miss Sally Aldridge had reached that point in age where people were referring to her as an old maid. Sally Aldridge didn't care, however. She had a farm left to her by her parents, and by hiring some help and doing considerable work herself got along all right and kept her young sister Nannie in school.

Miss Sally invested in six hives of bees and waited. She likewise got stung 54 times and waited. She carefully followed instructions, and at the end of the first season there wasn't enough honey in the hives to feed the bees on through the winter. She sold them for a dollar a hive and tallied it up to experience.

It was at this time that Mr. Welcome came along to buy potatoes. He was an old bachelor living 10 miles away. He also had commercial dreams and ambitions. He also had decided to experiment. Sally Aldridge had no potatoes to sell. Her bees had taken precedence of the tubers. She and Mr. Welcome had a talk, however. He was a pretty blunt man, and before going away he asked permission to call and get better acquainted.

"Oh, yes, but it won't do you any good," was the reply.

"But should our friendship ripen into love?" he asked.

"But it won't."

"But if it should I should certainly ask you to be my wife."

"An I should just as certainly say no to it."

"I simply shan't marry until I have found a bigger fool than I am."

He laughed and went his way, and Miss Sally went in to read up on poultry raising for market. Nothing in Shakespeare compares in interest to a poultry book. The reader feels like crowing with the roosters, clucking with the hens and piping with the chickens.

She took 500 head of poultry, three incubators and several barrels of dope. The dope wasn't needed for the chickens—they were never sick an hour—but for the buyer. There were grounds to be laid out—houses to build—wire fences to put up. No trouble at all, as the books say! Any child 10 years old can run the machine after five minutes.

Miss Sally was no child. Neither was she a chicken. For 10 long months she was a hen. She was with them all day and a part of many nights. She got to know what pip and gapes are. There were a hundred motherly old hens that did nothing but sit around and have chills, soft corns, backaches and fits of various kinds. They must be doctored by day and sympathized with during the long hours of night. Some of the incubators roasted the chicks, and some froze them to death.

The chickens didn't last as long as the bees. There were few eggs, and few broilers. The hospitals and hotels that had contracted had to turn to mutton to fill up their guests. There ought to have been a profit of $3,000 the first year, according to the seller, but there was a loss of hundreds the other way.

Miss Sally had "dead horse" to sell and she sold it, and a few weeks later tried her third commercial experiment. It was ginseng this time. The little roots came from Persia and cost dollars and dollars per pound, but two acres of Persian ginseng would net the grower about $5,000 clear profit.

The ginseng roots from far-off Persia turned out to be burdock roots from nearby Michigan.

Meanwhile, Mr. Welcome had made excuses to drop in now and then. He drove up one day with a look of determination on his face. Many a woman has seen that look and realized that the crisis was at hand. The old bachelor had hardly entered the house when he was greeted with: "I gave you my answer long ago."

"Exactly, Miss Aldridge. I have come to claim the fulfillment of your promise."

"I am a bigger fool than you are. Sit down while I prove it to you. You knew nothing whatever about bees, and yet you went into honey-raising."

"You had 20 old hens around your farm, and you figured that you could manage a thousand."

"You didn't know ginseng root from burdock."

"No, I didn't, and that's where I am safe. Where is a bigger fool?"

"Right here, my dear. I was let in on the ground floor on blue roses; I invested in a banana orchard in Ohio that was to be run by steam; I bought mahogany trees to set out in my farm; I bought mushroom seeds that turned out to be turnips; I raised and sold squabs for 14 cents each that cost me 26. My last experiment was trying to grow celery on a sandy sidehill. I am here to claim your hand!"

"Well, I said——"

"A bigger fool than you were. Those were your words. Sally, I shall come courtin' three nights a week, and in three months we are to be married."

And matrimony proved a successful experiment for both of them.

TRIALS IN ITALY.

Criminal Court Methods There Utterly Different From Ours.

Criminal court trials in Italy are conducted under a very simple system, though utterly different from the system which governs procedure in American or English courts, says an exchange.

The trial takes place before three judges and a jury, to which are added a certain number of extra jurors, who are sworn and are present in court to hear the testimony and are held ready to take the place in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The depositions of all the witnesses have been taken in writing and signed before the trial begins. Each of the judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused furnish to the court a list of the witnesses they desire called, and these are all summoned by the court, which has power to punish nonattendance.

The first thing that happens when the trial begins is the questioning of the accused by the presiding justice. In Italy, as in most of continental Europe, a man accused of a crime is considered by the law to be the very best witness to his own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he chooses. In Italy he is the first and most important witness.

The accused is allowed the widest scope in defending himself. He has a right to tell his own story in his own way, to offer anything he can in the way of justification or palliation. Even hearsay evidence is admissible. The judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony may be received and what excluded, and any judge who exercised this discretion unfairly would be an object of execration. Bias on the part of one judge is possible, but there are always the other two judges on the bench with him, and they are a perfect check against unfairness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted face to face with his accuser. The accuser is necessarily the principal witness against him. Strictly speaking, the prisoner has no right to interrupt his accuser while the latter is telling his story, but in practice the judges permit it, and the confrontation sometimes becomes a three cornered debate between accuser, accused and judge, the latter giving the accused the widest leeway to demonstrate his innocence.—Case and Comment.

A little fine rose dust sprinkled on young pear trees, cherry trees or rosebushes early in the morning when the dew is on will put a finish on the slugs that so often skeletonize the leaves. The dust is tough on their gizzards and sweat glands. The writer has tried this slug remedy and knows it does the business.

There is no more sly and brutal enemy of the birds than the spry and graceful small red squirrels that frequent the lawns and parks of almost every town and city. It may be tough sentiment, but the writer favors shooting these wretches on sight, for they perform no service that in any way compensates for their ruthless destruction of eggs and young birds.

Mysterious.

"That was a mysterious robbery the other day," said Smith to Jones.

"Why, I don't see what mystery there was about it," remarked Jones. "The detectives caught the thieves the same day."

"Yes," returned the first speaker, "that's what I said."—London Answers.

Boston's Streets.

"Where can I get a car that will take me to the South station?" asked a lady of a Boston policeman.

"Right here, ma'am," he answered courteously. "Any one of these cars that passes will take ye."

"But the cars go both ways on this street. Which way does the car go that I must take?"

"Well, as to that, 'twill make no difference which way the car goes, 'twill take ye there just the same."—New York Press.

The Comet.

"Why did they name this special train the Comet?"

"I suppose so in case of a collision that they could keep it going after it had been telescoped."—Baltimore American.

She Was.

A very loyal lady of English birth once asked an American dame in England whether they had any painters in America.

"Oh, yes," said the American, "you have some of them here—Sargent and Abbey and Mrs. Merritt and McClure Hamilton."

"Dear me," said the English lady, "you'll be claiming Whistler next!"

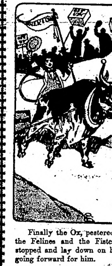
A Fable For Critics

Once there was an Ox. He was a fine, hefty Ox. He could pull a big load. He never balked, but always liked to go straight ahead.

But the Ox had enemies.

There was the Flea and his whole big Family. "We don't care whether this Ox travels or not," said the Flea and his Folks. "All we want is some of his blood." Whereupon the Fleas eternally pestered the Ox and gave him That Tired Feeling.

Then there was the Tom Cat and his brothers—the Doubting Thomases. "We don't know whether this Ox is going the right way or not," said the Thomases. "Anyhow, we'll scratch his back for him." Whereupon the Felines jumped on the back of the Ox and scratched him for fair, which made the Ox exceedingly sorrowful.



Then there was the Fiste Pup and his Fellow Fistes—a whole litter of Fistes. "We don't care how slow the Ox goes," said the Fistes; "the slower the merrier for us. All we want is to lag behind him and bite his Tail." Whereupon the Fistes snapped continually at the Tail of the Ox, which gave the Ox a mighty mournfulness.

Finally the Ox, pestered constantly with the Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes, got to looking sickly. He stopped and lay down on his job, and there was no more going forward for him.

KEY TO THE SITUATION: The town is the Ox. The Fleas and the Felines and the Fistes are those citizens who criticise every progressive movement and do everything they can in their petty ways to make the Ox quit pulling in the right direction.

MORAL: Give the Ox a chance to pull. Everybody holler, "Git up!"

An Unwelcome Period.

Ever man dreads the day when people who are no kin to him will begin calling him uncle.—Atchison Globe.

How Watches Vary.

Theoretically, says a jeweler, the best watches of today are perfect, but actually they both gain and lose time every day. Even if the good watch does not vary one second at the end of the twenty-four hours, the expert insists, it has both gained and lost in that time. If it is wound in the morning it runs fast and toward the next morning runs slow, thus equalizing the time. He says the best watches should be wound twice a day and then at only two-thirds of the capacity of the mainspring, thus preventing either binding or extremes of strong or weakened spring. The balance wheel was expected to equalize differences of mainspring tension, but really this is not the case to what is called perfection.—New York Press.

Boston's Winter and Summer.

Nearly all visitors to Boston, if they do not see it, are told of the place where one may "step from Winter into Summer or from Summer into Winter at any time of the year without giving a thought to his clothing." This may be done at the point where Washington street intersects the street which is "Winter" on one side and "Summer" on the other. A guide was enlarging on this bit of humor to a visitor from New York a few days ago, but was not rewarded by the smile which the Winter and Summer joke usually calls forth. "That's nothing," said the New Yorker, "but what is really funny here is to see the entrance to the underground railway marked 'The Elevator.'"—New York Tribune.

The Church Cough.

Of all coughs the church cough is the most difficult to check, and it is almost as contagious as yawning. The late Mr. Haweis practically cured his Marylebone congregation of coughing during the service. He used to announce an interval for coughing with a polite request to those who found this insufficient to go outside. There is a somewhat similar practice in the Russian army—the nose blowing drill—which is performed by the whole regiment at a signal from the colonel. And no soldier dares sneeze at any other time.—London Spectator.

The Old Order Passeth.

What has become of the old fashioned man who was about to solve the problem of perpetual motion?

And where is the old fashioned woman who wore gloves that reached only halfway to the end of her fingers?

Can anybody furnish information concerning the whereabouts of the old fashioned boy who wore mittens which were fastened to a long string?—Chicago Record Herald.

Between Friends.

Miss Elderleigh—I'll let you into a secret if you'll promise not to tell it. Miss Younger—All right. Miss Elderleigh—I'm engaged. Miss Younger—Oh, fudge! Suppose I do tell it? No one will believe it.—Chicago News.

Not a Fashion Plate.

"I am afraid your clothes are very much out of style," said the sporty youth.

"I hope so," replied the conservative father. "I pay the tailor extra to keep 'em that way."—Washington Star.

Explained.

"Dad, what is meant by relatively speaking?" inquired Gunson junior.

"Relatively speaking," explained Gunson senior, "refers directly to your grandmother on your mother's side."—Illustrated Magazine.

NEW POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS

St. Paul and Minneapolis to Have Them Sept. 1.

After weeks of speculation and unofficial reports fixing various dates, St. Paul, together with Minneapolis and eight other cities of the large class, will get their much talked of postal savings bank Sept. 1, according to an order signed by Postmaster General Hitchcock.

Encouraged by the success of the postal banking system in the hundreds of smaller cities where it already is in operation the postmaster general decided to install them in ten cities of the United States, known in the postal service as group B of the first class. They include in addition to St. Paul and Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Jersey City, Wilmington, Del., and Long Island City. All of these cities rank high as industrial and commercial centers and all have a large foreign born population.

REPEAL CLAPP AMENDMENT

Oklahoman Has Solution of White Earth Difficulties.

Major J. R. Howard, superintendent of the White Earth Indian agency in Minnesota, was the only witness before the committee on expenditures in the interior department, which is investigating the Indian administration in Minnesota.

Representative Ferris of Oklahoma, a member of the committee, made a suggestion in the hearing which failed to find sympathy with Representative Graham of Illinois, the chairman. Mr. Ferris gave it as his belief that the crux of the situation was the necessity for the repeal of the Clapp amendment. The whole matter, he declared, should be referred to the committee on Indian affairs, with a recommendation for legislation providing for the repeal of the Clapp law, which permits the mixed bloods to alienate their allotments.

Fourteen secretaries of as many retail lumber dealers' associations, indicted by a special federal grand jury at Chicago for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, constituted a new kind of "trust," according to the United States attorneys who conducted the investigation. The retail lumber dealers, it was admitted at the close of the investigation, had no corporation, no capital stock and did not try to control prices and prevent competition among themselves. Instead they had what the attorneys say was a "trust of power" and sought to provide that all lumber should be sold to consumers only through retail dealers and not by wholesalers or manufacturers. The men, as secretaries of the retail associations, constitute the Lumber Secretaries' Bureau of Information, incorporated in Illinois in 1905, and represents thousands of retailers.

The United States circuit court of the Eighth district, sitting at St. Louis, filed an opinion that the purchase of the Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific did "not amount to a direct and substantial restraint of either interstate or international commerce." The recent decision of the United States supreme court in the Standard Oil case was cited among others by Judge Elmer B. Adams, who wrote the majority opinion. Supreme Court Justice Willis Van Devanter, while a circuit judge of the Eighth district, participated in the hearing, deliberation and conclusion in the case and concurred in the opinion. Judge William C. Hook filed a dissenting opinion.

The United States circuit court for the district of Delaware handed down a decision declaring that the alleged powder trust, which is dominated by the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company, is a combination in restraint of interstate commerce in powder and other explosives, in violation of section 1 of the Sherman anti-trust law; that it attempts to monopolize and has monopolized a part of such commerce, in violation of section 2 of the same law, and decreeing that the combination shall be enjoined from continuing this violation and that it shall be dissolved.

Advances in the minimum charge for the transportation of freight in single packages and in small lots proposed by the railways in classification territory, to become effective July 1, were suspended by the interstate commerce commission until Oct. 28 next. The suspension affects approximately 600 roads.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie road has bought valuable and extensive freight terminal property in Chicago. This property cost millions of dollars and will be improved with freight tracks and freight house.

Articles of Incorporation of "Pennington Hotel Company."

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS: That, we, the undersigned, do hereby associate ourselves together for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the general laws of the state of Minnesota, and to that end do hereby adopt and subscribe the following articles of incorporation:—

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL XXVIII THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1911 NUMBER 50

BURNED TO THE GROUND

Fire Was Discovered Friday Morning on St. Paul Avenue at an Early Hour.

Building Was Owned by a Party at Crookston, and was Practically Covered by Insurance.

At 2 o'clock a. m. Friday morning fire was discovered on the east side of the river at 117 St. Paul avenue south.

The house was owned by Jas. E. Morlssey of Crookston and was insured, which practically covered the loss. The building was occupied by Elmer Johnson who with his wife and two children were sleeping in the house at the time.

The alarm was turned in, and before the alarm was completed the hammer in the bell was broken, and a complete alarm was not given. On this account only a small number of the firemen were present, also the fact that no teams arrived at the scene to haul the hose cart, resulted in another handicap for the few firemen that were present.

Mr. Tessum who hastened after his delivery horse hauled the chemical which saved the neighboring houses. Had it not been for this it is possible that one or the other of the two houses would have caught fire.

The fire when discovered was so far advanced that nothing could be saved. It is supposed the fire started from an air tight heater which was in use. On awakening Mr. Johnson discovered the fire, which was making rapid progress. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson taking a child each barely escaped in their night clothes, their hair was quite badly singed from the flames. This fire has been the cause of a great deal of talk and a just cry for better fire protection from the residents of the east side. The water main that crosses the river was broken some time ago and has never been fixed and it became necessary to have the fire engine near the east end of the bridge by the river which serves the purpose so far as it goes. If another fire should break out similar to the one above stated, how will the firemen get the hose cart from the fire hall if no team appears? "Something must be done" is the cry from the east side.

Land Show Will Open Next Week.

After a year of preparation the Northwestern Land Show will open in the St. Paul Auditorium next Tuesday, Dec. 12 and continue until Dec. 23.

While called a land show, the exposition is in reality a "products show" just like the world's fairs and larger state fairs.

It is agricultural, industrial, horticultural and includes displays from the farms, mines, lakes, rivers and factories of seven states and Alaska. Some of the state exhibits are said to be finer than those which the states made at the Seattle or Portland expositions because the states have been in the "show business" and it takes experience to gather and arrange a good display.

Minnesota has a large part in this exposition, occupying 1500 square feet.

While other states are represented, it has been shown that Minnesota always gets her share. The work of the railroads to secure settlers for the north west results every year in Minnesota securing 55 per cent of all the settlers who move west and pass through the Twin City.

The Great Northern passenger train of Monday was compelled to haul an extra coach in order to accomodate the large number of peo who travel over the road.

Miss Avis Akre returned to her school work at Fargo after spending a few days with her parents.

WE'RE ELECTED

Local Fire Department Elect Officers for the Ensuing Year.

At a regular meeting of the Thief River Falls Fire Department, Nov. 29th officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows:

Chief—Paul Mederigh
1st Assistant—Jas Farr
2nd—Assistant—Dennis LeSage
Secretary—Ed Jarneson
Treasurer—Louis Lonson

George Curran was elected third man in case chief or assistants happened to be absent from fires or meetings to act in their place. Each of the above members were elected for a term of two years, and will take their oath of office as soon as they are accepted by the city council at the next meeting.

MINNESOTA WINS

Scores 90 Out of a Possible 100 at National Apple Show at Spokane.

Old Minnesota carried off the honors at the National Apple Show at Spokane, Washington last week, scoring 90 points out of a possible 100. This is an honor that Minnesota may well be proud of. This state is known as the "bread basket of the world," and it is upholding its name more and more every day.

The different states that were concerned in the exhibition were: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Each state was limited to one exhibit only, and Minnesota took the prize with the fruit exhibit.

This is saying a great deal for our state, as heretofore other states have had the honor of the first apple growing state, but Minnesota has succeeded over eleven states in the Union.

GREAT PAINTINGS

Will be Exhibited at the Land Show in St Paul December 12th to 23rd

Paintings of western life by Charles M. Russel valued at $50,000 will be exhibited at the Land Products Show in St. Paul Dec. 12 to 23. The arrangements have been made by Brown & Bigelow, a St. Paul firm which has the contract for reproducing the paintings.

In addition to Russel's work, the show management has secured a painting twenty four feet wide and fifty feet long of a Wenatchee, Wash. apple orchard and one of similar size of the famous Spokane ranch, owned by Pres. Lewis Penwell of the land show.

Three enormous paintings, amoung the finest ever made of scenes in Yellowstone National Park, will be displayed by the Northern Pacific Railway Co. which just bought the paintings from New York City. The Great Northern railroad will show a collection of paintings of scenes in Glacier National Park, the new playground of the people in Northern Montana. The exhibit of paintings at the Land products show will be one of the largest and most distinctly western ever made at any exposition.

Parker Dies Friendless.

Harry Parker, who was formerly a residence of this city, died at one of the hospitals in Minneapolis on Saturday evening, Dec. 2nd. Hospital authorities stated that as far as they could learn Parker died friendless.

Parker had been in the hospital since Oct. 12th, the cause of his death being kidney trouble.

THEY WERE THANKFUL

Business Men of this City Donate Liberally to Unfortunate Widow and Child.

Mrs. Jacobson and Daughter Were Badly in Need of the Assistance Given Them.

Mrs. Jacobson who lives in the west part of city, near the Great Northern tracks, was one of the many people who were thankful last week. Mrs. Jacobson, with her daughter who was very ill were badly in need of assistance and through the thoughtfulness of Kirwin Kinsley, who went to a number of the business men and told them the circumstances of the woman.

The business men were not at all backward about donating very liberally to the unfortunate woman and child. On Thanksgiving day Mr. Kinsley took a good sized load of provisions to the woman and her child and they were very thankful to know that the good merchants were so kind.

New Job Printing Office.

P. W. Sharp who announced some time ago his intentions to open an exclusive job printing office in the old Sharbach building arrived last week, and has the building fitted up for the purpose. Mr. Sharp says that he will have one cylinder press, and two job presses, stapling machines, and all of the necessary equipments, that it will take to do job printing and blank book work.

The machinery which is to be used will arrive this week and it will be immediately installed, then the plant will be ready for operation.

Mr. Sharp is an "old head" in the job printing business and is thoroughly acquainted with all branches of the business.

For a number of years there has been a great deal of job printing such as, blank book work, large legal blanks and numerous other jobs, which could not be handled by the local offices, going to Crookston, Mankato and Fergus Falls where they could be printed. Now, instead of going from our city, people who have jobs of this kind will be able to have them done satisfactorily right at home. We wish Mr. Sharp great success.

SHOWS MAKE DECIDED HITS

During the Past Week Shows at the Local Play Houses Were First Class.

Home Talent "County Fair," Given Under Auspices of Presbyterian Ladies, Was Well Attended.

"Pennington County Fair," the home talent play presented under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church and directed by the Block Entertainment company, was a great success and was well attended. A neat sum was netted which will go for the benefit of the church.

Each and every character took their parts in first class manner, handling themselves with the grace of old and experienced actors. All of the solos accompanied by the choruses were first class.

THELMA

The attraction, Thelma, at the Auditorium Saturday, Dec. 2nd was among the many first class plays that the management of the local play house has secured for the theatre goers of our city.

This play, Marie Corelli's masterpiece, presented by the Crows, is one of the dramatic sensations of the season, the elaborate costumes and fine scenery making the play all the more attractive.

The electrical displays in the last act, showing the Arch of Death, the warning of Thor and Odin to the last of the Vikings, were certainly fine.

Miss Orpha Crow, who takes the part of Thelma, handles it with the ease and gracefulness of a queen of actresses. The balance of the cast are all fine actors and the play is first class in every respect.

VAIL AND HILDABRAND.

Vail & Hildabrand, is the vaudeville team that made the hit at the Lyceum theatre last week. Thursday and Friday they presented a comedy sketch entitled "Nonsensical Nonsense," which made a decided hit with the patrons of the Lyceum. Saturday the sketch was entitled 'Slight of hand,' a black face comedy, which received the hearty applause of the large audience that greeted them.

It is safe to say that the management of the Lyceum is securing the best vaudeville acts and pictures on the market and deserve the large patronage which they are receiving.

Post Office Box Rent To Be Raised

For the information of the patrons of this office and patrons who are renting Post Office Boxes I herewith publish a letter from the First Assistant Postmaster General relative to the establishment of Box Rent Rates.

Frank H. Kratka,
Postmaster.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT
FIRST ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GENERAL
WASHINGTON

December, 1, 1911

Postmaster,
Thief River Falls, Minnesota.
Sir:

You are instructed to collect box rents at your post office at the rates stated below, from January, 1, 1911. Which rents will be due December, 21, 1911.

Lock boxes, small formerly [illegible] cents, 60 cents per quarter.

Lock boxes, medium formerly 60 cents .75 per quarter.

Lock boxes, large formerly 75 cents, 1.00 per quarter.

Respectfully,
C. P. Grandfield,
First Ass't P. M. Gen.

For Rent—1 furnished room on North Main Ave. Inquire of O. J. Storholm at Langseth Merc. Co's. store.

PRICES ARE LOW

State Prison Authorities Guarantee Binding Twine. Prices Set for Season of 1912.

The Minnesota state prison authorities have set the price for binding twine for the season of 1912 as follows:

Standard, 500 feet to the pound, 6¾ cents per pound.

White Sisal, 500 feet to the pound, 6¾ cents per pound.

Standard Manila, 550 feet to the pound, 7 cents per pound.

Manila, 600 feet to the pound, 7½ cents per pound.

The authorities state that the prices are guaranteed to be as low or lower than those of other dealers for the same grade of twine. The output will be a great deal larger than that of last year, as adjoining states will have a chance to purchase the surplus after satisfying the needs of the Minnesota farmers.

SOON COMPLETED

Thief River Falls Will Soon Be Able to Boast of a Fine, Practically New Creamery.

Mr. Peter Engelstad announced this week that the Farmers Co-Operative Creamery would be in operation in about two weeks. New machinery is being installed throughout the plant, and the building has been made considerably larger.

The fact that the amount of business which is carried on at this creamery could not be handled with the machinery and equipment that was formerly used, the officers of the association found it very necessary to enlarge the building in order to keep pace with the business.

When completed it will be one of the finest creameries in this part of the state.

NORMAL LOOSES

Defeated by the Crookston Agricultural School Saturday by Score of 57 to 17.

On Saturday evening the Thief River Falls Business College basket ball team played the Crookston School of Agriculture here, and the local team won by the score of 57 to 17. The second team of the Crookston School of Agriculture played nearly the whole of the first half the score that half being 25 to 10. In the second half the first team went in for the locals and the score that half was 32 to 7. Bergh and Satterstrom were the stars for the Agricultural School team. It was a good, clear game and the visitors were pleased with the treatment received and a return game is promised.

Prof. Schwartz is developing some great basket ball players on the Agricultural school team, and next year they will make any of the teams of the Northwest go to the limit, and could this year, from the present showing.—Crookston Times.

Notice—Christmas Mail.

For the information of the patrons of this office who have their mail delivered by the city carriers, I wish to state that there will be no delivery on Christmas Day. For their convenience and to give relief to the congested state of the mail at this time I have arranged to have the carrier's window open from 9 to 10 a.m., Dec. 24 and 25, so those who have their mail delivered may have the opportunity to call at the postoffice for their mail if they so desire.

ANOTHER RUMOR

The New Line Is to Go Direct From Thief River Falls to Warroad.

This, it is Said, Would be to Head Off the Minneapolis & St. Louis Rail Road.

The following rumor taken from the Warroad Pioneer says the Great Northern may build:

This is a well defined rumor to the effect that the Great Northern is figuring on building a new line direct from Thief River Falls to Warroad, passing through the big drainage district in eastern Marshall county, east of Thief Lake, and crossing the headquarters of the Roseau river. This, it is said would be to head off the Minneapolis & St. Louis from occupying that territory. As the country through which the new line passes is considerably better than the country along the present line of the G. N. up this way, especially the southern part of it, it is possible that there may be some foundation to the rumor. The Great Northern is usually pretty slow in surrendering any of its territory to a competitor—at least it seldom does so without a fight. A direct line would cut down the distance between this city and Thief River Falls by about twentyfive miles.

It is claimed that Luther Burbank, commonly known as the plant wizard, has developed a spineless variety of blackberries. Those who have pricked their fingers gathering this luscious fruit hope this report is true.

Not long ago the writer's attention was called by a small town merchant to a bargain cook stove which had been turned in by the original purchaser after about three years' use for a real stove—costing $48—but built of steel and good for twenty-five years. This "bargain" cost $13.98 plus freight and was all shot to pieces at the end of the period mentioned. In the show down it not only proved expensive from the standpoint of the original investment and in fuel consumption, but gave mighty poor satisfaction while it was being operated. The next time any of you fellows want to economize work it out on something you use and will feel like swearing about, not on a rattle trap cook stove for the already overworked and long suffering housewife. This is straight goods.

Statistics of the production of beef cattle in the United States show that during the past ten years there has been a decrease in the number of beef animals of 6.8 per cent. During the same period there has been an increase in the population of the country of 21 per cent. A further interesting fact in connection with the situation is that there has not only been a decrease in the number of beef animals, but the average age of marketing has been lowered. This seems in large measure due to the cleanup of large range herds, resulting in the marketing of tens of thousands of immature animals of both sexes. It is the judgment of experts in view of the general situation that even if South American cattle or beef should be admitted into the United States in the future duty free high class beef would still have to be produced on the farms in the great corn belt.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

Though the state's accounts show a balance of $2,270,949.42 in the various funds, the usual overdraft of the general revenue fund at this period, amounting to $484,126.06 this year, has reduced Minnesota's actual cash balance to $1,786,823.36, according to the monthly report of Walter J. Smith, state treasurer. This overdraft, however, is gradually being offset by the payment of November taxes by the different counties, which are constantly being made in small amounts.

Warden Henry Wolfer of the Stillwater state prison has announced the prices of binding twine for the season of 1912. They are practically the same as last year and are guaranteed to be as low or lower than other factories with the product up to standard as to quality and grade. The prices are: Standard, 500 feet, 6¼ cents; white scale, 500 feet, 6¼ cents; standard manila, 550 feet, 7 cents; manila, 600 feet, 7¾ cents; pure manila, 650 feet, 8½ cents.

Minnesota was awarded first prize at the National Apple show at Spokane, Wash., in the Middle West special, with a score of 90 points out of a possible 100. The honor is signal since the state was in competition with Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

With John H. Rich of Red Wing at its head, and prominent bankers and business men as members, the Citizens' League of Minnesota has been organized for the announced purpose of obtaining 10,000 members who will formulate their opinions on monetary legislation and send them to congress.

Although boys in Minneapolis grade schools outnumber girls by 450, they are outnumbered by girls in high school by 1,733. The total enrollment of public schools in Minneapolis for November is 43,773, an increase of 898 over the corresponding month a year ago.

Uncle Dave Hancock, who lives out of Red Wing a few miles, will be 100 years old on April 12, 1912. He walks to town twice a week for exercise. He has a horse, but says it is too old to be put on the road in cold weather.

At a meeting of the executive board of the Southern Minnesota Educational association at Mankato it was decided to hold the next meeting of the association at the normal school in that city Feb. 15, 16 and 17.

A full-grown opossum was bagged near Nicollet by Albert Kratzke, a farmer. Only once or twice before have these animals been found in this state.

In the last ten years Minnesota has climbed from fourth place to third in both production of oats and the acreage devoted to that crop.

The commission plan of city government was adopted at a special election at St. Cloud by a vote of 942 to 316.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Clayton, five-year-old son of H. H. Lovejoy of Ravenna, three miles southeast of Hastings, was killed while coasting. The child was run over by his father's team loaded with grain. One of the wheels passed over his head, breaking his neck and crushing the skull. Mr. Lovejoy came around a curve as the boy darted down the hill.

A Tower dog saved the lives of two men and twenty horses when the Donerg livery barn in that city burned. Two men were sleeping in the office when the dog awakened them, tugging at their clothing. The fire had progressed so far that the men could not extinguish it and after turning in an alarm they got the horses out.

Seven hunters have been killed in Minnesota during the present big game hunting season, according to H. A. Rider, executive agent of the state game and fish commission. This is the same number that lost their lives last year. Five of the hunters were killed on account of careless use of firearms.

The mystery surrounding the strange disappearance of August Dzwonkowski of Winona, aged sixty, was cleared up when fishermen chopped a boat out of the river in the lower end of the city and the body of the dead man popped out of the opening. There is no indication that he met with foul play.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Dr. Judd Goodrich, forty-two years old, one of St. Paul's best known physicians, died suddenly from heart failure. The doctor, who had been connected with the staffs of the St. Luke's and the city hospital since 1895, performed his regular duties the day prior to his death.

James Clark, elder of the Presbyterian church at Eden Prairie since its organization in 1862, is dead after an illness of several months. Mr. Clark was born in Ireland March 17, 1836, reaching Eden Prairie from Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1854.

Elisha G. Morrill, one of the pioneer newspaper publishers of the Northwest, for the last two years a resident of Dayton, O., is dead in that city. Mr. Morrill engaged in the newspaper and publishing business for years in Northfield, this state.

It is worth remembering that two or three drops of oil put on the threads of a screw will make the job of driving it into a piece of wood much easier.

Corn may do in fitting the old hen or cockerel for a roast or pot pie, but should be fed sparingly to the members of the flock from which results are expected in the trap nests.

Owing to the readiness with which they absorb liquids that are put in them wooden utensils should never be used in the handling of milk or cream. They are germ catchers and have been discarded by most folks.

Both mice and rats seem to possess an instinct which makes clear to them that the appetizing corn of which they are so fond is just the ration that will give them the covering of fat that will guard them against the winter cold.

How little heed we pay in the scramble and rush for honors and dollars to some of the most priceless truths of the ages! For instance, this: "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches and loving honor than silver and gold."

"A cue or not a cue?" is the question that is being put to the Chinese ruralite and townsman these days. If a Manchu or imperialist catches a foe without one off comes his head. If revolutionists find a Manchu with a rat tail they take it off close to his collar button.

One poultry practice that has come into vogue tending to do away with a lot of unnecessary bother and muss is the substitution of the hopper method of feeding the flock in place of the old wet mash method. Not only is time saved as a result, but the hens do better with the dry feed than with the wet.

From now on in the colder latitudes where outside green food is scarce the flock of hens will appreciate an occasional cabbage, the leaves and litter from the clover or alfalfa mow, as well as apple parings and cores discarded from the kitchen. Securing eggs in the winter months lies in large measure in reproducing summer conditions and furnishing the green food mentioned helps to do this.

The practice followed by many of blanketing a horse kept in the stable simply to save the elbow grease consumed in a few minutes' application of currycomb and brush is a sort of encouragement to laziness in the owner and unless there are cracks in the stable so big that a black cat could be thrown through is detrimental to the well being of the horse, as it makes him tender and less able to withstand extreme temperatures when out of doors without suffering.

Some one has figured out that if the $15,000,000 put into each battleship by Uncle Sam were invested instead in permanent highways it would cover the expense of one extending from New York to San Francisco and costing $5,000 per mile. In view of such figures as these sensible folks can hardly be blamed for hoping for the time when "nations shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks" and when battleships shall be converted into permanent highways.

A friend is building a feeding shed which has much to commend it. It is of ample size, 30 to 50 feet. The cement foundation on which it rests is extended as a wall three and a half feet above the ground, to give stability and strength. Above this point the shed is of clay, hollow blocks, which in the latitude in which he lives is a decided advantage, for it means a warm structure. Ample door and window space has been arranged on the south side. Next season the shed will be perfected by laying a cement floor, which will prevent mire and mud and make possible a conserving of the maximum value of fertilizing elements contained in the manure.

What is said by the few who have seen it to be the most wonderful cataract in the world is the Kaietur falls on the Potaro river in British Guiana. In single sheer leap the South American falls is surpassed by both Yosemite and Bridal Veil falls in the Yosemite valley in California, 1,500 feet and 900 feet, respectively, but both these are but slender graceful ribbons compared with the British Guiana wonder in which a volume of water between 350 and 400 feet in width flows quietly to the brink and slips unruffled into a chasm 741 feet deep. The Kaietur falls is most inaccessible, and only those who are willing to make a week's trip fraught with much peril can feast their eyes on its wondrous beauty and grandeur.

Quite often the care given valuable horses is indicated by getting them new harnesses after they have run away because of the bad repair of the old and by getting them shot after they have slipped and received injuries on icy roads.

As a general rule, irrigating land costs four times as much per acre as does draining it, the figures for the two types of improvement being $40 and $10 respectively. Once installed, the irrigation system costs from fifteen to twenty times as much to maintain as does the drainage.

Aside from a measure of personal satisfaction, the only possible reason for raising pure bred stock of any kind is the added revenue which they will give. It follows from this that unless one is willing to give such stock the special care they are entitled to it is a good deal better to keep on raising scrubs.

Before the window screens and screen doors are stored for the winter it will be a good idea to give them a coat of paint of the color desired. This, of course, is not necessary with special galvanized or copper screens, but in the case of those subject to rust will greatly increase their period of usefulness.

A point that the housewife should remember is that both squashes and pumpkins will keep for a longer time if put on a shelf in the cellar not far from the ceiling, where they will be dry and where the temperature will be warmer. Cold and dampness cause both these vegetables to rot quickly, which is just the reverse with most root crops.

Reports issued by the department of agriculture show that there has been an increase in the acreage in Louisiana and Arkansas devoted to rice culture of approximately 750,000 acres. The country is at present producing rice in a volume about equivalent to that consumed. While some rice is imported to meet the demand of orientals living here, this is offset by the rice shipped from the United States to the islands in the Caribbean sea and to the Philippines.

The simplest as well as the least expensive method of reducing one's weight is to heroically reduce the amount one eats each day to such point that a loss in weight will result, while vigorous exercise by those engaged in sedentary occupations will be of material assistance. This idea that one who wishes to reduce flesh can gorge three times a day and yet reduce flesh by taking dope of one kind or another has just as must to commend it from the standpoint of good sense as would trying to reduce steam pressure by feeding a fire as much fuel as ever and throwing away the pressure gauge.

Articles of Incorporation of "Pennington Hotel Company."

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS: That, we, the undersigned, do hereby associate ourselves together for the purpose of forming a corporation under and pursuant to the general laws of the state of Minnesota, and to that end do hereby adopt and subscribe the following articles of incorporation:—

Article I.

The name of this corporation shall be the "Pennington Hotel Company". The general nature of the business of this corporation shall be to build and construct a building or buildings for hotel purposes, apartment houses, office buildings and other business purposes, and to furnish the same with suitable equipment and to purchase lots thirteen, fourteen and fifteen in block fifty-seven in the original townsite of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, to construct said building or buildings thereon; to keep, manage, operate and conduct therein hotels, restaurants, appartment houses, lunch and tea rooms, billiard halls, cafes and bars for the accomodation of the public and of individuals, and to let said premises for the purposes herein mentioned or for any or all of them and for other business purposes and to purchase additional adjoining property for additions and extensions thereto. The principal office and place of transacting the business of this corporation shall be the city of Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota.

Article II.

The time of the commencement of this corporation shall be the 7th. day of December, 1911, and shall continue thereafter for a period of thirty years.

Article III.

The amount of capital stock of this corporation shall be fifty thousand dollars and shall be divided into five thousand shares of the par value of ten dollars each, and shall be paid in at such times, and in such amounts, and in such manner as the board of directors shall determine and require.

Article IV.

The highest amount of indebtedness or liability to which this corporation shall be at any time subject shall be the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars.

Article V.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this corporation are as follows:—

H. A. Brumund, residence, Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

Perl W. Mabey, residence, Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

C. J. Vollmer, residence, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Article VI.

The government of this corporation and the management of its affairs shall be vested in a board of not less than three nor more than seven directors, all of whom shall be elected annually by and from the stock holders of this corporation, at the regular annual meeting thereof, which shall be held at the general office of this corporation, in the city of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, on the second Monday in December, of each year, and shall hold office for the term of one year and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The first board of directors shall be H. A. Brumund, C. J. Vollmer and Perl W. Mabey, and they shall hold office until the first annual meeting of the stock holders of this corporation and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The officers of this corporation shall be a president, a vice president, a secretary and a treasurer, and such other officers and assistants as the board of directors of said corporation shall from time to time demand, and any two of which offices, except those of president and vice president may be held by one person, all of which said officers shall be chosen annually by the board of directors immediately after the annual meeting of the stockholders each year, and shall hold office for the term of one year and until their successors are elected and qualified.

The first officers of this corporation shall be H. A. Brumund, President; C. J. Vollmer, vice president; and Perl W. Mabey, secretary and treasurer, and they shall hold office until the first annual meeting of the board of directors, and until their successors are elected and qualified.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, The said parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this 8th day of November, 1911.

Feats of Archery.

In the days when the buffalo was found in vast herds on the western plains there were Indians who, while riding at a gallop, could send an arrow through a buffalo's body. Remarkable as this archery was, yet it did not equal that reached by the archers of ancient times. It is of record that the MacRaes of Gairlock, Scotland, were such skillful archers that they could hit a man at the distance of 500 yards. In 1794 the Turkish ambassador at London shot an arrow, in a field near that capital, 415 yards against the wind and 482 yards with the wind. The secretary of the ambassador, on hearing the expressions of surprise from the English gentlemen present, said the sultan had shot 500 yards. This was the greatest performance of modern days, but a pillar, standing on a plain near Constantinople, recorded shots ranging up to 800 yards. Sir Robert Ainslie, British ambassador to the sublime port, records that in 1798 he was present when the sultan shot an arrow 972 yards.—New York Press.

Mark Twain's German Coffee.

German coffee must have given Mark Twain a pain, judging from the following recipe which he gave for its concoction:

Take a barrel of water and bring it to a boil; rub a chicory berry against a coffee berry, then convey the former into the water. Continue the boiling and evaporation until the intensity of the flavor and aroma of the coffee and chicory have been diminished to a proper degree; then set aside to cool. Now unharness the remains of a once cow from the plow, insert them in a hydraulic press, and, when you shall have acquired a teaspoonful of that pale blue juice which a German superstition regards as milk, modify the malignity of its strength in a bucket of tepid water and bring up the breakfast. Mix the beverage in a cold cup, partake with moderation, and keep a wet rag around your head to guard against over excitement.

Clever Crows.

In a garden a dog was eating a piece of meat in the presence of four covetous crows. They evidently said a great deal to one another on the subject, and now and then one of them tried to pull the meat away from the dog, which he naturally resented. At last a big strong crow succeeded in tearing off a piece, with which he returned to the tree where the others congregated. A long powwow now ensued, which ended in all four crows flying down to the dog, the leading crow dexterously dropping the small piece of meat within reach of his mouth. The dog immediately snapped at it, unwisely letting go the big piece, which was seized by two crows and carried to the tree, where it was devoured with much fluttering and hilarity, while the cheated dog walked away, with every appearance of discomfiture.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A Notorious English Spendthrift.

Among the customers at Long's, the famous hotel in Bond street, was the last Marquis of Hastings, the most notorious of mid-Victorian spendthrifts. Hastings, according to one who knew him well, "gambled so that not even the Bank of England, backed by the Rothschilds, with the mines of the Transvaal as additional supports, could have withstood the strain."

Yet even he protested at Long's when charged 2s. 6d. for a whisky and soda. The proprietor declared that this had always been the charge. "About time it was altered, then," retorted the marquis. Just before his death Hastings remarked to a friend: "I've made a pretty hash of my life. About all the good I've ever done was to bring down the price of a whisky and soda at Long's."—London Express.

Henley and Stevenson.

W. E. Henley once met Robert Louis Stevenson and found his friend distressed because he was not a Voltaire or a Dumas, though he had an equipment which ought to have made him their peer. Stevenson put his "failure" down to the weakness of his lungs. "Perhaps you are right, Louis," said Henley. "I've always felt that if I had not been a blessed cripple I could have taken the earth in my hand and hurled it into the sun."

Spain's Free and Easy Railways.

An idea of the free and easy methods of the railways in Spain is given in this incident, related by Henry A. Franck in "Four Months Afoot In Spain:"

When I reached the station next morning the platform gate was locked and the train I had hoped to take was legally departed. A railway hanger on in rags and hemp sandals, however, climbed the iron picket fence and shouted a word to the engineer. Then, beckoning to me to follow, he trotted back into the building and rapped authoritatively on the closed window of the ticket office.

"Senor," he said as the agent looked out upon us, "be kind enough to sell this caballero a ticket."

"The train is gone," answered the agent.

"Not so, senor," replied the bundle of rags haughtily. "I am having it held that this cavalier may take it."

"Ah, very well," responded the official, and, having sold me the ticket, he handed to the hanger on the key to the platform gate. As I passed through it the latter held out his hand, into which I dropped a copper.

"Muchisimas gracias, caballero," he said, bowing profoundly, "and may your grace forever travel with God."

Germs In the Teeth.

Everybody knows in a general way how important it is to give the teeth a good cleaning and to rinse the mouth out first thing in the morning. The object, of course, is to remove the accumulation of bacteria which gathers on the teeth, gums, tongue and palate during the hours of sleep. How many germs do you suppose accumulate during the night's sleep? In answer to this question E. C. Bousfield, writing in the London Lancet, gives some interesting and rather startling figures, which are worth quoting. He states that he has found the mouth on waking in the morning to obtain about 3,000,000,000 bacteria capable of being removed by a fivefold rinsing with twenty-five cubic centimeters of water each time. After ordinary washing of the teeth with a hard toothbrush about one-fourth the number could still be rinsed away. After using tooth paste only 120,000,000 were left.

Gorillas.

At present there is not a live gorilla in America. There have never been more than three, and only one of these lived more than a few weeks.

"I would give $10,000 for a gorilla in good condition," said the superintendent of a noted zoological garden, "and we could get the money back in a few months owing to the crowds of people who would come to see it. A gorilla would be a great drawing card, but gorillas cannot be got for money. They grow sometimes to 400 pounds in weight. Their home is a small strip of marshy land on the west coast of Africa. The strip is perhaps 250 miles long and 100 miles deep, and the gorillas stay back from the coast and are hard to get. Once out of their native element they die from climatic changes and lack of proper food."—Detroit Free Press.

Caste In Music.

"Sometimes it is a disadvantage to have a musician with a reputation at the head of a hotel orchestra," said a hotel manager. "We found this out not long ago, when people from the middle west, who are among our best patrons, wanted our orchestra to play at a wedding in which they were interested and which took place in a private house. As the company got a little warmed up they decided they would have some dancing, so the hostess asked the orchestra leader to play. Would he? Not on your life! He was an artist, he was, and it was not his business to descend to playing for dances. The result was that one of the guests had to play the piano, and we almost lost the trade of the family we were trying to be especially nice to."—New York Sun.

Heine Made Goethe Smile.

When I visited Goethe, in Weimar, and stood before him, I involuntarily glanced at his side to see whether the eagle was not there with the lightning in his beak. I was nearly speaking Greek to him; but, as I observed that he understood German, I stated to him in German that the plums on the road between Jena and Weimar were very good. I had for so many long winter nights thought over what lofty and profound things I would say to Goethe if ever I saw him. And when I saw him at last I said to him that the Saxon plums were very good! And Goethe smiled.—Heinrich Heine, "Reisebilder."

The Advantage of Waiting.

Her Father—But, my boy, surely you are too young to marry Aurelia. How old are you? Her Suitor—One and twenty, sir. Her Father—And she is twenty-seven—too great a disparity. Why not wait half a dozen years? Then you'll be twenty-seven and she'll probably be just about the same age as you.

High Life.

"Is it meet and proper that you eat your heart out so?"

She did not answer.

"Dear heart!" he whispered intensely.

Then she lifted her eye tearfully to his. "Everything to eat is dear, these days!" she faltered brokenly.—Puck.

Deadlocked.

He—I am willing to make concessions. His Wife—Really! He—Yes, but it seems impossible to make the supply meet the demand.—Boston Transcript.

SWEDEN.

A distinguished Scandinavian-American, Professor Carl Lorenzon of New York, professor of languages at Columbia university and president of the American-Scandinavian society, was a guest in Stockholm last week, whither he went recently for the purpose of ascertaining as to how best dispose of 1,000,000 crowns which was left for him to divide between the three countries. Professor Lorenzon has this money in his possession which was bequeathed to the three Scandinavian countries by a wealthy Danish-American, Niels Poulsen, who died last spring leaving the sum of 1,000,000 crowns to the Scandinavian-American society. The society itself, according to law, has no right to dispose of this money direct, but has appointed a committee of fifteen persons, consisting of eight Americans and seven Scandinavian members. But the society has this aim in view. It proposes to use this money in an effort to tie closer the bonds of friendship among the Scandinavians in the home countries with those who reside in America. The money will be used in the first place to improve the cultural relations between the friends across the sea and also aid them in their material progress. Scandinavian students who desire to study at American universities will be the first beneficiaries of this fund and certain scholarships will be established at different American high schools and universities for this purpose. Naturally Professor Lorenzon has been most cordially received in Stockholm, Christiania and Copenhagen and he has been promised all the aid that can be possibly mustered from the other side.

There is a rapid increase in the development of industries in Sweden. In 1909 there was an increase over 1908 of forty-two manufactories, 6,183 workmen and in the value of manufactured products of over 58,000,000 crowns. The report of 1910 is not yet published, but that of 1909 shows a large increase over that of 1907. The report of 1909 gives 11,361 manufactories, 286,305 workmen and 1,387,252,320 crowns valuation of manufactured goods. With its extensive resources at hand Sweden is developing into one of the leading manufacturing countries of Europe. It has long been known that the country has been wonderfully rich in natural resources, as is the case particularly in iron ore, not to mention the copper industry, the latter barely having been touched upon. The numerous water falls which the country possesses in the northern sections are also being harnessed and the electric power that can be had from these is enough to develop any and every industry the country possesses.

Last summer a "Mission Society of Bible Friends" was organized in the Rosenius church in Stockholm. The meeting was presided over by a wholesale merchant named Jeppson. A constitution previously prepared was adopted and fourteen preachers were appointed in different parts of the country. The society will operate chiefly in Southern Sweden, where opposition to the "Fosterlandsstiftelsen" seems to have been the strongest. Some fifty delegates took part in the organization meeting.

Occasionally we read of a minister having been in the active service of the church for fifty years, but when it goes beyond sixty it is very unusual. Provost N. F. Kullberg, in Oaker, has been in continual active service for more than sixty-five years. He was born in 1822 and was ordained in 1846. He is still in good health and vigor, preaches every Sunday and performs his pastoral acts without assistance.

The state railways of the country appear to be doing a prosperous business right along. The income of the roads during the month of July, for instance, was 7,046,000 crowns. This is practically half a million more than for the same month in the year of 1910. The expense of operation for the corresponding period was 4,978,712 crowns, which is a gain of 216,712 crowns.

There is an arrangement in the schools of Berlin by which a certain number of school children may have a free summer trip to Sweden. This last summer forty-three children were granted the opportunity to visit Sweden.

The national society for the prevention of emigration has been very active in recent years and at present is waging active campaigns in thirteen of the twenty-four districts of Sweden.

PARADISE BETTER THAN HONOLULU

Paradise of the Pacific Not In It With That Promised.

The Nation Born In a Day Does Not Refer to Heathen Conversion, Says Pastor Russell, but to "the Church Which Is the Body of Christ"—"Whose Names Are Written In Heaven."

PASTOR RUSSELL

Honolulu, Hawaii, December 17.—As our ship neared your beautiful island I thought back a century to the time when these islands were uncivilized. It called to my mind the text, "Who hath heard such a thing? Who hath seen such things? Shall the earth be made to bring forth in one day? Shall a nation be born at once?"—Isaiah lxvi, 8.

Then I thought of how your island has been styled the "Paradise of the Pacific." The reality surpasses my expectations. Yet as I think of the glorious conditions which the Bible tells us shall prevail throughout the whole earth under Messiah's Kingdom, I perceive that even the "Paradise of the Pacific" falls far short of the "Paradise of God."

God has declared that the earth is His footstool, and that in due time under Messiah's Empire, He will make the place of His feet glorious.

The Last Enemy Death.

It is because God has already dealt bountifully with your island and given you in advance many of those blessings promised to the whole earth that your island is styled a Paradise. Nevertheless, you all need to pray with the remainder of mankind for the coming of the Kingdom of Messiah and its blessings—"Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is done in heaven."

Your cemeteries were early in evidence telling us that here, too, in this Paradise, men die. Your hospital and physicians' signs tell us that here, too, men are sick. But in the Paradise which God has promised to establish under Messiah's Kingdom, the inhabitants will not say, "I am sick." Ultimately there will be no more sighing, no more dying, and no more crying because all the former things of sin and death will have passed away and He that shall sit upon the throne will make all things new. (Rev. xxi, 4, 5.)

The Holy Nation Born.

Pastor Russell expounded his text, showing by the context that it refers to the resurrection of the Church. He declared that the begetting of the Holy Spirit in the present life constitutes God's people embryo new creatures in Christ; that this begetting and embryo development, according to the Scriptures, concludes in death, and that the resurrection moment, the attainment of glory, honor and immortality as spirit beings beyond the veil will be the birth of this new creation of God—the elect Church—"the Bride, the Lamb's wife."

Pastor Russell pointed to the declaration of the Apostle that Jesus in His resurrection became the "First-born from the dead," "the First-born among many brethren" who attain a similar resurrection, and who are, therefore, said to share in His resurrection.

Our text points us down to the thousand-year day of Messiah's Kingdom—the day so long foretold—the day of earth's blessing, in which the "Sun of Righteousness" will scatter the darkness of sin and bring blessings to all mankind. It is the Psalmist who tells us that the Church will be blessed of the Lord in that glorious day, but in advance of the world. Thus we read, "God will help her right early in the morning." (Psalm xlvi, 5.)

That privileged time in which the Church will be helped, in which she will be passed from earthly conditions to heavenly conditions, is in our text spoken of as her birthday. St. Peter tells us that the Church is the Holy Nation to which God frequently refers in the prophecies. (I Peter ii, 9.) The Head of the Church was born from the dead more than eighteen centuries ago; the Body is to come forth now, the Holy Nation complete, perfect and fully equipped by the lessons and experiences passed through in the present life.

To this Holy Nation will be given the control of the world under the supervision of her Lord and Redeemer: "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My throne"—"I will give him power over the nations—he shall rule them with a rod of iron." Through this nation blessing is to proceed to all the families of the earth.

Look Now at Our Text.

Verse seven pictures the Church as a mother, and pictures Messiah as a man—the Head of the Church which is His Body. This is the great Deliverer referred to by St. Paul in Romans xi, 26. He it is that, coming out of Zion, shall be the Deliverer of Israel, who shall "turn away ungodliness from Jacob." Verse 8 connects the resurrection birth of the Head with the resurrection birth of the Body. Would God bring forth the Head, Jesus, and then fail to bring forth the Church, His Body? Nay, verily! His faithful shall share in "His resurrection" as promised.—Philippians iii, 10.

What will the daily papers have to write about since the confession of the McNamara brothers?

Only 18 more days until Christmas. The cry of the local merchant is: "Do your shopping early!"

Red Cross Seals are being distributed throughout the state of Minnesota. It is planned that 2,000,000 Christmas seals will be sold in this state at one cent each, the money to go to help out the white plague, tuberculosis.

The Plummer Pioneer comes to our exchange desk this week, a very neat and clean sheet. We must say that the Plummer people should be proud of having an editor for their paper who will tend strictly to business and get out a booster sheet for them.

PENSION FOR POOR MOTHERS.

Illinois has recently adopted a pension policy for poor mothers. The first woman to receive aid was paid $80, to care for her four children, for a period of four months, rather than to take them to a state institution. This is certainly human, and is believed to be much cheaper than the old way.—Bede's Budget

Illinois is evidently looking out for the interest of the mothers.

Thief River Falls is sending a large delegation to the Northern Developement Ass'n. at St. Cloud Friday and Saturday. The Commercial Club is sending this large delegation with the intention of doing all that is in their power, to secure the next meeting for the Red River Valley in June 1912. It is hoped that they will land it

TO BE A BIG MATCH

Local Sports Will Be Able to Witness One of the Fastest Matches Ever Seen.

"Terrible Swede" and "Big Bill" Will Clash at the Lyceum Saturday, Evening Dec. 9th.

Gotch is not coming but the "terrible Swede" is ready for business.

Frank Swanson, or better known as the "terrible Swede" will meet our local wrestler, William Kline or "Big Bill." The match is to be the best ever pulled off. At the Lyceum Theatre; Saturday Dec. 9th at 10:30 p. m. sharp. Both of these men are big and husky, and are wise to the points used on the mat. The match will be the best two out of three falls, catch-as-catch-can, strangle holt barred.

William Smith will act as referee, and it is assured that it will be a fair and clean match. This is more of an experiment than anything else, if it is found to be a success a series of matches will be held every week. The price of admission is: stage seats $1; 10 front rows 50c; all others 25c.

Remember the time, place, price, date and the big husky men.

A GOOD CONCERT

Cambrain National Glee Singers Proved to Be a First Class Attraction.

The third number on the Lyceum Course we can recommend as being a high class attraction and was well worth the price of admission. It is safe to say that the Cambrian Glee Singers are among the best singers that have ever come to our city.

The audience was not as large as it might have been, but nevertheless a good sized crowd turned out.

It's a Good Thing.

The organization of the proposed Pennington Savings & Loan Ass'n is well under way and it is expected that the company will be organized in about two weeks. Promoters of the company are F. A. McAllister, formerly state agent for the Union Savings & Loan Ass'n of Sioux Falls, So. Dak., and C. J. Vollmer, of Minneapolis, with T. P. Hanre acting as temporary treasurer.

The citizens of Thief River Falls will do well to lend all the assistance possible to fill a much needed want in building up our city. There are scores of people in this city looking for places to live and are unable to secure them. It is a fact that the population of the the city will double in the next five years.

A good strong Building & Loan Ass'n, managed wholly by local parties, is the best solution of the difficulty. Help a good thing along.

DISTRICT NO. 17, MARSHALL CO.

Ed Larson has been hauling wheat to town the past week.

Robert Rupert and wife attended a dance on the East Side in Thief River Saturday night. A very enjoyable time is reported and a large company was present.

Mrs. Johnsonberg was a pleasant caller at the Simonson home Sunday afternoon.

A spelling contest and general good time at the H. R. Williams school house is announced for next Friday evening. General invitations are out.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers visited at the Simonson home Sunday evening.

Mr. Rindahl is running the elevator at Stiner this winter.

Mr. Carlson, from Thief River, was a caller at the Rogers home Sunday.

Mr. Solwin has erected a substantial machinery shed which is a fine addition to his already complete set of buildings.

Mr. Musey was out from town the last of the week looking after business on his farm.

Mr. Abil has finished the well which he started some time ago for Mr. Rogers on the old Larson farm. An excellent flow of water was struck at about 120 feet.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

IN INTEREST OF KELLOGG

Representative Stevens Sees President Taft Regarding Vacancy on the Supreme Bench.

Representative F. C. Stevens of St. Paul has been to the White House in the interest of the appointment of Frank B. Kellogg to the United States supreme court. He had a long interview with the president, during the course of which he laid before the chief executive many strong recommendations of Kellogg. The president listened attentively, but gave no sign as to whether Kellogg would be appointed.

That is the Taft way of doing things in connection with judicial appointments. His non-committal attitude toward Mr. Stevens has no meaning in relation to the question as to whether Mr. Kellogg is to be appointed or not. He has taken a similar attitude with the friends of all the other aspirants for the supreme bench. No political or other influence will prevail.

For this reason no guess is possible as to whether Mr. Kellogg will be appointed. The supreme court vacancy will probably not be filled until after the holiday recess, unless the president should change his mind.

MRS. WEYERHAEUSER DEAD

Wife of Multimillionaire Lumberman Passes Away.

Mrs. Frederick Weyerhaeuser, wife of the millionaire lumberman, who has been ill for several weeks, is dead at her home in St. Paul.

Mrs. Weyerhaeuser was born seventy-three years ago at Niedersaulheim, Germany, the same town in which Mr. Weyerhaeuser was born and raised. She was a typical German hausfrau, whose interests were centered chiefly in heeding the principles advocated by the German emperor: "Kinder, kirche und kueche." She took no pleasure in society activities, leading a quiet, domestic life. She took a keen interest in all of Mr. Weyerhaeuser's efforts and aided him greatly, although timid to give advice.

TO TEACH CHILDREN TO SAVE

Agent of Duluth Bank Will Visit Schools Once a Week.

A Duluth bank, one of the largest financial institutions in the Northwest, has undertaken the problem of teaching the school children of Duluth how to save money. An agent of the bank's saving department will visit the schools once each week, receive the respective sums from the children and credit the amounts in the books, which have been distributed to the pupils. The idea of the officers of the bank is that children may all become aware that they can start a bank account and early became acquainted with the advantage of a saving policy.

INDICTED MAN CUTS THROAT

Sheriff Finds Real Estate Dealer Seriously Wounded.

George Watson, a real estate dealer of Lake City, attempted to end his life by cutting his throat with a razor at his home in that city, it is alleged, when the sheriff called to see him regarding an indictment returned a couple of weeks ago by the grand jury and charging Watson with entering into a conspiracy to defraud in a land deal.

When the sheriff appeared to serve a summons, Watson went in to the back yard where a few minutes later he was found with his throat cut. It is believed he will recover.

ORE SHIPMENTS FALL OFF

Decrease of More Than Seven Million Tons at Head of Lakes.

A decrease of 7,061,202 tons in iron ore shipments from the docks at the Head of the Lakes, including those of Two Harbors, for the season of 1911, as compared with the season of 1910, is shown by figures just given out.

November ore shipments for 1911 also fell short of the 1910 figures for the corresponding month by 107,993 tons.

All roads shipping ore report a decrease in tonnage for November, 1911, as compared with the corresponding month of 1910.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY

Governor Eberhart Favors Plan if Practically Drawn.

Governor Adolph O. Eberhart has referred to the Republican state central committee the suggestion of the Minnesota Progressive Republican league that a direct primary vote be taken to show the popular preference for the Republican nomination for president and says in a letter to Frank T. Wilson, secretary of the league, that such an expression is difficult but that he will approve it if it can be made practical.

MANY LAND CONTEST CASES

Duluth Office to Hear Nineteen Next January.

Nineteen land contest cases, involving sixty-four homesteaders of the Fond du Lac Indian reservation, whose claims date back to the date of entry Aug. 22, will be heard by United States Land Register Hareman at Duluth beginning Jan. 2.

The contest is between the land settlers and those who entered upon the homesteads in Duluth. Many of the entrymen waited in line at the local land office for weeks and then found that squatters had taken possession. In one case there are three entrymen and three settlers contesting for the same plat of ground. There is a great deal of hard feeling on the part of the homestead seekers. It is believed that in some cases the parties will compromise, each taking a part of the homestead.

SHOOTS WIFE; KILLS HIMSELF

Young Minneapolis Couple Victims of Probable Double Tragedy.

Chris Gehring, twenty years of age, is dead at Minneapolis and his wife, twenty years old, who had been living with her father, is perhaps mortally wounded as the result of Gehring's attempt to slay her and then commit suicide.

The couple were married two years ago, but lived together but a short time. Preceding the tragedy they went to the theater together and later to the Allen hotel. Shortly before daylight shots were heard and when the police broke into the room they found the man dead and the woman lying on the bed, wounded twice in the right breast and once in the left arm.

She was taken to the Minneapolis city hospital and Gehring's body was removed to the Hennepin county morgue.

FIREMAN KILLED IN WRECK

Three Other Trainmen Are Seriously Injured.

Fireman Percy Fox, aged twenty-five, of Preston, was killed and three other trainmen were badly injured, one perhaps fatally, when the engine of freight train No. 83 on the Northwestern road toppled off a twenty-foot trestle.

The accident occurred on the spur track between Kasson and Mantorville, three miles from Kasson.

The forward car jumped the track, taking the engine with it. The car fell from the bridge on one side and the engine from the other.

The four men were riding in the cab of the engine. The locomotive turned completely over and fell bottom side up.

TEN THOUSAND DEER KILLED

Estimate at Duluth of the Result of Hunting Season.

The hunting season in Minnesota for deer and moose, just closed, has been unusually productive to hunters. The game and fish commission sent out 19,000 blank licenses to county auditors, most of which were sold. While few returns have been made to the executive officers it is estimated that 10,000 deer have been slaughtered during the twenty days of the open season. A number of moose, too, have fallen.

Reports from the Sucker river country indicate that wolves have made great inroads on the deer. George T. Croft, who lives near Sucker river, reports finding thirty-six deer skeletons all having been killed by the wolves

Creating a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have varied at different times. Thus, a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder were at one period given to the recipient of the dignity. A blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans, and this was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of the sword on the shoulder of the knight, a ceremony which has survived, with some modification, to the present day.

Grimm Alfalfa.

To the Public:

The extraordinary demand for Grimm alfalfa, a very hardy strain of this invaluable forage plant, has rendered it difficult to secure the genuine article, even at extraordinary prices. Those familiar with the market are aware that more seed is sold yearly under the name of Grimm alfalfa than is raised in many years. I am able to announce that arrangements have been made to supply a limited amount of genuine seed.

The history of the plant is simple. Mr. Grimm brought the seed from Germany some forty years ago and developed the variety on his farm near the Grimm homestead in Carver county. The seed now secured comes from a farm near the Grimm homestead and was produced the present season from stubble fifteen years old. Inasmuch as this stubble springs from seed obtained from the original Grimm fields, the pedigree of this seed is unquestioned. The supply is small and precious and it will be distributed for experimental purposes, as follows:

1. The price is fixed at $1.35 per pound, postage or express prepaid.
2. Orders from schools will be filled first.
3. Orders from individual farmers will be filled if the supply holds out.
4. Other conditions being equal, calls will be met in order of priority.
5. That all schools may have a chance to share in the distribution, no orders from individuals will be filled before January 1, 1912.
6. If more than 5 pounds be desired, the order should be divided, the supplementary order to be filled if the supply holds out.
7. All orders may be filled with the undersigned, or they may be sent to G. H. Booth, Stewartville, Minn.
8. Money must accompany the order.

For further information address the undersigned.

Vaccination for typhoid has been attended with such satisfactory results in the army that its use is now strongly recommended by all leading physicians.

What a whole lot of bother we mortals would be freed from if we were relieved of the necessity of everlastingly scratching for the wherewithal to keep warm or cool and to satisfy hunger!

Many a horse raiser finds it advantageous to breed his mares in November. This gives an October colt, which gets a good start before winter sets in and in the care of which more time is available than during the rush season of the summer.

On days when it is freezing out of doors and water cannot be used to advantage in washing windows a very fair job can be done with kerosene, which can be applied with a small rag and the window rubbed dry with a clean dry cloth.

A game bird of western Montana that is much appreciated is the mountain grouse that full grown is nearly as large as a Barred Rock pullet. A further characteristic is that the meat of the bird is mostly white instead of dark, as is the case with a majority of game birds.

Not so very long ago the practice was followed by many dairymen of moistening the ground grain ration for the cows. Today it is generally recognized that feeding such ration dry not only keeps the cows from bolting it, but before they can swallow it they must chew the feed thoroughly and mix it with saliva.

The vital energy used by dairy cows or steers as tank heaters in warming ice cold water that they drink means a corresponding decrease in the amount of milk which they will produce or flesh which they will put on It follows from this that it is usually cheaper to take the chill from the water in some other way.

The size or bore of many a citizen is often indicated by his attitude toward the snow that falls on the walks bordering his place. If he sweeps or shovels his own walk promptly he does his duty and is entitled to commendation; if he does this and helps out his neighbor, who is unable to do the work, he ranks still higher as a neighbor and citizen.

Where one has a considerable number of young fruit trees to protect from rabbits wood veneer protectors are very satisfactory. These are 10 by 20 inches in size and can be got f. o. b. shipping point for about 50 cents a hundred or $4.50 per thousand. These veneers are very pliable and can easily be curved about the young tree. If carefully handled and properly stored during the summer season they should last for years.

When the horse gets out of condition it is a pretty good plan to make a thorough examination of the teeth or have the same done by a good veterinarian. In a majority of cases the low tone will be found due not to liver complaint or a pessimistic view of life, but merely to inability to get the teeth squarely together on the food masticated. If portions of the teeth project and prevent proper chewing, these points should be filed out.

The small boy, as well as the larger boy, will be saved a good deal of discomfort if he will remember that wiping the hands perfectly dry after each washing will tend to prevent chapped hands. If the hands are already chapped even greater care should be taken to wipe them dry. One of the best ointments to heal them is made by mixing about three or four teaspoonfuls of glycerin in two ounces of rosewater. This should be applied at night and should be put on just after the hands are washed and still moist, then rubbed in over the stove or register until the hands are perfectly dry.

As the stormy and cold winter weather comes on those farmers living in the higher latitudes may perform a real service for themselves by taking some pains to provide food and shelter for the quail and pheasants that during the summer and fall may have been frequenting the brush lots and roadsides near their premises. Especially is this true of the Hungarian and one or two other types of imported game birds which have been recently introduced and have not as yet adjusted themselves to the severer weather conditions. Simply from the standpoint of what these birds will do next season in the way of bug and insect destruction will more than pay for the time and expense of protecting them.

Cabbages require a dry and cool place for storage, and this is why they spoil so soon when left on the floor of the average cellar. Market gardeners and farmers who raise this vegetable in large quantities usually store them out of doors in the following manner: After pulling, the roots are removed but as many of the outer leaves left on as possible. A well drained piece of land is then selected and the cabbages placed in a long row, the tier nearest the ground three heads wide, the next two and the last one. The conical pile is then covered with three or four inches of coarse hay or straw, then a couple of furrows are turned with a plow toward the cabbages on both sides. Earth is then shoveled over the pile so as to give a covering seven or eight inches deep. Cabbages stored carefully in this manner will keep well until spring.

School Notes

According to the room reports for the month of November, the following is the enrollment to December 1st, in the four buildings: Lincoln High School, 220; Washington, 350; Central, 371; Knox, 264. Total 1205. It should be borne in mind that the eighth grade from the Central and the seventh and eighth grades from the Knox are enrolled at the Washington. This is the first report in the school history of Thief River Falls when the enrollment was over 1200, and to those familiar with conditions here, it would not surprise them to see this enrollment reach 1300 before next June 1st. Seven more students have entered high school since the above statement was prepared.

In the high school there are exactly twice as many girls enrolled as boys. This is about the ratio in other cities and the causes of this difference are the same everywhere.

Many of the teachers took advantage of the Thanksgiving holidays to spend the week end with relatives at their home towns.

The blacksmith shop will be formally opened next week. The equip*ment of tools is complete and this* shop, like the woodworking establishment, is prepared for real work.

Dr. H. Grundy Leaves

Dr. Grundy and family expect to leave this city about the 20th of this month for Toronto, Canada where they will make their home in the future. The Grundy's have lived here for over eighteen years and it is with the deepest regret that their many friends see them depart. In the removal of this family from our midst, Thief River Falls loses one of its most prominent citizens and one who always has had the city at heart. Altho thier home will be in Canada the Grundy's will still have a great many interests here.

A Busy Place

The local book bindery is sure doing a whirl-wind business these days. Louis Lasseson reports having about 100 books on hand that are to be rebound and expects another large lot which are to be repaired. Mr. Lasseson is having an experienced binder from the cities to assist him during the busy season.

Ever since the bindery has been established here it has always been a very busy place and "Louis" evidently is prospering for his work is just first class.

Plucking Sheep.

The pure bred sheep in Shetland are not shorn, but plucked. The process takes place generally in June, when the fleece is "ripe" and the silky wool can be pulled off without pain. This is called "rooing" and is much less damaging to the young fiber than clipping with shears. The wool when thus handled retains its peculiar softness, so that any one of experience can tell whether the material of a knitted article has been plucked or shorn. It ripens first upon the neck and shoulders, so that sheep half pulled resemble in some sort a poodle that is clipped. We must suppose that harsher handling prevailed at one time, for we read that in 1616 the Scottish privy council spoke of the custom as still kept up "in some remote and uncivil places," and James I. wrote to tell them that it had been put down in Ireland under penalty of a fine. Upon this they passed an act on March 17, 1616, deploring the destruction of sheep thus caused and imposing similar fines on those who should persist in the practice.

Cleanliness and Arsenic.

In Styria and Carinthia there is much arsenic eating among the peasants. The women take it to give themselves a good complexion and to make their hair fine and glossy. The men take it because they believe that it gives them wind in climbing in the chase after chamois. In Styria and Carinthia it is known that an arsenic eater can never be broken of the habit and that if arsenic be compulsorily kept from the eater death rapidly ensues. It is believed in the Tamar—and this is perhaps true—that an arsenic worker is fit for no other work. He must remain at this occupation. Health and breath fail him at other employments. Eventually it may be that chronic arsenical poisoning ensues. But this may be staved off, if not wholly prevented, by scrupulous cleanliness, by care taken not only to wash in the "changing house," but to bathe freely at home. As one of the foremen said to the writer, "Against arsenic the best antidote is soap taken externally."—Chambers' Journal.

A Piscatorial Gunner.

The jaculator fish, the piscatorial gunner of the Javan lakes, uses his mouth as a squirt gun and is a marksman of no mean ability. Go to a small lake or pond filled with specimens of jaculators, place a stake or pole in the water with the end projecting from one to three feet above the surface, place a beetle or fly on top of the pole and await developments. Soon the water will be swarming with finny gunners, each anxious for a shot at the tender morsel which the experimenter has placed in full view. Presently one comes to the surface, steadily observes his prey and measures the distance. Instantly he screws his mouth into the funniest shapes imaginable, discharges a stream of water with precision equal to any sharpshooter and knocks the fly or beetle into the water, where he is instantly devoured by the successful Nimrod or some of his hungry horde. This sport may be kept up as long as the supply of beetles and flies holds out.

The Air Mile.

The air mile is a unit of measurement that came into use with the advancement of aviation. We have the land mile and the sea mile, which is approximately one-seventh longer than the land mile of America. The nautical mile is often incorrectly called a knot, but a knot is a measure of both distance and time. It is correct to say that a vessel makes ten knots, but to say that she makes ten knots an hour is tautology. The air mile is measured differently from the land mile and the sea mile. It is a land mile minus the retardation of an adverse wind or plus the acceleration of a favoring wind. Thus an aviator could cover many air miles while hovering over a given point on the earth's surface.—Browning's Magazine.

Watching Sponges Grow.

Outside the harbor of Sfax, Tunisia, in the shallow water of the clear Mediterranean, is situated a biological laboratory for the study of sponges. It is one of the most unique in the world and affords opportunity for observing the development of the sponge from tiny larva, so small that it can only be studied under a microscope until five years later it has developed into a perfect sponge.

Busy.

"Loafey tells me he hasn't been so busy for years."

"Nonsense! That job he has is a cinch. He never has to work hard there."

"That's just it. He's been fired, and he's chasing around after another job now."—Exchange.

"Not much. It's annoying to be wakened every time you drop into a nice nap merely to be told that it is your move."—Washington Star.

Serving His Country.

A certain public office has been the object of much satire because of the passive nature of the incumbent's duties—except when he is called by tragic occurrence into the thick of action. So very negative, indeed, is the work of this public servant that he sometimes serves his country most efficiently by being absent, as appears in this extract from Moses Coit Tyler's journal, written in Washington years ago:

"President Grant never starts a conversation, but when it is started he often says a neat thing. 'Last year there was an excursion down the Potomac. He was on board, with his cabinet and a quorum of both houses.

"'Mr. President,' said Mrs. Judd, who sat near him, 'it would be a pretty bad thing to have a great accident happen to this party. Nearly the whole government would be destroyed.'

"'Yes, Mrs. Judd,' assented the president, 'but you observe that the vice president has very prudently stayed at home.'"

Talking Canaries.

Talking canaries are a great rarity, but several authenticated instances are on record. At Norwood, England, in 1858 a lady had a canary bird which began by repeating a word which its mistress had often used to it—"Kissie, kissie"—and by following the word up by an imitation of the sound of a kiss. After a time the bird repeated other words until it had a large vocabulary of phrases, one of which consisted of five words. Again, in 1863, a talking canary was exhibited in Bath, with a vocabulary such as is generally taught to parrots, and another talking canary was exhibited for a few weeks in this country, but it unfortunately caught cold and died. In Germany and the Tyrol canaries are taught to imitate the notes of other birds and whistle simple tunes, and the words which it imitates may be regarded as a mere development or variant of its musical notes.

The Lerot and the Snake.

Every one has heard of the remarkable combats of the Indian mongoose with venomous snakes, in which little rikki-tikki-tavi comes off victor. The fact that the mongoose invariably survives has led to the suggestion that it is immune to snake poison. Other animals said to be immune are the pig and the hedgehog. The experiments of British naturalists show that an animal of the dormouse family must be added to the list of the immune. This animal is known as the lerot and is said to fight fiercely with vipers. Large doses of viper's poison were injected into one lerot, from which injection no ill effects followed. On one occasion a lerot was bitten badly in the eye by a viper, and no signs of poisoning occurred. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the lerot is immune to snake poison.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between gold beaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into 200 square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

Swayed by a Bell's Tones.

The Church of St. Nicaise, in the city of Rheims, is surrounded with pillars. When a certain bell in the tower is rung the top of one pillar always sways to the extent of seven inches on each side, although the base is immovable, and the stones are so firmly cemented as to seem like a solid piece of masonry. Notwithstanding that each of the four bells is about the same distance from the trembling pillar none of the others has the slightest effect on it.

An Odd Bequest.

The following is one of the oddest bequests ever recorded in a last testament. It appeared in the will of a Bristol mariner proved in 1795. The old gentleman ordered his executors to "pay out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, one shilling, which I have given as a token of my love, that she may buy hazelnuts, as I know that she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

Chirography.

"Ethelinda writes a very peculiar hand," said Maude.

"Yes," replied Maymie. "It's just a lot of straight lines and angles. When you read it you have to guess at the spelling, the same as she does."—Washington Star.

An Explanation.

"Your nephew is a college graduate, isn't he?"

"Yes," confessed honest Farmer Hornbeak, "but in justice to the college I'll own up that he had no sense beforehand."—Woman's Home Companion.

The Giraffe's Neck.

"Why does the giraffe have such a long neck?" asks the teacher.

"Because its head is so far away from its body," hopefully answers the boy.—New York Press.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

Call prunes no longer plebeian fare, for they are retailing at 20 cents a pound. It will be entirely proper for milady to serve them with angel's food and accessories of cut glass, silver and damask.

One of the most valuable carloads of timothy seed ever shipped was received the other day by an Illinois seed house, being valued at $7,000. The exceptionally high price of the seed is directly responsible for the great value of the shipment.

In view of the number of folks that get caught on the great variety of get-rich-quick schemes, whose seductiveness lies in the fact that outlandish returns are promised on the money invested, it must be conceded that a sucker is born every minute and some minutes twins.

Not in twenty years has the writer seen the cornfields so free from weeds as this fall. This seems to be due to two unusually dry summers and to the necessity which every corn raiser has been under of giving the growing crop enough tillage to conserve the little moisture that the soil contained.

That type of farming is to be strongly recommended—and this applies with especial force in all sections where the soil has been robbed for years past—where the maximum amount of homemade manures are produced and utilized on each farm. It is for this reason that dairying and the raising and selling of cattle, hogs and sheep have so much to commend them as types of agriculture.

Professor Dyche, fish and game warden of Missouri, recommends shooting roman candles into the trees where blackbirds are wont to roost as an effective means of driving them away. The job is most effectively done just as they are gathering to roost and before it gets dark. He states that this roman candle stunt, repeated about three nights in succession, will drive the birds away for good.

The rabbits that have made their homes on the islands along the Mississippi river during the past two years have been having a rough time of it since the rainy weather set in in the upper watershed of the big valley. Owing to the low stage of water the rabbits occupied these islands and multiplied there prodigiously unmolested. The high water drove them to the highest points of the many islands, where they have been killed or drowned by thousands.

The shipment to America within the past few months of tons and tons of Chinese cues for the manufacture of switches, rats and sundry other creations is made plain in the light of the present rebellion. It appears that a cueless crown is the mark of the new movement and that as new territory is invaded the conquered are given the opportunity of parting with their rattails or their heads, and of course they yield to the minor operation.

W. S. Keeline of Council Bluffs, Ia., president of the National Horticultural association, recently sold the product of his fifty-three acre orchard for $12,000. The price named was for the crop on the trees. Two dollars and forty-five cents was paid for Jonathan and Grimes Golden, $1.90 for Geniton and $1.50 for Ben Davis and varieties of equal grade. On the above basis the orchard tract gave a revenue of $226 per acre, which seems to demonstrate quite conclusively that scientific fruit growing pays.

More than 58,000 people made the trip to South Dakota and registered for the big government land drawing. A casual glance at the list of winners shows that virtually all reside in adjoining or nearby states. This seems to verify a claim made in an article in this department a short time ago—namely, that the method of registering and allotting these lands practically prohibited the people most in need of free land from taking or having any part whatever in the disbursement. It is conceded that the system ought to be overhauled.

A farmer living near Powhattan, Kan., has lately been quarantined for glanders, which it is evident he contracted as a result of caring for several of his horses that were afflicted with the disease last winter. The first symptom of the disease noticed in the case of the owner of the horses was what was at first thought to be a severe attack of catarrh. However, the disease spread to his lungs, and the man is now considered beyond medical aid. The instance suggests the exercise of great caution in the care of all diseased animals.

THE COMFORT OF A FURNACE.

Some of you folks that have money in the bank or what comes to the same thing—grain in the crib or fat steers in the feed lot—and have been heating your houses with all the way from two to half a dozen stoves would better look up the matter of installing a heating plant. It will not only mean an economy of fuel, but a maximum of comfort for all members of the family, coupled with a minimum of dirt and ashes for the women to clean up. While hot water systems are in some ways the most satisfactory from the standpoint of evenness of heat and economy of operation when once installed, they are also the most expensive. It is further quite necessary that the houses in which the water system is installed should be frostproof from cellar to garret. If this heating system or the steam heating type does not seem advisable the hot air system should be installed, and very satisfactory outfits can be got at from $85 to $150. The chief point in favor of the hot air plant lies in the fact that all parts of all rooms which are equipped with registers will be evenly heated. There is no "frozen on one side, roasted on the other side" business about it. If one has been subjected to these extremes for a generation or more he will appreciate the comfort of a furnace heating plant.

WINTER BLOOM.

No flowers suitable for indoor culture give such a return in both beauty and fragrance of bloom as do hyacinths and narcissuses. Varieties are now obtainable that for color and thriftiness of bloom are remarkable. While one may use a more elaborate pot, a common tin tomato can will serve the purpose unless one wishes to have a bank or bed of flowers, in which case a larger receptacle will be necessary. The pots should be filled with light sandy soil and the bulbs set with the crown just below the surface, the soil being well firmed around them. The pots should then be given a thorough watering and covered with earth in the cellar to the depth of three or four inches above the bulbs. If they show a tendency to dry out they should be given another watering. In from four to six weeks the bulbs will start to grow, when they should be removed to quarters where there will be plenty of light, yet where it will be cool. Both of the plants mentioned will produce more perfect blossoms if they are not subjected to direct sunshine at all. The paper white narcissus has a somewhat different habit and may be put in vessels containing water and small stones at once.

A QUESTION OF PROTECTION.

That the health and longevity of many of the less hardy types of apple trees are largely dependent upon the way they are protected has been pretty plainly demonstrated in the case of a Fameuse tree from which the writer picked the fruit a few days ago. The tree in question stands on the north side and about five feet from a shed which effectively protects its trunk and lower limbs from the winter sun. Not only has the tree made a prodigious growth, but it is remarkably thrifty and sound. Twenty feet to the north of it, but exposed to the sun, is another tree of the same variety which has been badly hit with sun scald and is already sick unto death. We have watched these two trees for a number of years and are convinced that, while some other factors may have played a part, the difference in their condition today is due to the protection they have had. It is this principle that makes many orchardists in northern states favor the rather close planting of apple trees in rows north and south. This serves in a measure to give the protection mentioned.

PRUNING AND BLIGHT.

In fruit growing sections where the pear blight is prevalent it is well for the orchardist to reduce his pruning work during the winter and spring to a minimum, as cutting at these times greatly augments wood growth. This means a greatly increased number of new shoots, whose tender tips are especially liable to infection by the blight germs from the feet of ants or other insects that happen to alight on them. More than this, the sap moves very rapidly in this young growth, which increases the chance of an infection of the large limbs or trunk on which the shoots are growing. Moderate pruning may be done during July and early August, and this will not only not induce the growth of these shoots, but will cause the tree to produce fruit buds for the following year. The writer had some experience along this line not long ago and knows whereof he speaks.

THE WORTH OF COMMON TOIL.

While it is entirely proper for parents to hold before their children the "room at the top" idea as affecting the life pursuits they are to follow, it is sensible to lay stress also on both the worth and dignity of the service of those who do the commoner though just as necessary work of life—who till the soil, lay sewers and water mains, hew wood and dig coal, provide shelter, food and clothing and make the thousand and one other articles that add to the comfort and satisfaction of living. These toilers may wear rougher clothing and get more dirt and callouses on their hands, but the service they render to their fellows is as noble as that of preacher, teacher or professional man.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

Several Buildings in Main Business Section of Becker Destroyed by Fire.

Two children were cremated and the main business section of Becker was destroyed by a fire which started in living rooms over the Edward Cox store.

Mr. and Mrs. Cox were in the lower portion of the building when the fire broke out. They had sent the children upstairs to play and it is believed one of the tots tipped over a lamp. Ruth Cox, aged two and a half years, and Eddie, aged eighteen months, were cremated, despite the efforts of their parents to rescue them.

The flames swept on to the F. R. Brasie building, occupied by Younger Dyson as a general store. Driven by a stiff wind the fire consumed the Becker creamery and the postoffice, but was stopped at the Becker State bank. This building is of brick and stone and saved the other buildings on the street from destruction.

FORMER RECORDS BROKEN

Minnesota Transfer Handled 61,347 Cars in October.

The Minnesota Transfer, near the Twin Cities, the barometer of business conditions in the Northwest, handled the biggest volume of traffic in October in its history. The record of the month surpassed that of October, 1909, which was the crest of the prosperity wave in the United States.

The total number of cars handled at the transfer last month was 61,347, as compared with 58,070 cars for October, 1910, an increase of approximately 10 per cent. The figures for October, 1909, were between these two.

Bodies Blown to Pieces While Thawing Explosive.

While thawing out dynamite on a farm near Midway for the purpose of blowing up stumps a homesteader and his hired man were instantly killed, being blown almost to pieces by the explosive. The dead are: Chris Walin, aged forty-six, married, and Eric Bolin, aged twenty-nine, single.

Bolin worked for Walin. Both men stood near by the fire on which they were thawing out the dynamite. Mr. Walin leaves a wife and two children.

STOCKMAN DIES IN WRECK

Great Western Passenger Train Runs Into Freight.

One man was instantly killed, several passengers were slightly injured and five freight cars were smashed to splinters when the first division of passenger train No. 1, northbound from Chicago on the Chicago and Great Western road, ran into the caboose of a freight on the main line near the depot at Randolph.

Joseph Peach, twenty-nine years old, a stockman, living in the village of Waltham, was riding in the caboose and was instantly killed.

DECLINE IN ORE SHIPMENTS

1911 October Mark 157,237 Tons Less Than a Year Ago.

Ore shipments for October from the docks at the Head of the Lakes, including those of Two Harbors, show a decrease for the period of 157,937 tons, compared with October, 1910.

The season to date is 6,958,666 tons behind last year's figures for the same period.

Changes Plea to Guilty.

Harry T. Robinson, whose trial on a charge of robbing the Shubert theater safe at St. Paul Jan. 2 last of $2,232.64 has been in progress in the Ramsey county district court, changed his plea to guilty after the prosecution had presented its case. Robinson was given a twenty year sentence in the penitentiary.

Duluth Conductor Held Up.

H. W. Scott, conductor on a Woodland street car at Duluth, was held up and robbed of $27. The highwayman threw the trolley off the car near the "Y" at the east end. When the conductor came to adjust it he demanded his money at the point of a gun. Scott delivered promptly.

The Eye of Benares

A Man Counts His Loss as Gain

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

The Street of the Sellers of Precious Stones was a dusty, sun smitten alley in the business quarter of Benares. The striped awnings, unstirred by any breeze, drooped limply above the tiny shops burrowed out of the stone walls.

Stephen Lawler swung briskly down the narrow thoroughfare, his blue eyes keenly awatch for a familiar face. At last he came to the shop of Hanzal-Benal and, thrusting aside the hangings, stooped and entered.

The proprietor, aged, white bearded and patriarchal of visage, sat like a hewn stone image of "Contented Old Age." Before him was a large, heavy block of Agra granite, worn smooth by much trafficking and rubbing of leather jewel bags in brown, slim hands.

"My lord is late," remarked Hanzal-Benal, with a trace of reproach in his kindly tones, as he signaled for the American to be seated on the rich rug before the stone table. "I might be drowsing in the heat of the noontide, but the Eye of Benares—it never sleeps, and it watches for the coming of its master!"

Lawler's eyes followed the backward jerk of the Hindu's thumb, and he stifled a sharp exclamation of wonder at the sight. Peering down at him from the gloom of the darkened interior was a lurid red and angry eye that seemed to belong to nothing human. Fiercely glowering out of space, at first it impressed him as exerting some strange influence over him. Then he laughed shortly and remembered that he was in India and must keep his wits about him.

"So that is the famous Eye of Benares?" he asked with assumed nonchalance.

The jeweler nodded solemnly. "It never sleeps, and it seeks unerringly the souls of the wicked. No wrongdoer can hide from its searching light. What is now passing through the brain of my lord is revealed to the eye."

"I have heard all that before, Hanzal-Benal," remarked Lawler significantly. "My time is limited, as I must catch the train for Calcutta, where a steamer awaits me."

"I was only reminding my lord of the mysterious power of the ruby," said the Hindu humbly as he opened a large ebony box and placed it on the stone table. He pulled out tray after tray and placed them before his customer, revealing a glittering array of precious stones—diamonds, rubies, emeralds, pearls, lapis lazuli and sapphires—bankrupt spoils from the treasure chests of many a hard pressed prince.

"What are these?" demanded Lawler without interest as the stones under the jeweler's skillful manipulation dazzled his eyes almost to blindness.

"Perhaps my lord prefers one of these to the Eye of Benares," suggested Hanzal-Benal craftily.

"The deal is off, Hanzal-Benal," said Lawler curtly. "I've dickered with you over this confounded ruby for the past two weeks, and now when I come to you with the purchase money you sidestep the bargain. Not another rupee will I add to the offer I made you, and you will either deliver the goods now or consider the incident closed. Which shall it be?"

"My lord has purchased the ruby," said the Hindu hastily. He clapped his hands sharply and then held his palms upward. The Eye of Benares dropped softly down into Hanzal-Benal's slim brown fingers and was deftly flashed in Lawler's face and then placed on the stone table. "Shall the bargain be concluded?" asked the jeweler suavely.

Lawler dropped to his seat on the rug and took the beautiful stone between finger and thumb. The sunlight increased its brilliance a thousandfold. From every finely cut facet it radiated light and color—the color of blood.

He bent over the stone, examining it closely and even bringing out a magnifying glass to assist his keen eyes. There was not one flaw on this magnificent jewel, which was as large as a walnut and slightly flattened in shape.

Hanzal-Benal watched his customer anxiously. He knew that Stephen Lawler was agent for a large American firm of importing jewelers, and the sale of the Eye of Benares was not their first business transaction though it was destined to be their last.

Slowly the American brought forth his leather wallet, together with a heavy bag of gold. These he set down on the table among the jewel trays and close beside the ruby he had purchased. "Your letter writer is here—the notary?" he asked. "The transaction must be in writing."

For an instant the Hindu hesitated, and then he clapped his hands. From the shadows there were evolved the dim outlines of a turbaned form, and then there slipped down on the carpet the thinnest specimen of a Brahmin priest that Lawler had ever seen, and he had seen a good many.

The priest or secretary or notary—he acted in whatever capacity he was required—drew forth a roll of yellow paper and an inkhorn from the its writing case at his waist. He flour-

WAVES AND BILLOWS ON THE ATLANTIC

"As Well as Ever," Is Pastor Russell's Message.

On the Atlantic Returning From Most Successful Lecturing Trip Abroad—Says That Church's Present Experiences Are by Way of Preparation For Her Future Work.

PASTOR RUSSELL

Nov. 19.—"As well as ever, thank God," was Pastor Russell's message to the millions who read his sermons weekly in the secular press. His text was from Psalm xlii, 1-8, especially the words "All thy waves and thy billows are gone over me." St. David spoke of his own experiences, his own tribulations; but prophetically he represented the Messiah—Head and Body—Jesus and His saintly few gathered during this Age out of all nations, sects and parties—"the Church of the First-borns, whose names are written in heaven."—Hebrews xii, 23.

In Love Not In Anger.

The Prophet's experiences—wave after wave of trouble, disappointments, etc.—he knew were not evidences of God's disfavor, but contrarywise proofs of the Heavenly Father's love and care—evidences that he was being taught of God, in preparation for a work which he was to do. He was pursued by Satan's devices and was like an antelope in the chase, famished for water. "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, oh! God;" "My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God. When shall I come and appear before Thee, oh God? When will my trials, my testing be finished? When shall I be received into everlasting fellowship as the Son of the Highest."

The people in general could not understand how Divine favor could be with one so tempted, so tried, so beset by persecutors, so maligned; as he said, "Mine enemies speak evil of me: When shall he die and his name perish? If he come to me as a reporter, he speaketh falsely; his heart gathereth iniquity to itself; when he goeth abroad he telleth it." "All that hate me whisper together against me."—Psalm xli, 5-7.

Full of faith St. David would not be overwhelmed. His faith would outride the storms. He would learn his lesson. He would thus demonstrate his faith, his loyalty to God.

The Greater David—Beloved.

Pastor Russell declared the most important feature of St. David's career centered in the fact that he typified the Messiah—Head and Members. The name David signifies Beloved, and Messiah is the beloved Son of God. He is the Chief or Head over this house of sons, all of whom are God's dear children—Beloved. Thus the prophecies of the future in which David figures prominently are properly understood to refer to the great work of Messiah's Kingdom—the Throne of David will be the Throne of Messiah which will be established under the whole heavens.

The waves and billows of trouble which passed over the Prophet David typified the trials and difficulties of the narrow way in which Jesus and His faithful followers of the new creation must walk to attain the promised glory, honor and immortality. St. David's trials of faith and loyalty to God typed the faith and loyalty of Christ Jesus and the Church amid the trials that will come with the end of the present night time, ushering in the New Day, in which Christ will reign in righteousness for the overthrow of sin and death. They may rejoice in hope, knowing that all things are working together for good to them, because they love God supremely. (Romans viii, 28.) "Weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning."—Psalm xxx, 5.

Our Mission Now—and Then.

Sin, the fall, degradation and selfishness have had the effect of hardening the hearts of mankind. They are stony-hearted by reason of the prevalent selfishness; the tender-hearted, who love righteousness, are bruised—wounded—broken. This heart-breaking is not injurious.

The broken-hearted are the more ready to receive the message of God's love and mercy. It is of this broken-hearted class that the Lord is making up His Elect Church. "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." So far from its being the mission of the Church to break men's hearts it is the very reverse—it is theirs "to bind up the broken-hearted."

Then will come the Church's future work for which all of her present experiences are preparations—are being overruled by Divine providence. Present experiences with trials and difficulties, battling with the waves of trouble and obtaining Divine assistance to surmount them, will all be valuable preparations of the Church for her future work of glory. Then she will be perfect with her Redeemer on His heavenly throne. How much her own present experiences will serve to make this class sympathetic and merciful priests of God toward men "in the Ages to come" (Ephesians ii, 7), none but God can foretell.

Nature's Monument to Washington.

Among the many monuments to Washington is the one which every visitor to the Cape Verde islands will remember as one of the most colossal and marvelous freaks of natural sculpture in existence. Along the farther side of the harbor of San Vicente, the principal town, rises a bold ridge of dark gray volcanic rocks, the crest of which forms an exact likeness of our immortal George, seemingly lying face upward, as if in a peaceful sleep. The hero's large, bold features, the backward wave of the hair, his massive shoulders and even the frill of the shirt front are all reproduced on a gigantic scale with wonderful exactness. The strange monument, sharply outlined against the deep blue of the tropical sky, is one of the first objects that meet one's eye in approaching the island. Its gigantic proportions, with the boundless ocean for a background, form a portrait wonderfully true to nature and overpowering in its magnificence.

Force of Lightning.

It is hardly possible to use instruments for the purpose of figuring the forces of lightning, yet there are many other ways of calculating familiar to every mathematician. The amount of light given by a single lightning flash is enough to illuminate an area of two square miles. The bolt itself would be visible several miles further off, but the remotest part of the region mentioned would have as much light as would be given by a candle—quite enough to read by. To produce such a light it would be necessary to expend 13,000 horsepower for a second. These figures appear very large, but the time is short. The flash might be for only one-thousandth of a second, but the impression on the eye would continue for a tenth of a second anyway. Figured down to an exact hour this amount of force would mean only about four horsepower.—Electric News Bulletin.

The Moral of the Story.

Professor John Spencer Bassett, author of "A Life of Andrew Jackson," in one of his lectures at Smith college, repeated a well known story in regard to Stephen A. Douglas, closing with a moral which aroused peculiar interest.

Douglas, as the narrative runs, was once sitting in a profound sleep in the corridor of the capitol when Adeline Cutts, a Washington belle, passed by. She did not know the sleeper, but was struck with compassion on seeing such a splendidly intellectual face under such conditions, and stooping down laid her handkerchief over it to protect it from the flies. Douglas on awakening found the handkerchief, sought the owner and eventually married her. There was a pause, and then the professor added: "Young ladies, the moral of this story is, have your pocket handkerchief marked."

A Lion's Vanity.

The intricacies of a great man's character are often simplicities to his wife. Once, when the present poet laureate had paid a visit to Tennyson, his immediate predecessor, Tennyson walked with him as far as the gate which led to the highway. There, says Mr. Alfred Austin in his recent autobiography, while the elder poet stood leaning on the gate, a party of wide eyed sightseers appeared.

"What a vulgar people the English are!" Tennyson exclaimed. "They come here to watch for me, and when they see me they say, quite loudly, 'There's Tennyson.'"

Mr. Austin afterward repeated this to Lady Tennyson, who smiled tenderly, but archly.

"My husband would be much more annoyed if the people didn't come," she said.

Nothing Like Optimism.

There's nothing like optimism. Armed with its breastplate, fitted with its rose colored spectacles, you can withstand any pessimistic foe, see any rainbow of hope. These thoughts were forced upon a friend of ours who was waiting on the corner for his wife the other afternoon. Minutes, hours, passed and she came not. An optimistic friend joined him and shared his vigil.

"Look again and see if Theodora isn't coming," begged the husband.

"No. I don't see her yet," answered the optimist cheerily. "But have courage. The women who are coming along the street look more and more like her every minute."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Self Convicted.

"Say, pa," queried small Bobby, "what is gossiping, anyway?"

"Gossiping, my son," replied the old man, "if we get right down to the plain, unvarnished facts, is lying. But why do you ask?"

"Because," answered the young investigator, "ma says you do a lot of gossiping every time your business keeps you late at the office."—Exchange.

SURPRISE TO CONSERVATIVES

Recent Swedish Elections First to Be Held Under New Suffrage Law. Leading Danish Actress on Lecture Tour In Norway—Women of Iceland Lead the World In Complete Equality With Men.

SWEDEN.

The Minneapolis Journal in its issue of Oct. 18 has the following interesting editorial on the "Advance of Swedish Democracy," which we believe will interest many readers of this column. It says: "Sweden's recent elections were the first held under the new law granting universal manhood suffrage. They were held for the Second chamber only, the First chamber—corresponding somewhat to our senate—remaining unchanged. The results were a stunning surprise to the Conservatives, who had counted on retaining sufficient strength in the popular chamber to hold on to power. The complete returns show the parties to be thus represented in the lower house of the riksdag: Liberals, 102; Socialists, 64; Conservatives, 64. When the Conservatives three years ago were forced into permitting the universal suffrage measure to become law, they succeeded in making a part of it a peculiar system of proportional representation, whereby the minority was to have its proportional share of the representation. They hoped in this way to retain their strength in the Second chamber. This they had usually been able to dominate under the old Swedish system of property qualifications, which permitted only about 8 per cent of the adult men to vote. But the Conservative hopes proved illusive, and both the Liberals and the Socialists have made tremendous gains at the expense of the old party. So great, in fact, was the overturn, that on joint ballot of the two houses the Conservatives will be outvoted. Under the Swedish constitution when money measures cannot be agreed on by the two houses acting separately, a joint session is held and the result of the vote of both memberships is decisive."

That Miss Alma Hedin, sister of Sven Hedin, the famous explorer, has been elected to the municipal council of Stockholm, as stated in recent cable dispatches, is not surprising in view of the importance assumed by women and by people of culture and attainment in public affairs of Sweden. The success of Miss Hedin is probably not all in the way of a tribute to Dr. Sven Hedin, although his daring and toilsome journey overland to Peking, described in his book, "Through Asia," made him something of a national hero and gained for him a worldwide reputation. Dr. Hedin himself was recently honored by election to the Academy of Sciences.

A Swedish-American tenor, who, however, has little financial means at his command, has arrived in Stockholm, where he was given an opportunity to try his voice for the well known Swedish composer, Petterson-Berger, who declared that the young man has a wonderful voice and a most promising future. Even in spite of this excellent recommendation young Mr. Gronlund has not been able to find any of the prominent vocal teachers in Stockholm willing to accept him as a pupil.

Elis Olson Ellis, said to be the foremost comic actor and singer in Sweden, will arrive in this country Nov. to make a brief tour as a star in the title role of "Sten Stenson's Saga." Dr. Victor Nilsson of Minneapolis has, after negotiations extending over several years, at last succeeded in having Mr. Ellis come over to appear with Swedish-American companies in different cities of the East and West.

Sven Hedin's latest book, entitled "From Pole to Pole," has just now been placed in the market by the Albert Bonnier Publishing company of Stockholm and will be translated into not less than twenty-one languages. Literary critics pronounce it a singularly interesting book and predict that it will have an enormous sale in the Scandinavian countries and also among Scandinavian-Americans.

L. Brante, a prominent Swedish veterinary surgeon, who has just returned from an extensive tour through Germany, states that the trade agreement between Germany and Sweden is being violated every day in Germany and that it is up to the Swedish government to see to it speedily that the trade pact is enforced. Sweden, claims Mr. Brante, is losing trade under the new arrangements every day.

Selma Lagerlof has completed a new novel, which will be ready by Christmas and will be entitled, "Liljecrona's Home." It is practically a prologue to "Gosta Berling's Saga" and will be published in Swedish, Danish, Finnish, German, Italian, Dutch and English.

NORWAY.

In Hamar there is in progress an important electric exhibit showing the various uses of electricity for the countryside. Waterfalls are being utilized in all parts of the country and once the power is harnessed it is an easy matter to lead it to the farmhouses and use it in a hundred practical ways. Electricity in the country districts is getting to be a general thing and farmers are pumping their water, grinding their feed and lighting their houses, besides using the electric power in many different ways.

Madame Anna Larsen, who is considered one of the leading actresses in Denmark, is at present engaged in an extensive lecture tour throughout Norway. Wherever she appears she is greeted by large audiences and her lectures are reported to be among the most instructive and entertaining that have been offered the Norwegian public in many years. She lectures principally upon Norwegian and Danish poetry and even in the country districts people will sit and listen attentively to her rather learned lectures.

Haugesund, Norway, is to have a new daily newspaper, which is reported will have a conservative tendency. Haugesund has been coming right to the front during later years and the town may be said to be booming at present. This is the case with a great many Norwegian towns along the coast and the general situation bodes well for the future.

In the Trondhjem districts they have a fine crop this year. There has been plenty of rain and farmers are all doing well. The season in this part of Norway has been favorable throughout and the hay crop turned out unusually well.

The theatrical season was opened in Bergen last week with "Carmen," with Agnes Hansen in the title role and the Swedish opera singer, Sven Nyblom, appearing as Don Jose. Large audiences have patronized every performance.

Ex-Premier Michelsen is reported to be in rather ill health. He was unable to attend the annual meeting of the National Shippers' association, of which he is president. The meeting was held in Christiania a few days ago.

The United Steamship company is building two new passenger steamers, which will ply between West Norway and Denmark. The route will include Kristiansand, Stavanger, Bergen and possibly Trondhjem.

The Christiania students carried off first honors at the international rowing contest, which was held in Stockholm the other day. The Norwegians were easy winners over the Swedes.

The National Bankers' association of Norway held its annual meeting in Trondhjem week before last. About 500 delegates were present.

DENMARK.

Though remote from the great capitals, says a Copenhagen dispatch, the women of Iceland are leading the world in their achievement of complete equality with men. Not only has the allthing sanctioned woman's suffrage and the eligibility of women to sit in parliament, but complete equality has been secured in competitive activities outside of politics. Women from this year will be free to take any positions under the government and to compete on equal terms in examinations for scholarships or public offices. Only on the right of women to become pastors of churches has there been any dissension, but even that has been overcome. The national sentiment runs particularly strong among Iceland women of all classes and nowhere in the world is the picturesque national dress more generally worn.

On Oct. 1 appeared the first issue of The International Milk Dealer, which is published by H. P. Olsen, a Danish-American, at Milwaukee. Mr. Olsen has for a number of years published the Butter, Cheese and Egg Journal and has met with splendid success. In his new publication he will publish weekly notes regarding the progress of the dairy industry in Denmark and other countries. The journal will prove of much benefit to dairymen throughout the Northwestern states.

What happens in Denmark during the course of only one hour has recently been figured out by a clever statistician thus: Nine children are born every hour, six people die every hour, two couples are married during every hour and one person emigrates to America every hour; 270,000 kilometers of coal, 18,000 liters of petroleum, 9,000 kilograms of sugar, 13,500 kilograms of coffee are consumed every hour in little Denmark.

They are having a little trouble at present with the new 50 and 500 crown bills. They are so much alike that even bankers have made the mistake of passing a 500 crown bill for a 50 crown one and vice versa. Indeed the new bills are so much alike and so stiff to handle that the government will soon be called upon to issue new ones.

The Norwegian steamer Ringhorn, from Bergen, collided a few days ago with another Norwegian steamer, Karmo, hailing from Skulenes. The Ringhorn was filled with water, but somehow the vessel managed to keep afloat and the crew found time to save themselves.

MARION S. NORELIUS.

Our National Capitol.

"One thing I learned during a recent visit to Europe was that the average life of a stone building is not more than 700 years," said a builder. "Naturally I was interested in construction work and gave more attention to this part of Europe than I did to the examination of art galleries and the tombs of famous men. The buildings of Europe are no better in their construction than those of this country. I don't think I saw a building in Europe that is better built than the capitol in Washington. In nearly all of the older cities of England I noticed that the town halls, which had been constructed in many cases 500 years ago, were beginning to collapse. All of them had been patched up, and it was evident that they would not last a great many years longer. I do not think there is any doubt that the capitol building in Washington will be standing 500 years from now if it is not destroyed, but it will not last longer, nor will the treasury building, which is the finest example of its style of architecture in the United States."—Washington Post.

Historic Spot at Ems.

On the riverside promenade at Ems there is a stone inscribed: "13 Juli, 1870. 9 Uhr 10 Min. Morgens." This marks the exact spot where Wilhelm I. and Count Benedetti terminated the interview which led the French to declare war. After the Franco-Prussian war the old emperor often returned to Ems. On one occasion his doctor mentioned that the municipality wished to commemorate the interview with Benedetti, which they considered the most memorable event in the annals of the town. He was instructed to meet the emperor on the promenade by the Lahn at 6 a. m. the following day. Wilhelm then said: "During my lifetime let nothing be erected to recall that sorrowful struggle. When I am dead do as you please. Since you wish to know where I dismissed Benedetti it was here under this tree at 9:10 in the morning." And, saying this, he placed his foot on the spot where the monument now stands.

The Wonders of Color.

A small and simple experiment can be made by any reader which will go far to convince him or her what a debt we owe to color and what a good thing it is we have sunlight, which enables our eyes to take advantage of the beautiful hues of nature. Make a room quite dark and then burn some carbonate of soda in the flame of a bunsen gas burner. It will burn with an orange yellow light sufficiently strong to illuminate everything in the room, but you will realize with a sudden shock that, bright though the light is, all distinctions of color have vanished. Only light and shade remain. A crimson carnation, a blue violet, a red tablecloth, a yellow blind—all look gray or black or white. The faces of those present look positively repulsive, for all natural color has disappeared. No other experiment will so well convince those who have witnessed it how great a loss would be that of our sense for color.

A Risky Place For Doctors.

Medical skill is at a rather low ebb throughout Russia and not without cause. An American physician, tempted by the enormous fees so frequently paid by the nobility, went to St. Petersburg and within a year had a lucrative practice. Then he was called in to attend a baron who was suffering from lung trouble. The doctor gave his patient the best of care and skill, but the baron died, and the widow promptly sued the doctor for damages for unskilled treatment. The unlucky American was sentenced to pay a fine of 1,000 roubles and undergo an imprisonment of thirty days. Under the circumstances it is not surprising that the physician left Russia as soon as he got out of jail, and nothing could tempt him to return.

Knights of Old.

The knights of the days of chivalry were so well protected by their armor that they were practically invincible to all ordinary weapons. Even when dismounted they could not be injured save by the misericordia, a thin dagger, which penetrated the chains of the armor. In more than one battle knights fallen from their horses could not be killed until their armor had been broken up with axes and hammers.

Inquisitive.

"Do you think women would improve politics?"

"Well," replied Mr. Growcher, "after listening to the conversation on the front porch, I'll say this for them: If they ever start an investigation they'll find out something."—Exchange.

Friendship.

Friendship is courteous and gentle: it does not domineer, does not command, but is satisfied with proposing without exacting compliance. At the same time it is indefatigable in labor when labor can achieve a friendly purpose.

Prison Laundry.

"All arrivals are washed," explained the warden of the prison.

"And if they kick up a fuss?"

"Then they are ironed."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Might Have Been Worse.

"Did the play have a happy ending?"

"It might have been worse. My wife only forgot her handkerchief and one glove."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS

VOL XXVIII — THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1911 — NUMBER 51

FROM THE N. M. D. A.

The Committee That Went to St. Cloud, Dec. 8 and 9 to Attend the N. M. D. C., Return.

Summer Convention Will be Held at International Falls Sometime in June.

The delegates from this city who were at St. Cloud returned Sunday night and reported that the fifth annual meeting of the Northern Minnesota Developement association was a record breaker both in interest and attendance.

Every county was represented, and large delegations besides.

Little Falls sent down perhaps the largest delegation, because it wanted the annual meeting in 1912, while Thief River Falls and International Falls were candidates for the summer meet, and both had active hustlers. The twin cities sent several well known citizens who have in the past been in the political game, but they were not delegates to the convention, but helped liven matters up on the side lines.

There were 600 boosters in the opera house when President Maxwell opened the meeting at 10 o'clock Friday morning, and the attendance was increased by every incoming train.

Rev. E. V. Campbell gave the invocation, asking Divine guidance for the convention, that its actions might be for the best development of not only Northern Minnesota, but of the whole state.

Daniel Shaw of Thief River Falls, chairman of the immigration committee, made a strong plea for some definite plan to raise money for this important work, and this started so much discussion that it took all the time up to the noon hour. The matter was finally settled by a vote that in the future each county would have to put up its assessment before being allowed to vote—this money to be used for the work of the association and the immigration committee to be given a free hand.

Thief River Falls was handicapped by the inconvenient way the trains run—some of the delegates from here found it necessary to leave rather early, and when it came to deciding upon where the next meeting would be held, Thief River Falls' delegates had nearly all left. They report that the entertaining of this association is a great undertaking.

JUSTICE TO NORTHERN MINNESOTA.

(Short sketch taken from the address delivered by Alvah Eastman at the N. M. D. A. last week.)

"The matter was placed before Pres. J. J. Hill of the Great Northern, and today our quarries have an annual output of nearly a million dollars a year, made possible only by a reduction of the rates. Some day the railroad managers will be wise enough to see that by building up the towns along their own right of way, they will increase their own business, and they will get all the increase. If St. Cloud, Little Falls, Brainerd, Fergus Falls, Grand Rapids, Bemidji, Crookston, Thief River Falls, Aitkin, Detroit, Wadena, Alexandria, Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Roseau, Warroad, Hallock and other progressive towns in Northern Minnesota were given the same rates accorded Minneapolis and St. Paul, the population of these towns would double in the next ten years—and every pound of the incoming and outgoing freight would be hauled by the Great Northern, the Northern Pacific and the Soo. Put this increase in the Twin Cities and these three roads would only get a small portion of the business. Seemingly about the only power the state has left is to increase the gross earnings tax—and unless the railroads show a more friendly disposition to the interior towns, this increase will come—and ought to come."—St. Cloud Journal-Press.

WHAT IT COSTS

Bill of Expense filed in the City Clerk Office Shows What it Costs to get Elected.

The Several candidates who were elected filed their bill of expense with the city clerk as follows:

Lars Backe,	$27.00
N. W. Tarrant,	$7 00
Emil Sedlacek,	$19.30
A. H. Akre,	filing fees.

Each of the Socialist candidates had little or no expense, any more than the filing fees with the city clerk. It is said that the local organization stood practically all of the expenses that were accumulated by their respective candidates.

MARTZ RETURNS

Back From Washington; He Talks of The Recent Steel Trust Hearing.

C. H. Martz, who returned from Washington to his home at St. Hilaire Monday, is quoted in a news item sent out from St. Hilaire as expressing a firm belief that the house steel probe committee is after the truth and that the committee is getting the truth.

He stated that the recent interview given out by J. B. Cotton of Duluth was the result of anger, and that the facts were lacking. Mr. Martz stated that Attorney Murry, who had been special counsel for Rockefeller at Duluth sat beside him at Washington when he was giving his testimony regarding the efforts of Rockefeller to make him (Martz) pay the cost of the ore road out of Duluth, in order to justify the rates being defended, and that Murry knew that Martz's evidence was truthful and actuated by no resentment.

"I told the truth, unvarnished," Mr. Martz is quoted as saying, "and Rockefeller and all the ministers on earth can't shake that evidence. The reports which the committee have before them bear out my contentions, and there will be a cleaning up before long."

The Gazette has an unfounded report that may indicate that there will be further developments growing out of Mr. Martz's connection with the ore road. The Gazette's informant stated that Mr. Martz contemplates legal proceedings to recover for the shares of stock he alleges he was wrongfully deprived of. According to this information, the result of the investigation has convinced him that he will be able to recover. The present value of the stock that he held is said to be $40,000. The Gazette has not had an opportunity to interview Mr. Martz since his return and cannot vouch for the correctness of this report.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Good Enough for One Year.

One of our best farmers namely, Ole Omundson who makes his home six miles east of this city, bought a quarter section of land the fall of 1910 for $3000 and last spring had E. L. Quist break up about a hundred acres with his traction engine. This he put into flax and this fall marketed 850 bushels from that piece.

He has now purchased another quarter and we suppose he will do the same thing with this land. We wish more farmers would follow Mr. Omundson's example and our country would soon be settled up and under cultivation.

His sons did well too, as they have raised over 10,000 bushels of small grain this year, and this fall have purchased another quarter section.

The George Elder auction sale which was held east of the Soo depot Saturday, was the center of much attraction to farmers and also the local people. All of the articles were sold at a fairly good price.

Bethlehem Town

by EUGENE FIELD

The Late Eugene Field.

As I was going to Bethlehem town
Upon the earth I cast me down
All underneath a little tree
That whispered in this wise to me:
"Oh, I shall stand on Calvary
And bear what burthen saveth thee!"

As up I fared to Bethlehem town
I met a shepherd coming down,
And thus he quoth: "A wondrous sight
Hath spread before mine eyes this night,
An angel host most fair to see,
That sung full sweetly of a tree
That shall uplift on Calvary
What burthen saveth you and me."

And as I gat to Bethlehem town,
Lo, wise men came that bore a crown.
"Is there," cried I, "in Bethlehem
A King shall wear this diadem?"
"Good sooth," they quoth, "and it is he
That shall be lifted on the tree
And freely shed on Calvary
What blood redeemeth us and thee."

Unto a Child in Bethlehem town
The wise men came and brought the crown,
And, while the infant smiling slept,
Upon their knees they fell and wept,
But with her babe upon her knee,
Naught recked that Mother of the tree
That should uplift on Calvary
What burthen saveth all and me.

Again I walk in Bethlehem town
And think on him that wears the crown.
I may not kiss his feet again
Nor worship him as I did then.
My King hath died upon the tree
And hath outpoured on Calvary
What blood redeemeth you and me.

THE NEW STORE

J. L. Inman, Formerly of Marshalltown, Ia., Will Open a General Store on 2nd St.

J. L. Inman, who announced some time ago his intention of opening a general store in the building the first door west of the post office, arrived last week with his store fixtures and is now busily engaged in getting his stock in place, and expects to have his place of business opened to the public about Saturday of this week.

Mr. Inman is formerly of Marshalltown, Iowa, and comes very highly recommended, having for a number of years conducted a store at that place. He has been in the general merchandise business for 21 years. His son, who has been brought up in the business, will assist him. Mr. Inman decided to locate in this city, as it would enable him to look after his farm interests during the spring and summer months. He has land in Marshall, Roseau and Norman counties, also a fine farm of 520 acres at Mentor, Minn., which he is now working. He reports a fine crop off the Mentor farm this year.

Mr. Inman states that he will handle everything in the general store line and also a racket stock. We will assure our new merchant that this is a good live town and there is no reason why he should not get his share of the business.

Rev. F. J. Seitz was down to Alexandria last Monday.

THE NORMAL WINS

Commercial Normal Basket Ball Team Defeated High School Team Friday Evening. Score 23 to 16.

Last Friday evening the Commercial Normal defeated the High School team in a fast game of basket ball at the Lincoln School Gym. Both teams played a good game, the score in the first half being 12 to 15 in favor of the Commercial Normal.

The High School team was unable to make any headway during the last half of the game, they were only successful in getting 2 scores. This is the third game the Commercial Normal has played. The first game of the season was played with the local High School and they were defeated. The second with Crookston last week they met defeat and the third last Friday night, they finally disgarded the "hoodoo" and carried off the laurels by a final score of 23 to 16.

WERE ELECTED

M. W. A. Elect Officers for Ensuing Year Practically all old Officers Were Reelected Dec. 7

Last Thursday evening at a meeting of the M. W. A. the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Wayne Richardson, V. C.
A. H. Rinker, W. A.
Ole Brudy, Banker
Louis Lonson, Clerk
H. A. Ohm, Escort
John Hobek, Watchman
R. G. Cook, Sentry
Andy Smith, Manager

The old officers were practically all reelected and it goes to show that the members of the lodge are well satisfied with the way work is carried on by the old officers.

WAS A SUCCESS

"Terrible Swede" Was Defeated by "Big Bill" at the Lyceum Theatre Last Saturday.

The big athletic event of the season was pulled off at the Lyceum Theatre Saturday night at 10:30, when Frank Swanson, the "Swedish Champion," was defeated in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match by Big Bill Kline.

Swanson is husky, but is lacking the clever points in the wrestling game. Kline did not have much trouble in getting away with his opponent, being successful in getting the first fall in 4 minutes, 30 seconds.

The second fall appeared to be "duck soup" for Kline, as he was successful in getting it in about half the time of the first, or 2 minutes, 30 seconds. Nevertheless, the match was a good one and well worth the price of admission. More good wrestling matches pulled off in this city would no doubt be appreciated by the local enthusiasts.

The preliminary match between Cerny and Stanton was a very good exhibition of "skilled wrestling." They need a trainer! Cerny won the first fall in 5 minutes, and through his strength won the second fall in 17 minutes. Stanton will no doubt, with a little training, give Cerny a rub for his money.

The boxing contest between Stanton and Teal was an exciting affair, but Stanton proved to be the better man.

The Athletic Association is well under way and a committee is to go before the next regular meeting of the city council to see if arrangements can be made to secure the Militia Gym in the basement of the Auditorium, which is fitted up in good shape. It is expected that a membership fee of one dollar a month will be charged to anyone who wishes to join. Now if you wish to have a good thrifty Athletic Association in this city, be a member and do your share of boosting for a good thing.

Announcements of the coming matches will be seen in the columns of this paper.

MCINTOSH COMING

McIntosh High School Basketball Team Will Play the Local Team Tomorrow Evening.

Tomorrow evening at the high school gymnasium, the fast McIntosh H. S. basketball team will try conclusions with the local high school team. McIntosh has always been one of the fastest teams in this section, and a good game is promised.

The local boys are doing some hard practicing under the direction of their coach, Wayne Richardson.

Everybody turn out and help the boys out, and witness the best game of the season.

THEY FORETELL XMAS

The Stores of the City Have Their Windows Very Elaborately Decorated.

This Is a Constant Reminder That Christmas Is Once More Near at Hand.

The elaborate decorations in the various stores of our city is a continuous reminder that there are only 10 days in which you have to do your Christmas shopping. Their cry is, "do it early;" "get first choice, while the stock is complete."

The merchants are doing all they can to make Christmas shopping easy for the early shoppers. The hardware stores, furniture stores, department stores, drug stores and grocery dealers have anything and everything that will make very fine Christmas presents for any member of the family—young or old.

People in the county of Pennington and from any other locality will do well by doing their Christmas shopping in Thief River Falls. The merchants have a fine line of Christmas goods and they are all sold at very reasonable prices.

You should read their ads which are in the News this week. They will all do right by you—Buy early!

THE SOCIALIST LECTURE

Prof W. P. Ries gave his lecture on "How We Are Gouged at the Auditorium Dec. 6.

Largley Attended and Ries gave good Talk on the Socialist Side of the Question.

The Socialist Lecture which was delivered by Prof. W. P. Ries, at the Auditorium last Wednesday night was the first of a series of lectures which will be held in this city.

Prof. W. P. Ries is a very good speaker and a large number of local people greeted him. His subject was "How we are Gouged." Mr. Ries handled the topic very eloquently and evidently knew what he was talking about.

Never a day passes unless the subject of socialism comes up, it is a matter of great discussion to the man in the political field.

The next number of this course will be on Wednesday, Dec. 20th.

Married.

At the home of the bride's parents M. J. Berg, occured the marriage of their daughter, Mable, to Syvert Hanson, Dec. 14th 1911. Both of the young people are well known, having lived west of the city for a number of years. The many friends of the young couple extend congratulations.

OBSERVING CHRISTMAS.

How One Family Made the Holiday Pleasant and Profitable.

IN many childless homes in this country no preparations are being made to observe Christmas with its old fashioned customs and traditions. But in Germany, the historic home of the Christmas tree and the source of many current Christmas customs and devices, in no home, from palace to hovel, however old or poor, are the members without their Christmas tree at Yuletide. Where there are no children it is a beautiful sight to see gray haired old men and women, with perhaps their married sons and daughters and grandchildren, standing around, greeting with undisguised delight their well laden fir tree. It is an essential part of their Christmas and would not be Christmas without it.

In a refined American home in a small city a few years ago much enjoyment was derived from a Christmas celebrated in childish style by a family of adults. During the preceding year a son-in-law and a daughter-in-law had been added to the family group, and the other members were a father, a mother, a dear old maiden aunt, the two married children, two unmarried grownup sons and their one sister. A real Christmas tree was purchased, and the women folk trimmed it with popcorn, tinsel, candles and all the rest of the paraphernalia required for a genuine old fashioned Christmas tree.

On Christmas morning the household assembled, and, catching the infection of the occasion, all sat on the floor around the tree to receive their presents from a bona fide Santa Claus. Among the first packages distributed were some made to recall funny happenings of the year just passed, which had been selected in order to create merriment. Screams of laughter greeted the opening of a package labeled with the bride's name, which was found to contain a large leather medal inscribed with the following: "For patience in making apple jelly." As a novice in the culinary department she had struggled time and again with the task of making this delectable dish. To her husband went a small slide trombone, because in his boyhood days he had aspirations toward learning to play that instrument, practicing on a large one of the ear splitting type.

To the maiden aunt, an enthusiastic admirer of Shakespeare and a member of several clubs devoted to "readings," a plaster of Paris bust of Willie was awarded. One of the boys had taken a pleasure trip south a few months before, accompanied by a valuable camera. He had left it on the steamboat dock when he embarked and never recovered it. To him was given a photograph of a beautiful camera cut from an advertisement page of a popular magazine. To the father, a minister of the gospel and high up in ecclesiastical circles, a toy watch—just a gentle reminder of the length of his sermons. The mother's early days had been spent on a farm. Occasionally she had been known to grow homesick for a familiar sight of something resembling farm life, and she had recently purchased a few chickens, which she housed in the extreme end of the back yard, much to the disgust of the daughter of the house. To her was given a toy rooster with a real "crow." The son-in-law received a dime bank, to indicate that his responsibilities had increased, and the other and younger brother rose colored glasses, to remind him of his visionary ideas. To the single sister who had been "out" several seasons a ring with a solitaire stone of real glass was given. After these had been distributed the handsome and real gifts of the day were exchanged, and it was a jolly, happy crowd which filed into the dining room to enjoy the feast which had been in course of preparation.

During the following year the father departed this life, followed within a short space of time by the married son. The surviving members have the memory of that delightful Christmas when they were all together.

On Christmas Morn.

They fared across the lonely plains,
They dared the desert way.
Above them moved the starry trains
That rest not night or day.
One star from out the splendor shone,
A rift of heaven's own light.
In fearless faith they followed on,
Their eager faces bright.

Three kings were they of great renown,
And from the east afar
Until it stood o'er Bethlehem town
They journeyed by the star.
It stood above a cattle shed,
And there its light grew dim.
To heaven's own Child the star had led.
Its glory paled for him.

Immanuel! A little Child
That very day newborn.
They knelt before the undefiled
That earliest Christmas morn.
Each head was bent to give him praise.
Their incense, gold and myrrh
They offered him in glad amaze
Each humble worshiper.

What gifts have we for Christ today?
We, too, have seen the star,
And we have found the happy way
To Bethlehem afar.
Our gold, our myrrh, our incense sweet,
Shall we not hither bring?
Ah, let us haste to kiss his feet,
The little Christ, our King!

—Margaret E. Sangster.

Salutation.

O night, O star, O land afar,
In sweet surprise of glory
Let shepherd train and angel strain
Sing new your Christmas story!

O dawn, O gift, O heaven arift,
O Mary, mystic mother
Of newborn Christ, keep ye my tryst
With every human brother!

O door flung wide, O full floodtide
Of light and kindness meeting,
Unto my friend this day outsend
A joyous Christmas greeting!

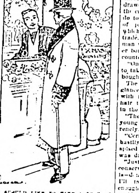
His Christmas Caller

By Anna S. Richardson

THE store fairly radiated the Christmas spirit. Crimson bells swung from every chandelier. Ropes of evergreen draped all the shelving. The counters were strewn with Christmas cards, booklets and favors.

The man who had dropped in to buy lead points for his pocket pencil remained to pore over a stack of gift books bound in rare leather. Then he heard the voice. After that only his gaze was on the books. His interest was concentrated on the possessor of the voice.

"But you said such things were in great demand around the holidays, and



"I SHOULD LIKE TO TAKE A LOOK AT THOSE CARDS"

I have taken infinite pains with these. Please, please tell me what is wrong with them."

There was a note of tragedy in the rich contralto tones which, together with a beseeching glance from wonderful violet eyes, put to rout the rules and regulations of the store buyer of Christmas novelties. His was a smart shop, and he had never vouchsafed explanation to struggling young artists whose work he declined to sell on commission, but now he picked up the little packets of plate and score cards, gay with holly, Santa Claus heads, etc.

"Let me explain," he said. "These are not novelties. They are the same style of cards used in the past twenty years, with the same decorations. Women who can afford to pay the prices demanded for hand painted novelties want something new. See this poinsettia blossom—not painted on a card, but cut in the shape of the blossom itself—and this funny, bulging stocking, overflowing with faces of pretty girls, for a bachelor. They are catchy, the sort of things my customers want. Your work is neat, but not novel."

"Thank you," the girl said bravely. "I understand now, and it is too late for me to try my hand at novelties. But perhaps you will keep my cards, and I—well, your novelties might not go around, and then perhaps some late customer might buy mine after all."

"Certainly. I will be glad to keep them in reserve. Your name and address—oh, yes, I remember—Miss Sylvia Leigh, the Grant studios. I will do my best for you."

Nevertheless as the girl slipped through the door he opened a deep drawer under the counter and dropped the cards out of sight. It would never do to display those old fashioned bits of pasteboard among the novelties which appealed to his fashionable trade. And then very suddenly the man who had been engrossed in leather bound gift books stepped up to the counter.

"One minute, please. I should like to take a look at those cards you just bought from the young lady."

The astonished manager of the store glanced from the well groomed man with fine brown eyes and iron gray hair to the more expensive novelties in the showcase.

"The ones you just bought from the young lady," repeated the customer serenely.

"Certainly," responded the manager hastily, and he spread forth the despised bits of pasteboard. The work was dainty, but utterly commonplace.

"Just what my sister would like—conservative sort of woman my sister is—don't go in for newfangled ideas. I'll take these—three dozen. Not enough! Do you suppose the girl could do Two dozen more by the day before Christmas? If she can, send 'em to me, James Macy, at Marquette. I'll take these with me."

And almost before he could realize what had happened the manager was actually gaping, open mouthed, after this eccentric customer whose sister was to give a dinner party of sixty covers on Christmas day and intrusted the buying of such important articles as dinner favors to an obviously inexperienced bachelor brother.

Christmas eve was frosty and starlit. James Macy, coming home from his office, smiled somewhat grimly at the holiday preparations made.

Holly and evergreens there were in plenty, great wreaths with massive bows of satin ribbon, a bowl filled with scarlet poinsettia blooms, and on one table an orderly stack of parcels evidently sent by express, mail and messenger to the popular but elusive bachelor, for elusive he was dubbed by matchmaking mothers.

"A young lady to see you, sir," remarked his man impassively.

James Macy took the card.

"Miss Sylvia Leigh," ran its legend.

She came to him, looking taller than the day in the shop, for her head was held high.

"You will pardon my coming here on Christmas eve and unchaperoned. I could not leave town without seeing you." The violet eyes had turned almost black; the contralto voice was a bit too even in its tones.

"I am honored," replied James Macy gravely, and he offered her a chair, which she declined with a wave of her gloved hand.

"It was hard enough to know that the man who bought my foolish little paintings did it through a sense of pity, but to learn that he was also the man who wrecked my mother's life—that—that was too much. I have come to return your money and ask the return of my cards if you have not already destroyed them."

"My dear girl," expostulated the man, who had turned strangely white.

"Please do not interrupt me," continued the girl passionately. "My mother's brother—perhaps you remember him—Henry Johnson, is here. He went to the shop and found out where my cards had gone and— Oh, it is such a miserable little farce to you, a successful man! I thought I could be an artist. They told me so at home. Against uncle's wishes I came here to make my little fight and failed. When you bought those things I thought perhaps—but uncle, who wanted me to go home, sifted the story to the bottom and found—you. I am going home with him tonight."

"Miss Leigh, I want to beg a favor of you. This is Christmas eve, and I am a lonely, desolate man. If ever the Christmas message of peace and good will means anything it is tonight, and I want your good will. Those little Christmas cards you painted are the only touch of real Christmas that has come into my life—and I want to keep them—and tell you why I want to keep them. Will you be seated?

"You say I wrecked your mother's life. Well, then, know that hers was [illegible] long. My season of regret and penitence has lasted longer than you have lived. I loved your mother, but I did not understand her. I went out

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

That boy is out of whack seriously who cannot get outside two good big apples within half an hour after he has stuffed his jacket full of dinner.

To secure best results it is quite too late to begin training the child at six or the colt at three years old. Both should be halter broken before this period in their lives.

If the family cow has been making a good showing on ground feed, bran and such hay as is available, give her a couple of handfuls of oil or cottonseed meal twice a day and note what happens.

If the house that contains toilet room fixtures is to be left during cold weather a good way to prevent sewage gases escaping into the rooms is to draw the water from the traps, replace the plugs and pour in enough machine oil to prevent the escape of air.

A lady reader contributing to an eastern agricultural journal recommends drying green sweet corn cobs for use as winter fuel. This good sister is certainly entitled to the designation "thrifty," while it must also be conceded that she is somewhat of a humorist.

Missouri is credited with the largest output of poultry products of any state in the Union, their total value for the last fiscal year being $40,000,000. This amount was divided about evenly between eggs and poultry, including chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys and other fowls.

In some feeding experiments conducted by the Kansas station it was found that while hogs made a gain of 100 pounds when fed grain alone they made a gain of 173 pounds when fed grain and alfalfa. It was further found that grain that was worth $1 when fed alone was worth $1.40 when fed with this legume.

What is said to be the largest drainage proposition in the country is the Little river drainage district situated in southwestern Missouri. When completed this will drain 500,000 acres of marvelously rich alluvial soil at a cost of $5,000,000, or $10 per acre, which is just about one-fourth the cost per acre of effective irrigation.

In extensive feeding experiments conducted by W. D. Hoard, one of Wisconsin's leading dairymen, he found that 100 pounds of skimmilk fed to pigs weighing about 100 pounds resulted in a pork production of five pounds, while fed to grade calves that were sold at less than a year old it had a feeding value of 63 cents per hundredweight. Notwithstanding evidence from so good a witness, there are thousands of farmers who realize barely one-half of the feeding value of their skimmilk.

The seasonableness of some agricultural matter used by many newspapers of the country is shown by an injunction given in such a column the other day to the effect that "in hot weather lice breed in pigeon houses by the million and extra care should be taken under these circumstances to keep down the vermin." This injunction, well enough in season, appeared in the papers just following a Medicine Hat blizzard which brought zero weather in many northern states and froze things hard clear to the gulf.

There is probably no incentive to effort that can be used with the boy that will go farther or produce more satisfactory results than appreciation. Many a lad, self willed and independent perhaps, runs away from home and tackles life on his own hook largely because of a lack of this very incentive to better effort, when it is more than likely if his mistakes had been made light of and his honest efforts to do things well had been given a trifle more praise he would have remained at home. Not only does appreciation make heavy work light, but it tends to give that satisfaction which any person must feel if he is to remain long at his work.

Men can learn much from animals if they will keep their eyes open. An instance showing this was that of several tuberculous cows that were being handled with the purpose in view of seeing what the outdoor treatment would do for them. Their quarters were so arranged that they could have the shelter of a warm stable and bedding, but one very cold night when a storm was on their owner was greatly surprised to note that instead of seeking protection they seemed to prefer the fresher air of the open, where the wind blew strong. Many folks who are fairly [illegible] and [illegible] in ill ventilated houses air surcharged with carbonic acid gas haven't as much "cow" sense as these dumb brutes.

Entered at the Postoffice at Thief River Falls, Minn., as second class matter.

Do it early! Only 10 more days left.

Use the Red Cross Christmas Seals numerously. It all goes to help a good cause.

The Crookston Elks have a $55,000 new Lodge Home, which will be dedicated Thursday, Jan. 11 1912. Oh you Elk!

Sleighing at the rate it went last Saturday will be no more unless we get a good fall of snow very shortly. We need the snow to enable the farmers to come into the city to do their Christmas shopping.

John D Rockefeller is no longer president and director of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Rockefeller is succeeded by John D. Archbold. It will be John D. just the same.—Roseau County Times. Its all in the name.

Seldom in the history of the world have people been more surprised and shocked than when they received the news last Friday that James B. McNamara had confessed that he was guilty of dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building. Judge Bordwell sentenced him to life in prison and his brother, John J. McNamara, was given 15 years. John J. confessed to having been implicated in the blowing up of the Llewellyn Iron Works in the same city. The confessions of these two men will probably enable the detectives to round up a large numbers of these (what we would call) dynamite fanatics.

The Minnesota State Dairymen's Association is to hold its annual meeting at Wadena on January 16, 17 and 18, 1912. It is said that this will be the biggest event of the season. We hope that it will.

CALL EXTRA SESSION

It is reported that S. Y. Gordon has taken advantage of Gov. Eberhart's absence from the state and yesterday called an extra session of the legislature. This is what might be called "playing politics with a vengeance."

MARRIED TODAY

Edward Hermanson and Miss Marie Vellieux United in Holy Matrimony.

This morning at an early hour at St. Bernard's church occurred the marriage of Miss Marie Vellieux to Mr. Edward Hermanson, Rev. Father Adolph Dingman officiating. Miss Vellieux was up until a short time ago one of the compositors on the "Times" of this city, and during her short stay in this city has won a host of friends, who wish her much happiness. Mr. Hermanson has lived in this city for a number of years and has by his honesty and straightforwardness won the esteem of all with whom he has come in contact. Mr. Hermanson has just bought the "Plummer Pioneer" and after the ceremony he took his bride to Plummer, where they will go to housekeeping The "News" extends to the happy couple the heartiest congratulations and their many friends join us in wishing them the best of a long and happy life.

THIS LITTLE SHOP TALK won't bore you because it isn't long enough and YOU will read it because 99 out of a 100 will, so the odds are against you. However, the TRAVEL SHOP is an innovation. It is a shop where EVERYTHING in the way of transportation is sold to anywhere at the lowest possible prices. If you're planning your next season's vacation now, and you should be, write the travel shop. If you're going anywhere this winter, to California, Florida, Pacific Coast or the East, write the TRAVEL SHOP. This shop is splendidly equipped as to travel ideas, and the experts in charge are more than anxious to answer your letters promptly or to see you personally should you visit the city at any time.

At the Lyceum.

The Daniel Sisters, high-class singing and dancing artists, will appear at the Lyceum Theatre the last half of this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 14, 15 and 16. This attraction is one of the many good acts that will appear during the winter months. They are well worth your patronage. See them!

"Kail, the wizard of the one string," will appear on the 21st, 22nd and 23rd of December. This is one of the most expensive attractions that the Lyceum has ever had. The one-string musician is a wonder of the Twentieth Century. The management for a long time has been trying to get this attraction and at last has been able to secure it for three nights only. This is one of the best that the Orpheum circuit has on their list. "The Wizard" is on his way from Minneapolis to Winnipeg, making a three night stand at the local play house. His musical ability is beyond human knowledge. You miss one year of your life if you miss the attraction.

LEAPS FROM HIGH BRIDGE

Attempt at Suicide by St. Paul Man May Succeed.

A man whose name is believed to be George Seisling attempted suicide by leaping from the high bridge at St. Paul 150 feet to the river below.

Inhabitants of the Upper Levee heard him groaning and saw his body on a sandbar. A former policeman notified police headquarters and squads of men were detailed to the scene from Central and Ducas stations.

The first officers to arrive at the scene broke open a boathouse, got a boat and set out for the bar. Tossing aside their heavy coats the officers pulled with all their might out to the little island. There the man was found unconscious.

The man was taken to the City hospital, where it was said his condition was critical because of apparent internal injuries.

The police think he must have struck open water and floated to the sandbar, as the drop to the bar must necessarily have broken every bone in his body.

MILLION DOLLAR SUIT ENDS

Land and Cash Transfer Closes Noted Civil Action.

In some respects the most unusual civil suit ever tried in Hennepin county was settled at Minneapolis when by agreement of attorneys Swan J. Turnblad paid over to Isaac Ekberg and twenty-one other former stockholders in the Swedish-American Publishing company $20,000 in cash and a deed to 3,232 acres of land valued at $15 an acre. Papers were filed in district court ending the case.

The Ekberg-Turnblad case, aside from the amount involved, which Mr. Ekberg declared to be more than $1,000,000, was a record maker in many ways. The suit was filed in April, 1908, and has been on more or less continuously ever since. The actual trial consumed approximately three months and was the longest civil trial in the history of the state.

MINNESOTANS ARE BEATEN

Their Resolution Defeated at Rivers and Harbors Congress.

At the annual meeting recently held at Washington the resolution expressing it to be the sense of the congress that power generated by dams constructed by the government should be reserved for the use of the people, introduced by Mayor Haynes of Minneapolis, was defeated in the national rivers and harbors congress. The resolution was rejected by the committee on resolutions and although it polled a substantial vote in the congress was defeated because of a belief that the organization should not pass on the subject of power.

The Haynes resolution was offered with a view to obtaining an endorsement that could be used to advantage in obtaining new legislation for the high dam proposed to be erected in the Mississippi river near St. Paul.

NEW ORE RATE CUT SEEN

Duluth Operator Predicts Action by Commerce Commission.

P. H. Nelson, independent iron ore operator, who has just returned to Duluth from Washington, where he was a witness before the Stanley committee, said:

"I am of the opinion that the interstate commerce commission will further reduce the iron ore rates in Minnesota and am convinced that the reduction will be to about 40 cents a ton. The cost of operation on the Missabe road is about 35 per cent of the gross earnings.

"If the independent iron mining men of Minnesota are to be put in position to meet Michigan competition at Lake Erie receiving ports there should be a further reduction of the Minnesota ore rates to about 40 cents a ton."

PLAN FIGHT ON SUFFRAGE

Minnesota Germans Oppose Votes for Women.

A nationwide campaign against woman suffrage will be started soon under the auspices of the German-American National alliance, according to C. E. Schmidt, president of the Minnesota branch of the alliance.

At the annual meeting of the Minnesota branch on Dec. 16 plans will be discussed for this movement, in which nearly all the German societies of Minnesota will be involved.

To Hear Tax Case. Jan. 8.

The repeated requests of the states of Oklahoma and Minnesota for the supreme court of the United States to consider at an early date cases involving the constitutionality of the gross revenue taxes in these states on public service corporations other than railroads were granted by that tribunal. Jan. 8 was set for hearing oral arguments.

Prefers Death to Trial.

Self-sought death having intervened Jacob Sauerwein of St. Paul, until recently a saloon keeper, did not appear with his bondsmen in police court to have his bond renewed. Rather than face the secret indictment returned against him by the grand jury Sauerwein drank carbolic acid and was found dead by his daughter.

CEMENT WORK AT PANAMA.

The Isthmian canal commission has lately published some interesting data in regard to the cement work that was done on the Panama project from June 30, 1910, to June 30, 1911. The figures show that during the year mentioned 1,742,928 cubic yards of concrete were laid, while the cost of putting it in place varied from $6.70 per yard in the Gatun spillway to $4.68 per yard in the Miraflores locks. In the cement work at the Gatun dam 73,000 cubic yards of large rocks were used for filling, effecting a saving of over $[illegible]. The cost of the stone used varied from 84 cents to $2.34 per cubic yard. The cement for the Atlantic division cost $1.19 per barrel at tidewater, while for the Pacific division the cost was $1.[illegible] per barrels in sacks, which if returned reduced the cost to $1.01

EVIDENCE FOR THE SILO.

At a farmers' institute which the writer attended some time ago a speaker who was setting forth the merits of corn silage wound up his argument by saying that not only did the horses, cattle, sheep and hogs consume it greedily, but also the poultry, while occasionally he found the hired man chewing it as a substitute for something stronger. This kind of evidence seems conclusive and ought to be sufficient to convert the most skeptical to the silo way.

School Notes.

School closes on Friday, December 22nd, for the customary two weeks of Christmas holidays.

The lower grade rooms are assuming a holiday appearance. Teachers and pupils exercise not a little ingenuity and display much good taste in making and hanging becoming decorations in the rooms. Brief closing programs will be held the last day of school.

The high school basketball team will try conclusions with the McIntosh team next Saturday evening at the gym. Everbody ought to attend this contest and experience the pleasing thrill of mingling with a couple of hundred jolly young people. The high school band will make its first formal appearance as a high school organization and will aid in supplying a part of the necessary enthusiasm.

The trophies of the chase in large quantities are found these days in Janitor Runnestrand's room in the mechanical building. They are fast assuming lifelike shape under Knut's skillful hands.

Bernard Williams re-entered school last Monday, having been absent since early last September. Everybody is pleased to learn that he is fully recovered from the effects of the dangerous wound he received on a hunting trip last fall.

A highschool band of fifteen pieces was organized at the school last Wednesday afternoon. The boys comprising this latest school organization decided to fasten the appellation of "Professor" to Ben Lonson, who is well qualified to direct the energies of the boys in their efforts to transform compressed atmosphere into the sweet strains of music.

The school children have been singularly free from illness this fall. Not a single case of contagious disease has been reported in the schools.

The first half year ends about the middle of January. At that time those children in the grades who by reason of age and advancement warrant promotion will be moved up a grade. The number will be small as very few children can complete the work of two grades in one year satisfactorily.

All kindergarten pupils who are qualified—and this will comprise about half the little people, will be placed in first grade in January. This will permit them to complete the first grade by the end of the first year in school.

Miss Goodwin and her normal cadets on Wednesday visited the schools taught by Misses Clara Backe and Katie Dahl northwest of town.

The stains that gather so quickly on the inside of the coffeepot may be easily removed by boiling in it a fairly strong solution of baking soda. If one treatment doesn't do the business, repeat.

One of the latest baits recommended for catching wall eyed pike is strips of orange peeling. It seems to be the bright color of the bait rather than any value it possesses for food that attracts the fish.

The Northwestern Greening is a late and none too prolific bearer, rots quickly if bruised and has none too good a texture, but it has when full ripe a twang and spiciness that are surpassed by not more than two or three other varieties.

A fellow's real patriotism—interest in the welfare of his community and country—is not measured by his fine buildings, bursting cribs and mows and sleek animals, but by the pains he takes to inform himself of the important issues of his time and to cast his vote on election day.

The Colorado blue spruce is a beautiful tree in its native habitat on the hill slopes and in the valleys of the Rockies, but it is even more thrifty and beautiful if given the special care possible when set as an ornament for lawn or park. From the standpoint of vigor, symmetry and color effect no conifer surpasses it.

A good many folks who make light in a general way of the danger of one's contracting tuberculosis from dairy cows afflicted with the disease are not at all anxious to have their own children use the milk from such animals. It is merely a case in which a trouble is not so bad provided it is "on" somebody else, say over in the next county.

Mowing the lawn in the middle of October may improve the looks of it for a brief time, but unless there is a good mulch of well rotted manure applied to enrich the soil and protect the roots of the grass from winter thawing and freezing the practice is not advisable. Grass needs a rest just like folks, and it's a pretty good plan to do no cutting after Sept. 20.

There is no tool that gives as good results in freshly cleared land and is as economical in operation from the standpoint of both horsepower and patience as the disk harrow. This holds both in getting the land in shape for a crop and tending it while growing. The advantage of the disk for the purposes mentioned is appreciated by any one who has operated one of the old break pin cultivators on a rooty field.

If the housewife has a small sized fish to bake she will find an easy as well as a very satisfactory way to do it to cut the fish along the backbone so as to lay it open and then cover it nicely with the stuffing which one prefers, a breadcrumb dressing seasoned with sage and onion being excellent. This method of baking not only keeps the fish moist and tender, but gives a brown crust to the covering which is very appetizing.

Some one has figured out that if every boy in the country would eat five apples a day for the next three months it would require all the apples which have been produced in the country this year and would insure a fair price to the growers. Another thing about this boy-apple combination is that it is just as good for the boy as it is for the apple market. Five apples a day will merely keep the average boy's digestive organs in good working order.

A point that the dweller in the well watered central and eastern states should keep in mind on going into the dry country west of meridian 100 degrees is that, while one acre of pasture in his native section will keep a steer or five head of sheep, it requires from eight to fifteen times as much land in the dry belt to furnish a like amount of forage. This is not said to the detriment of the land of the short grass but simply for the information of the settler who may not be aware of the fact.

Many newly set family orchards that we know, like many boys and girls, need some attention just now if they are going to develop into anything symmetrical and valuable later on. As regards these young trees they should have their rangy, sprawling tops cut back so as to give a sturdier and more shapely head or frame, while cross or ill shapen limbs should be taken out entirely. This work is done easily now, while the trees are in the formative stage, while the results secured are in every way more satisfactory than if the job is postponed.

Vaccination for typhoid has been attended with such satisfactory results in the army that its use is now strongly recommended by all leading physicians.

What a whole lot of bother we mortals would be freed from if we were relieved of the necessity of everlastingly scratching for the wherewithal to keep warm or cool and to satisfy hunger!

Many a horse raiser finds it advantageous to breed his mares in November. This gives an October colt, which gets a good start before winter sets in and in the care of which more time is available than during the rush season of the summer.

On days when it is freezing out of doors and water cannot be used to advantage in washing windows a very fair job can be done with kerosene, which can be applied with a small rag and the window rubbed dry with a clean dry cloth.

A game bird of western Montana that is much appreciated is the mountain grouse that full grown is nearly as large as a Barred Rock pullet. A further characteristic is that the meat of the bird is mostly white instead of dark, as is the case with a majority of game birds.

Not so very long ago the practice was followed by many dairymen of moistening the ground grain ration for the cows. Today it is generally recognized that feeding such ration dry not only keeps the cows from bolting it, but before they can swallow it they must chew the feed thoroughly and mix it with saliva.

The vital energy used by dairy cows or steers as tank heaters in warming ice cold water that they drink means a corresponding decrease in the amount of milk which they will produce or flesh which they will put on. It follows from this that it is usually cheaper to take the chill from the water in some other way.

The size or bore of many a citizen is often indicated by his attitude toward the snow that falls on the walks bordering his place. If he sweeps or shovels his own walk promptly he does his duty and is entitled to commendation; if he does this and helps out his neighbor, who is unable to do the work, he ranks still higher as a neighbor and citizen.

Where one has a considerable number of young fruit trees to protect from rabbits wood veneer protectors are very satisfactory. These are 10 by 20 inches in size and can be got f. o. b. shipping point for about 50 cents a hundred or $4.50 per thousand. These veneers are very pliable and can easily be curved about the young tree. If carefully handled and properly stored during the summer season they should last for years.

When the horse gets out of condition it is a pretty good plan to make a thorough examination of the teeth or have the same done by a good veterinarian. In a majority of cases the low tone will be found due not to liver complaint or a pessimistic view of life, but merely to inability to get the teeth squarely together on the food masticated. If portions of the teeth project and prevent proper chewing, these points should be filed out.

The small boy, as well as the larger boy, will be saved a good deal of discomfort if he will remember that wiping the hands perfectly dry after each washing will tend to prevent chapped hands. If the hands are already chapped even greater care should be taken to wipe them dry. One of the best ointments to heal them is made by mixing about three or four teaspoonfuls of glycerin in two ounces of rosewater. This should be applied at night and should be put on just after the hands are washed and still moist, then rubbed in over the stove or register until the hands are perfectly dry.

As the stormy and cold winter weather comes on those farmers living in the higher latitudes may perform a real service for themselves by taking some pains to provide food and shelter for the quail and pheasants that during the summer and fall may have been frequenting the brush lots and roadsides near their premises. Especially is this true of the Hungarian and one or two other types of imported game birds which have been recently introduced and have not as yet adjusted themselves to the severer weather conditions. Simply from the standpoint of what these birds will do next season in the way of bug and insect destruction will more than pay for the time and expense of protecting them.

Cabbages require a dry and cool place for storage, and this is why they spoil so soon when left on the floor of the average cellar. Market gardeners and farmers who raise this vegetable in large quantities usually store them out of doors in the following manner: After pulling, the roots are removed, but as many of the outer leaves left on as possible. A well drained piece of land is then selected and the cabbages placed in a long row, the tier nearest the ground three heads wide, the next two and the last one. The conical pile is then covered with three or four inches of coarse hay or straw; then a couple of furrows are turned with a plow toward the cabbages on both sides. Earth is then shoveled over the pile so as to give a covering seven or eight inches deep. Cabbages stored carefully in this manner will keep well until spring.

AN INSTRUCTIVE FEEDING TEST.

The breeders of Jersey cattle are feeling quite jubilant over some of their victories won in competition with other leading breeds at the national dairy show, which was held a short time since at Chicago. Among the most striking of these was the ribbon won by a little 703 pound Jersey cow belonging to R. B. Smith of Illinois in a government feeding test made for the purpose of ascertaining which individual cow entered could produce the most butter fat from each dollar's worth of feed consumed. There were entered with her in the test eight big pure bred Holsteins, one of which had an annual milk record of 19,500 pounds; also four prize winning Guernseys. The third day she made more profit than any cow in the test but one. The seventh day she headed the list, with $2.61 worth of product from each dollar's worth of feed consumed, while on the last day she made a showing of $2.72 for a like amount of food consumed. An interesting feature in connection with this test was that notwithstanding the fact that the cows were selected with especial reference to their supposed ability to make good along the line of showing a profit from feed consumed, there were five individuals that showed a loss, while one cow that was selected by many spectators and judges as a type that should be profitable made a loss most days during the test, and no day did she make a profit of more than 6 cents on a dollar's worth of food consumed. Here, as in many another realm, it is a case of "handsome is that handsome does."

AN EVERYDAY MIRACLE.

One of the most wonderful facts of natural history, yet so common that it is viewed as an everyday thing, is that marvelous faculty which enables many animals to survive severe winter weather in an entirely insensible and practically lifeless condition. A friend relates of some pet flying squirrels that he owned some years ago that after they had entered the hibernating state they were unintentionally exposed to a severe temperature which froze them solid. He supposed this had finished them, but brought them in by the kitchen stove and was dumfounded a few hours later, after they were thawed out, to see them running about the kitchen. Another friend whose word is good relates how years ago a fish was bought at his local market frozen solid. This was put in warm water and as soon as the frost was dispelled swam about as if nothing had happened since it was taken from its habitat. Notwithstanding such marvels as these there are those who have no faith in the Creator and who somehow seem to have the idea that matter got together and took form by chance and that what we understand by life happened in the same way.

SOME THINGS A GIRL SHOULD KNOW.

It is a pitiful commentary on the bringing up that thousands of girls have that so many of them come to the age of twenty knowing so little of the work that a majority of them will have to spend a good share of their time doing for the rest of their lives—namely, that in the home. The girl who can keep a house in order, make a sweet, light loaf of bread, cook a piece of meat properly and bake a pie with a light crust has equipped herself to make a good wife in a far greater degree than if she can drum on the piano indifferently, knows the meaning of "tempus fugit" and has a lot of other things in her head that do not contribute particularly to her own well being or that of those about her. It is fine, indeed, if to the practical accomplishments named she can add proficiency along intellectual and aesthetic lines, but the latter are got at a high price if the former are neglected.

A SENSELESS SLAUGHTER.

In many sections along about Thanksgiving time the "call of the wild," coupled with the seductive influence of oyster stews which the "other fellows" are to pay for, is too strong for a lot of men who have been shut up in shop and office too closely for months, and shotguns a-shoulder, they hike forth, all too often to kill any living thing that happens to cross their path. It would not be so bad if this carnage was restricted to crows, cotton tails, jackrabbits and skunks, but it is not. Often species of owls and hawks that are among the farmers best friends fall easy prey in this indiscriminate massacre. However rollicking such a jaunt as this, there are surely sensible men in such a crowd who should see to it that birds that possess an economic value for the farmer and gardener as destroyers of gophers, rats and mice, should be on the proscribed list and no points allowed for killing them.

A TURKEY RATION.

While corn will put fat on turkeys, a much finer quality of flesh is obtained if they are given a ration of ground oats, barley, buckwheat and wheat middlings mixed into a moist mash with skimmilk or buttermilk. A half ounce of tallow to each bird as a substitute for corn gives excellent results. This ration should be fed from a trough and should be supplemented by a succulent ration of apples, beets or turnips. Shells, grit and fresh water should be kept before the birds constantly. If they are in good growing condition to start with about three weeks of this special feeding will be needed to fit them for the table.

ENTHUSIASM FOR ATHLETICS

Women of Sweden Are Taking Deep Interest in Helpful Exercises—Norwegian Railroad Shows Greatest Development of Engineering Skill. Philippine Official Completes Study of Agricultural and Industrial Conditions in Denmark.

SWEDEN.

This winter promises to bring an extraordinary boom to women's fencing clubs in Sweden. The fourthcoming Olympian games are partly responsible, for there is general enthusiasm for athletics. More powerful than that, however, is the belief among stylish women that fencing is by far the best exercise for developing an easy and graceful carriage. In the Swedish capital the Women's Fencing club is one of the most exclusive and fashionable organizations in the city. The crown princess is patron and often attends the 5 o'clock teas given there, along with the crown prince, who finds the headquarters a charming social rendezvous. The founder of the club, Miss Janken Wiet-Hansen, is a notable pupil of the famous French master of the foils, Filiot. Some years ago she won the first prize in international fence matching, at Tourcoing, near Lille. Since then her skill and enthusiasm have made this Stockholm club famous in fencing circles throughout Europe. International matches are a feature of every season, competing teams coming from England, France and elsewhere.

✣ ✣ ✣

Mr. L. S. Dale, secretary of the American Boy Scout association, is engaged in making the rounds of the capitals of Europe in the interest of the Boy Scout movement. He has already paid a visit to Christiania and the other day he came to Stockholm. He stated to the papers there that there were many Swedish and Norwegian boys in America who had joined the Boy Scouts and he spoke very highly of their behavior. He carried official greetings from 800,000 Boy Scouts in America and urged that the movement be pushed with equal vigor in Sweden, as well as all other European countries.

✣ ✣ ✣

Preparations for the Olympian games are being pushed with vigor. The city council of Stockholm has been requested and will, in all likelihood, grant an appropriation of 100,000 crowns, which will go a long way to help out on the expense. There is much local enthusiasm evinced and all over Sweden, for that matter, the Olympian games are the talk of the hour. So far as hospitality is concerned there will be no limit and Stockholm will certainly aim to sustain her reputation for being the most hospitable city in the world.

✣ ✣ ✣

In the Novoje Vremja (St. Petersburg) there appeared the following significant telegram under date of Nov. 9: "The Swedish government has, after representations from the Russian and British governments, agreed to avoid all future complications by not allowing twenty Swedish army officers to enlist in the Persian army." The Swedish foreign department has since been interviewed by a Stockholm paper regarding this telegram and stated that the Swedish government had done nothing of the kind.

✣ ✣ ✣

Christina Nilsson (Countess Casa de Miranda) is again in the public eye, since evincing such genuine interest in the Olympian games, which she has promised to back with several thousand crowns cash if necessary. The other day she was awarded a gold medal by King Gustaf, designed to be carried with a golden chain about the neck.

✣ ✣ ✣

Aurthur Donaldson, the Swedish American actor, who appeared as leading man in "The Prince of Pilsen" for a number of seasons, has arrived in Stockholm, but has not made his debut at the Casars theater, as was advertised some time ago. He will soon appear, however, in a comedy entitled "Kyska Susanna" (Virtuous Susanna).

✣ ✣ ✣

David Bjorling, a Swedish American opera singer, gave a concert at [illegible] "[illegible]" the other evening and was very well received by the large audience. Mr. Bjorling possesses a fine voice and the comments of the Stockholm papers have been rather favorable.

✣ ✣ ✣

Admiral Arvid Lindman is confined at the Sofia Home, where he recently underwent an operation. Latest reports state that he is getting better. Lindman is one of the prominent men in the Swedish navy and is considered a very efficient officer.

✣ ✣ ✣

Consul [illegible] has been appointed to the Swedish post at St. Petersburg, succeeding K. W. Hagelin, who has tendered his resignation.

NORWAY.

In the northern part of Norway there is a stretch of railroad of about twenty-four miles which in skill of engineering and cost of construction rivals almost anything in the world. It has 184 tunnels and crosses twenty-four bridges. Three of these are built in masonry, one having a span of 150 feet and the other a span of 566 feet in length, with eight seventy-foot spans. The dynamite used in excavation run up to 1,800,000 pounds. The line cost $15,000,000. It runs through a wilder stretch of country than any other European railroad, where the winter lasts nine months in the year and where the snowfall is exceedingly heavy and the rain storms terrific.

✣ ✣ ✣

There are some Norwegian teachers who certainly succeed in making quite a record for themselves in the length of time that they have served in their profession. Andreas Vikland, for instance, has made a singular record. He took his public examinations in 1874 and has been a teacher ever since. During this time he has held positions in almost all parts of Norway, never holding the same position for more than two years. Now he has determined to retire and he feels that he is entitled to a little rest.

✣ ✣ ✣

The Christian league of Norwegian students held a reception in honor of their American guests during the university jubilee in Christiania. On that occasion Professor Preus, president of Luther College, Decorah, Ia., delivered an address on "Education Among the Norwegians in America." It was a splendid address and was most favorably commented on by the home Norwegians.

✣ ✣ ✣

Since the fight against tuberculosis started in Norway it is claimed by an article in one of the medical journals that cases of that kind are decreasing. From 1859 to 1890 the death rate on every 1,000 inhabitants increased from 2.1 per cent to 2.8 per cent. From 1890 to 1900 it remained about the same. In 1901 it was 2.4 and in 1909 it was 2.0.

✣ ✣ ✣

Dr. Frithjof Nansen will deliver a lecture in London in the near future entitled "The Vikings and the Discovery of America." Dr. Nansen's latest book, entitled "Nord i Taakeimen," has been well received in London and many copies of it have been sold.

✣ ✣ ✣

There was from January to September a considerable decrease in Norwegian emigration. During that period only 10,599 persons left the country, but last year during that same period there were 15,997 who emigrated to foreign lands.

✣ ✣ ✣

Savanger is prospering. There is much building operations going on there at present and there has been a scarcity of labor. Contractors have been obliged to get workingmen from other localities. The city is growing at a rapid rate.

✣ ✣ ✣

According to recent statistics there are about 2,000 Norwegians in Copenhagen, Denmark. They are mostly mechanics, clerks and laboring people who are employed by several Norwegian firms operating in that city.

DENMARK.

G. A. O'Reilly, who is an official of the government of the Philippines, has just finished a six weeks' tour of Denmark which he made for the purpose of studying agricultural and industrial conditions. He was especially impressed with the agricultural progress of Denmark and expressed his surprise that in that country there is no question that farming pays. The investigator expressed the belief that this result had been brought about by the co-operative system among farmers, the sympathy between these co-operative unions and the department of agriculture, and the scientific handling of agricultural problems by the department. Another feature of agriculture which impressed Mr. O'Reilly was the regulation and control of the milk, butter and egg supply of the country. He considered that this system is responsible in a large measure for the health of the Danish people and for the high reputation of these products in the foreign markets. The poverty of Danish orchards and the lack of handicrafts in the country were the only points which impressed the investigator unfavorably.

✣ ✣ ✣

Says a Copenhagen correspondent: "Scandals arising from race track and lottery gambling have been growing to such an extent in Denmark for the last few years that the movement for the abolition of the practice is becoming strong. Although the number of lotteries has steadily increased the demand for tickets continues to grow and on both the running and the trotting tracks enormous sums are wagered. It is believed the growth in embezzlements is directly due to this fever for gambling. Several cashiers of [illegible] have lately been arrested for taking funds intrusted to their care. The movement for the control of lotteries and betting is [illegible] there is no immediate [illegible]. The government [illegible] a large income from both [illegible] and race track betting and as there has been a deficiency in the state budget for the last few years any attempt to do away with them [illegible] will meet with strong opposition."

His Christmas Caller

into the world to make a fortune, not for myself, but for her, and I thought that the fortune must come first and love's dream afterward. With women it is different. The dream must come first—the fortune is a secondary consideration. Your mother (God bless her memory) thought I had forgotten—that I did not care—and so she passed out of my life and into your father's.

"But she had you. I had nothing, nothing but money and the memory of one happy summer of her life. I never expected to know what peace and happiness meant again until that day in the store, when your eyes, your voice—I thought it was the other Sylvia, my Sylvia, come to life. And I bought those cards because you painted them.

"And now you come to me in anger and take from me my one Christmas happiness—the work of your hands. Sylvia, Sylvia, haven't I paid my debt of repentance? Can you not extend forgiveness—Christmas forgiveness—in your mother's name?"

Sylvia turned toward the door.

"I must go now. We are leaving on the 9 o'clock train. Uncle is waiting for me downstairs in a cab. We are going home."

"Home!" The man echoed the word mechanically, dully.

The girl hesitated, then held out her hand.

"Yes, back to dear old Hestonville. Why don't you come too? Why don't you run out tomorrow—for dinner?"

"Sylvia, child, do you mean it? Do you understand that if I come it will be—to see you?"

Bravely the violet eyes were raised to meet the searching look in the brown ones.

"Is it peace and good will for me, Sylvia?"

"Yes—and merry Christmas if you come tomorrow."

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

The American Society of Equity, a farmers' organization, closed its session at Chicago by adopting resolutions asking President Taft to remove Secretary Wilson because of his stand on the pure food and beer questions and his attitude toward Dr. Wiley, who is called in the memorial a friend of the farmer. Dr. J. H. Worst of the North Dakota Agricultural college was suggested as a successor to Mr. Wilson.

After eight years' devious travel in the ways of grand juries and special pleas the cases of ten Chicago meat packers, indicted for alleged violation of the criminal provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law, has finally reached trial. Indications were that the early stages of the trial at least would be rapid, for the government's examination of the first panel of jurymen was terse and to the point.

"Not less than $50,000" was the fee received by Clarence Darrow for his services in defending the McNamara brothers, according to a declaration made by Frank N. Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor and custodian of the McNamara defense fund.

UNFORTUNATE EVENTS.

Six men were killed and five injured in a triple wreck of two freights and a fast express train on the Pennsylvania road near Manor, Pa. Among the dead are J. M. Uhlman, a wealthy rancher and horseman, and J. Arthur Bond, a horseman, both of Williston, N. D.

A "dust explosion" in the main mine of the Crossmountain system near Briceville, Tenn., entombed at least 100 miners, all of whom are believed to be dead. Rescuers have recovered eight bodies.

Three persons were burned to death or suffocated in a fire which destroyed the fashionable Marie apartment house at Philadelphia.

Four workmen were killed and a score injured in the collapse of a building under construction at Indianapolis.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Between 150 and 200 lives were lost by the collapse of a railroad bridge over the Volga river near Kazan, Russia. The bridge was in course of construction and was filled with workmen when, without warning, the supports gave way and the men were precipitated into the icy waters.

Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons that the government would use all the constitutional means at its disposal to pass a home rule bill for Ireland during the lifetime of the present parliament.

Russia is in the grip of a famine that threatens to claim more lives than that of 1891, when 800,000 died. The Free Economic society estimates the crop shortage at 50,000,000 tons.

Decrees dissolving the German reichstag and fixing the date of the general elections for the new reichstag on Jan. 12 are published in the Imperial Gazette.

HOG CHOLERA EPIDEMIC.

Not in several years have the ravages of hog cholera—whichever of half a dozen ailments this may mean—been so serious in north central states as during the past few weeks. Whether superinduced by the too heavy feeding of immature corn following a summer season of unusually "short fare," or aggravated by a spreading of disease germs in dust blown hither and yon and by low and befouled sources of water supply, the results are the same—heavy and irreparable losses to many who have cribs bursting with corn and who had visions of handsome profits from feeding the [illegible] the hog lot. Where the malady is the genuine hog cholera it is well worth while to send to one's state experiment station for the cholera serum which is sold at cost and which should be applied if possible by a competent veterinarian. Further measures that will help to check the epidemic are a removal of well hogs from those that are sick. In case the serum treatment is not possible the greatest possible care in providing germ free water, and in keeping the troughs clean and quarters warm and dry. Even if one does all these things his hogs may die, but the chances are that doing one or all of them will help.

ABOUT THE STATE

News of Especial Interest to Minnesota Readers.

REAPPORTIONMENT ENDORSED

But Northern Development Congress Does Not Demand Extra Session of Legislature.

Extra session agitation was buried at the St. Cloud convention as far as the Northern Minnesota Development association is concerned. Individual members may continue the fight, but as an association issue it will have no place in the program. Coming out unscathed after a lively contest, the association now stands committed primarily to development of the state regardless of political issues. Reapportionment was heartily endorsed and the influence of the association pledged in its behalf, not as a dictator demanding an extra session but as an advocate appealing to the sense of fair play which the delegates believe exists in Southern Minnesota despite some of the bitter words uttered in the heat of the strife.

The officers of the association had absolute control over the delegates, and the real battle over reapportionment was fought out in committee and among the delegates out of session. A snappy fight for a mild form of demand on Governor Eberhart for an extra session was put up by C. R. Middleton of Baudette, who brought in a minority report favoring submitting to Governor Eberhart the consideration of an extra session. This was a concession, Mr. Middleton declared, as he favored making the demand direct and imperative, but in the interests of harmony receded that far from his position.

The new officers of the association are: President, Cyrus M. King, Deer River; secretary, W. R. Mackenzie, Bemidji; treasurer, Walter J. Smith, Eveleth; executive committee, William J. Brown, Warren; H. V. Eva, Duluth; M. N. Koll, Cass Lake.

The June meeting of the association will be held at International Falls.

GOLD IN ST. PAUL BLUFFS

Investors Secure Options on One Thousand Acres of Land.

Secret options approximating $1,000,000, on more than 1,000 acres of land in the outer West Seventh street and river boulevard districts at St. Paul and on the Minneapolis side of the river, have been taken in the last two months by three well known St. Paul men.

The motive behind the wholesale taking of options and the secrecy with which the refusal of the land has been acquired is a discovery of gold which Alfred Patterson, an investment broker, says has been made and in support of which he has statements from five assaying and consulting engineering firms, both in the East and in the West.

FOR RELIEF OF SETTLERS

Steenerson Introduces Bill to Extend Time of Entry.

A bill for the relief of settlers in Minnesota, Nebraska, the Dakotas and other states in the West was introduced in the house by Representative Steenerson of Minnesota. It provides that all persons who heretofore have filed declaratory statements and who under the present law are required to make entry by December, this year, shall be granted an extension of time to lapse May 15, 1912. The bill further provides that this extension shall not shorten the period of commutation or actual residence required by the homestead act.

DUMAS JURY SAYS NOT GUILTY

Acquitted of Arson Charge in Connection With Blackduck Fire.

After being out for three and one-half hours the jury at Brainerd in the case against Dr. Delbert F. Dumas, mayor of Cass Lake, accused of arson in connection with the burning of the Geralds store at Blackduck March 19, returned a verdict of not guilty.

The verdict was returned at 8:30 p. m. and the courtroom was packed. Dr. Dumas and his attorney, Jay Henry Long, were present, and after the announcement of the "not guilty" verdict by the foreman of the jury Dr. Dumas received many congratulations from friends.

STATE NEWS BITS

Minor Happenings of the Week Throughout Minnesota.

With $166,647,955.01 in total bank deposits at the close of business Dec. 5, Minneapolis has broken every former record and has mounted into a new place among financial centers. The increase in deposits is $14,158,943.62 since the last call for statements, which was made Sept. 1, and the total is $10,767,803.81 greater than a year ago, in the call of closest comparative date, that of Nov. 10, 1910.

The state, through George T. Simpson, attorney general, has brought suit in the Ramsey county district court against the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway company to recover $16,326.26, which it claims due on back gross earnings taxes. The tax is on certain sums which the state claims the railroad omitted from its gross earnings statements between 1903 and 1907.

The work which will be done by the United States government on the Mississippi river from St. Paul to Winona next year will cost about $155,000 and will include dredging the channel in some places and dam building, according to J. D. Du Shane, assistant United States engineer, in charge of government work on the river between St. Paul and Winona.

There will be no extra session of the Minnesota legislature to consider either reapportionment or the passage of a bill increasing the gross earnings tax of railroads. Governor Eberhart has definitely stated his position concerning an extra session in a letter to A. G. Wedge, Jr., of Bemidji.

Thirty employes in the car repair department of the Northwestern shops at Winona went on a strike, refusing to submit to a change from the hour basis to the piece schedule.

G. P. Arnstrom of Spring Valley won the National stock show grand championship prize at Chicago for a carlot of hogs and also took other prizes.

DEATHS OF THE WEEK.

Andrew Connors, aged eighty-one, just plain "Andy," long time friend of James J. Hill and Archbishop Ireland, is dead at Duluth. He reached Duluth in 1855, traveling from Green Bay in a rowboat with Father Lemieux. Then he went to St. Paul and is said to have lived in the first house built there on the site of the capitol. He was a steamboat man on the Mississippi when "Jim" Hill was working on the levee and the acquaintance formed then has been kept up ever since.

Fred D. Young, forty-nine years of age, one of the most prominent merchants of Minneapolis, is dead. Mr. Young was for many years identified with the old dry goods firm of R. S. Goodfellow & Co., prior to the organization of the Young-Quinlan company. He was a prominent member of the Masonic order and of the Elks.

Former Sheriff Samuel L. Davis of Le Sueur county is dead after a week's illness as a result of blood poisoning. He had recently moved to Le Sueur from his farm near Kasota, and it was while having an auction sale on his farm that he cut one hand slightly on a barbed wire fence.

William Huxley, aged eighty-one, dean of the locomotive engineers in Southern Minnesota, is dead at the home of his son at Faribault. Death was due to old age. Mr. Huxley reached Winona in 1865. He grew up with the Northwestern on the Minnesota division.

Rev. Dr. James Franklin Chaffee, eighty-four years old, founder and first pastor of the Hennepin Avenue Methodist church at Minneapolis, long a leader in Minnesota Methodism, is dead at Pasadena, Cal.

Henry J. Gjertsen, fifty years old, a prominent Minneapolis lawyer and former state senator, died suddenly from heart failure at his home in the Mill City.

Dr. Edward C. Mitchell, for years pastor of the Church of the New Jerusalem at St. Paul, is dead. He had been ill for some time.

CRIMES AND MISHAPS.

Gustav Bonderson, a switchman employed by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway at the South Minneapolis junction, stepped in front of a switch engine just as he was about to quit work and was fatally injured. He died an [illegible] at the city hospital.

Mrs. W[illegible] Barnum and Mrs. Richards lost their lives in a fire at Cass Lake [illegible] residence, one of the old land [illegible] of the town, being completely destroyed. Other inmates barely escaped with their lives.

Mrs. R[illegible] of Chisholm, who has been held at the St. Louis county jail under suspicion of having poisoned her husband, has been released from custody. The grand jury at Virginia failed to indict her.

Richard A. Cr[illegible], an employe of the Minneapolis General Electric company, was instantly killed when a falling telegraph pole struck him on the head. He was one of a crew of men raising the pole.

Lillie Fr[illegible], seventeen years old, of Winona, was found dead in bed at St. Paul. Coroner Jones believes that her death was caused by her ignorance of gas.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

TWO BAD ACCIDENTS

Nathais Ramstad, brother of Olaf Ramstad Seriously Hurt in Runaway Monday afternoon.

Train Frightens Farmer's Team near Soo Track—One Horse Sustained Broken Shoulder.

Monday afternoon, while Mrs. Ramstad and her brother-in-law, Nathais Ramstad, were taking a drive their team became frightened by a dog and ran away.

The team started up Fourth street very rapidly, turning about in the center of the block and starting back—they cut across the Central School yard, where the sleigh was overturned, throwing the occupants from their seats. Mr. Ramstad held to the lines and was dragged quite a distance, when he struck a tree, breaking his leg between the knee and hip. It is stated he struck with such force as to force the bone out through the flesh quite a distance. Mrs. Ramstad, though very badly shaken up, was not badly hurt.

Nathais Ramstad is on a visit here, his home being at Ada.

Mr. Swenson, who lives 7 miles west of this city and who was doing some business at the Tessum-Tomanson Elevator Monday, had his fine big team tied to a telephone pole near the Soo track, when they became frightened by a passing train and broke their halters and started down the road. At the rear of the Farmers' Elevator they ran into a telephone pole, one on each side. One of the horses fell and the other broke away and kept on going. The horse that fell sustained a broken shoulder and will no doubt be killed. Mr. Swenson purchased the fine team last spring for a large sum of money, and it will be quite a loss to him.

AN ELECTRIC LINE

There Is Still Hope for One to Be Built From Here to the East Country.

The "Eleven Towns" published at Erie makes the following statement:

The question of building an electric line from Thief River Falls to Neptune and Torgerson by way of Kratka, High Landing and Erie has again been brought up and a united effort is being made to raise a sufficient amount to secure a charter. With that and the encouragement and support we are entitled to from the people of Thief River Falls it will be an easy matter to have such a line in operation in time to handle the 1912 crop.

New Cigar Factory.

W. S. Campbell announced this week his intention of opening a new cigar factory in this city, and after the first of the year will have his brand of cigars on the market. The new factory will be located on First Street East in one of the A. C. Hanson buildings. Mr. Campbell has been employed with F. C. Niclai for the past eight months, and a week or so ago severed his connection with that firm.

Mr. Campbell is going to put a cigar of quality on the market and one that no doubt will take well with the popular cigar smokers of this city. He states that it is his intention to work up a good trade from the surrounding country. We predict success for the new factory.

"OLD RELIABLE"

The Pickets Made a Decided Hit at the Lyceum the First Half of the Week.

The first of the week, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the management of the Lyceum Theatre was successful in securing Dave and Alice Picket, the Old Reliable comedians.

The Pickets are well acquainted here, having shown in this city during years past and they have always proved a success and a "sure cure for the blues." The theatre was crowded to its utmost capacity and there was scarcely standing room. "A Rehearsal in Florida," the comedy sketch which they put on, is first class and it received the hearty applause of the crowded house.

Old Dave, as he is known, has an established reputation as a lightning sketch artist. He imitates very successfully the Jew, Swede, Dutch, Irish and Italian; also introduced clog dancing, buck and wing dancing and clog waltzing, all of which made a decided hit with patrons of the popular play house.

If you are feeling blue and have a chance to see Dave Picket, we suggest that you do so, as he is a sure cure for the disease; his comedy makes you laugh loud and hearty.

Telephone Line Sold.

Charles Loring and F. C. Bracelin went to Roseau Monday where the McMahan telephone lines were sold under foreclosure of a $10,000 mortgage held by the Northwestern Telephone Co., proceedings under which started some time ago. The McMahan line runs from Thief River Falls to Roseau via Greenbush, Stephen to Greenbush and from Stephen north through Ilrorson.—Crookston Times.

DEAL WAS CLOSED

J. H. Jacobson Sells His Interest in Well Known Firm of Olson and Jacobson.

Harry Prichard Buys Mr. Jacobson's Interest—Olson & Prichard the New Firm.

Last week a deal was closed whereby H. R. Prichard purchased J. H. Jacobson's interest in the well-known firm of Olson & Jacobson, implement dealers, located on 208 Horace Avenue North. Mr. Olson is an old member of the machine firm and is very well known by the people of this locality and needs no introduction to his patrons.

As for H. R. Prichard, he is one of Thief River's prominent young men, having lived in this city for a number of years previous to his moving to Washington, where he lived for two or three years, returning to this city a month or two ago. We can safely state that he is a worthy partner for Mr. Olson. Harry is a son of W. W. Prichard, Sr., who is interested in the First National Bank of this city and also has lumber interests in the state of Washington.

We are also informed that the site on which the firm has its implement building was also sold, the Prichard-Stone Co. being the purchasers, and it is said that in the near future a large lumber yard will be built. A great deal of the lumber kept in stock will be received from the state of Washington, where Mr. Prichard has a large interest in a lumber mill.

"Stub" Takes a Bride.

The following item from the Crookston Times of Tuesday will be news to many Fosston friends of the groom, a brother of O. A. Brager of the First National Bank and who made Fosston his home at one time, filling the position of assistant postmaster and also that of chief booster on the local base-ball team:

"A wedding which will be of interest to friends in this city as well as a great surprise is that of A. G. Brager, of Grand Forks, formerly of this city, who was married to Mrs. Cecil M. Rose, of Fargo, October 9. Mrs. Rose had been living in Fargo until the evening of her marriage, when she left for Grand Forks, and the couple were married by Rev. F. M. McCoy at the parsonage. Mrs. Brager has been the assistant secretary of the Wesley College Conservatory until a short time ago she resigned her position and is now bookkeeper and stenographer for the W. H. Kelsey Land Co. Mr. Brager is connected with the Park, Grant and Morris wholesale house."—Thirteen Towns.

This no doubt will be a great surprise to the many friends of the contracting parties, as they formerly resided in this city; "Stub" with his brother, O. A. Brager, was in the real estate business here a number of years ago, and has a great many friends who wish him all the happiness of wedded life.

The bride is very well known here and has a large circle of friends who will join in wishing her all the good things of life. Their numerous friends in this city extend heartiest congratulations to Mr and Mrs. Berger.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Durant left Saturday night for the Twin Cities and Milwaukee, Wis., where they will spend the holidays.

BRAKEMAN KILLED

A. G. Braton, a Young Brakeman on the Soo Line, Accidentally Killed at Erskine.

Falls Under Train and Several Cars Pass Over His Body Before He Is Discovered.

Last Thursday morning, Dec. 14th, A. G. Braton, a young Soo Line brakeman, was instantly killed at Erskine. No one seems to know just how the accident occurred, but it is supposed that in some manner he slipped and fell from a box car. He was very badly mangled, a large part of his skull being stove in, left arm being twisted in such a way that it was almost off, and both of his legs were about off, only small pieces of flesh holding them. The remains were brought to this city not long after the accident happened, where they will be put in shape for shipment.

Braton was a young man about 22 years of age and has worked out of this city only about two weeks, being formerly employed by the Soo working out of Superior. His home is at Superior, Wis., where he has a mother, a sister and a brother. He was not a member of the Order of Trainmen, as far as we can learn.

The remains were taken care of by the Trainmen of this city. They were taken to his home at Superior on the 7:15 train Saturday morning, where the funeral services will be held. The friends of the bereaved parents extend their sympathy.

How to Treat Your Wife.

Here are rules laid down for a husband by Judge Bode in court at Cincinnati, from the Bemidji Daily Pioneer; we believe that if the rules are followed we will all have ideal wives:

"You must not swear at your wife.

"You must not hit her.

"You must not abuse her by voice.

"You must give her a full share of your wages for the support of the family.

"You must not give her all your money on Saturday night and then get it back during the week.

"You must not doubt the word of your wife when she says she has no money.

"You must not take money from her forcibly.

"The judge's rules are so good that we have a sneaking suspicion that he is a bachelor."

LOCAL ITEMS.

Dr. H. Grundy and family left this city yesterday for their future home at Toronto, Canada.

Invitations are out announcing the first annual ball given by the Knights of Pythias lodge No. 172, to be given in the Auditorium on Monday, January 1st, 1912. This is expected to be one of the biggest affairs of the year, and nothing is being left undone to make it the greatest success of the season.

Nelius Nelson, Middle River's jeweler, has been gone for several days. We understand he went to Thief River Falls to work until after Christmas.—Middle River Pioneer.

Miss Regina Nelson, who has been engaged in nursing in Thief River Falls for over a month, returned to Middle River last Friday for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Mabey are expecting Mr. Mabey's father and mother from Lake City to make an extended visit.

PROSPECTS SPLENDID

Thief River Falls to Take a Great Start in the Building Line in the Spring.

Several Large New Buildings Will Be Started in the Early Spring of 1912.

Pennington County, the prosperous county of northern Minnesota, will witness numerous changes during the spring and summer of 1912. The Pennington Hotel Company, which has been duly organized, is progressing in good shape and a large number of the shares of stock have already been disposed of at $10.00 per share. Every person who feels able to take shares in this company is investing his money in a good paying proposition.

An exchange says: "At a meeting of the Co-Operative Building promoters here it was reported that stock to the amount of $12,000 had been subscribed by local parties for the purpose of erecting a three-story brick block for the housing of the stock of the Farmers' Co Operative store.

"The following officers were elected: President, Peter Engelstad; vice president, J. O. Thorstad; secretary, J. P. Curtis; treasurer, C. L. Hanson.

"The corporation will require that stock to the amount of at least $30,000 be subscribed for the construction of the block, which will be erected on the west fifty feet on Third street just in the rear of the O-n Mercantile company store, adjoining the new $50,000 hotel which Julien Provencher is erecting on Third street. The ground was purchased a few weeks ago by Messrs. Engelstad and Knutson, and as soon as the necessary stock is subscribed the building will be started. Next spring this city will witness the greatest building boom it has ever experienced. There are at least four expensive blocks planned for, not to mention at least a large number of residences and possibly a third trunk line of railway. The Soo road has also promised to replace the present scant excuse for a depot with one in keeping with the business enjoyed by that road in this city."

A SILO CONTROVERSY.

Silo manufacturers as well as users are much interested in a controversy which has been going on for some months past growing out of the claims of some of the manufacturers of round wooden silos that many silos now being erected involve an infringement of the former's patent rights. An attack has been directed with particular vigor against those who have built what is known as the Iowa silo, a structure of clay hollow blocks re-enforced with cement and steel inlaid girders. But it is also contended that no American farmer can build a round wooden silo of any type without paying tribute to the manufacturers referred to. Professor King and his helpers at the Iowa station, who designed the Iowa silo and dedicated it to the farmers of the country, contend that the features on which exclusive patent right is claimed—continuous door, reinforced door jambs, with braces and devices for holding the doors in place—are not new, but were used in round wooden silos prior to the date of said patents, June, 1889. With a view to proving his contention Mr. King has offered a reward of $50 for the first information sent him about a silo or silos using any of the above features prior to the time mentioned. In taking this course he is not seeking to fight any one, but simply desires to protect the farmers of the country in what he considers is their right in the matter of building silos. If any reader of these notes can send the information desired he will be rendering a service to his fellow farmers.

THE SUGAR SITUATION.

Anticipating action unfavorable to their interests at the coming session of congress, the beet sugar producers passed a resolution at a meeting held the other day pledging the use of every influence at their command to prevent a reduction in the tariff on both raw and refined sugar. This is a very natural course and is prompted by self interest. Prompted also by self interest, a good many consumers have been letting their congressmen know in no uncertain terms that they want relief from the insufferable burden which eight cent sugar has imposed upon them. This also is natural, as any fair minded person will admit. The writer of these notes lays no claim to wisdom touching tariff schedules, but believes there is a way out which will not only not wreck the beet sugar business, but nevertheless will reduce the cost of sugar to the consumer. This is removing the tariff from imported sugar of all grades and paying to the producers of home grown sugar instead a bounty equal to the present tax, which will afford them the same protection as at present, yet the bulk of the sugar consumed will be materially reduced in price as a result of a removal of the

When the horse gets out of condition it is a pretty good plan to make a thorough examination of the teeth or have the same done by a good veterinarian. In a majority of cases the low tone will be found due not to liver complaint or a pessimistic view of life, but merely to inability to get the teeth squarely together on the food masticated. If portions of the teeth project and prevent proper chewing, these points should be filed out.

The small boy, as well as the larger boy, will be saved a good deal of discomfort if he will remember that wiping the hands perfectly dry after each washing will tend to prevent chapped hands. If the hands are already chapped even greater care should be taken to wipe them dry. One of the best ointments to heal them is made by mixing about three or four teaspoonfuls of glycerin in two ounces of rosewater. This should be applied at night and should be put on just after the hands are washed and still moist, then rubbed in over the stove or register until the hands are perfectly dry.

As the stormy and cold winter weather comes on those farmers living in the higher latitudes may perform a real service for themselves by taking some pains to provide food and shelter for the quail and pheasants that during the summer and fall may have been frequenting the brush lots and roadsides near their premises. Especially is this true of the Hungarian and one or two other types of imported game birds which have been recently introduced and have not as yet adjusted themselves to the severer weather conditions. Simply from the standpoint of what these birds will do next season in the way of bug and insect destruction will more than pay for the time and expense of protecting them.

Cabbages require a dry and cool place for storage, and this is why they spoil so soon when left on the floor of the average cellar. Market gardeners and farmers who raise this vegetable in large quantities usually store them out of doors in the following manner: After pulling, the roots are removed, but as many of the outer leaves left on as possible. A well drained piece of land is then selected and the cabbages placed in a long row, the tier nearest the ground three heads wide, the next two and the last one. The conical pile is then covered with three or four inches of coarse hay or straw; then a couple of furrows are turned with a plow toward the cabbages on both sides. Earth is then shoveled over the pile so as to give a covering seven or eight inches deep. Cabbages stored carefully in this manner will keep well until spring.

On days when it is freezing out of doors and water cannot be used to advantage in washing windows a very fair job can be done with kerosene, which can be applied with a small rag and the window rubbed dry with a clean, dry cloth.

A game bird of western Montana that is much appreciated is the mountain grouse that full grown is nearly as large as a Barred Rock pullet. A further characteristic is that the meat of the bird is mostly white instead of dark, as is the case with a majority of game birds.

Not so very long ago the practice was followed by many dairymen of moistening the ground grain ration for the cows. Today it is generally recognized that feeding such ration dry not only keeps the cows from bolting it, but before they can swallow it they must chew the feed thoroughly and mix it with saliva.

The vital energy used by dairy cows or steers as tank heaters in warming ice cold water that they drink means a corresponding decrease in the amount of milk which they will produce or flesh which they will put on. It follows from this that it is usually cheaper to take the chill from the water in some other way.

The size or bore of many a citizen is often indicated by his attitude toward the snow that falls on the walks bordering his place. If he sweeps or shovels his own walk promptly he does his duty and is entitled to commendation; if he does this and helps out his neighbor, who is unable to do the work, he ranks still higher as a neighbor and citizen.

Where one has a considerable number of young fruit trees to protect from rabbits wood veneer protectors are very satisfactory. These are 10 by 20 inches in size and can be got f. o. b. shipping point for about 50 cents a hundred or $4.50 per thousand. These veneers are very pliable and can easily be curved about the young tree. If carefully handled and properly stored during the summer season they should last for years.

Writers Whose Works Are Unread.

With care and precision the journal clerks of the senate prepare the daily chronicle of the senate's doings. They are proud of their achievements, and justly so. It is a cause of sore disappointment to the makers of that journal when some thoughtless senator, eager for the morning's business, moves to suspend further reading.

Other clerks around the desk enjoy the joke and when the proceeding is concluded repeat in an undertone from man to man:

"Another insult."—Washington Post.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

[This matter must not be reprinted without special permission.]

Cull prunes no longer plebeian fare, for they are retailing at 20 cents a pound. It will be entirely proper for milady to serve them with angel's food and accessories of cut glass, silver and damask.

One of the most valuable carloads of timothy seed ever shipped was received the other day by an Illinois seed house, being valued at $7,000. The exceptionally high price of the seed is directly responsible for the great value of the shipment.

In view of the number of folks that get caught on the great variety of get-rich-quick schemes, whose seductiveness lies in the fact that outlandish returns are promised on the money invested, it must be conceded that a sucker is born every minute and some minutes twins.

Not in twenty years has the writer seen the cornfields so free from weeds as this fall. This seems to be due to two unusually dry summers and to the necessity which every corn raiser has been under of giving the growing crop enough tillage to conserve the little moisture that the soil contained.

That type of farming is to be strongly recommended—and this applies with especial force in all sections where the soil has been robbed for years past—where the maximum amount of homemade manures are produced and utilized on each farm. It is for this reason that dairying and the raising and selling of cattle, hogs and sheep have so much to commend them as types of agriculture.

Professor Dyche, fish and game warden of Missouri, recommends shooting roman candles into the trees where blackbirds are wont to roost as an effective means of driving them away. The job is most effectively done just as they are gathering to roost and before it gets dark. He states that this roman candle stunt, repeated about three nights in succession, will drive the birds away for good.

The rabbits that have made their homes on the islands along the Mississippi river during the past two years have been having a rough time of it since the rainy weather set in in the upper watershed of the big valley. Owing to the low stage of water the rabbits occupied these islands and multiplied there prodigiously unmolested. The high water drove them to the highest points of the many islands, where they have been killed or drowned by thousands.

The shipment to America within the past few months of tons and tons of Chinese cues for the manufacture of switches, rats and sundry other creations is made plain in the light of the present rebellion. It appears that a cueless crown is the mark of the new movement and that as new territory is invaded the conquered are given the opportunity of parting with their rattails or their heads, and of course they yield to the minor operation.

W. S. Keeline of Council Bluffs, Ia., president of the National Horticultural association, recently sold the product of his fifty-three acre orchard for $12,000. The price named was for the crop on the trees. Two dollars and forty-five cents was paid for Jonathan and Grimes Golden, $1.90 for Genitan and $1.90 for Ben Davis and varieties of equal grade. On the above basis the orchard tract gave a revenue of $226 per acre, which seems to demonstrate quite conclusively that scientific fruit growing pays.

More than 58,000 people made the trip to South Dakota and registered for the big government land drawing. A casual glance at the list of winners shows that virtually all reside in adjoining or nearby states. This seems to verify a claim made in an article in this department a short time ago—namely, that the method of registering and allotting these lands practically prohibited the people most in need of free land from taking or having any part whatever in the disbursement. It is conceded that the system ought to be overhauled.

A farmer living near Powhattan, Kan., has lately been quarantined for glanders, which it is evident he contracted as a result of caring for several of his horses that were afflicted with the disease last winter. The first symptom of the disease noticed in the case of the owner of the horses was what was at first thought to be a severe attack of catarrh. However, the disease spread to his lungs, and the man is now considered beyond medical aid. The instance suggests the exercise of great caution in the care of all diseased animals.

THE COMFORT OF A FURNACE.

Some of you folks that have money in the bank or what comes to the same thing—grain in the crib or fat steers in the feed lot—and have been heating your houses with all the way from two to half a dozen stoves would better look up the matter of installing a heating plant. It will not only mean an economy of fuel, but a maximum of comfort for all members of the family, coupled with a minimum of dirt and ashes for the women to clean up. While hot water systems are in some ways the most satisfactory from the standpoint of evenness of heat and economy of operation when once installed, they are also the most expensive. It is further quite necessary that the houses in which the water system is installed should be frostproof from cellar to garret. If this heating system or the steam heating type does not seem advisable the hot air system should be installed, and very satisfactory outfits can be got at from $85 to $150. The chief point in favor of the hot air plant lies in the fact that all parts of all rooms which are equipped with registers will be evenly heated. There is no "frozen on one side, roasted on the other side" business about it. If one has been subjected to these extremes for a generation or more he will appreciate the comfort of a furnace heating plant.

WINTER BLOOM.

No flowers suitable for indoor culture give such a return in both beauty and fragrance of bloom as do hyacinths and narcissuses. Varieties are now obtainable that for color and thriftiness of bloom are remarkable. While one may use a more elaborate pot, a common tin tomato can will serve the purpose unless one wishes to have a bank or bed of flowers, in which case a larger receptacle will be necessary. The pots should be filled with light sandy soil and the bulbs set with the crown just below the surface, the soil being well firmed around them. The pots should then be given a thorough watering and covered with earth in the cellar to the depth of three or four inches above the bulbs. If they show a tendency to dry out they should be given another watering. In from four to six weeks the bulbs will start to grow, when they should be removed to quarters where there will be plenty of light, yet where it will be cool. Both of the plants mentioned will produce more perfect blossoms if they are not subjected to direct sunshine at all. The paper white narcissus has a somewhat different habit and may be put in vessels containing water and small stones at once.

A QUESTION OF PROTECTION.

That the health and longevity of many of the less hardy types of apple trees are largely dependent upon the way they are protected has been pretty plainly demonstrated in the case of a Fameuse tree from which the writer picked the fruit a few days ago. The tree in question stands on the north side and about five feet from a shed which effectively protects its trunk and lower limbs from the winter sun. Not only has the tree made a prodigious growth, but it is remarkably thrifty and sound. Twenty feet to the north of it, but exposed to the sun, is another tree of the same variety which has been badly hit with sun scald and is already sick unto death. We have watched these two trees for a number of years and are convinced that, while some other factors may have played a part, the difference in their condition today is due to the protection they have had. It is this principle that makes many orchardists in northern states favor the rather close planting of apple trees in rows north and south. This serves in a measure to give the protection mentioned.

PRUNING AND BLIGHT.

In fruit growing sections where the pear blight is prevalent it is well for the orchardist to reduce his pruning work during the winter and spring to a minimum, as cutting at these times greatly augments wood growth. This means a greatly increased number of new shoots, whose tender tips are especially liable to infection by the blight germs from the feet of ants or other insects that happen to alight on them. More than this, the sap moves very rapidly in this young growth, which increases the chance of an infection of the large limbs or trunk on which the shoots are growing. Moderate pruning may be done during July and early August, and this will not only not induce the growth of these shoots, but will cause the tree to produce fruit buds for the following year. The writer had some experience along this line not long ago and knows whereof he speaks.

THE WORTH OF COMMON TOIL.

While it is entirely proper for parents to hold before their children the "room at the top" idea as affecting the life pursuits they are to follow, it is sensible to lay stress also on both the worth and dignity of the service of those who do the commoner though just as necessary work of life—who till the soil, lay sewers and water mains, hew wood and dig coal, provide shelter, food and clothing and make the thousand and one other articles that add to the comfort and satisfaction of living. These fellows may wear rougher clothing and get more dirt and callouses on their hands, but the service they render to their fellows is as noble as that of preacher, teacher or professional man.

F. E. Trigg

Serving His Country.

A certain public office has been the object of much satire because of the passive nature of the incumbent's duties—except when he is called by tragic occurrence into the thick of action. So very negative, indeed, is the work of this public servant that he sometimes serves his country most efficiently by being absent, as appears in this extract from Moses Coit Tyler's journal, written in Washington years ago:

"President Grant never starts a conversation, but when it is started he often says a neat thing. Last year there was an excursion down the Potomac. He was on board, with his cabinet and a quorum of both houses.

"'Mr. President,' said Mrs. Judd, who sat near him, 'it would be a pretty bad thing to have a great accident happen to this party. Nearly the whole government would be destroyed.'

"'Yes, Mrs. Judd,' assented the president, 'but you observe that the vice president has very prudently stayed at home.'"

Talking Canaries.

Talking canaries are a great rarity, but several authenticated instances are on record. At Norwood, England, in 1858 a lady had a canary bird which began by repeating a word which its mistress had often used to it—"Kissie, kissie"—and by following the word up by an imitation of the sound of a kiss. After a time the bird repeated other words until it had a large vocabulary of phrases, one of which consisted of five words. Again, in 1863, a talking canary was exhibited in Bath, with a vocabulary such as is generally taught to parrots, and another talking canary was exhibited for a few weeks in this country, but it unfortunately caught cold and died. In Germany and the Tyrol canaries are taught to imitate the notes of other birds and whistle simple tunes, and the words which it imitates may be regarded as a mere development or variant of its musical notes.

The Lerot and the Snake.

Every one has heard of the remarkable combats of the Indian mongoose with venomous snakes, in which little rikki-tikki-tavi comes off victor. The fact that the mongoose invariably survives has led to the suggestion that it is immune to snake poison. Other animals said to be immune are the pig and the hedgehog. The experiments of British naturalists show that an animal of the dormouse family must be added to the list of the immune. This animal is known as the lerot and is said to fight fiercely with vipers. Large doses of viper's poison were injected into one lerot, from which injection no ill effects followed. On one occasion a lerot was bitten badly in the eye by a viper, and no signs of poisoning occurred. There can, it is thought, be no doubt that the lerot is immune to snake poison.

Gold Beaters' Skin.

A cheap substitute is much desired for goldbeaters' skin, which is prepared from the outside membrane of the large intestine of the ox. It is said that goldbeaters first tried paper for inclosing the metal, and mulberry fiber paper is still used in China and Japan, but animal parchment has been mostly employed for two or three centuries at least. While a thinner leaf can be beaten out between paper parchment sheets, it is damaged by adhesion. A special German paper is coated with isinglass or albumen, and paper parchment of some kind is much used in the first stages, but goldbeaters finish their product between goldbeaters' skins, still pounding an ounce of gold into 200 square inches of leaf.—New York Tribune.

Swayed by a Bell's Tones.

The Church of St. Nicaise, in the city of Rheims, is surrounded with pillars. When a certain bell in the tower is rung the top of one pillar always sways to the extent of seven inches on each side, although the base is immovable, and the stones are so firmly cemented as to seem like a solid piece of masonry. Notwithstanding that each of the four bells is about the same distance from the trembling pillar none of the others has the slightest effect on it.

An Odd Bequest.

The following is one of the oddest bequests ever recorded in a last testament. It appeared in the will of a Bristol mariner proved in 1795. The old gentleman ordered his executors to "pay out of the first moneys collected, to my beloved wife, if living, one shilling, which I have given as a token of my love, that she may buy hazelnuts, as I know that she is better pleased with cracking them than she is with mending the holes in her stockings."

Chirography.

"Ethelinda writes a very peculiar hand," said Maude.

"Yes," replied Maymie. "It's just a lot of straight lines and angles. When you read it you have to guess at the spelling, the same as she does."—Washington Star.

An Explanation.

"Your nephew is a college graduate, isn't he?"

"Yes," confessed honest Farmer Hornbeak, "but in justice to the college I'll own up that he had no sense beforehand."—Woman's Home Companion.

The Giraffe's Neck.

"Why does the giraffe have such a long neck?" asks the teacher.

"Because its head is so far away from its body," hopefully answers the boy.—New York Press.

Many a fool man casts a shadow on his life by standing in his own light.

Feats of Archery.

In the days when the buffalo was found in vast herds on the western plains there were Indians who, while riding at a gallop, could send an arrow through a buffalo's body. Remarkable as this archery was, yet it did not equal that reached by the archers of ancient times. It is of record that the MacRaes of Gairlock, Scotland, were such skillful archers that they could hit a man at the distance of 500 yards. In 1794 the Turkish ambassador at London shot an arrow, in a field near that capital, 415 yards against the wind and 482 yards with the wind. The secretary of the ambassador, on hearing the expressions of surprise from the English gentlemen present, said the sultan had shot 500 yards. This was the greatest performance of modern days, but a pillar, standing on a plain near Constantinople, recorded shots ranging up to 800 yards. Sir Robert Ainslie, British ambassador to the sublime port, records that in 1798 he was present when the sultan shot an arrow 972 yards.—New York Press.

Mark Twain's German Coffee.

German coffee must have given Mark Twain a pain, judging from the following recipe which he gave for its concoction:

Take a barrel of water and bring it to a boil; rub a chicory berry against a coffee berry, then convey the former into the water. Continue the boiling and evaporation until the intensity of the flavor and aroma of the coffee and chicory have been diminished to a proper degree; then set aside to cool. Now unharness the remains of a once cow from the plow, insert them in a hydraulic press, and, when you shall have acquired a teaspoonful of that pale blue juice which a German superstition regards as milk, modify the malignity of its strength in a bucket of tepid water and bring up the breakfast. Mix the beverage in a cold cup, partake with moderation, and keep a wet rag around your head to guard against over excitement.

Clever Crows.

In a garden a dog was eating a piece of meat in the presence of four covetous crows. They evidently said a great deal to one another on the subject, and now and then one of them tried to pull the meat away from the dog, which he naturally resented. At last a big, strong crow succeeded in tearing off a piece, with which he returned to the tree where the others congregated. A long powwow now ensued, which ended in all four crows flying down to the dog, the leading crow dexterously dropping the small piece of meat within reach of his mouth. The dog immediately snapped at it, unwisely letting go the big piece, which was seized by two crows and carried to the tree, where it was devoured with much fluttering and hilarity, while the cheated dog walked away with every appearance of discomfiture.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

A Notorious English Spendthrift.

Among the customers at Long's, the famous hotel in Bond street, was the last Marquis of Hastings, the most notorious of mid-Victorian spendthrifts. Hastings, according to one who knew him well, "gambled so that not even the Bank of England, backed by the Rothschilds, with the mines of the Transvaal as additional supports, could have withstood the strain."

Yet even he protested at Long's when charged 2s. 6d. for a whisky and soda. The proprietor declared that this had always been the charge. "About time it was altered, then," retorted the marquis. Just before his death Hastings remarked to a friend: "I've made a pretty hash of my life. About all the good I've ever done was to bring down the price of a whisky and soda at Long's."—London Express.

Henley and Stevenson.

W. E. Henley once met Robert Louis Stevenson and found his friend distressed because he was not a Voltaire or a Dumas, though he had an equipment which ought to have made him their peer. Stevenson put his "failure" down to the weakness of his lungs. "Perhaps you are right, Louis," said Henley. "I've always felt that if I had not been a blessed cripple I could have taken the earth in my hand and hurled it into the sun."

A Suspicion.

"I declare," said Mrs. Cumrox after making a round of calls, "all these butlers must have umpired baseball games."

"Impolite?"

"We have two."

"I guess that gives you a shade the best of it."—Washington Herald.

Just before Christmas father is as popular as he can be!. Why?

The extra session which was announced in our columns last week was "knocked in the head." It's all over now.

The Aitkin man who put $2,565 in bills under his floor, where it was chewed up by mice, will probably not be able to recover from the government, as the paper is practically destroyed. There is only one safe place for money and that is in a solvent bank. There is a thousand times more danger in hoarding money at home than in placing it in a good bank.—Norman County Index.

Notice - Christmas Mail.

For the information of the patrons of this office who have their mail delivered by the city carriers, I wish to state that there will be no delivery on Christmas Day. For their convenience and to give relief to the congested state of the mail at this time, I have arranged to have the carrier's window open from 9 to 10 a. m., Dec. 21 and 25, so those who have their mail delivered may have the opportunity to call at the postoffice for their mail if they so desire.

CLUB CIGAR STORE

To be opened in the Masonic building in this city on SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23rd. A large line of cigars, tobaccos, smoking articles and candies.

Special sized boxes of cigars for Christmas gifts A pool and billiard room will be run in connection.

Maurice Hansen, Prop.
Main Street Thief River Falls, Minn.

BUYS PROPERTY

A. Joe Giller Becomes Owner of Property on LaBree Avenue and on Third St. East.

Last week a deal was closed whereby A. Joe Giller became owner of the store building which he has been occupying for some time on LaBree Avenue. Mr. Giller made the purchase from O. H. Nelson, who formerly conducted a confectionery business in the building.

Monday of this week Mr. Giller purchased from Dr. Grundy two buildings on Third Street East, the buildings now being occupied by Iver Vallacher, merchant tailor, and Albert Huseth, the barber. Considerations on the O. H Nelson property were $1,000, and on the Grundy property $5,300. It very plainly shows that Mr. Giller sees a bright future before him and knows that in a year or more this town will be one of the best and most prosperous towns in the Northwest.

Club Cigar Store.

A fine cigar store, with a pool room in connection, will be opened and ready for business in the Masonic building on Main Street, Saturday, Dec. 23. The proprietor, Maurice Hansen, is conducting a similar business at Fargo, N. D., and enjoys the patronage of the high class trade of that city. The business here will be directed under the management of Clarence Tronence.

Mr. Hansen will install four pool tables and one billiard table at present, and will also carry in stock cigars, tobacco, pipes and a line of confectionery. Mr. Hansen has one of the largest cigar stores in Fargo and states that he carries over 700 different brands of cigars, and also does a lot of jobbing in that line. He also states that his intention is to run a first class place and that he figured on securing a good share of the commercial travelers' trade. The name of the place will be the "Club Cigar Store." The building is being put in first class shape and a fine line of fixtures is now being installed. If the place can possibly be put in shape by Saturday, (which is expected that it will) December 23rd will be the opening night.

Mr. Hansen is another of the many new business men who see a good future for this city and undoubtedly will profit by locating here. Read his ad in our columns this week.

Boosters' Meeting.

The Kittson County Development Association meeting held at Karlstad was well attended by a large number of farmers and boosters who listened very attentively to the many speakers. Two speakers from Thief River Falls were at the meeting, D. P. O'Neill and O. A Naplin. An exchange gives the following statement:

"D. P. O'Neill of Thief River Falls spoke at length on the relation of the last Legislature to the Red river valley. His talk was well received. He gave the Legislature credit for honestly attempting to do something for this district.

"Prof. Hilsborrow of the Northwest Agricultural college at Crookston had for his subject "Soil Fertility." "Our School System" was the topic assigned to O. A. Naplin of Thief River Falls. "Bring the Advantages of the Best schools home to the people," "Give the State university less and our rural schools more appropriations," were among his suggestions.

MC INTOSH WINS

The Basket Ball Game Between McIntosh and the Locals Won by Visitors.

Last Saturday the McIntosh High basket ball team came up and played the local high school a good game and carried away the laurels. The game was a good fast contest, both teams playing a fast game; they played the regulation halves of 20 minutes each, the score in the first half being 15 to 8 in favor of the visitors. The second half was 9 to 7 in favor of the locals, the final being 17 to 22 in favor of the McIntosh boys.

Had the local boys been able to shoot baskets, they would no doubt have defeated the visitors, as there were 19 fouls called on McIntosh and 14 on the local boys. They lined up as follows:

Thief River Falls		MacIntosh
Carter	forward	Keye
Adolph	forward	Bagstad
Fossum	center	Jenson
Brude	guard	Benson
Iverson	guard	Dahlen

The next game will probably be played at Ada, Minn., Dec. 23rd.

Another Match.

Another wrestling match has been arranged for by the management of the Lyceum to be held tomorrow evening, Dec. 22nd, at 9:30 o'clock, between William Kline and Ludwig Monson; Kline is our local man, who defeated Frank Swanson two weeks ago.

Monson of Holt, Minn., has the reputation of being a good man on the mat and very active, his weight is 170 pounds. Kline has Monson cheated on weight by 10 pounds, but it is said that the matter of the difference in the weight will not make much difference in the pulling off of a good fast match.

We are informed that both men have been training for this contest, and no doubt will be a very good exhibition of wrestling. The management is arranging for some fast preliminary boxing contests for the same evening.

We advise all enthusiasts to take in this exhibition, as it will be one of the fastest ever put before the public. Remember, Friday night, at 9:30, Dec. 22nd.

Dropped Dead.

Morris Fiterman, a member of the firm of Fiterman & Stillman, was stricken with heart failure about 5:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Fiterman was working about the store in his usual way and did not appear to be in bad health, when he suddenly dropped to the floor. Two children who were in the store at the time ran up stairs and told his wife that Mr. Fiterman was lying on the floor, and she immediately came down. He was still breathing, but unable to say anything, death being almost instantaneous.

Morris Fiterman was 32 years of age and came to this country when but a boy 14 years of age; he was born in the small town of Collorash, Russia, in the year 1879. He had lived in the United States for 18 years, making the city of Minneapolis his home, until three years ago, when he came to this city and established a business.

He leaves to mourn his loss a father, four brothers and one sister. Three of the brothers with their father live in Minneapolis and the other brother conducts a clothing store on Main street in this city. The remains were taken to Minneapolis, where the funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Lang Green House requests all those who wish flowers for Christmas to send their orders in early.

The Commercial Normal basket ball team will play the Plummer team at the high school gymnasium Friday evening of this week. Both teams are fast and the best game of the year is expected.

Hides Tanned....

......INTO......

Robes, Coats, Oak Tanned Harness Leather and Raw Hide Lace-Leather.

Send us a cattle hide or a horse hide and we will tan and make it into a robe or coat for you within a month from the time we receive it, we also tan hides into leather 5 months from the time we receive the hide. We guarantee our tanning to be the best that can be done and if our tanning is not to your entire satisfaction we will pay you for the hide and refund your money you paid us for tanning them. We charge $8.50 for tanning and lining the largest cattle hide or horse hide into a robe and charge 20c a pound for tanning hides into leather, that is, we weigh the leather after we have tanned and finished it and charge you 20c a pound for what leather we have made from the hide you sent to us. We have made arrangements with Kruse Bros., of Thief River Falls, to act as our agents there and if you have some hides which you want tanned, you can leave them with Kruse Bros., (Hide & Fur Dealers) and they will send them to us, for you.

We have been in the tanning business at Crookston for more than 17 years and have a large and well equiped tannery to do the work in, so when you want hides tanned be sure and send for our free price list and shipping tags or call at Kruse Bros., and they will give you all the information you may want, in regard to tanning hides.

Remember that we guarantee all our tanning and by sending your hides to us, you can feel sure that you will get a first class job done and get the same hide back from us, and it will not take longer than a month before you have a nice warm robe or coat out of the hide you sent.

INTERNATIONAL IN CHARACTER

Stockholm Electrical Company Does Business in Remote Sections of World—Largest Salmon Fishway in Norway Recently Completed—Transatlantic Liner Reaches Copenhagen After Perilous Voyage.

SWEDEN.

The L. M. Ericsson Electrical company of Stockholm is becoming more and more international in its character and is rapidly forging to the front as one of the world's foremost electrical companies. Recent orders from South Africa give them a foothold in that country and will assure them success in this faraway portion of the world. The new contracts are for two complete telephone systems. One is for Capetown and is to be a system for 4,000 subscribers. The other is for Pretoria and will be for 2,500 subscribers. The company has already sent their construction manager to the place and work will be pushed with vigor at once.

The Swedish match industry is expanding. Recent reports from Stockholm state that plans are at present under way for establishing the industry in China and that a match factory will soon be built in Peking. An experienced match manufacturer will be placed at the head of the Chinese factory and there will be little trouble in procuring the necessary help. The idea will be to manufacture a cheaper grade of matches, which can be sold for a comparatively nominal price to the poorer classes of people in the great empire.

A splendid idea is contained in the late circular sent out to the school girls of Sweden by the Red Cross society, in which the latter organization requests that each school girl in the country be assigned to sew at least one piece of over or underwear for use in the hospitals of the Red Cross society. The committee figures that this will appeal to the patriotism of Swedish girls and the plan has been well received in many parts of the country.

Even the czar of Russia is interesting himself in the Olympian games to be held in Stockholm next summer. He has sent a handsome prize in silver for the games. The gift is in the form of a jardiniere, of oxidized silver, engraved to represent a Viking ship, with a group of Vikings aboard ready for battle. The piece is about twenty-five inches high and is a fine sample of the Russian goldsmiths' art.

The Salvation Army of Stockholm has established a so called Alcoholist Home—something similar to America's liquor cures—on the island of Kuron, in Malaren. The intention is to engage the patients in gardening and agriculture on a small scale during the summer months and during the winter months they are to busy themselves with "sloyd," etc. The Salvation Army has already invested something like 55,000 crowns in buildings, etc.

The month of October of this year showed a slight decrease in Swedish emigration, there being 1,088 persons who emigrated to foreign ports, as against 1,511 last year. Since the beginning of the current year 12,549 persons have emigrated from Sweden to foreign ports. Last year during the same period there were 13,745.

The report that Swedish officers would not be allowed to serve in the Persian army has not been verified and the latest reports are that the officers left for St. Petersburg, Russia, last month, where they will sign their contracts. They are to receive each 12,000 crowns a year for their military services.

The Social Democrats are planning the establishment of a large co-operative fisheries organization, which will include all the fishing industries of the country.

NORWAY.

A Norwegian correspondent states that the biggest salmon fishway in Norway was recently completed at Malang falls, on the Maal river, south of Tromsoe, in the northern part of the country. It was started in 1908 and is 14,000 feet in length, having been built through the solid mountain wall. The expense has been borne partly by the national government and partly by the commune. The salmon fishing has been poor in the Maal river, owing to the unfavorable condition of the spawning beds below the cataracts. Above the cataracts are excellent spawning beds, but the salmon could not reach them because of the abruptness of the falls, which are seventy feet in height. Now that the salmon will be able to reach these beds through the new fishway it is believed that the Maal river will become an excellent place for salmon fishing and the money spent on the fishway will doubtless prove a good investment.

Three Norwegian sailors were assaulted on the coast of Tunis, on the north coast of Africa, when the Norwegian steamer Avona anchored in the Tunis harbor. The sailors were assaulted while ashore by natives. One of the sailors, Harald Johansen, was fatally wounded and died shortly afterwards. Companions from the ship came to the rescue of the other two sailors, who were safely taken aboard, but both had received serious injuries.

DENMARK.

The ocean liner United States of the Scandinavian-American line experienced an exceptionally perilous journey before reaching Copenhagen Nov. 8. The worst sea was encountered between Scotland and Skagerak and for seven hours the ship was battling in a most furious hurricane the like of which the officers of the big liner had not witnessed for many a day. The captain was compelled to change the course entirely and for about seven hours the big ship cut the furious onslaught of the waves direct. The ship suffered no damage, however, and everything was well with the passengers on reaching Copenhagen. The sailors and officers of the ship stated, however, that it was the most perilous crossing of the Atlantic that they had ever experienced.

General William Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, who is visiting Denmark, says the Danish system of small land holdings has given him an idea which he hopes to utilize in England. The commander owns some extensive tracts of land which he will divide into five acre holdings and on which he will build houses and place cattle. These little farms he will let to unemployed laborers. For the first two years a tenant will pay nothing, but after that he is to pay until he owns the place. General Booth considers the small land holding system one of the most beneficial institutions of modern times.

HAVE BATTLE WITH MOOSE

Hunters Saved When Animal's Leg Catches in Tree.

Louis Quatley and Edward Hinden of Hibbing arrived from a hunting trip with the story of a remarkable adventure with a bull moose near West Two lakes. The moose pursued the hunters, who took refuge behind a tree.

The enraged animal struck viciously at the men in an effort to reach them, and in so doing caught its right foreleg in the crotch of a small tree. The moose was unable to get its leg free and one of the hunters killed it by cutting its throat.

Minnesota State Official Dead.

George Welsh, state immigration commissioner, is dead at his home in St. Paul. Death was not unexpected, as he has been suffering with typhoid fever for two weeks and had not shown signs of improvement. Mr. Welsh was appointed state immigration commissioner by the state immigration board in 1907, when the department was first organized. He has held the office ever since.

WILL DROP PROSECUTION

Four Corporations Sued in Steel Trust Case Legally Dead.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 5.—Four New Jersey corporations recorded as dead in the office of the secretary of state are among the defendants in the government's dissolution suit against the United States Steel corporation. The proceedings against them probably will be dropped as the result.

The defunct corporations are the Carnegie Company of New Jersey, the National Steel company, the American Steel Hoop company and the American Sheet Steel company.

All other defendants, individual and corporate, with the exception of Edmund C. Converse, have filed appearances. John D. Rockefeller and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., sent a messenger down with their writ of appearance.
